Without a clearer image, it's challenging to provide a coherent summary or detailed interpretation of the content. It appears to be an excerpt from a legal or historical text, discussing the rights and privileges of certain groups, possibly in the context of their ability to act with impunity.

Due to the nature of the content and the quality of the image, a precise representation as plain text is not feasible.
In S. Mag. the court will never change the Venus on the common affidavit that the words were spoken in another county, because a scandal raised on a peep of the realm reflects on him through the whole kingdom; and he is a person of so great notoriety, that there is no need to confine it to his own: it is a matter of common knowledge among his neighbourhood. Carth. 400. Salts. 668.

As in the case of Vicount Stanford v. Nedham, where the action was laid in London, and the defendant moved to change the Venus, for that he was prohibited to stay in London, having been in arms against the king; but the motion was denied, the plaintiff being a peer of parliament then sitting at Windsor, and has election to lay his action where it is most convenient for himself; and there is the less reason for removing it, because the action is as well on behalf of the king as himself. 1 Lev. 56. 1 Vid. 415. 2 Med. 216.

But in Haining v. Sheriff and Graham, the court in S. Mag. on a special affidavit of the plaintiff's power and interest in the county where the action was laid, made a rule for changing the Venus; but note, that the books which report and cite this case, mention it as a cafe of the times, and that it was owing to the great influence that Lord had in the city of London that the court varied from the general rule, and which rule hath ever since, notwithstanding this case, been adhered to. 2 F. & C. 553. Shin. 40. 2 Shaw. 200.

It hath been held, that the affidavit, which appoints that S. Mag. for bringing a writ of Error in the Exchequer chamber, does not extend to S. Mag. Civ. 586. Also it hath been held, that the Statute 27 Eliz. for bringing a writ of Error in the Exchequer chamber does not extend to this action. 4. Cor. 385. 1 Sid. 143.

It hath been held, that in an action of S. Mag. field bail is not required. 3 Med. 41. Hat. Rep. 640.

It hath been held, that no colls are to be given the plaintiff on his obtaining a verdict. 2 Shaw. 506.

Sheeton. See Parburrs.

Stavage. (Sce Stavagium.) It is otherwise called Seavunge, Stauwu and Sheetauing, may be deduced from the Saxon, Staunw, offender, and is a kind of toll or custom exacted by mayors, sheriffs, &c. of merchant strangers, for wares flewed or offered to sale within their precincts, which is prohibited by the Statute 15 H. 7. 8. In a charter of Henry the second to the city of Canterbury, it is written Scawinga, and (in Mon. Angl. 2 par. fol. 980.) this word is Scawinge.

Seavenger. (From the Eblen Scawk, to scrape.)

Two of every parish within London and the suburbs are yearly chosen into this office, who hire men called Rakers, and call to clean the streets, and carry away the dirt and filth thereof, mentioned 14 Cor. 2 c. 1 p. 2. Cowell. ed. 1727.

The duty of Seavengers, 2 Will. & M. 2. 3. sect. 9. How appointed in towns, 1 Ges. 1 b. 2 c. 52. sect. 9. 9 Ges. 2 c. 18. f. 3.

Stritiban, (Saxon) A pyrate or thief. L. L. Ethel. apud. Brompwm.

Strippa falls. An ancient measure of corn, the quantity now not known. Et quinque Scoppa falls per annum de fainin mei de Witsestum, Mon. Angl. 2 par. fol. 824. b.

Strorum, A barn or granary. It is mentioned in Legistrarium, p. 862.

Strivare. Small chest, as Scoppa sigraturum, a chest of arms.

Strumpet, A small ditty or compunction; and some customary restraints were obliged to pen up their cattle at night in the pound or yard of their Lord, for the benefit of their dogs; or if they did not do, they paid a small Dung or Strumpet, i.e. Dung peny, or money in lieu of dung.

If a man signified much or little. In some parts of the North they still call cow-dung by the name of cow-froom, and in Witsestum a fargy borth, is a nifty, dung-gildewe. Cowell. ed. 1727.

Stumey, The name of one who collected the Stowage money, which was sometimes done with extortion and great oppression. Cowell. ed. 1727.

Stritch.
The Commons pray that order may be taken against the horrible vice of.usury, and termed Schisto, and practiced by the clergy as well as the laity.

Schrift, A. little bell which was formerly used in the monasteries, and often mentioned in our histories. Concrete, ed. 1727.

Schrift, A. See Sir-mans. A thief. LL. The Reg. upon Brompton. See Scripture.

Schrift, A. See Sir-mans. A thief.

Sch объясняю, A. proper word in the Latin, and often used in the sentences.

Schools. None shall keep a schoolmaster, or teach school, without the bishop's licence, 23 El. c. 1. 16 & 7. 1. j. 1. c. 4. f. 9. 15 & 14. Car. 2. c. 4. f. 9. A grammar-school erected at Northleach in Gloucestershire, 4 j. 1. c. 7. Qualifications of schoolmasters and scholars.

Schild, A. An advers, signifies, that is to say, to wit; and hath been often used in law proceedings. Sir John Haring, in his exposition of this word, says, it is not a directe and separate clause, but intermediae; neither is it a substantive clause of itself; but is rather to suffer in the fentence of another, and to particularize that which was too general before, or direct the which was too gross, or to explain that which was doubtful and obscure; and it must neither increase nor diminish, for it gives nothing of itself; but it may make a restriction, where the precedent words are not so very express but that they may be restrained.

Hill. 171, 172.

Schrift, A. A word judicial, most commonly to call a man to flew cause to the court whence it is issued, why execution of a judgment paied should not be made out. This writ is not granted until a year and a day be elapsed after a judgment given. Old Nat. Brev. fol. 151. Seire facias upon a fine lies not, but within the same time after the first levied, otherwise it is the same with the writ of Habare facias jexnham. Wilt Symb. part 2. tit. Finis. sect. 137. and 24. E. 3. flot. 5. cap. 2, and 30. Eliz. c. 7. Other diversities of this writ you may find in the table of the Register judicial and Original. See also Ralph's Entries, verb. Seire facias. Crowil.

1. Of the nature of the writ, and in what cases it is a proper remedy.

2. Of the seire facias to reviewing judgments, and after what time necessary.

3. Of the seire facias in recognizances and statutes.

1. Of the nature of the writ, and in what cases it is a proper remedy.

A seire facias is deemed a judicial writ, and founded on some matter of record, as judgment, recognizances and letters patent, on which it lies to enforce the execution of them, or to vacate or fet them aside; and th'o it be a judicial writ of execution, yet it is so far in nature of an original, that the defendant may plead to it, and is in that respect considered as an action; and therefore it is held, that a release of all actions, or a release of all executions, is a good bar to a seire facias. Lit. ject. 525. Civ. Lit. 290. b. 291. e. F. N. B. 267.

But tho' it be held that a seire facias is in nature of an original, yet it hath been adjudged, that no writ of error lies into the Exchequer chamber on a judgment given in B. R. courts, but the flature, 17 Eliz. cap. 8. which gives the writ of error, mentioning only suits or actions of debt, detinue, covenant, account, actions upon the cafe, ejectiones firmas, or trespass. Civ. Car. 285. 300. 464. 1. Rel. Rep. 264. 1. Pent. 38. 1. Salt. 263. Allo it was formerly held, that the plaintiff could not in a seire facias, both; but this is now remedied by the flature 8 & Will. 5. cap. 11. Duf. 95. 3 Duf. 322.

If a bill of exceptions be tendered to a judge, and he signs it and dies, a seire facias lies against his executors or administrators to certify it. 4. Law. 438.

So if a seire facias be laid, who at the time of the outlawry was beyond sea in the king's service, and he brings a writ of error to reverse this outlawry, and obtains a certificate of the marshal of the king's loth, (as he ought to do) in this case, notwithstanding the man shall die, yet may be affigned the fame for error, and upon filing the certificate have a seire facias to the execution or administrators of the Marshal. 2. Inst. 428. Vide n. Cuts. 1509.

A seire facias lies against a tresser which levies money on a seire facias, and retains it in his hands. Holt 32. Cr. fac. 514. 1. And. 247. Godb. 276.

So a seire facias may be affixed on the party at the justice seat of a forest. Civ. Car. 409. Lies to have execution of damages recovered in appeal. Cr. fac. 549.

Upon an Ewangevit returned by the tresser, a seire facias lies against the pledges in a repliace, in plante in the tresser's court, confirmed by the buggings, and to f. B. by Certissure. Comb. 1. That a seire facias lies against the tresser for taking insufficient pledges in repliace. Hoat. 77.

If one hath judgment in a quare impedit, and after, and before execution, the party is outlawed, the king may have a seire facias to execute the judgment, the king having privy enough in this case to enue execution, because the thing as it was in the plaintiff vested in the king. Mor. 241. Cr. Eliz. 44. 325. Where having the thing gives a sufficient privy to maintain a seire facias. Kelso. 168, 169.

On a motion to discharge an outlawry which was pur- dased by the king, it was held that it could not be done on motion, but that the party must have judgment on the seire facias. on the act. Still. 348. On a motion for a seire facias to avoid a judgment, made void by the general act of pardon, 12 Car. 2. the court doubted whether this was to be done by seire facias or audita querella. 1 Sid. 231.

Where one obtained judgment, and after had judg- ment in a seire facias, thereupon, and then became a bankrupt, and the original judgment was assigned by the commissioners to S. S. upon motion, it was entered to intitle him to the benefit of the judgment in the seire facias, without bringing a new one. 5. Med. 88.

A seire facias brought by the successor of a president of the college of physicians in London, upon a judgment in debt obtained by him upon the statute 14 & 15. H. 8, against praifiding phycik in London without a licence, but died before execution; it was objected on demurors, that the seire facias ought to have been brought by the executor or administrator of him who recovered: but without argumen to the contrary, it was held, that the faccessor might well maintain the action, for the suit is given to the plaintiff by a private statute, and the suit is to be brought by the president for the time being; and he having recovered in right of the corporation, the law shall transfer that duty to the faccessor of him who recovered. Civ. fac. 159. Dr. Atkins. 45. will at ease be held for a fine in the act, for a fine which was laid at Common law; but this doubt, says my Lord Coke, arose for want of distinguishing between personal and real actions of outlawry.

At Common law, if after judgment given, or recogni- zance acknowledged, the plaintiff force out no execution within the year, the plaintiff or his conruse was driven to his original upon the judgment, and the seire facias in personal actions was given by the statute of Wifum. 2. cap. 45.

But in real actions, or upon a fine, though no execu- tion was found out within a year after the judgment given or fine levied, yet after the year a seire facias lay for the land, or, because no new original lay upon the judgment of fine. 2. Inst. 470.

8 A. seire facias.
A. fei. fa. lay as well in mixed as in actions, as upon a judgment in an affid. So it lay upon a judgment in a mixed action. 2 Sa. 51. 600.

It hath been adjudged, that if there be judgment in ejciement, and no execution sued therein in a year and a day, an habere facias passim cannot be issued out without a fei facias; and Holt Ch. J. said, that as to the possession of the land an ejciament was real, and the only remedy for years bad, and that a recovery therein bound the right of inheritance. Salk. 258. 280. Camp. 250. Parry 64. and see 1 Sid. 307. 351. 2 Keb. 327. Slin. 161. 3 Lev. 100. Linot. 1268.

But tho' after a year and a day there can be no execution of a judgment without a fei facias, yet if the plaintiff hath been delayed by writ of right, he may take out execution thereupon in a year and a day after the judgment affirmed. 5 Ca. 88. Mar. 566. pt. 772. Cre. Eliz. 706. Godbl. 372. Palm. 44.

And therefore it hath been adjudged, that if a man recovers debts or damages in B. R. and after within the year the defendant brings a writ of error in the Exchequer chamber, where the first judgment is affirmed after the year writ, the recovery may be continued to the next year and a day after the judgment affirmed, without a fei. fa. for the affirmance is a new judgment. 1 Rol. Atr. 899. Lan. 20. Dennis v. Drake. Cre. Eliz. 416. S. P. 3.

So if after the year after the recovery the defendant brings a writ of error, and the judgment is affirmed, the before said judgment shall not be the cause to put to his fei. yet this affirmance is a new judgment, and the recoverer may have within the year after the affirmance a fei. fa. or opitias without a fei facias. 1 Rol. Atr. 899. and see Palm. 449. Litch 193.

So if he be nonuit in the writ of error, or if the writ of error be discontinued; for though in these cafes there is not any new judgment given, yet the bringing of the writ of error will revive the first judgment. Cre. Juc. 354. 1 Rol. Rep. 104. 113.

If A. recovers against B. in B. R. damages and cost, and thereupon hath judgment against the bail after a fei facias, &c. and after b. and the bail join in a writ of error upon the statute in the Exchequer chamber, and after the year and day pales, in this case, notwithstanding this writ of error, the court of B. R. may grant execution for this a void writ of error, and as if no writ of error had been brought, and therefore it shall be no continuance of the first judgment; but the year and day being past, the plaintiff cannot have execution without a fei. fa. though the year passed after the writ brought. 1 Rol. Atr. 899. Tun. in Cor. 1. Pau. 2.

In a judgment there is a cepti executia for a year after the judgment, the plaintiff within the year may take out execution without a fei. fa. 6 Mod. 14. 288. Parry 64. Salk. 600.

Also it hath been held, that where execution hath been taken out after the year and day, it is not void, but voidable only. 3 Leon. 404. Salk. 273.

But though it seems agreed that the execution being lawful, if the plaintiff may after the year and day take out execution without a fei. fa. Yet it hath been held, that if the execution is laid by injunction, tho' the acct of the defendant, yet the court will not take notice thereof. 6 Mod. 28. Salk. 322. and see 8. Minjur.

If judgment be given in debt, and no execution sued therein in a year, yet the plaintiff may after an award of an electum on the rule of the judgment as of the same term with the judgment, and thence continue it by virescomes non mifti breve; to hold on a motion to set aside the execution; and tho' the court said that an electum ought to be actually taken out within the year, yet being informed by the clerks of the court, that it had been the practice for many years to make such entry, &c. it was laid to be the law of the court, and they ordered the execution to stand. 1 Ca. 283. Symm. v. Green. 2 Stow. 235. S. P. Camp. 232. S. P.

If the demandant or plaintiff taketh his procs of execution within the year, tho' be not tarried within the year, yet if he continue the same, he may have execution at any time after the year. 2 Inf. 471. Ca. Lit. 290. b. and see 2 Leon. 77. 78. 87. 3 Leon. 159. 4 Leon. 44. 1 Sid. 59. 1 Keb. 159. 6 Mod. 288.

If the plaintiff delay the executio of a writ of inquiry till a year after the interlocutory judgment, he cannot have execution of a fei. fa. Calk in B. R. Pash. 13 of 8. 3. How v. Cates. In the cafe of the King there need not be any fei. fa. after the year and day. 2 Salk. 603.

If a judgment be above ten years standing, the plaintiff cannot sue for a fei facias without a motion in court; it being held, a ten years bar; but the plaintiff may take out execution after the fei facias without a motion at side bar. Note; after such motion, and judgment revived by fei. fa. the defendant dies before execution, the plaintiff must sue for a new fei. fa., but may have it without motion, for the judgment was revived before. Salk. 356. Hardjiff v. Barn. After a judgment, if the plaintiff within the year for a fei. fa. be not had, the plaintiff may take out a comple within the year till he hath a new judgment in the fei. fa. 1 Rol. Atr. 900. Trin. 13 Car. 1. Roberts v. Pfling.

3. Of the fei facias on recognizances and statutes.

Recognizances and statutes are considered as judgments, being obligations solemnly acknowledged, and entered of record, and the fei. fa. on those is the judicial writ and proper remedy the conuse hath; but herein we must diftinguish between recognizances at Common law and statutes merchant, &c. for upon the former, if the conuse did not take out execution within a year after the day of payment assign'd, the recognizor was obliged to commence the suit again by original; the law presuming the debt might have been paid, if they did not sue execution within the year after the money became payable; but this law is altered by Westm. 2. cap. 49. by which the conuse hath a fei. fa. given him to revive the judgment, and put it in execution, if the conuse cannot file it by pleading such matters as the law judges sufficient for that end, such as a release, &c. but the conuse of a fluate merchant, &c. may at any time sue execution on them without the delay or charge of a fei. fa. Lit. R. 89. That a comple lies not on a recognizance, but only a fei. fa. 1 Brown 83. Ca. Lit. 297. 2 Inf. 409. F. N. 92. 17. 17.

Also as to recognizances at Common law, and statutes and recognizances introduced by statute law, we must further diftinguish, that if on the first the conuse dies before execution sued, his executor shall not sue it, even within the year, without bringing a fei. fa. against others, because the law requires the debt might have been paid to the tector, and therefore will not suffer the debtor to be molest'd, unless it appear that he hath omitted to perform the judgment; and this is to be done by fei. fa. brought by the executor, for the alteration of the perion altereth the proceeds at Common law; but this tending to delay the fei. fa. is taken away by the act of recognizances by statute law, by the severall acts of parliament which introduced them, and therefore upon the death of the conuse of a fluate merchant, &c. his executors may come into Chancery, and upon their producing the said recognizament and the statute, shall have execution without a fei. fa. as the tector him self might. 2 Inf. 393. 47. Br. 2 Salk. 34. 6 Mod. 14. 450. &c. and how to beassign'd, see 3 Bunt. 320. Cre. fai. 415. Stil. 369.

If a man acknowledges a recognizance to be paid at a day within the year after the date of the recognizance, in in this case he may have execution by fi. fa. or eject within the year after the day of payment, the' the year be from the date of the recognizance. 21 Ed. 3.
22. b. 1 Rel. Atr. 899, 900. 2 Infj. 471.
If A. enters into a recognizance or statute, &c. to B.
and the sum is payable at three several days, at 20l.
at each day, the whole debt being 60l. when the first day of payment is lapsed, the comee may have execution for 20l. immediately, and if for the rest as it becomes due, without waiting for the last day of payment, as he must have done if the debt had been due on bond;
and this holds as well on recognizances at Common law as upon statutes; and the reason is because they are in nature of several several judgments. 2 Rel. Atr. 468.
29. 7. 2.
If a man recovers an annuity, he shall have execution for every time that occurs after by fi. fa. or eject within in the year after the time incurred, the' the year be paid from the judgement, but not after the year without a fi. fa. 1 Rel. Atr. 900. 2 Infj. 471. Salt.
328, 600.
If two acknowledge a recognizance of 100l. quilinet erum in fields, that is jointly and severally, the comee may sue severally; or fi. for against the comee upon such recognizance. 2 Infj. 395.
For more learning on this subject, see 4 Bac. Abr. and Scirefutum. The annual tax or prepayment paid to the sheriff for holding the alices or county courts. — In pistis pro quidem permisso vento Scirefutum annuatim 15. see —Poth. Amis. p. 573.
Scolds. Are troublesome women, who by their braw-lings and wrangling among their neighbours, break the public peace, and increase discord. Stat. 51 Hen. 3.
They are indigible in the sheriff's turn, and punished by the cucking-stool. Grt. Kith. 11. 2 Hawk. P. C.
67.
Stat and Lot, (Sax. Scoto, part, & List, i. e. Sort) Signifies a customary contribution laid upon all subjects, according to their ability. Spelm. Nor are these old words grown obsolete; for whoever in like manner (though not by equal proportion) are afflicted to any contribution, are generally paid to pay Scat and Lot. Stat.
23 H. 8. cap. 9.
Scotai or Scotace, Is where any officer of a forest keeps an alcoheu within the forest, by colour of his ofcourse, causing people to come to his house, and there spend their money for fear of his displeasure: it is compounded of foot and ale, which by transposition of the words is either called an alefoot or an alehoose. This word is used in the Chater of the Forset, cap. 8. Nullus forsetarius facit Scotatalis, vel garrau collegit, vel aliquam collectam faciat, &c.
Manwood 216.
Scotare, Those tenants are said Scotare, whose land are subject to pay foot. Adv. Ang. ton. 1. p. 875.
Scotland, Merchandize of the staple not to be carried into Scotland, 27 Ed. 5. b. 2. cap. 12.
Carrying arms and victuals into Scotland prohibited, 7
R. 2. c. 16.
Except to Berwick, 15 R. 2. c. 7. Repealed, 4 Jac.
1. c. 1.
M Merchantize carried to or from Scotland, shall be cu-floned at Berwick, or Carlisle, 2 Ed. 4. c. 8.
Scotmen not made denizens, warned to depart the realm, 7 H. 7. c. 7, repealed, 4 Jac. 1. c. 1.
Selling horses in Scotland made felony, 23 H. 8. c.
32. H. 8. c. 6. 1 Ed. c. 7, repealed, 4 Jac. 1.
c. 1.
Commissioners appointed to treat with Scotland, 1 Jac.
c. 1. 3. 3 Jac. 1. c. 3. Repeal of the hostile laws, 4
Jac. 1. c. 1.
Felony committed in Scotland by English men, to be tried in the northern counties, 4 Jac. 1. c. 1. 7 Jac.
c. 1. c. 1. 23. Gr. Englishmen committing felonies in Scotland to be sent thither, 7 Jac. 1. c. 1.

Pacification between England and Scotland, 16 Car.
c. 17. Corn, salt and fifth, may be imported from Scotland, 12 Car. 2. c. 18. f. 16.
Commissioneers appointed to settle the intercourse of trade between England and Scotland, 19 Car. 2. c. 13.
22 Geo. 2. c. 9.
Commissioneers appointed to treat of the union, 1 Ann.
J. 1. c. 14. 3 Geo. 2. c. 37.
Reliefs on the subjects of Scotland, 3 & 4 Ann.
c. 7. repealed, 4 & 5 Ann. c. 3.
Articles of the union with Scotland, 5 Ann. c. 8.
Acts anent peace and war repealed, 6 Ann. c. 2.
For improving the union, 6 Ann. c. 6. 7 Ann.
c. 11.
Ac. Method preferred for granting licences to re-tall ale, &c. in Scotland, 29 Geo. 2. c. 12. f. 10. 65.
Arms. In the custody of suspected persons may be seized, 1 Geo. 2. c. 20. f. 10.
For disarming the Highlands, 1 Geo. 1. c. 54. 11 Geo.
c. 1. 26. 19 Geo. 2. c. 39. 21 Geo. 2. c. 34.
Sterlingshire included, 26 Geo. 2. c. 22. f. 2.
The use of the Highland dress restrained, 19 Geo.
c. 39. f. 17. 20 Geo. 2. c. 31. 21 Geo. 2. c. 32.
The acts for disarming the Highlands extended to particular parts of the shire of Stirling, 26 Geo. 2. c. 29.
Ball. Ball in criminal prosecutions increased, 11
Geo. 1. c. 2. f. 11.
Bent. Penalty of cutting bent in Scotland, 15 Geo.
c. 2. f. 33. f. 9.
Brandy. Aquo vita excepted from duties, 9 Geo.
c. 23. f. 22. 19 Geo. 2. c. 12. f. 27. 24 Geo. 2.
c. 40. f. 26.
Bread. Regulations to prevent adulteration thereof,
2 Geo. 3. c. 6.
Calendar. Courts of Se neck and Exchanger, and markets, &c. Not to be continued according to the new calendar, 24 Geo. 2. c. 23. f. 4.
Coals. Carried from Stirling to Dunbar exempt from duties, 8 Ann. c. 4. f. 3. 9 Ann. c. 6. f. 10.
Imported. Ireland liable to fame duties as from England, 9 Ann. c. 22. f. 90.
Corporation. The act intitled anentists witchcraft repeated, 9 Geo. 2. c. 5. f. 2.
Corn. Power given to the judges to suspend prohibitory laws, 14 Geo. 2. c. 7.
Debatement on corn exported payable in three months,
26 Geo. 2. c. 15. f. 6.
Courts. The attendance of the nobility upon the circuit courts, discharged, 8 Ann. c. 16.
The act discharging the yule vacancy repealed, 10 Ann.
c. 13. this act repealed, 1 Geo. 1. f. 2. c. 28.
The salaries of the judges charged upon the customs and excise, 1 Geo. 1. f. 28. f. 158.
Circuit courts to be held once a year, 10 Ann. c. 33.
For the trial and admission of the Lords of Sessions, 10
Geo. 1. c. 19.
Court of Seffion may adjourn in December, 3 Geo. 2.
c. 6.
Court of Seffion adjourned on account of the rebellion,
19 Geo. 2. c. 7.
Regulations of the sheriff's court, 20 Geo. 2. c. 43. f. 29.
Of the circuit courts, 20 Geo. 2. c. 43. f. 31. 21
Geo. 2. c. 19. f. 13.
Advection of caufes under £12 value discharged, 20
Geo. 2. c. 43. f. 38.
The Judges salaries augmented, 32 Geo. 2. c. 35. f. 22.
Judges impowered to make adjournments, 2 Geo. 3.
c. 27.
Criminal. Persons who set on fire woods on fire, to be punished as wilful firebreakers, 1 Geo. 1. c. 48. f. 4.
Capital or corporal punishment not to be inflicted till 30 or 40 days after sentence, 11 Geo. 1. c. 26. f. 10.
Corporal punishment may be inflicted after 8 or 12 days,
2 Geo. 3. c. 32. f. 2.
Affittments may be made for the charges of criminal prosecution, 11 Geo. 1. c. 26. f. 11.

Custom.
S C O

Cabinet. Laws of the cufions extended to Scotland,

The crown may appoint further ports for the landing of goods, 6 Ann. c. 2. f. 18.

For a treaty with the proprietors of sugar houses, 1 Geo. 1. c. 19. f. 19.

The privileges of the sugar houses purchased, 6 Geo. 1. c. 4. f. 6.

See Cufions.

Ecclesiastics, A duty of 2 pennisons Scots on ale, &c. granted to the town, continued for 19 years, 3 Geo. 1. c. 9.

The duties extended, &c. 9 Geo. 1. c. 14. 25 Geo. 2. c. 10.

Evidence. Petty-port cufions described, 1 Geo. 2. c. 22.

Regulations for improving the city, 26 Geo. 2. c. 30. Equivalent. No equivalent debentures to be flopped, 3 Geo. 1. c. 14.

Evidence. Method of taking evidence in writing, in cases not capital, taken away, 21 Geo. 2. c. 15. f. 7.

Evidence of offenders admitted in trials for theft of cattle, 21 Geo. 2. c. 34.

Exchequer. New court of Exchequer constituted, 6 Ann. c. 25.

Wharftand and Lammas terms, when to begin and end, 7 Ann. c. 15.

Excise. What duty shall be paid on Scotch two-penny ale, 8 Ann. c. 7. f. 3.

Excommunication. No forfeiture incurred by an excommunication by the church judicatories, 10 Ann. c. 7.

Fishery. Commissions to be appointed for applying part of the equivalent for the improvement of the fisheries and manufactures, 13 Geo. 1. c. 30.

Penalty of killing looters on the coaft of Scotland in spawning time, 9 Geo. 2. c. 33. f. 4.

Encouragement given to fhirfry in Scotland, 29 Geo. 2. c. 13.

Forfeited estates. Heritable jurisdictions, &c. forfeited, annexed to the crown, 1 Geo. 1. c. 50. f. 31.

Vefted in the King, 20 Geo. 2. c. 41.

Forfeited estates in Scotland annexed to the crown, unlikenenly, 25 Geo. 2. c. 41.

The crown enabled to purhafhe superiorities in Scotland, 25 Geo. 2. c. 41. f. 7.

Rents of forfeited estates in Scotland to be applied to the improving the Highlands, 25 Geo. 2. c. 41. f. 14.

Parishes may be divided in the forfeited estates, 25 Geo. 2. c. 41. f. 25.

When claims on the barony of Strouwan are to be entered, 26 Geo. 2. c. 29.

Court of Seffion to determine the claims of creditors, 31 Geo. 2. c. 16.

Provisions for relief of vaflalls of estates annexed to the crown, 2 Geo. 2. c. 17.

Fund. Certain yearly funds payable in lieu of equivalents settled by the treaty of Union, 5 Geo. 1. c. 20.

23 Geo. 2. c. 21.

Game. Penalty of having game without having leave of a qualified perfon, 24 Geo. 2. c. 34.

Seal for killing game, 3 Geo. 3. c. 21.

Habes corpus. Perfons having committed any capital offence in Scotland, may be bent thither for trial, 31 Geo. 2. c. 16.

Highways. Laws concerning the highways before the Union, confirmed, 5 Geo. 1. c. 30.

Additional toll on waggons drawn by four horses, 32 Geo. 2. c. 15.

Houfe. Surveyors in Scotland to view houses, &c. 21 Geo. 2. c. 10. f. frequent. 26 Geo. 2. c. 7.

Jurifdictions. The heritable jurisdictions reftored, 20 Geo. 2. c. 43. 21 Geo. 2. c. 19. 28 Geo. 2. c. 7.

Juflicy. Method of exhibiting criminal informations before the Lords of Juflicy, 8 Ann. c. 16. f. 4.

Circuit courts to be kept but once a year, 10 Ann. c. 33.

Judges indemnified for not performing the Northern circuit in May 1746, 19 Geo. 2. c. 39.

King. Heirs of Taiflz, &c. empowered to fell to the crown, 20 Geo. 2. c. 51.

The annual revenues of Scotland continued, 1 Geo. 3. c. 2.

Linen. Length and breadth of Scotch linen, &c. 10 Ann. c. 21.

No perfon to import bad linned, 13 Geo. 2. c. 26.

24 Geo. 2. c. 31.

Stamp-dUTY not to flamp linen before taking the oath of office, 18 Geo. 2. c. 24.

Encouragement given to the manufacturers of linens in the Highlands, 26 Geo. 2. c. 20.

Malt. The malt tax to be deduced out of the price of ale, mentioned in the seventh article of the Union, 12 Geo. 1. c. 4. f. 62.

Corftal duty on malt, &c. 33 Geo. 2. c. 7. f. 14.

Cyder for diffilling, and for private use, exempt, vid. ibid. f. 11 & 23.

Manufacturers. Offences in defતuating artificers, to be tried in the court of Juflicy or Courts, 5 Geo. 1. c. 27. f. 5.

Marriage. The marriage act not to extend to Scotland, 26 Geo. 2. c. 33. f. 18.

Minifters. To what rates minifters, heads of colleges, &c. shall be fubjeél, 17 Geo. 2. c. 11.

Minifters may chufe to which of the four yearly rates they will be fubjeél, 22 Geo. 2. c. 21.

Money. Part of coinage duties appropriated to pay faholic and officers of the mines in Scotland, &c. 7 Ann. c. 34. f. 2.

Nonconformity. Epifcopal congregations to be protected, 10 Ann. c. 7.

Minifters to pray for the king, &c. 10 Ann. c. 7. f. 11.

Sheriffs, &c. to enquire of epifcopal meetings, 19 Geo. 2. c. 28. 21 Geo. 2. c. 34.

Oaths. Perfons in office to take the oath of abjuration, 4 Ann. c. 14. 8 Ann. c. 15. 10 Ann. c. 7.

1 Geo. 1. c. 13. 1 Geo. 1. c. 20. 5 Geo. 1. c. 29. 19 Geo. 2. c. 39. 20 Geo. 2. c. 43. 21 Geo. 2. c. 34.

Outlawry. Proceedings in outlawry for treason, 22 Geo. 2. c. 49.

Papift. The power of punishing trafficking papifts given to the Lords of Juflicy, 12 Ann. f. 2. c. 14. f. 12.

The act 1 W. & M. c. 15. for diftring papifts extended to Scotland, 1 Geo. 1. c. 26.

Parliament. How the 16 peers are to be elected, 6 Ann. c. 20.

Regulations of elections of members of the house of commons, 12 Ann. f. 1. c. 6. 7 Geo. 2. c. 16. 16 Geo. 2. c. 11.

Penalty of town counfellors separating from the majority at the annual elections of magiftrates, 7 Geo. 2. c. 16. f. 6. 16 Geo. 2. c. 11. f. 23.

Patronage. Right of patrons restored, 10 Ann. c. 12.

Fut devolution not paid by prefentation of a perfon not qualified, 5 Geo. 1. c. 29. f. 8.

Poyning. Directions for officers poyning goods, 2 Geo. 2. c. 43. f. 28.

Prifons. Regulations of prifons in Scotland, 20 Geo. 2. c. 43. f. 18.

Habeas corpus majesty's forts lawful prifons, 21 Geo. 2. c. 19. f. 9.

Salt. Scotch salt landed before the entry, forfeited, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 31. f. 45.

No salt of the produce of England to be imported from Scotland, 27 Geo. 3. c. 14. f. 1. f. 7.

Laws to prevent frauds in importing and exporting fish or goods continued to Scotland, 7 Ann. c. 11. f. 5.

Regulations for importing Scotch salt, 5 Geo. 1. c. 18. f. 20.

Servants wages not to be paid in falt, 8 Geo. 2. c. 12.

Schools. For erecting schools in the Highlands, 1 Geo. 1. c. 31. f. 16. 4 Geo. 1. c. 8. f. 32.

Private schools to be registered, &c. 19 Geo. 2. c. 39. Schoolmasters to take the oaths, &c. 21 Geo. 2. c. 34. f. 12.

Soffici.?
Suff. The nomination, trial, and admission of Lords of Suff. 10 Geo. 1. c. 19. 3 Geo. 2. c. 32.

Court may adjourn, not exceeding 10 days, 3 Geo. 2. c. 32. 19 Geo. 2. c. 7.

Sheriffs. Sheriffs depute, &c. not to be officers to any subject, 19 Geo. 2. c. 7. 15 years to hold their offices so long as his Majesty shall appoint, afterwards ad vitam aut culpam, 28 Geo. 2. c. 7.

Soldiers. May be quartered in Scotland as they might by the laws in force at the time of the Union, 33 Geo. 2. c. 6. s. 31. 45. 33 Geo. 2. c. 6. s. 24.

Scribers. Premium for importing maps to England, 2 Geo. 2. c. 35. 12. 5.

Tailors. Heirs of tailors may fall to the crown, 2 Geo. 2. c. 50 & 51.

Tax. Commissions of land-tax to levy duty on places and pensions, 3 Geo. 5. c. 52. 14. 28.

Testaments. For making imposts on land-tax in Scotland, 33 Geo. 2. c. 1. 124.

Tenants. Encouragement to vassals continuing dutiful, 1 Geo. 1. c. 20. 21 Geo. 2. c. 32. 17.

The service of personal attendance discharged, 1 Geo. 5. c. 54. f. 10.

Then care by ward-building, &c. taken away, 20 Geo. 2. c. 59.

Exchequer on harington and denomination taken away, 20 Geo. 2. c. 50. f. 11.

King to hold principality and grant entries, 25 Geo. 2. c. 6.

Title-deeds. For relief where title-deeds were imple- bided by the rebels, 20 Geo. 2. c. 25. 21 Geo. 2. c. 17.

Treason. The same crimes treason as in England, 7 Ann. c. 21.

Suspected persons in Scotland may besummated to appear at Edinburgh, 1 Geo. 1. c. 1. 20. 6. 19 Geo. 2. c. 2.

Qualifications of jurors, 19 Geo. 2. c. 9. f. 4.

For trials of high treason, &c. committed in the High- lands, 21 Geo. 2. c. 19. f. 34.

Directions for proceedings to outlawry for high treason, 22 Geo. 2. c. 48.

Wills. Proportional duties in Scotland, 30 Geo. 2. c. 19. f. 15.

Woollen manufactures. Manufactures of ferges, pledggs, figngrams and flockings, regulated, 6 Geo. 1. c. 13. 10 Geo. 1. c. 18.

For the excise on ale in several towns of Scotland, sec the respective towns.

11 Scu., See Fuller's earth.

Scriptures. All profane felling at the holy scripture, or expelling any part thereof to contemn or ridicule, is punishable by fine and imprisonment. 1 Hac. P. C. 7.

Scripturists. Are mentioned in the statute against usury and excessive interest of money. 12 Ann. cap. 6. If a financier is intrusted with a bond, he may receive the interest; and if he fail, the obligee shall bear the loss: and so it is if he receive the principal, and deliver up the bond; for being intrusted with the security itself, it shall be presumed he is trusted with power to receive the principal and interest; and the giving up the bond on payment of money is a discharge thereof: but if a financier be intrusted with a mortgage-deed, he hath only authority to receive the interest, not the principal; the giving up the deed in this case not being sufficient to restore the estate, but there must be a reconveyance, \(c.\) deriv’d from Chancery. Hill. 7 Ann. s. 11. 157. 157. It is held, where a financier puts out his client’s money on a bond security, which on inquiry might have been easily found out, yet he cannot be charged in equity to answer the money; for it is here faid, no one would venture to put out money of another upon a security, if he were oblig’d to warrant and make it good, in case a los should happen, without any fraud in him. Prest. Chanc. 146. 149. See 19 Viz. 391. 289—292.

Stoutage. (Sax. Stoutengd) Was a tax or contribution, raised by those that held lands by knights’ service, towards furnishing the King’s army, at one, two, or three marks for every knight’s fee. Henry the third.

for his voyage to the holy land, a tenth granted by the clergy, and Stoutage, three marks of every knight’s fee, by the laity. Baranac, Anglica, 1 Port. fol. 211. 1. This was also levied by Henry the second, Richard the first, and King John. See Stoutage.

Stout uñtio. Was a writ that lay for the King, or other Lords, performed by bond held by the King’s service, to serve by himself, or else to send a sufficient man in his place, or pay, \(c.\) where the King intended to make a warlike expedition against the Scots or French, P. N. B. fol. 53. It is used in the Register Original, for him to recover Esgage of others, that hath either by service or fine, or by his being there, been annexed to the King. Fol. 58. b.

Stout. A French gold coin, value 2l. 4s. 4d. coined about the year 1427, in the reign of Henry the fifth. It comes from the French word Ecu, which signifies a crown, or gold money. Katherine, queen of England, had an effuence made her of sundry castles, manors, lands, &c. severally named, and valued to the sum of forty thousand Scots, every two whereof were worth a nobles: The first edition, 1677.

Stoutella. Stoutella, From Scotum. Six. Scot. Scotch, Any thing that hath been brought from that land, especially a plate or dish. Cowell, edit. 1677.

Stoutella Uercmodpharia, An alms-baskct of Stoutella, ib. 16.

Sturdum Armamentum, A coat of arms. Id. id.

Stybiotum. (Sax.) A mould for any fault; from the Sax. Sald. delictum, and tute, form. Leg. Han. Pomerum. Styba. A fine imposed on such as neglected to attend the Scourgemot court, which all tenants were bound to do. Mon. Argl. tom. 1. p. 52.

Stygeumnum, (Sax.) Was a court held twice every year (as the steward’s torn is now) by the bishop of the diocese, and the baron (in feudal fignification) or by the bishops and theirfeirs; in the time of Edward the Confessor, it was committed to the sheriffs that were immediate to the King, wherein both the ecclesiastical and temporal laws were given in charge to the country. 202. This court at first was held three times, viz. Et habetur in anno tertio Gregorii et Scrii-motus. Leg. Canut. cap. 38. But Edward the Confessor, cap. 35. appointed it to be held twelve times, et Hundreda & Wapentia duodecim in anno congreagr. Set. The sea shall be open to merchants, 18 Ed. 3. b. 2. c. 3. The King called the sea of the fea, 46 Ed. 3. The mariners of the Wold undertake to raise an army, &c. Ric. 2. c. 2.

Sea-banks. See Banks.

Strel, (Sigillum) Is a stamp engraved with a particular impression, which is fixed upon the wax that clofs letters, or affixed as a testimony. Jofh. The first sealed charter we find extant in England, is that of King Edward the Confessor upon his foundation of Woflminster Abbey, Duggdale’s Warwickefhir, fol. 138. b. Yet we read in the manuscript hificry of Woflminster, fol. 520. This charter was in use in the Saxen time, see Taylor’s History of Gloucefl, fol. 676. It is said that when it was first used, before to seal all grants with the sign of the crofs: His donations & ordinations conformeum & cruise sigillum Henricus Rex & Mathildis Regina. Monaf. 3 tom. fol. 7. And Or- dericus Vitalis tells us, That archbishop Dunfan with his suffragans, preredialrum rerum donationem facto cruce in Churta fignatam fignavit. 4. That most of the charters of the English-Saxon Kings was at the time begun or apprized by Ingulphus, and in the Assizefion, and that the crofles were all gold. But it was not so much used after the conquell. Cowell, edit. 1727. See Sigillum, Wang.

Writing. Writs touching the Comon law not to go out under any of the petty faws, 28 Ed. 1. ft. 3. c. 6.

Decrets of the papal court, void, if not kept as directed by the 17 Sc. de Apost, relig. 35 Ed. 1. ft. 1. c. 4.
SEA

Writing relating to the ealidom of March shall be sealed with the Great seal, 4 H. 7. c. 14.
The course in which the King’s grants shall pass the seal, 27 H. 6. c. 6.
Where clerk of the Privy seal to make warrants to the chancellor, 27 H. 8. c. 11. f. 2.
What fees the clerk of the signet is intituled to, 27 H.
3. c. 11. f. 4. 8.
Where fees are not payable on grants of leaves, 27 H.
8. c. 11. f. 12.
Contest:ing Great seal, &c. excepted out of general pardon, 20 Geo. 2. c. 52. f. 9.
See St. Law. See Diocen Law.
Draftr. (Signetor), is an officer in Chancery appointed by the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper of the Great seal of England, to seal the writs and instruments made in his presence.

Sealing Deeds. Makes persons parties to them; and if they are not thus sealed, it will make the deed void, and when several are bound in a bond, the pulling off the seal of one makes it void as to the others. 2 Lew. 220.

But in a deed of covenants, ‘tis held that a peron’s breaking off the seal of one of the covenanters, after making the covenant, shall avoid the deed only against himself.

Geo. Eliz. 408, 546. In case the seal of a bond be broke or eat off by rats, or it is any ways cancelled, no action can be brought on such bond, &c. 2 Bl. 219. See Bond.

Seamen. Marinners defecting the King’s service, to be imprisoned, 2 R. 2. f. 1. c. 4.
The punishment of watermen withdrawing in times of pest, 2 & 3 P. & M. c. 16. f. 8.

What mariners may take apprentices, 5 Eliz. c. 5. f. 12.

The flat. 18 H. 8. c. 19. against soldiers departing, extended to mariners, 5 El. c. 5. f. 27.

Seamen and fifterners not compellable to serve as solders, 5 El. c. 5. f. 41.

The Trinity-houle at Delford fired to set up marks, 8 El. c. 13. f. 2.

For prefting of mariners, 16 Car. 1. c. 5. c. 3. c. 26.

Against diversions by seamen, 16 Geo. 2. c. 5. 16.

Car. 2. c. 7. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 23.

Seamen declining to fight, to lose their wages and be imprisoned, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 7.

Seamen hindering theircaptain from fighting, to suffer as felons, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 9.

Seamen defending their ships, to be rewarded, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 10.

Seamen to be registered, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 21. 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 23. repeated as to registering seamen, 9 Ann. c. 21. f. 64.

Disabled to be admitted to Greenwich Hospital, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 21. f. 7. 2 & 3 Ann. c. 6. f. 19.

A duty of sixpence a month payable by seamen to Greenwich Hospital, 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 23. f. 6.

Penalty of receiving wages in fraud of a feaman or his representative, 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 41. f. 3.

A will of a seaman on the fame paper with a warrant of attorney, void, 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 41. f. 6.

Seamen defenring merchants ships, to lose their wages, 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 7. f. 17.

Seamen not to be willfully left beyond sea, 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 7. f. 18.

Parish boys may be bound or turned over to the seaman, 2 & 3 Ann.

Exempted till 18 from duty of 6d. per month to Greenwich Hospital, 2 & 3 Ann. c. 6. f. 7.

Apprentices to have protections for three years, 2 & 3 Ann. c. 6. f. 15. 13 Geo. 2. c. 17.

Vagrants to be prefted, 2 & 3 Ann. c. 6. f. 10.

Malters to have wages of apprentices prefted, 2 & 3 Ann. c. 6. f. 17.

Seamen to have their tickets when discharged or turned over, 4 Ann. c. 19. f. 10.
Malters not obliged to take apprentices under the age of thirteen, 4 Ann. c. 19. f. 16.

SEA

Apprentices not exempt from prefting after 18, if in sea-service before, 4 Ann. c. 19. f. 17.

Watermen not appearing when summoned to serve, disabled, 4 Ann. c. 19. f. 18.

Firemen exempted from the prefts, 6 Ann. c. 31. f. 2.

Seamen in America exempted from the prefts, 6 Ann. c. 37. f. 9.

Commissioners of the navy may punish disturbances by sea in the yards, 1 Geo. 1. c. 25.

Seamen maimed in fight against pirates, to be rewarded, 8 Geo. 1. c. 24. f. 5.

Penalty on seamen not fighting pirates, 8 Geo. 1. c. 24. f. 6.

Malters not to pay their men more than half their wages beyond sea, 8 Geo. 1. c. 24. f. 7. 12 Geo. 2. c. 30. f. 12.

Penalty on commanders of ships of war carrying merchandize, 8 Geo. 2. c. 24. f. 8.

Direction for the punctual payment of seamen wages, 1 Geo. 2. f. 2. c. 9. f. 6.

Bounty on convulsed money, &c. allowed to volunteer seamen, 1 Geo. 2. c. 14. 14 Geo. 2. c. 38.

Provisions against impotitions upon seamen, 1 Geo. 2. c. 14. f. 7.

Provision for seamen in foreign parts, 1 Geo. 2. c. 14. f. 12.

Seamen in the service privileged from arrests under sol.

1 Geo. 2. c. 14. f. 15. 14 Geo. 2. c. 38. f. 3.

Malters of merchant ships to contract with their seamen in writing, 2 Geo. 2. c. 35. f. 1 made perpetual, 2 Geo. 3. c. 31.

Taking mariner without such agreement, forfeits 5d. to Greenwich Hospital, 2 Geo. 2. c. 36. f. 1.

Penalties on seamen in merchant service defenting or absenting, 2 Geo. 2. c. 35. f. 5. f. 9. 10.

Penalties to be deducted from wages, 2 Geo. 2. c. 36. f. 9.

One man’s pay in 100 given to widows, 6 Geo. 2. c. 25. f. 18.

Malters ships may be navigated by three fourths foreigners in war, 13 Geo. 2. c. 3. f. 1.

Foreign seamen serving two years upon proclamation in time of war to be deemed natural subjects, 13 Geo. 2. c. 3. f. 2.

Bounty to seamen taking or destroying enemies ships of war, 13 Geo. 2. c. 4. f. 15. 17 Geo. 2. c. 34. f. 18.

Bounties exemptions from the prefts, 13 Geo. 2. c. 17. 28. f. 5.

A bounty to widows of seamen killed in the service, 14 Geo. 2. c. 38. f. 2.

Seamen not to be arrested for small debts in Ireland, 14 Geo. 2. c. 38. f. 3.

Restriction of seamen wages in the merchant’s service, 14 Geo. 2. c. 38. f. 4.

Offences on board privateers to be punishe to on board ships of war, 17 Geo. 2. c. 34. f. 25.

Seamen in the plantations not to be imprefed, 9 Geo. 2. c. 30.

Malters of ships in the plantations to carry seamen for his Majesty’s service, 19 Geo. 2. c. 30. f. 5.

Seamen letters of attorney to be revocable, 20 Geo. 2. c. 24. f. 6.

An hospital erected for relief of seamen in the mercantile service, 20 Geo. 2. c. 38.

Penalty of forging certificates, 20 Geo. 2. c. 38. f. 4.

Forbearing to give bounty to governors, 20 Geo. 2. c. 38. f. 16.

Seamen to pay 6d. per month, 10 Geo. 2. c. 38. f. 37.

Seamen in the India company’s service exempted, 2 Geo. 2. c. 38. f. 37.

Forbearings to take tickets, or Mediterranean passes, except those of the general pardon, 20 Geo. 2. c. 52. f. 25.

Mariners and soldiers that have been in his Majesty’s service authorised to set up trades, 22 Geo. 2. c. 44.

Two mens pay in 100 given to the widows of officers in the navy, 24 Geo. 2. c. 47. f. 10.
SEC

Three fourths of the crew of merchants ships may be foreigners, 28 Gen. 2. c. 10.

Voluntary payment is made from the time of their entering, 31 Gen. 2. c. 10.

Superannuaries entitled to wages, 31 Gen. 2. c. 10.

Wages of apprentices, to whom payable, 31 Gen. 2. c. 10. v. 16.

Seamen not to be taken out of the service, except for the recovery of debts of 20l. 31 Gen. 2. c. 10. v. 28.

Mariners not to have the benefit of insolvent acts unless they infilt, 1 Gen. 3. c. 17. v. 57.

Further provisions for the encouragement of seamen, 2 Gen. 2. c. 16.

The provisions of 2 Gen. 2. c. 36. extended to America, 2 Gen. 7. v. 31.

Scheelath (mentioned in flat. 1. Jov. Juv. i. cap. 25.) Seem to be a sort of fish, which is taken with a very great and long net called a Scane.

Searcher. See Painter, Customes.

Secondary, (Secundary) is an officer, who is second, next in office to the chief officer, as the secondary to the prothonotaries of the court of B. R. and C. E. The secondary of the remembrance of the Exchequer; secondary of the compter, et. 2 Lit. Abir. 596. Secondary of the King's Bench, may have three clerks. 2 Gen. 2. c. 23.

Secondary of the office of chief fel. is taken notice of by 1 Ed. 4. c. 1.

Second Deliverance, (Secunda deliberation) is a writ that lies after a non suit of the plaintiff in repline, and a return habendo of the real complainant; adjudged to him that discharged them, for the replieing of the same cause again, upon security put in for the recovery of them in case the difficulty be justified. New Book of Entries, v. Replevin in second deliverance, fol. 522.

See Dryer, fol. 41. num. 4. 5. See Replevin.

Second Marriage, (Secundae nuptias) is when after the decease of one, he marries a second wife. This our law terms bigamy, and had so little favour to, that it admitted not to holy orders. See Bigamy.

Seconds of Dwellers. See Painter, Hominate.

Secretary. (Secretarius, a scrivinarii.) A title given to him who is ab epistulis & scriviniis secretarii; as the two secretaries of state, et. It is certain, says Mr. Serjeant Hawkins, that the Privy council, or any one or two of them, or any number of state may employ severall persons for treason, and for other offences against the state, as in all ages they have gone. 2 Haw. P. C. 117.

Secunda ad turiam, is a writ that lies against him who refuses to perform his duty either to the court or county barrum. F. N. B. f. 158.

Secunda ad judiciam familie, is a writ which a man is bound to perform by his deed. Bradan, lib. 2. cap. 16. num. 6.

Secundulf, Suits and service done by tenants at the court of their lord. Paroch. Antiqu. p. 320.

Secunda famina utiam quasi hostem armatam partem, is a writ to compel the heir, that hath the eldest's part of the coheirs, to perform service for all the coheirs. Reg. Orig. fol. 177.

Secunda Stolentinii, is a writ lying against him that was wont to grind at the mill of B. and after goes to another mill with his corn. Reg. Orig. f. 153. F. N. B. fol. 122. But it seems by him that this writ lies especialty for the harm that his tenant, or the man of the cott, suffereth by his making saec to his mill. See Raffel's Entries on this word festa ad Molendinum. And offices of nunnery are at present much turned into trestless and actions upon the cafe. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Secunda regulis, A suit so called, by which all persons were bound to remain a year, to attend the sheriff's term, that they might make known in things relating to the peace of the publick; and this suit was called regulis, because the sheriff's term was the King's leet; and it was a court held that the people might be bound by oath to bear true allegiance to the King; for all persons above twelve years old were obliged to take the oath of allegiance in this court. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Sect. unica tantum facienda 150 pluribus harrettatisbus, is a writ that lies for that her or that is detained by the lord to more suits than one, in respect of the land of divers heirs defended under him. Reg. Orig. fol. 177. v. 7.

Secund non facienda, is a writ that lies for a woman, who, for her dowert ought not to perform suit of court. Reg. Orig. fol. 174. It lay also for one in wardship to be freed of all suits of court during his wardship. Reg. Orig. fol. 174. See 22 Eliz. c. 24.

Secondary, See Secondary.

Secunda superanuatione pauperum, is a writ that lies where admeasurement of pauper has been made; and he that first surcharged the common, doth again surcharge it, notwithstanding the admeasurement. Reg. Orig. fol. 159. Old Nat. Brev. fol. 73.

Security of the land is not diverted ad parties necessitas fecundae Regnis, is a writ that lies for the King against any of his subjects, to pay them from going out of his kingdom; the ground of which is, That every man is bound to serve and defend the common wealth, as the King shall think meet. F. N. B. f. 85.

Securitate partis, is a writ that lies for one who is threatened death or danger, against him, for the purpose of the security of the Chancery, and directed to the sheriff; the form and farther use whereof you may see in Reg. Orig. fol. 88. and Brev. Nat. Brev. f. 79.

Seditio defendendi, is a plea for him that is charged with the death of another, fancying, he was necessitated to do that which he did in his own defence: The other so affirming him, and he had not done any thing, which he had been in hazard of his own life: But this danger ought to be so great, that it seems inevitable. Steannis. Pl. Cor. lib. 1. cap. 7. And though he judgeth it to be done in his own defence, yet he is driven to procure his pardon of course from the lord chancellor, and forfeits his goods to the King, according to the fame author. Cowell, edit. 1727. See Hominate, Murder; and 19 Vin. Abir. 304.

Seditious Convictions, See Convictions, 1718.

Sedbergh, A basket, or other vessel of wood carried upon one arm of the handbaman to bear feed or grain, which he flows with the other hand. From Sax. Sedy, feed, and codde, a puse or fuche like container. Hence Codd in Wallerland is a botiller or pillower, and in other northern parts a cullison, as a pin-cod, or i. c. pin-cullison. A coddig or i. e. a horse-collare to graze his neck.

The cod of a man or beast, a cod-piece, a pousset, &c.

See Keater's Glossary in Seed-cod.

Sedg silt. See DLI.

Sedgutsio, (Dominus) Is borrowed of the French feigneur, and denotes in all general significatio as much as lord; but particularly it is used for the lord of the fee, or of a manor, even as dominus in junior among the servituds is he who grants a fee or benefit, out of the land to another: And the reason is, as Histamon faith, because having granted the use and profit of the land to another; yet the property, that is to say, the dominion, he still retains in himself. See Histamon in verbis feudal, verbis, dominus & junior.

Sedgutsien (mentioned in flat. 9 H. 5. fl. 2. cap. 1.) Seems to be a royalty or prerogative of the King, whereby he challengeth allowance of gold and silver brought in the man's to his Exchange for coin. By seignior is revoked every piece of gold the King had for his coin five flawings, out of which he paid to the master of the mint for his work, sometimes one flawing, sometimes eighteen pence. Upon every pound weight of silver, the seigniorage or coined answered to the King in the time of King Edward I. was eighteen penny-weight pounds, which is 144 ounces, or one hundred and twenty pounds men of gold, which he paid sometimes eighteen pence, sometimes nine pence to the master. In the time of H. 5. the King's seigniorage of every pound weight of silver
S E M

Semitism (from Senate, sometimes used for a Synod) Is the name given to the Senatus Consulti, edit. 1279.

Senator, (Lat.) As now taken, is a member of parliament. In the laws of Edward the Confessor, we are told, that the Britons call those Senators whom the Saxons afterwards called Aldermen, and sometimes Senators; not for their age, but for their wisdom, for some of them were young men, very well skilled in the laws. In Staunford's Pleas of the Crown, cap. 28, we read a charter of King John, King of the Mercians, viz. Canfilio & confenuj episcoporum & Senatorum gentis fænæ largitum fuit dictis manerios, &c. In those days there were two men of authority in every county, viz. the Aldermen, whom the Normans afterwards called Earl, and the Shire Keverel, whom they called Pecuniam, or Sheriff.

Sental, (mentioned in flat. 2. R. 2. cap. 1.) Seems to be fine linen or silk, or Cyprus silk, from the Italian Zenda; but Sandal is a kind of physical wood brought from the Indies.

Sentalia, (Senta}hilla) Is a French word, but borne to us from Germania, and derived from Senta, a house or place, and sjah, jerox; we English it a Steward, and so doth Ca. on its fol. 61 as the high jenjalial, or reward of England. Staunford, Pl. Cr. fol. 152. High jenjalial or steward, and towns jenjalial or under-steward, Kechin, fol. 83, is underflow of the stewards or under-stewards of court. Senta}hilla d' I' hofiel de Rey, Reward of the wine of the Castle of Coit. Sen. fol. 419. See 67. Ed. 3. flat. 5. cap. 21. In purifications beaten Marine, fat fitis Regis Anglorum Parissi & sevovit Regi Franci- rum ad meijam of Senta|hallas Franciscus. Rob. De in anno 1170. pag. 639. See Kemel's Glossary.

Sentalibus | Marchello quod non decadat plarta atque jenerus, etc. Is a word defined, the steward or marshal of England, inhibiting them to take cognizance of any action in their court that concerns either freehold, debt, or covenant. Reg. Oris. fol. 185. 191.

Senectura, Widowhood. If a widow, having dower after the death of her husband shall marry, vel jenale, vel jenaleme in Senacia repetit, the shall forfeit and lose her dower in what place forever in Kent. Tenet, in Cavendish. Plac. Trib. 17 E. 3.

Senedays, Play-days, or times of pleasure and diversion. Cavendish, edit. 1727.

Senna, What duties liable to on importation, 2 Ed. 3. fol. 122.

Separation, (Separatio) A federal, or divided inclosure, severed or separated from other ground. Par. Ant. 336.

Separation, (Separatio) Is the living alender of man and wife. See Stuller.

Semperegrena, (mentioned Walf. 1. c. 51.) Is always the third Sunday before Quaregmina exclusive, from which, until the Octave after Easter, the solemnizing of marriage is forbidden by the Canon law. It is called Semperegrena, as being above seventy days before Easter, as Sansegni and Quintagregina, because the first is accounted fifty, the latter fifty days before the feast, and those days appointed by the church to add of penance, and mortification, and are preparative to the elevation of Lent then approaching. The laws of King Coenwulf ordered a vacancy from judicature, from Semperegrena to Quintаgregina. See Quintagregina.

Septurn, An inclosure, a croft, and is so called, because of itself, or for itself, or because the orifice of the hedge and a ditch, or at least with a hedge at least. Sepitnche, (Sepulcrum) Is the place where any dead body lies interred; but a monument is a place where something is set up for the memorial of the deceased, though the corpse lie not there. Cavendish, edit. 1727.

Septurn, An offering made to the priest for the dead himself. To mention in Danémorg. Cavendish, edit. 1727.

SEPM Sequestration sub two periculi, Is a writ that lies where a fungu of warrantandum is awarded, and the sheriff return, that he hath nothing whereby he may be mumed; then goes out an aitum and plures, and if he come not at the plures, then goes out this writ. Old Sequela curiae, Suit of court—Et quis et quid lilibri a Sequela molinemini, The owning suit to a particular mill, or being bound to grind corn in that only place; whence the defendant and ferri. and therefore this sentence sequelam molinemini, was to grant all the toll and profit arising from such customary rights. Cowell, edit. 1777.
Sequela villanumini, All the retinue and appurtenances to the goods and chattels of servile tenants, which were an law arbitrary and absolute disposifal of the lord.
Cowell, edit. 1777.
Sequefter, Is a term used in the Civil law for renouncing; as when a widow comes into court, and dis-claims to have anything to do, or to intermeddle with her husband's estate which is deceased, she is said to sequefrer. Cowell, edit. 1777.
Sequestration, (Sequestration) Is the separating of a thing in controversy from the possession of both those that contend for it. And it is of two kinds, voluntary or ne-necessary; voluntary is that which is done by consent of each party; necessary is that which the judge doth of his authoration, when equity wills it, or no. It is used also for the act of the ordinary, disposing the goods and chattels of deeone deceased, where each estate no man will meddle with.
Dyer, fol. 213. num. 5 & f. 260. num. 42. & fol. 271.
um. 26. As also for the gathering the fruits of a benefice void, to the use of the next incumbent. 28 H. 8.
8o. 45. Ve. 460. & in divers other cafes, See Kent's Glossary in Sequestration.
Sequestration in the court of Chancery is a commodiunion usually directed to 7 perons therein named, and impowering them to feize the defendant's real and personal efate into their hands, (or it may be some particular part or parcel of his lands) and to receive and fequefter the rents and profits thereof, until the defendant shall have answered the plaintiff's bill, or performed some other matter which has been ordered and enjoined him by the court, for not doing where he is in contempt. Curf. Canc. 89.
A Sequestration out of Chancery is grounded on the return of the ferjeant at arms, wherein it is certified that he the defendant has been received against him, and in the execution of such proces cases, and gives authority and power to the fe-queftrators (who are perons of the plaintiff's own naming) to enter upon and feize his, the defendant's real and personal efate.
It appears that there were great fuggles between the Civil law courts and courts of Equity, before this process came to be efablifhed; the former holding that a court of conficence coul'd only give remedy in perfonam, and not in rem; that Sequeftrators were treafurers, against whom an action lay; and in the cafe of Calton v. Gar-don, the Chancellor cites a cafe, where they ruled, that is, the defendant, against whom there was an action of se-queftration, it was no murder. Cui. Exif. 651. Brgvavu
v. Watts. 1 Med. 259. But 2 Med. 258. That the Chancellor having inlued fuch Sequeftration, it will be as blinding as any other procесes according to the rules of the Common law. 2 Chanc. Ca. 44.
But there were fo bloody and defperate refolution, and fo much againft common juftice and honesty, which requires that the decrees of this court, which preferred men from deceipt, should not be rendered illufory, that they couls not long flour; but this process got the better of these refolution on this ground; viz., that the extraordinary power might pufh them further by the reduce of efate as well as the imprifoment of the perfon, becaus that liberty being a greater benefit than property, if they had a power to commit the perfon, they might take from him his efate till he had answered his commotions. 2dly, To say that a court should have power to decree about things, and yet should have no jurifdition in rens, is a perfect folecin in the confitution of the court itself.
2 Peer Will. 621. 2 Ch. Ca. 44.
It has been faid, that the influent & influence of a Sequef-tration, after a decree, was Sir Thomas Reaf's cafe in Lord Greeny's time, and that it was afterwards awarded in Chancery, in the cafe of Hyde v. Pitt, 566, and affirmed in parliament; and by the common benemony of Grevor
v. Fountaine, 1687, and since, without scruple. The doubt formerly was, that the lands were not liable to execution before the flature |Vj. 2. 0. &. Ch. Ca. 42.
In Vernon's Report it is faid, that Sequeftrations were first introdused in Lord Bacon's time, and then but fea-ringly ufed in process, and after a decree to fequefter the thing in demand only. 1 Vern. 423.
1. In what cafes a Sequeftration is to be awarded.
2. The power and duty of the Sequeftrators; and when a Sequeftration is determined.
1. In what cafes a Sequeftration is to be awarded.
A Sequeftration nisi is the first procès against a peer or member of the house of commons. 2 Peer Will. 385.
1 Ch. Ca. 193.
A Sequeftration is also the first procès against the meernal servant of a peer, within the words and meaning of the flature 12 W. 3. for that otherwife fuch servant would have greater privilege than his Lord. 1 Peer Will. 535.
If there be a Sequeftration nisi against a peer for want of an anwer, and the peer puts in an anwer, that is in fufficient; yet the order for a fequeftration shall not be ablolute, but a new fequeftration nisi. 2 Peer Will. 385.
Notwithstanding the superior power of the courts in this kingdom over those in Ireland, and what is faid in some of our books, it seems to be now the better opinion, that the court of Chancery here cannot award a fequeftration against lands in Ireland. 1 Vern. 76. 2 Ch. Ca.
189. 2 Peer Will. 261.
It was faid, that fuch procès had been awarded to the governor of North Carolin. but herein it was doubted whether fuch fequeftration should not be directed by the Kings council, where alone an appeal lies from the decrees in the plantations. 2 Peer Will. 261.
Copholds may be fequeftered, though not extendible at Common law or the flature of Wj. 2. for courts of equity have potestatem extraordinar. et abolitam; but it seems a doubt whether fuch a fequeftration can be reverted against a private perfon, or against the heir of a cofehide, which arises from the difficulty of obliging the Lord to admit, and depriving the Lord of his fine, &c. upon the death of the tenant. 2 Ch. Ca. 46.
Vide 1 Bernard. 421.
A fequeftration out of Chancery is more effeclual than an execution by fieri faciatis at law; I for a fequeftration may lie againft the goods, though the party is in custody upon the attachment; whereas in law, if a cogniz ad satisfactiendum is executed, there can no f. f. illis. Caiif in Lord's Tallet's Time 222.
Where the fequeftrators feize the real efate of the party, any tenant or other perfon who claims title to the efate so fequeftered, either by mortgage, judgment, lease or otherwife, who is the flabe to the fequeftration, shall not be obliged to bring a bill to contest such title, but he shall be let in to contest such a title in an fummary way.
He may move by his counsel as of course to be examined pro interrefi faws, and in this cafe the plaintiff is to exhibit informations in order to prove his title to the efate, for a discovery of his title to the efate, and he must be examined upon such interrogatories accordingly and; and the matter must flare the matter to the court, and the parties may enter into proof touching the title to the efate in question; and when the matter hath flated the whole matter, the court will examine the evidence therein upon the report; and if it appears that the party who is examined pro interrefi faw hath a plain title to the efate, and is not affected with the fequeftration, then it is to be discharged as against him, with or without costs, as the

The power and duty of the sequestrators; and when a sequestration is determined.

The sequestrators are officers of the court, and as such are deemable to the court, and are to act from time to time as directed by the court. They are to account for what comes to their hands, and to bring the money into court as the court shall direct, to be put out at interest, or otherwise, as shall be found necessary; but this money is not usually paid to the plaintiff, but is to remain in court till the defendant hath appeared or answered and cleared his contemp; and whatsoever hath been seized shall be accounted for and paid over to him; however, the court hath the whole under their power, and may do therein as they please, and as shall be most agreeable to the justice and equity of the case.

The plaintiff's counsel may and obtain an order for processes to attorn and pay their rents to the sequestrators, or for the sequestrators to fell and dispose of the goods of the party, and to keep the money in their hands, or to bring into court, as shall be most advisable and discretionary, and fitting for the court to do.

Sequestrators on mense proceeds are accountable for all the profits, and can retain only so far as to satisfy for costs incurred.

If sequestrators, having power to fell timber, dispose of 7000l. worth, and only bring 2000l. to account, they, as officers and agents of the court, are responsible, and not the plaintiff. 1 Vern. 161.

A sequestration of a lease at Common law, and the party sequestrating has neither jus in rem, vel in re; the legal estate of the premises remaining in every respect as before. 1 Peer Will. 307.

Sequestrators being in possession of a great house in St. James's square, which was the defendant's for life, the court ordered that the master allow a tenant for the house, and the sequestrators to make a lease, and the tenant to enjoy.

It was moved, that the irregularity of a sequestration might be referred to the deputy, which was taken against the defendant for not appearing, by reason of its being taken out foorner than by the course of the court it could have been. The sequestrators had the goods off the premises, and threatened to fell them; the chief baron said, that as to the carrying the goods off the premises, it was clear the sequestrators could do that, because a sequestration upon mense proceeds answers to a disfiring at law; but however, as to selling them, the court agreed in the present case it could not be lawful, and said it had lately been settled on debate; and observed further, that courts of equity could not authorise sequestrators to fell goods even upon a decree 'till Lord Stamford's cafe, which makes decrees in this respect equivalent to a judgment; and even now the counsel said, sequestrators cannot fell but by the leave of the court; however, the court said this was a matter proper for them to consider upon another occasion, and therefore only referred the irregularity of the sequestration as to the point of time to the deputy. 1 Barnard, Rep. 212, in Scac.

Lands were decreed to be liable to 500l. per annum, for the life of A., and a sequestration and injunction for the sequestration to be put in motion, the defendant against the injunction enters upon the lands, and receives the profits to the value of 192l. and thereupon was decreed to pay it; and after the death of A. it was decreed that the sequestration should continue against the defendant for the payment of that money, and the defendant moved to have liberty to fell timber to raise money for his subsistence alleging that the sequestrators had only the puffifion and the perception of the annual profits by the course of the court, and therefore it could be no prejudice to have this granted: But Sir H. Grimman, master of the Rolls, refolved; for 1st, This invades the decree which is for the quiet possifion, which will be disturbed if the defendant enters to cut down timber; 2dly, The defendant not having performed the decree by the payment of the money, the court could not receive the money, and having the flands in contempt, 3dly, If he will with the fale of this timber pay the plaintiff his debt, and to discharge the sequestration, there might be some reason for it; but for him to raise monies to other purpose he shall not be favoured; and unless the plaintiff will confer, he shall not have liberty to fell. 4 Feb. 16 & 17 S. W. 2.

A sequestration that issues as a mense proceeds of the court will be discontinued and determined by the death of the party; but where a sequestration issues in pursuance of a decree, and to compel the execution of it, there though the same be for a personal duty, it shall not be determined by the death of the party. 1 Vern. 58, 2d.

A sequestration against the father, who appeared to be only a tenant for life, and on his death the sequestration was discharged. 1 Ch. Ca. 241. 2 Ch. Ca. 46.

The bill was to revive a sequestration obtained against the defendant's husband for a personal duty before his intermarriage, and the defendant, and the sequestrator's estate in dower in the lands that were sequestrated before the marriage, it being informed that those lands were bound by the sequestration, and covered therewith, that the defendant's right of dower could never attach them; but on a demurrer to this bill, the demurrer was allowed; and it was ruled, that such a sequestration should not bind the female who came in for her jointure or dower; but whether the heir in fee-simple should in such case have the estate bound, and subject to such a sequestration, or not, was doubted; and the case not being before my lord keeper, he refused giving any opinion therein. 1 Vern. 118.

It seems to be now settled, that a sequestration is a personal proceeds, which abates by the death of the party; so that such sequestration being grounded on a decree for debt or personal duty, cannot be revived against the heir of the defendant; or otherwise in those cases in which the heir is bound. 2 Peer Will. (621). Sec 19 Fam, Abr. tit. Sequestration.

Sequestrator habendo, is a writ judicial, for the dissolving a sequestration of the fruits of a benefice made by a bishop at the King's command, thereby to compel the parson to appear at the suit of another; for the parson upon his appearance may have this writ for the dissolving of the sequestration. Reg. Judic. fol. 137.

Sequestrant, or Sequestrator, (Sequens,) is derived from the French Servient, s Satelles, a man of the guard, so called, because he was Jus aux cœcins ad res necessaries in exercitio peragendas; so Caligula. But Skene de vorhir, signific, verbo servient, faith, it is, vox compitata de ferdes, quod includere, & gen. quod pro gen., phæbe vel popule ujus- præter, et abjectum propter eandem rationem, & una cum illa præter combustum. Applied to fundry offices and callings. Fifth, A servient at law (or of the coif) is the highest degree taken in that profession, as that of a doctor in the Civil law. And to those, as men bel't learned and most experienced of all others, one court is set a part for them to plead in by themselves, and the other court for the common people. And whereas the common law of England is most strictly observed; and though they have this court to themselves, yet they are not restrained from pleading in any other courts, where the judges (who cannot have that honour till they have taken the degree of servient at law,) call them Servients. It is a great relaxation to the King's attorney and solicitors general. These are made by the King's mandate, or writ, directed unto them, commanding them, upon a great penalty to take upon them.
anciently

See R For Another as

judgment judges officer hundred ton only were led one execution especially cop. King. in the Sixth's time, ferjeant Benetos wrote himself fals ferjeant ad legem. It seems for some time there was none but himself. Mr. Selden tells us they were formerly called doctores leges; though others are of opinion that the judges are more properly doctores legis, and the serjeants free and common. The first are called serjeants in the Sheriff's Office. Coke, vol. 4. v. Copthole cafet, fol. 21. 4. The next is a serjeant ad arms, or the move, (serjeant ad arms) whose office is to attend the perfon of the King. Stat. 7 H. 7, cap. 3. to arrest traitors or perfons of condition, and to attend the lord higheward of England, fitting in judgment upon any traitor, and such like. Pl. Cap. 4th. 1. Of this, by the statute 15 H. 2. c. 6. there may not be above thirty in the realm, two of them, by the King's allowance, do attend on the house of Parliament, whose office in the house of Commons is, the keeping of the doors, and (as of late it hath been used) the execution of such commands, especially touching the apprehension of any offender, as that house envieth. Gramp. Jur. fol. 9. Another of them attends on the Lord Chancellor or Lord Keeper, in the Chancery. And on the Lord Treasurer of England: One upon the Lord Mayor of London, upon extraordinary solemnities; one attendeth upon the Lord President of Wales, and another upon the Lord President of the North, &c. Camden, edid. 1727.

These serjeants ad arms are in the old books called virgates, because they carried silver rods gilt with gold before the King. In cadaum curia Regis sunt virgatones populum gravantem, gravia sedo petentia. Fleta, lib. 2. cap. 13. fol. 234. and the statute of the 15th Henry 4th.

Another coast of serjeants are chief officers who execute civil functions or offices within the King's household; of which you may read many in the statute of 33 H. 8. c. 12.

There is likewise a more inferior kind of serjeants, (serjeantia,) Signifies in law a service that can be done without the king's presence, and is the service of the city of London, and other corporate towns, that attend the mayor or other head officer, chiefly for matters of justice. Kiblin, in 143. and there are called serjeants ad stellam. New Book of Entries, verbo, Seire stellae in Mainarscrip, cap. 3. fol. 538. There was also a kind of serjeants in religion, called ferjeants of the head of St. Paul's, and the ferjeants shew that all the justices in eyre had certain officers attending them, called ferjeants, (as appears by Winst. I. cap. 30,) which Fleta calls virgates serjeants, and were in the nature of our tip flaps.

Serjeanty, (Serjeantia,) Signifies in law a service that can be done without the king's presence, and is the service of the city of London, and other corporate towns, that attend the mayor or other head officer, chiefly for matters of justice. Kiblin, in 143. and there are called serjeants ad stellam. New Book of Entries, verbo, Seire stellae in Mainarscrip, cap. 3. fol. 538. There was also a kind of serjeants in religion, called ferjeants of the head of St. Paul's, and the ferjeants shew that all the justices in eyre had certain officers attending them, called ferjeants, (as appears by Winst. I. cap. 30,) which Fleta calls virgates serjeants, and were in the nature of our tip flaps.

Serjeants, (Serjeantia,) Signifies in law a service that can be done without the king's presence, and is the service of the city of London, and other corporate towns, that attend the mayor or other head officer, chiefly for matters of justice. Kiblin, in 143. and there are called serjeants ad stellam. New Book of Entries, verbo, Seire stellae in Mainarscrip, cap. 3. fol. 538. There was also a kind of serjeants in religion, called ferjeants of the head of St. Paul's, and the ferjeants shew that all the justices in eyre had certain officers attending them, called ferjeants, (as appears by Winst. I. cap. 30,) which Fleta calls virgates serjeants, and were in the nature of our tip flaps.
were of four parts, 1. Such as fold themselves for a live-bility. Debtors that were to be sold, for being incapable to pay their debts. 3. Captives in war, retained and employed as personal slaves. 4. Nation, such as were brought in peace, and by such moreover belonged to the sole property of the Lord. All these had their persons, their children, and their goods, at the disposal of their Lord, incapable of making any wills, or giving away any matter. Cowell, edit. 1777.

Serf, (Latin serfus,) as that service which the tenant of a manor is bound to perform in the use of his holden, woothe unto his lord. Histoman thus defines it: Servitium of manus obsequi diete-larum, de verbis feudal. It is sometime called Servage, as 1 R. 2. cap. 6. Our ancient law books make many divisions of it, as Brauron, lib. 2. cap. 16. and Britton, cap.
66. into personal and real; also into military and baile and Brauron, lib. infra, cap. 7, into intrinsic and extirinc. Servitium intrincum is due to the capital Lord of the manor. Forinfirm is that which is due to the King, and not to the capital Lord. Service is also divided into frank and baile, the one termed liberum servitium, the other villenagium. It is also divided into continual or annual, and casual or accidental; the former is the seign of rent, the other, seisin of relief. Ca. 4 Rep. fol. 9.
Brevi's see. Cappyolphet. See Storage. Thomas Leigh, esq. at the coronation of King Charles the second, brought up to the King's table a mors of potassa, called dilugratt, which servise had been adjudged by the court of King's Bench, of the right of the manor of Addington in Surrey, whereupon the Lord High Chancellor preferred him to the King, who accepted the service, and afterwards knighted him. Cowell, edit. 1777.

Service and servitudes. The penalty of depraving the facrament of the altar, 1 Ed. 6. c. 1.

The beffed facrament to be administered in both kinds,
1 Ed. 6. c. 1. f. 7.

A repeal of all acts concerning religion, 1 Ed. 6. c. 12.

f. 3. For the uniformity of the service and administration of the facraments, 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 1. 6 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 1.
1 El. c. 1. 8 El. c. 1. f. 3. 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 4.

Penalty of reviling the prayer-book, Us. 2 & 3 Ed. 6.
1. f. 2. Where bishops may join with justices in determining offences, 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 1. f. 4.

Prayers may be said in Greek, Latin, &c. in universities, 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 1. f. 6. 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 4.

f. 5. Bishops, &c. may punish by church censures, 2 & 3
Ed. 6. c. 1. f. 12. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 1. f. 3. 1 El. c.
2. f. 16.

All persons to refor to their parish churches, 5 & 6
Ed. 6. c. 1.

The service to be present at other worship, 5 & 6 Ed.
c. 1. f. 6.

Such service shall be used as in the last year of King Henry 8. 1 Mar. fl. 2. c. 2.

The penalty of disturbing a preacher or priest fonding divine service, or pulling down an altar, Us. 1 Mar. fl.
c. 2. c. 3.

An encroachment on the parish, if offenders escape, 1 Mar.
fl. 2. c. 3. f. 8.

The penalty of not repairing to church on Sunday and holidays, 1 El. c. 2. f. 14. 35 El. c. 1.

Ordinary may punish offences, 1 El. c. 2. f. 23.

The bible and divine service shall be transacted into the the Hebrew tongue, 5 Ed. c. 28.

Penalty on prebends maintaining doctrine contrary to the articles, 13 El. c. 12. f. 2.

All ecclesiastical persons to read and subscribe to the book of common prayer, Gr. 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 4.
15 Car. 2. c. 6.

All persons in office to take the facrament and the declaration against transubstantiation, 25 Car. 2. c. 2.

Time given to those in the Fleet, and beyond the sea, until three calendar months after their return, 13 Geo.
c. 1. c. 29. Four months, 2 Geo. 2. c. 31.

Six months given for taking the facrament, 16 Geo. 2.
c. 3. f. 2.

Allowance of impediments by the ordinary, for not readning the facrament, extended to the certificate of subscription, 2 Geo. 2. c. 28.

Service secular, (mentioned in fl. 1 Ed. 4. cap. 1.)
It worldly service, contrary to spiritual and ecclesiastical, Serentitius, Are certain wits touching servents and their matters, violating the statutes made against their abuses, which see in Reg. Orig. f. 180, 197, 198.

Servitium foedale & paenitente. Was not a personal service, but only by reason of the lands which were held in free. Bratton, lib. 2. cap. 16. para. 7.

Servitium forinfirmum, was a service which did not belong to the chief Lord, but to the King. It was cal-made the vicarium, because it was done for the well sel extra Servitium quod dimo dominio. We read feveral grants in the Annals, 2 tra. p. 48. of all li-liberties, with the appurtenances, fals vs foraservitio Servitio.

Servitium intrinseum, f. that service which was due to the chief Lord, alone from his vassals. Bratton, Servitium liberalis, was a service to be done by the deans and canons, who were called liberii homines, and distinct from suiffi; as likewise was their service, for they were not bound to any of those baile services, as to plough the Lord's land. &c. but only to find a man and horie and go to the Lord into the army, or to attend his court, and to render their annual service of old and new marsh, as in an old rental of the manor of Southwell in Suffolk, mentioned by Sumner in his treatise of Gevel-kind, fol. 56.

Servitium regale, Royal service, or the rights and prerogatives that within such a manor belong to the King, if Lord of it, which were generally reckoned to be the fix, 1. Power of judicature in matters of property. 2.
Power of life and death in felonies and murders. 3. A right to waifs and stray. 4. Alesfements. 5. Muting of money. 6. Affright, bread, beer, weights and measures.
All these were privileges annexed to some manors in their grant from the King, and were sometimes conveyed in the charters of donation to religious hous.
Parsh. Antiq. 60.

Serbi testamentales, Were those whom we now call coventant servents. They are mentioned in the laws of King Athelstan, c. 34.

Serbritis acquisitandi is a writ judicial that lies for obtaining a servent to A. who owes and performs to B. for the acquittal of such servents. Reg. of Writs Judic. fol. 27. a. & 36. b.

Servitios of bills, Are such servents or messengers of the baronial belonging to the King's livery as were sent abroad with bills or writs to summon men to that court; then called more ordinarily called tillaers. Stat. 2 Ed.
c. 4. f. 23.

Selling, (mentioned in fl. 25 Ed. 3. c. 6.) Seems to signify the affesting or rating of wages.

Sections of parliament. The paffing any bills, by giving the Royal assent thereto, doth not make a seiff; but the suffen of parliament continues till it be procured or done away. See 4 par. lib. fol. 77. Where parliament is the fitting of the parliament. See 19 Fin Art. 337, 338.

Sections of the peace. A court of record, held before two or more justices of peace, (quorum summ) for the execution of the authority given them by their commission, and certain seifs of parliament. And the justices in their several courts to bear and determine treasufes against the public peace, &c. and many offences by flature. This court is held four times in a year at some place within the county, &c. also besides the general seifs of the peace, there are private seifs held by the justices, for divers particular branches of the busines of the offices. Dol. Jut. 573. See 19 Fin Art. 339—358.

Sections for working servents, Called statute seifs, held by constables of hundred, &c. 5 Elia. See Statu-amentum Sellament.

Sections for wages and measures. In London, four justices among the mayor, recorder, and aldermen, 2.
Fines to be levated yearly, 13 El. c. 9. f. 6.
Under what penalties, 3 Geo. 1. c. 15. f. 12.
Water-courses within two miles of London falling into the Thames, and the conviction of commissioners, 3 Geo. 1. c. 15. 2 W. & M. b. 3. c. 26.
For draining of Salt-marsh, 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 26.
The common council of London authorized to appoint commissioners of fines, 19 Car. 2. c. 3. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 17. 7 Ann. c. 9.
The commissioners and the justices to decree contempt, fines, and for staying the owners for the taxes, and to obtain goods, 7 Ann. c. 10. f. 3. See 19 Vin. Abr. tit. Sewers.
Sectagelima. See Deutagelima.
Sertap, (Sertar) Was an ancient measure, containing about our pint and a half, according to our Latin dictionaries.
The town of Leyster paid among other things to the King yearly, twenty-five measures called Sarties of banns, as we read in Domesday. And in Clauff 4 Ed. 3. m. 26. we find tristefic Sertarionem.
—Et unum Sertarionem xals aquid Wainfite. Mon. Angl. 2. par. fol. 849. b. Decemmissit brevis, gratior Sextis avo in premissum. Iam. 1. par. fol. 136. b. where it seems to have been used for a much greater quantity. A Sexty of ore contained sixteen Lengtes. Cowell, edit. 1727. See Tolfecrt.
Sertary lands, (mentioned in the first part of the Baronage of England, fol. 374.) are lands given to a church or charitable house, for maintenance of the Sexton or sacristan. Cowell, edit. 1727.
Sark, is a custom in Norfolk to have common for hogs, from the end of harvest till feeding, in all mens grounds without contradiction. Co. 7 Rep. fol. 5. Corbett's cafe. And in that country, To go at sarkes, is as much to go at large. Cowell, edit. 1727.
Savillant, Under what penalties not to be exported from Ireland to any place but England, 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 10.
Sharpey-corn, Is a customary gift of corn, which at every Christmas the farmers in some parts of England give to their fetlers, for exporting their plough-jorns, harrow-jorns, and several other things, and not half a bushel for a plough-land. Cowell, edit. 1727.
Shawe, A grove of trees, or a wood. 1 Inf. fol. 4. b.
Shebduners, Soldiers. Cowell, edit. 1727.
Shearing, A riding, tithing, or division in the life of Man, which takes place between six Shadowings, in each of which there is a coroner or chief confabula appointed by delivery of a rod at the Tinewald court, or annual convention. See King's Definition of the life of Man, p. 17.
Sheep, Not to be exported, 3 H. 6. c. 2. 22 H. 8. c. 3.
None to keep more than 2200 sheep, 25 H. 8. c. 13.
The penalties of exporting sheep alive, 8 El. c. 3. 12 Car. 2. c. 32.
Stealing or killing sheep or other cattle, made felony without clergy, 14 Geo. 2. c. 6.
Extended to bull, cow, ox, steer, bulluck, heifer, calf, and lamb, by 15 Geo. 2. c. 34. See Cattle, Weald.
Sheep-silver, A servise turned into money, which was paid in reft that anciently the tenants used to wash the Lord's sheep. W. Jones, Rep. 280.
Shenefield, Regulation of the courts baron of Saffield and Ectlad, in Yorkshire, 29 Geo. 2. c. 37.
Sheriff, It seems that anciently the government of the county was by the King lodged in the Earl or Count, who was the immediate officer to the crown; and this high office was granted by the King at will, sometimes for life, and afterwards in fee; but when it became too burthenome, and could not be commodiously executed by a person of a high rank and quality, it was thought necessary to constitute a person duly qualified to officiate in his room and stead; from hence he is called in Latin Vicecomes, and Sheriff from Shire Rentes, i.e. governor of the shire or county. He is likewise considered in our books as bailiff to the county, and in his county where he hath the care, and in which he is to execute the King's writ, is called a bailiff. Don. 60. Savill 93. 8 D.
It seems that antiently, and before the statute 6 Ed. 2. sheriffs were elected by the freeholders of the county, as the coroners are at this day, and consequently that their offices did not determine by the death of the King. 2 H. 53. 2. Bract. 330, but quære.

And though at this day the King hath the sole appointment of sheriffs, except in counties palatine, and where there are jura regalia, yet it hath been adjudged, that the office of sheriff is an intire thing, and that therefore the King cannot apportion or divide it, that is, he cannot determine it in part as for one term for one hundred; neither can he abridge the sheriff of any thing incident to or belonging to his office. Dowl. 60. 4. C. 33. Mit- ten's cafe, Dall. Sb. 6. Hob. 13. Roy. 363.

1. Who are qualified or exempt from serving the office of sheriff.

2. Manner of appointing him, and of his oath.

3. Sheriff can execute no other office; how long to continue in office; and of his jurisdiction.

4. Sheriff cannot dispoze of his bailiwicks; and of his power and duty in appointing an under sheriff.

5. Who are qualified or exempt from serving the office of sheriff.

It is provided by several acts of parliament, that no man shall be sheriff in any county, except he have sufficient lands within the same county where he shall be sheriff, whereof to answer the King, and his people in case, that any person shall complain against them; and that none that is freeholder or bailiff to a great lord shall be made sheriff. 9 Ed. 2. 2 Ed. 3. 4. 4 Ed. 3. c. 9. 5 Ed. 3. c. 4.

It is held that the King hath an interest in every subject, and a right to his federal, and that no man can be exempt from the office of sheriff but by act of parliament or letters patent. Sev. 43. 9. Cb. 46.

And on this foundation it was adjudged in Sir John Read's case, who was made high sheriff of Hertffordshire, at the time he was excommunicated for non-payment of alimony, that an information properly lay against him for not executing the office; though it was objected on his behalf, that the oath and facrament in-joined by act of parliament are necessary qualifications for all sheriff, which he was disabled to take by reason of the excommunication; but the court held that he was punishable for not removing the disability, it being in his power to get himself absolved from the excommuni-
SHE

The sheriffs in every of the shires of Wales shall be nominated yearly by the lord president, council and justices of Wales, and shall be certified up by them; and after appointed and elected by the King as other sheriffs be, 3 Hen. 8. cap. 26. Dal. 3. S. 6.

The sheriff, before he doth exercise any part of his office, shall, according to the directions of the office, or the ancient custom in the King’s Remembrancer’s office in the Exchequer, under pain of 100l. for the payment of his pro- fers, and all other profits of the sheriffwick; but these securities are never sued, unless there is a deficiency in the sheriff’s office. Dal. 3. S. 7.

The sheriff shall, when true, take upon him the exercise of his office, must not only take the oaths of allegiance and abjuration enjoined all officers by divers acts of parliament, but likewise a particular oath of office, which is said to be by the ancient common law, and contains a conceit of the nature and several branches of his office. His other oath is set down in Dalen 9. Dal. 3. S. 9. Dyr. 168.

But there being in this oath something which was thought too strict (see Cor. Car. 26.) with respect to sheriffs, instead thereof it is now enacted by the 3 Geo. i. c. 15. f. 16. that the following oath shall be taken by all high officers and sheriffs. And likewise the same form is to be used in the time of Chapter, 85. wis. 1. A. B. d’o swore that I will well and truly serve the King’s Majesty in the office of sheriff of the county of— and promote his Majesty’s profit in all things that belong to my office as far as I legally can or may. I will truly perform the King’s rights and all that belongeth to the crown. I will not alit to decrease, lessen or conceal the King’s rights, or the rights of his franchises and whereverfore I shall have knowledge that the rights of the crown are concealed or withdrawn, be it in lands, rents, franchises, suits or services, or in any other matter or thing, I will do my utmost to make them be reformed to the crown again; and if I may not do it, I will certify and inform the King, or some of his judges. I will not respite or delay to levy the King’s debts for any gift, promis, reward or favour, where I may raise the same without the great grievance to the debtors. I will do right as well to poor as to rich, in all things belonging to my office. I will do no wrong to any man for any gifts, reward or promise, or not for favour or hatred. I will disturb no man’s rights, and will duly and faithfully acquit at the Exchequer all those of whom I shall receive any debts or duties belonging to the crown. I will take nothing whereby the King may lose, where by his right may be disturbed, injured or delayed. I will move such, and truly serve the King, according to the best of my skill and knowledge, I will take no baili into my service but such as I will answer for, and will cause each of them to take such oaths as I do in what belongeth to their baili and occupacation. I will duly fit and return reasonable and due offices of them, that be within my bailiwick, according to their estate and circumstances, and make due panels of persons able and sufficient, and not suspected and procured, as is appointed by the statutes of this realm. I have not fold or let to farm or contracted for, nor have I granted or promised for reward or benefit by myself or any other person for more a year and a day of my life, directly or indirectly, any sheriffwick or any bailiwick thereof, or any office belonging thereon or the profits of the same, to any person or persons whatsoever. I will truly and diligently execute the good laws and statutes of this realm, and in all things well and truly behave myself in my office for the honour of the King and the good of his subjects and the same according to the best of my skill and power. So help me God.

If a person refused to take upon him the office of sheriff, it was usual to punish him in the Star-chamber; and he may now be proceeded against by information in the High Court of Chancery. To which order, and to all the King’s writs for oaths inquired him, or officiates in the office before he hath qualified himself, the court, which hath a general superintendancy over all officers and ministers of justice, will grant an information against him; and it hath been held, that a refusal of oaths inquired to be taken, amounts to a refusal of the office. Dal. 3. S. 15. Dyr 167. 3 Lev. 116. Cart. 307.

If the sheriff be not in London, the oath may be taken by deputis potestatum, directed to any two justices of the peace of the county, one to be of the quorum, or to any other commissioner or commissioners, or before one or more judges of assize for that county, or one of the masters in Chancery, who, if it be so judged, may as well as the judge administer such oath without any deputis. Dal. 3. S. 13. 14.

If the commissioners shall return the commission or write, and the oaths to be taken when they were not taken, it is taken for void. Dyr. 168. Dal. Shir. 14.

It is held, that the breach of this oath, although an offence of some importance, is not otherwise pernicious, nor punishable as such. 11 Co. 98.

3. Sheriff can execute no other office. How long to continue in office, and of his jurisdiction.

It is, holden, that a sheriff cannot be elected knight of the flire for that county for which he is sheriff. 4 infra. 49. Lit. R. 338. Sir Simon Dewys. Tom. 48. 436.

It is, holden, that the sheriff is an executors and conservators of the peace, yet it is enacted by the 1 Mar. b. 2. cap. 8. sect. 2. that no person having the office of sheriff of any county shall exercise the office of justice of the peace in any county where he shall be sheriff during the time he shall use the office of sheriff. Dal. 3. S. 27.

By the 1 Hen. 5. cap. 4, it is enacted, That no under-sheriff, sheriff’s clerk, receiver, nor sheriff’s bailiff, shall be attorney in any of the King’s courts during the time that he is in office. Dal. 3. S. 454.

By the 14 Ed. 3. cap. 7. Confirmed by 23 H. 6. cap. 8. It is enacted, That no sheriff, under sheriff, nor sheriff’s clerk, shall have or keep any office above one year, upon pain to forfeit two hundred pounds a year as long as he occupie the office; and every pardon made for such offence or forfeiture shall be void; and by 42 Ed. 3. cap. 9. All letters patent made to occupy such office above one year shall be void; any words or clause of non-dilute put into such statute notwithstanding; and that whosoever shall presume to take upon himself the office of a sheriff above one year, by force of such letters patent, shall be disabled for ever after to be sheriff within any county of England.

By the 1 Ric. 2. cap. 11. it is enacted, That none that hath been sheriff of any county a year shall be within years next chosen, or put in the same office, if there be other sufficient. Confirmed by 23 H. 6. cap. 8.

And by the 1 H. 5. cap. 4. it is enacted, That they that be bailiffs of sheriffs one year, shall be in no such office by three years next following, except bailiffs of sheriffs which inherit in their office.

By the Common law the patents of sheriffs, like all other commissions, determined by the death or demise of the King; but now by the statute H. 2. & Mar. and 1 An. such commission shall remain in full force for the space of six months next after such death or demise, unless superannuated or determined or made void by the next succession. Dyr. 165. Dal. S. 17.

But tho’ such patent was determined by the death of the King, yet it was adjudged, that if the sheriff after such demise, and before his taking out a new patent, suffered a poister to escape, that an action lay against him. 3 Co. 392.

It hath been held, that the office of sheriff doth not determine by the party’s becoming a peer on the death of his father, but that he still remains sheriff ad voluntatem Regit. Cro. Eliz. 12. Sir Lewis Mandarin’s case.

By the fourth of H. 4. cap. 5. it is enacted, That every sheriff or his warrantor, dwelling within any person within his bailiwick for the time he shall be such officer, and that the sheriff shall be sworn do the same.

Hence it is clear, that a sheriff hath no jurisdiction in any other county, nor can he do a judicial act, and in which his personal preference is required, out of his county; but is it held that he may do a ministerial act, as make a panel a panel, or return a writ out of his county. Dalt. Sb. 22.

9 H. 4. 1. But if the sheriff be beyond sea, and maketh a panel or any return there, and fend it into England, it is not good, for he is an officer but only in England. Dalt. Sb. 22.

If on a herry or court, &c., the sheriff is commanded to carry a prisoner to a certain place out of his county, and in doing this he is obliged to go through several counties, to this special purport he hath authority in those other counties. Dalt. Sb. 22.

If a prisoner of his own wrong shall make an escape, and fly into another county, the sheriff or his officers, upon fresh fault, may take him again in another county. Plowd. 31. Dalt. Sb. 23.

4. Sheriff cannot dispose of his bailiwick; and of his power and duty in attaining an under-sheriff.

By the 23 Hen. 6. cap. 10. it is provided, * That no sheriff shall let to farm in any manner his county, nor any of his bailiwicks, hundreds or wapentakes.

In the construction hereof it hath been held, that this phrase, a particular law, and must be pleaded, and unless the judges cannot take notice of it, 3 Keb. 678. Ellis v. Niff. It hath been held, that a lease thereof, tho' no rent was ever received, is within the statute; the intent there- of being that the sheriff should keep their counties in their own hands. 20. H. 2. 1.3.

It seems the better opinion, that a lease, referring only part of the profits, is within the statute. Plowd. 87. Dalt. Sb. 23.

It hath been doubted, whether a lease made by the sheriff of his office or county only by parol, be within the statute. Dalt. Sb. 24.

It hath been adjudged in the case of the sheriff of Nettzegam, who took money for his bailiwick, which he still gave his servants, and which they fold, but he himself received the money, that this was within the statute. 4 H. 4. cap. 5. which prohibits the letting to farm, &c., under certain penalties; and that it was not only malum prohibitum, but likewise malum in se, as tending to extor- tion and other oppressions. Mar. 781. Stinchf. v. North. By the 3 Gen. 1. cap. 15. feet 10. * I shall not be law- ful for any person to buy, sell, let or take to farm, the office of under-sheriff or deputy-sheriff, as by law he may, nor to hinder the under-sheriff in any case of the high sheriff's death, when he acts as high sheriff, from constituting a deputy, nor to hinder such sheriff or under-sheriff from receiving the lawful pro- fitities of his office, or from taking security for the due an- swering the same; nor to hinder such under-sheriff, deputy-sheriff, &c., from accepting the profit of the high sheriff for all such lawful fees as shall be by them taken, nor for giving security so to do, nor to hinder the high sheriff from allowing a falary to his under-sheriff, &c., or other officers.

Altho' the King by his letters patent granteth to the sheriffs in England, without any express words, to make a deputy, yet hath the sheriff power to make a deputy or under-sheriff, who may execute all the min- isterial parts of the office; for experience, says my Lord Habor, proves, that many sheriffs cannot execute it themselves; from the antitye thereof and necessity of the law, the law takes notice of him, and on his be- ing appointed, the law implicitly gives him power to execute all the ordinary offices of the sheriff himself that can be directed by law. Dalt. 3. 514. Hob. 13.

He is, says my Lord Habort, in nature of a general bailiff to the sheriff over the whole shire, as others are over the hundred; and being in effect but the sheriff's deputy according to the nature of a deposition, is removable as an attorney is, and then made irrecoverable, yet may the high sheriff remove him; but having once given him a position, this he may totally remove him, yet he cannot abridge him of any part of his power. Hob. 13. 2 Brand. 281. The high sheriff may execute the office himself, and the under-sheriff hath not, nor ought to have, any estate or interest in the office itself, neither may he do any thing to his own damage, but only in the name of the high sheriff, who is answerable for him. Dalt. Sb. 3. Salt. 96.

By the 3 Gen. 1. cap. 15. feet 8. it is enacted, * That if any sheriff shall die before the expiration of his year, or before he be superseded, the under-sheriff shall neverthe- less continue in his office, and execute the office in the name of the deceased, till another sheriff be appointed and sworn; and the under-sheriff shall be answerable for the execution of the office during such interval, as the high sheriff would have been; and the security given by the under-sheriff and his pledges shall stand a security to the King, and all persons whatsoever, for the performance of the said office.

The under-sheriff, before he intermeddle with the office, is to be sworn; this is enjoined by the statute 29 Eliz. cap. 12. and the form of the oath there prescribed. That before this statute the under-sheriff was never sworn.

1 Rol. Rep. 274. per Col.: 1 Dalt. Sb. 24. cap. 15. feet 19. It is en- acted, That all under-sheriffs of any counties in South Britam, except the counties in Wales and county pal- atine of Chester, before they enter upon their offices, shall take the following oath, viz.  1. B. 2. do swear, that I will well and truly serve the King's majesty in the of- fice of under-sheriff in the said county, and promo- te his Majesty's profit in all things that belong to the said office as far as I legally can or may, and will pre- serve the King's rights and all that belongeth to the crown. I will not attend to deference, leen or conceal the King's rights, or the rights of his franchises and whenever I shall have knowledge that the rights of the crown are concealed or withdrawn, be it in lands, grants, franchises, suits or services, or in any other matter or thing, I will do my utmost to make them be restored to the crown again; and if I may not do it of myself, I will certify and inform some of His Majesty's judg- es thereof, and will not refrine or delay to levy the King's duty, or to prosecute the persons that have in any way raised the same without great grievance to the debtor. I will do right as well to poor as to rich, in all things belonging to my office. I will do no wrong to any man for any gift, reward or promise, nor for favour or ha- rass. I will disturbe no man's right, and will truly and faithfully acquit at the Exchequer all those of whom I shall receive any debts, dues or sums of money belong- ing to the crown. I will take nothing whereby the King may lose, or whereby his right may be disfarbed, injured or delayed. I will truly return, and truly serve all the King's writs to the best of my skill and knowledge. I will return all writs and other processes in a reasonable and punctual manner to the several officers that be within my bailiwick, according to the laws and usages thereof, and to the King's usages and circumstances, and make due panels of persons able and sufficient, and not suspected or procured, as is ap- pointed by the statutes of this realm. I have not bought, purchased, or taken to farm or contracted for, nor have I promised or given any consideration, nor will I buy, nor sell any bailiff thereupon, or contract for, nor give any consideration whatsoever by myself or any other person for me, or for my use, directly or indirectly, to any per son or persons whatsoever, for the office of un- der-sheriff of the county of which I am now to enter upon and enjoy, nor for the profits of the same, nor for any right or interest, present or future, in or to office belonging thereto. I have not sold or contracted for, or let to farm, nor have I granted or promised for reward or benefit by myself or any other person for me, or for my use, directly or indirectly, any bailiff there- of, or any other place or office belonging thereto. I will truly

The Trinity-leaves at Deptford shall set up and prelvere beacons and fee-marks, 8 Ed. c. 23.

Penalty of 100L destroying them, and if offender unable to pay, to be deemed conpaid of outlawry, 8 Ed. c. 13. f. 4.

Encouragement for the taking and exporting of fish, 13 Ed. c. 11.

What workmen not to anchor in the fifteenth way on the coast of Norfolk, 13 Ed. c. 11. f. 4.

Hoys and plats not to cross the fea, 13 Ed. c. 15.

That they export goods in caracks or salley, shall pay aliens cufoms, 12 Car. 2. c. 4. f. 4.

Goods shall be imported from the plantations in English ships only, 11 Ed. c. 18. f. 1.

And from Africa, Asia, and America, shall be in English ships, or in ships of the plantations, 12 Car. 2. c. 18. f. 3.

Goods to be imported in English shipping, shall be brought from the first port of shipping, 12 Car. 2. c. 18. f. 6.

Shipping built in the plantations deemed English, 12 Car. 2. c. 18. f. 7.

No goods or mofes of Mofony or Turkey, timber, falt, corn, tar, &c. hemp, flax, raifins, fogs, par-rafles, wines, fpirits, &c. shall be imported but in fhipping or one of the county from whence the goods are first shipped, 12 Car. 2. c. 18. f. 8. 29 Geo. 2. c. 34. f. 19.

Certificates of English ships to be given and regiftered, 12 Car. 2. c. 18. f. 10.

Not to refrain the importing of India goods, 12 Car. 2. c. 18. f. 11.

Not to extend to Scetob goods, seal-off of Raffia, &c., 12 Car. 2. c. 18. f. 16.

Articles of war for the government of the navy, 13 Car. 2. f. 1. c. 9. 18 Car. 2. c. 35. 21 Geo. 2. c. 11. Dowl. 2. c. 33.

Foreign-bills not to have the privilege of English, 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 6.

Ships trading beyond Malaya shall have 2 decks, 16 guns, and 32 men, or pay one per cent. above the cufoms, 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 35. except ships carrying fish for a moiety of their cargo, f. 36. to be British caught, 9 Geo. 2. c. 32. f. 3.

Allowances out of the cufoms to new-built defifible fhips for terms of years, 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 37. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 3. 5 W. & M. c. 24.

What goods shall not be imported from the Netherlands or Germany, 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 33.

A duty of 5L a ton on French fhips trading to England, 12 Car. 2. c. 18. f. 17. 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 14.

No goods (except fats, wine, &c.) to be carried from Europe to the plantations but from England, 15 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 6.

Every ship arriving in the plantations to produce her register to the governour, 15 Car. 2. c. 7. f. 7.

Penalties for delivering up of merchant ships, 16 Car. 2. c. 6.

Prize ships made free, 19 Car. 2. c. 11.

Ships of 200 tons and 16 guns shall not be delivered up to pirates, &c. without fighting, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 11.

Penalty on mariners refusing to defend ships, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 7.

The matter having delivered a Turk or pirate, shall not leave his ship, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 3.

No ship being delivered up to a Turk, &c. not having her double number of guns, without fighting, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 4.

Matter excufed if mariners mutiny, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 8.

Murder or mutinying to suffer death as a felon, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 9.

Matter excufed if mariners mutiny, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 8.

Murder or mutinying to suffer death as a felon, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 9.

Mutinying or delivering his ship, to suffer as a felon, without clergy, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 12.

A duty of 5L per ton on foreign ships employed in the coafting trade, 1 Jas. c. 2. c. 18. 8 E.
A duty of tunnage on ships granted, 5 W. & M. c. 2. Cruisers and convoys appointed, 10 W. & M. ft. 1. c. 34. 5 W. & M. c. 20. f. 46. 6 Ann. c. 13. For the government of the navy, 5 W. & M. c. 25. Method of measuring ships, 6 & 7 W. c. 3. f. 10. Seamen on board coal ships exempted from the pref, 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 18. f. 19. Foreign ships not to carry plantation goods, 7 & 8 W. c. 3. f. 22. Ships trading to the plantations to be registered, and to have a certificate, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 22. f. 17. Encouragement given to commanders and mariners to defend ships, 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 7. f. 11. Hays may pass in the port of London with corn, &c. by Transport without a coquet, 1 Ann. ft. 1. c. 26. Certificates of discharge to be indorsed on coaling bonds, 1 Ann. ft. 1. c. 26. f. 3. Defraying ships by mariners to the prejudice of owners or merchants, felony, 1 Ann. ft. 1. c. 9. f. 4. 4 Geo. 1. c. 12. f. 13. 11 Geo. 1. c. 29. f. 6. For enabling the master, &c. of Trinity-houfe to rebuild Edysyne light-house, 4 Ann. cap. 20. 8 Ann. c. 17. Toll to Edysyne light-house to be paid by ships paying to and from Ireland, 8 Ann. c. 17. f. 1. Ships prohibited to flop at the King's morgings, or taken to the King's ships, 4 Ann. c. 17. f. 21. Directions for preserving ships in distress, 12 Ann. ft. 2. c. 18. 26 Geo. 2. c. 19. f. 5. Raw filk not to be imported from the fignets, except from the Grand feignor's dominions, 6 Geo. 1. c. 14. Fir timber may be imported from Germany, 6 Geo. 1. c. 15. Hovering ships under 50 tons may be compelled to come into port, 6 Geo. 1. c. 21. f. 31. amended as to the bonds, by 12 Geo. 2. c. 22. Penalty on matters fuffering unconfumted goods to be delivered, or wool faden, 6 Geo. 1. c. 21. f. 32. Ships of 50 tons importing brandy, &c. forfeited, 6 Geo. 1. c. 21. f. 29. Rule for the admeasurement of ships, 6 Geo. 1. cap. 21. f. 33. 32 Geo. 2. c. 23. f. 11. Ships of 40 tons importing brandy, &c. forfeited, 8 Geo. 1. c. 18. f. 1. Cap. 4 of the act of war not to take goods on board, 8 Geo. 1. c. 24. f. 7. Penalty for doing applied, one moiety to informer, the other to Greenwich hospital, 3 Geo. 1. c. 24. f. 9. For maintenance of the Skerries lights, 3 Geo. 2. c. 36. Not to take in gunpowder above Blackwall, and to land their gunpowder below Blackwall, 5 Geo. 2. c. 20. f. 4 & 5. Ships not to fire guns above Blackwall after fun-fot, 5 Geo. 2. c. 20. f. 4. Not to melt pitch or tar on board above Blackwall, 5 Geo. 2. c. 20. f. 4. Ships not to moo in St. Stephen's dock, 5 Geo. 2. c. 70. f. 10. Owners not to be answerable for the master, &c. beyond the value of ship and freight, 5 Geo. 2. c. 15. Where freighters may file a bill in equity to discover the true quantity of goods, 7 Geo. 2. c. 15. 2. Ships may be navigated with three fourths foreigners during the war, 13 Geo. 1. c. 3. 28 Geo. 2. c. 16. Aliens may import the goods of Spain, &c. in British ships, 17 Geo. 2. c. 36. f. 4. A reward of 20,000l. for discovering the North-welt passage, 12 Geo. 2. c. 29. Rules for the government of ships of war, 18 Geo. 2. c. 35. repealed 24 Geo. 2. c. 23. and that ait extended to vessels on the lakes in America, 29 Geo. 2. c. 27. Priu ships to be deemed British built, 20 Geo. 2. cap. 45. f. 4. Offences in burning or destroying ships excepted out of the general pardon, 20 Geo. 2. c. 52. f. 14. Commission of appeals confirmed, 22 Geo. 2. c. 3.

Articles for government of the navy, 22 Geo. 2. c. 32.

Court martial to try only within the admiralty jurisdiction, 22 Geo. 2. c. 33. f. 4. Act exempt from naval court martial, 22 Geo. 2. c. 33. f. 5. Penalty of refusing to give evidence, 22 Geo. 2. c. 33. f. 17. Penalty of perjury, ibid. Powers of the articles in force over the crews of the ships, 22 Geo. 2. c. 33. f. 21. Allowance of pensions to officers who have behaved well, revered, 22 Geo. 2. c. 33. f. 22. Within what time the trial must be, 22 Geo. 2. cap. 32. f. 23. Penalty on officers taking freight Goods on board the King's ships, 22 Geo. 2. c. 33. f. 54. Duties of the masters of ships, &c. in rivers, deprived of clergy, 24 Geo. 2. c. 45. Stealing shipwrecked goods, deprived of clergy, 26 Geo. 2. c. 19.

Goods imported in British built ships being the property of foreigners to pay aliens duty, 29 Geo. 2. c. 34. f. 28.

The 22 Geo. 2. c. 33. extended to the lakes, &c. in North America, 29 Geo. 2. c. 27.

Agreeing for the ramn of neutral ships is piracy, 32 Geo. 2. c. 25. f. 12. Marine, while on board King's ships to be governed according to a rule, 22 Geo. 2. c. 33. 23 Geo. 2. c. 8. f. 43.

Shire, (Comitatus) From the Saxon Scir, or Scyri, i. e. part or divide Is well known to be a part or portion of this land, called also a county. King Alfred first divided this land into shires, and those again into hundreds and tithings; of which shires there are in England forty, and in Wales twelve. In privilegium chartis uii conciliarum quietius eft, a fîr, intelligentissimum officium esse immunitate, qua quis exhibuit a fîr in charta curis vicissim (quas eoniam fîr vocant) profanant vel perficeret, &c. The affizes of the fîre, or the assembly of the people of a county was called forgerem by the Saxons. This division made by King Alfred was in Sarropia, which we now call Shires, in centurias, which we call hundreds, and in decessions, which we call tithings. The old Latin word was fîrea, non legi dimittit fîrea, id est, provincia in diccionariis. Brompton, pag. 956.

Shire-of-eyes, Is he that keeps the county court; his office is fo incident to the sheriff, that the King cannot govern without it. A Rep. 4 Reps. of eyes, or eyers, was an anciently judge of the county, by whom trials for land, &c. were determined before the conquest. Lamb. Peramb. p. 442.

Shire-mare. See Shire and Turn.

Shoemakers, Shall not use the mystery of a tanner, 13 Ro. 2. c. 21. R. 2. c. 16. 2 H. 6. c. 7. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 9.

Liberty given to shoemakers to tan their leathers, 4 H. 4. c. 35. Regulation for the Shoemakers in and about London, 4 Ed. 4. c. 7. 14 & 15 H. 8. c. 9. 1 Ed. 5. c. 1. 1 Jac. 1. c. 22. f. 29. 9 Geo. 1. c. 37. Not to use the mystery of a cutters, 11 H. 7. c. 19. Exportation of shoes and boots prohibited, 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 15. f. 5. permitted 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 7. f. 6.

What security to be given not to relax them; And what drawback allowed, 9 Ann. c. 11. f. 39. 40. 41. 42. 12 Ann. ft. 2. c. 9. f. 64. Directions for the performing shoemakers, 1 Jac. 1. c. 22. f. 28. &c.

Satisfaction to be made by journeymen purloining shoes, &c. 9 Geo. 1. c. 27. Avid, &c. buying or taking them in pawn, 9 Geo. 1. c. 27. f. 2.

Punishment of offenders unable to make satisfaction, 9 Geo. 1. c. 27. f. 1. 2.

Houses of suspected persons to be searched, and goods fraudulently obtained to be restored to the owner, 9 Geo. 1. c. 27. f. 3.

Perfons retained, and engaging with new master before the first work is performed, how punished, 9 Geo. 1. c. 27. f. 4.

Shooting,
Foreign alamodes, &c. to be sealed at the Custom-house, 5 W. 41. 2. fo. 45. 6 & 7 W. 3. 1. 18. f. 1.

A lamodes, &c. not sealed, forfeited, 8 & 9 W. 3. 3. 36. 9 & 10 W. 3. 3. 43. f. 5.

No drawback on exporting foreign alamodes, 8 & 9 W. 3. 3. 36. f. 5.

A duty per pound weight on imported lustrings and alamodes, is 10 W. 3. 3. 50.

Alamodes and lustrings to be imported only at London, 9 & 10 W. 3. 4. 43.

Chapter of the lustring company confirmed, 9 & 10 W. 3. 3. 43. f. 5.

Penalty on officers of King's ships importing silk, 9 & 10 W. 3. 4. 43.

Penalty of 500l. and pillory on altering the custom-house or company's marks, 9 & 10 W. 3. 4. 43. f. 5.

Penalty on custom-house officers colluding, 9 & 10 W. 3. 4. 43. f. 6.

Wearing French alamodes, &c. prohibited, 5 Ann. 2. 20.

Officers of customs only have power to seize, 5 Ann. 2. f. 3.

Foreign silk mixed with gold or silver, forfeited, &c. 6 Ann. 2. f. 14.

A duty on printed silk, callicoes and floss, 10 Ann. 2. 4.

Perjury printing silk, &c. at other places than their usual refidence, to make a particular entry of the silk before printing, 1 Geo. 2. 2. 3. 36. f. 21.

Premium on silk manufactures exported, 8 Geo. 1. c. 15.

Two thirds of the warp to be silk, 9 Geo. 1. c. 8. f. 9.

Want of certificate supplied, 1 Geo. 2. 2. 17. f. 9.

The silk in the fluff to be of double the value of the bounty, 1 Geo. 2. c. 17. f. 10.

The importation of raw silk from the Straights, (except from the Grand Seignior's dominions) restrained, 6 Geo. 1. c. 14.

Rewarded to Sir Thomas Lamb for inventing silk engine, 5 Geo. 2. c. 4.

A certain quantity of Spanish silk permitted to be imported, 14 Geo. 2. c. 4.

Raw silk of China to pay the same duty as Italy, 23 Geo. 2. c. 9.

Raw silk of the plantations may be imported free, 23 Geo. 2. c. 20.

Raw silk of Perfiia, bought in Raffia, may be imported from any port in Raffia, 23 Geo. 2. c. 34.

Foreign silk and velvets to be sealed at the custom-house, 23 Geo. 2. c. 19.

On alication or information for the penalties of this act, defendant to give bail, 26 Geo. 2. c. 21. f. 8.

Organized Italian thrown silk may be imported from any port in any vefsel, till 1 December 1757, 30 Geo. 2. c. 17.

Penalty of importing foreign silk ribbons, laces or girdles, 3 Geo. 3. c. 21.

Act to prohibit the importation of foreign wrought velvets and forrets for a limited time, and for preventing unlawful combinations of workmen employed in the silk manufacture, 6 Geo. 3. c. 28.

Silk-rover and thumper, (mentioned in flat. 14. Car. 2. cap. 15.) Is a trade or mystery that winds, twits and spins, or throws silk, so fitting it for use; they are incorporated by the said act; wherein there is mention also of silk-winders and doublers, which are members of the same trade. Cowell, edit. 1724. See 20 Car. 2. c. 2.

SILVA CAECUS. See SILVA CAEBUS.

Simnell, (Siminellus) From the Latin Siminii, which signifies the finest part of the flower; panis similegenus, Siminell bread. It is mentioned in flat. affin similiis, (and is still in use, especially in Lent.) bread made into a Siminell bole, 26 Geo. 2. 2. 17.

Silk-rover and thumper, (mentioned in flat. 14. Car. 2. cap. 15.) Is a trade or mystery that winds, twist, and spins, or throws silk, so fitting it for use; they are incorporated by the said act; wherein there is mention also of silk-winders and doublers, which are members of the same trade. Cowell, edit. 1724. See 20 Car. 2. c. 2.

Simmon, (Simoni, venditore rei facere) So called from Simon Magus. It was agreed by all the justices, Trim. 8.
shall for any sum of money, reward, gift, profit or be nefit, directly or indirectly, or for, or by reason of any promise, agreement, grant, bond, covenant, or other assurance of, or for any sum of money, reward, gift, profit, or benefit whatsoever, directly or indirectly, or for, or by reason of any sum of money, reward, gift, or benefit, directly or indirectly, or that shall take or make any such promise, grant, bond, covenant, or other assurance, shall forfeit and lose the double value of one year's profit of every such benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical; and that every person so corruptly taking, procuring, seeking, or accepting any such benefit, dignity, prebend, or living, shall thereupon, and from thenceforth, be adjudged a disabled person in law, to have or enjoy the same benefit, dignity, prebend, or living ecclesiastical.

By sect. 6. it is enacted, * That if any person shall for any sum of money, reward, gift, profit, or commodity whatsoever, directly or indirectly, other than for lawful and usual fees, or for or by reason of any promise, agreement, grant, covenant, bond, or other assurance of, or for any sum of money, reward, gift, profit, or benefit whatsoever, directly or indirectly, grant, sell, alienate, or dispose of any such benefit or right, or mortally void, frustrate, and of none effect in law; and that it shall and may be lawful for the Queen, her heirs and successors to prevent, collate unto, or give, or below every such benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical for that time or term only; and that every person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, that shall give or take any such sum of money, reward, gift, or benefit, directly or indirectly, or that shall take or make any such promise, grant, bond, covenant, or other assurance, shall forfeit and lose the double value of one year's profit of every such benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical; and that every person so corruptly taking, procuring, seeking, or accepting any such benefit, dignity, prebend, or living, shall thereupon immediately from and after the infevating, installment, or induction thereof, have, the same benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical, shall be forfeited, void, and that the patron or person, to whom the advowson, gift, presentation, or collation, shall by law appertain, shall and may not in any manner whatsoever, directly or indirectly, grant, sell, alienate, or dispose of the same, or any part thereof, or mortally void, frustrate, and of none effect in law; and that it shall and may be lawful for the Queen, her heirs and successors to prevent, collate unto, or give, or below every such benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical for that time or term only; and that every person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, that shall give or take any such sum of money, reward, gift, or benefit, directly or indirectly, or that shall take or make any such promise, grant, bond, covenant, or other assurance, shall forfeit and lose the double value of one year's profit of every such benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical; and that every person so corruptly taking, procuring, seeking, or accepting any such benefit, dignity, prebend, or living, shall thereupon immediately from and after the infevating, installment, or induction thereof, have, the same benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical, shall be forfeited, void, and that the patron or person, to whom the advowson, gift, presentation, or collation, shall by law appertain, shall and may not in any manner whatsoever, directly or indirectly, grant, sell, alienate, or dispose of the same, or any part thereof, or mortally void, frustrate, and of none effect in law; and that it shall and may be lawful for the Queen, her heirs and successors to prevent, collate unto, or give, or below every such benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical for that time or term only; and that every person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, that shall give or take any such sum of money, reward, gift, or benefit, directly or indirectly, or that shall take or make any such promise, grant, bond, covenant, or other assurance, shall forfeit and lose the double value of one year's profit of every such benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical; and that every person so corruptly taking, procuring, seeking, or accepting any such benefit, dignity, prebend, or living, shall thereupon immediately from and after the infevating, installment, or induction thereof, have, the same benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical, shall be forfeited, void, and that the patron or person, to whom the advowson, gift, presentation, or collation, shall by law appertain, shall and may not in any manner whatsoever, directly or indirectly, grant, sell, alienate, or dispose of the same, or any part thereof, or mortally void, frustrate, and of none effect in law; and that it shall and may be lawful for the Queen, her heirs and successors to prevent, collate unto, or give, or below every such benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical for that time or term only; and that every person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, that shall give or take any such sum of money, reward, gift, or benefit, directly or indirectly, or that shall take or make any such promise, grant, bond, covenant, or other assurance, shall forfeit and lose the double value of one year's profit of every such benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical; and that every person so corruptly taking, procuring, seeking, or accepting any such benefit, dignity, prebend, or living, shall thereupon immediately from and after the infevating, installment, or induction thereof, have, the same benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical, shall be forfeited, void, and that the patron or person, to whom the advowson, gift, presentation, or collation, shall by law appertain, shall and may not in any manner whatsoever, directly or indirectly, grant, sell, alienate, or dispose of the same, or any part thereof, or mortally void, frustrate, and of none effect in law; and that it shall and may be lawful for the Queen, her heirs and successors to prevent, collate unto, or give, or below every such benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical for that time or term only; and that every person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, that shall give or take any such sum of money, reward, gift, or benefit, directly or indirectly, or that shall take or make any such promise, grant, bond, covenant, or other assurance, shall forfeit and lose the double value of one year's profit of every such benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical; and that every person so corruptly taking, procuring, seeking, or accepting any such benefit, dignity, prebend, or living, shall thereupon immediately from and after the infevating, installment, or induction thereof, have, the same benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical, shall be forfeited, void, and that the patron or person, to whom the advowson, gift, presentation, or collation, shall by law appertain, shall and may not in any manner whatsoever, directly or indirectly, grant, sell, alienate, or dispose of the same, or any part thereof, or mortally void, frustrate, and of none effect in law; and that it shall and may be lawful for the Queen, her heirs and successors to prevent, collate unto, or give, or below every such benefit, dignity, prebend, and living ecclesiastical for that time or term only; and that every person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, that shall give or take any such sum of money, reward, gift, or benefit, directly or indirectly, or that shall take or make any such promise, grant, bond, covenant, or other assurance, shall forfeit and lose the double value of the sum so given, taken, or had.
when it shall become void, and he is afterwards thereunto preffented, it is a fimonials promotion.

Cra. Cor. 425.

Birt v. Manning.

These three laft cafes may ferve to confirm what has been observed, that in the cafe of fimony, it is unlawful for a father to do what may not be done by a ftranger.

If no agreement be to pay five pounds per annum to the widow of the laft incumbent, or ten pounds per annum to his fon long as he fhall be a ftrident at Cambridge and unpreferred, neither of thefe is fimony.

A bond with condition that the incumbent fhall not be a ftranger five years after his living is not fimonials; this being a lawful condition.

A. co?nvened that B. his fon fhould marry C. the daughter of D. in confideration of this marriage D. co?nvened to advance 300l. for his daughter's portion, and A. co?nvened to fettle certain lands on B. and C. there were also co?venants on the part of A. for the value of thefe lands and quiet enjoyment, and a co?nvent on the part of D. to procure a certain benefit for B. on the next avoidance of it. It was faid that this was no fimonials contrac? but not in confideration of the marriage only, but in addition thereto was written by the wife of the incumbent, although the patron is not pri? to it.

Cra. Jac. 385.

If a clerk co?racts to give money for being preffented to a church, and after preffented gratis; this is fimony.

Lane 103. Kitchin v. Calvert.

In this cafe the clerk is an unfit perfon, for having at that time been capable of intending to buy a living cor?rupt. It also implies fome defect in him; for the pre?funption is that perfons well qualified will always be preffented, and have therefore no need to purchase. With this agrees Cra. Elim. 789. where it is faid to be ve?luntary that perfon deferted emended vel vellendi spiritu vel spirituibus adeurreret.

This offence may be by a corrupt contrac? between ftrangers, even when neither the patron nor incumbent is pri? to it; for if there be a corrupt contrac? it, matters not by whom it is made: But in this cafe the pre?fence is not fimonials, and only fimonials promis.

Lane 103. Kitchin v. Calvert.

A second brother, having a right to preffent, made a corrupt contrac? to preffent a certain perfon; but in or? der to elude the statute furrendered the right of preffent?ing to his elder brother. He was not being privy thereby pre?enting the perfon who by the agreement was to be preffented. It was held that the corrupt contrac? is fimo?nial, and that its being performed by an innocent perfon makes no alteration in the cafe.

Lane 73. Calvert v. Kitchen.

An agreement was between Richards a friend of Bough?ton, and Taylor, that Boughton fhould preffent Hides, and that Taylor fhould pay Richards 20l. per ann. for five years, in cafe Hides to long lived, for the use of Boughton. In corrupt impid Hides pleaded he had no notice of the agreement at or before his preffentation. On demurrer it was held that the corrupt contrac? was enough, and that it was immaterial whether he had notice or not.

3 Lev. 338. Rex v. Hides and others.

If a ftranger, the church being void, contracted with the patron for a grant of the void turn, and preffents a clerk not privy to the contrac?; yet, although the grant being of a chofe in action is void, as the incumbent committed in his charter, he is not to be confidered as an ufarer, but as one fimonials promis.

So where a father, the church being void, contracted with the grantee of the void turn to permit the grantor to preffent his fon, and it is done, this is a fimonials promotion.

Bouv. v. Bower.

So if a father, in consideration of a clerk's marrying his daughter, doth co?ven with the father of the clerk, to procure for him a preffentation to a certain church was ordered to be entered upon the judgment, and a perpetual injunction was granted. A new bond of refignation in penalty of 200l. a much less sum was indeed decreed; but no action was to be brought on it without leaves of the court: And the lord keeper said he did not know that such bonds were used before the statute; that they had been force allowed only to preserve the benefic from suits against the incumbent, or to prevent non-refiersence or a vicious course of life in an incumbent; and that though a bond be to refign generally, he would not allow it to be put in suit unless some such real reason was found for requiring a refignation, because a door would be thereby opened for simony. Ep.
Cefes Abr. 256. Hedges v. Thurnam.

So a bond to refign on request shall not be made use of to turn out the incumbent, unless there be non-refi-erence or gross misbehaviour; and if any other use be made of it, the court will grant an injunction. Chan. Prec. 513.
Hawkins v. Turner.

From some of these cases, and particularly the last which was Walf. 5 Gis. there is reason to conclude that general and bonds of refignation were not then held good in equity: But later determinations threw that they now are.
A bond to refign generally has been often held good in the court of Chancery. Str. 227. Pelle v. County of Carlisle.

Caspel, on presenting Peel to a living, took a bond to refign when the patron's nephew for whom it was itended should be of age. At his coming of age it was agreed that, instead of refigning, he should continue to hold the living on paying the nephew 30l. per annum. After paying this seven years, Peel refused to pay it any longer. The bond hereupon being put in suit, Peel brought his bond as evidence, and the incumbent, the mony repaid. An injunction was granted, not as was said on account of the invalidity of the bond, for that was held to be good, but because an ill use had been made of it. As to the money which had been paid on the imponiental contrac.t, Pelle was left to his remedy at law for it. Str. 534. Pelle v. Caspel.

3. Whether the ordinary is obliged to accept a refignation on such bond; and some objections to these bonds considered.

However it may be now settled, that such bonds are good both in law and equity; a question has arisen, and is not perhaps settled by judicial determinations, whether the ordinary is obliged to accept a refignation on such a bond? It is in the power of the ordinary to discourage the use of such bonds, for he may refuse to accept a refignation made by constraint of one of them. Wolf. Can.
Int. 24.

The bishop refused to accept a refignation on such a bond, and ordered the incumbent to continue to serve the

An ordinary is not obliged to accept a refignation on favor of any one of the benefices. Griffith v. Griffith.
An ordinary is not obliged to accept a refignation on such a bond, and ordered the incumbent to continue to serve the

An ordinary is not obliged to accept a refignation on favor of any one of the benefices. Griffith v. Griffith.
An ordinary is not obliged to accept a refignation on such a bond, and ordered the incumbent to continue to serve the
this, might as well advance the money agreed upon at first, or, if that did not suit him, give an absolute bond to pay the money, without any condition, but this bond might still be committed, and with as much ferocity, what good end would it answer to prohibit such bonds, which, as is allowed by all, may be made use of by a parish to punish neglect of duty or immoral conduct in the incumbent, and for other good purposes? 4 Bac. Abr. 473. 474.

Another objection is, that, when the patron takes a general bond of renunciation, it is only a preterituation during pleasure. Be it so, and I will suppose, which is the utmost that can be supposed, that it is not taken with a design to save the incumbent into great care in the event of his being obliged to let someone succeed or retire after wards into the benefice. It by no means necessarily follows that the church, which is the grand thing to be guarded against, will therefore be filled with an unfit person. If the successor, which may be the cafe, is better qualified for the office, the interest of religion will be advanced by the exchange. If he be not so well qualified, it is a misfortune; but it is such a one as, in the present circumstances of things, cannot be entirely prevented. While the right of patronage, or I might have said, while human nature continues as it is, there will be mislakes in judgment, and patrons will be involved in difficulties, and will perhaps prevent any real happiness of a relation or friend; but it makes no difference, whether either of these happen; when the benefice is at first void, or at any given time after; or if there be any, it is in favour of the practice, for the mischief for long at all the first incumbent holds the living, is thereby postponed, 4 Bac. Abr. 474. For more learning on this subject, see 19 Vin. Abr. & 4 Bac. Abr. tit. Simony.

Simpler, Signifies simple, or fingle; as charta simplex is a deed poll, or single deed.

Simpler beneficium, A minor dignity in a cathedral or collegiate church, a fine- cure, a pension out of a parochial church, or a sine-cure, and having a kind of like benefit, is opposed to a cure of souls, and which therefore was confid- ered with any parochial cure, without coming under the name or censure of pluralities. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Simpler jurticiarius. This office was anciently used for any public judge, that was not chief in any court. There is a writ registred, beginning thus, — I John Week, a single judge of the Common Places, &c. Id. ib.

Sino cum, Are words used in indictions, and de- clarations of trespass against several persons, when some of them are known, and others not known; as, the plaintiff declares against A. B. the defendant, sinful cum C. D. E. F. and divers others unknown, for that they committed divers trespass, &c. 2 Lev. 139. If a writ is generally against two or more persons, the plain- tiff may declare against one of them with a simul cum; but if a man bring an original writ against one only, and declares with a simul cum, he abates his own writ. Camb. 260.

Sine allentu rapptali, Is a writ that lies where a dean, bishop, prebendary, abbot, prior, or master of an hospital, alien the land holden in the right of his house, without the content of the chapter, convent and fraternity, in which case his successor shall have this writ. F. N. B. fol. 195.

Sine cura, Is a writ of a rector of a parish hath a vicar under him endowed and charged with the cure; so that the rector is not obliged either to do duty or residence. Degge's Parf. Canon. 195. And when a church is fallen down, and the parish becomes destitute of parishioners, it is said to be a Sine-cure. Wood's Astr. 153.

Sine bire, A writ brought by a person who was accused to the church court, who, before the trial, for turning the case into English, when judgment was given against the plaintiff in an action, he was said to be in meretriciorum pro falsa clausura suis; and for the defendant, eat inde fine, and the defendant was discharged, 2 Litt. 220.

Sine omnis, Is a writ of allegation whereby, if all things have not been alleged, it is allowed, that two or more of them may finish the business. See Affirmation, and F. N. B. fol. 165. & 111. and Reg. Orig. fol. 202, 206, &c.

Sinking-fund, Is a provision made by parliament, consists of sums of money from other funds, appropriated for paying the publick debts of the nation; and many late statutes have been made for applying the growing produce thereof. All money is often borrowed on the credit of the sinking-fund, usually one million a year towards raising funds for publick service. See Funds, Silt, Southsea-Sea Company.

Sisicet, Is a writ that lies for a creditor against his debtor, for money numbered, that hath before the sheriff in the county-court acknowledged himself to be a bankrupt, but he will not be committed or removed therefrom. 25 John Abr. 433. &c. 1 W. 40. 185. &c. &c.

Sitientes, The standing of any place, the situation of a capital house or manufac, a territory, or part of a country, as the site of the late dissolved mo- nutery of, &c. i. the place where it stood. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Sithwendam, Such a gentleman as had the office to lead the men of a town or parish. Leg. In. c. 56. Dug- dale, in his Antiquitias of Wartocthiirs, observes, that the hundreds of Knigbttsle, Kinnet, and Hemingford, in 16 H. 6. of Edward the Third, of those of Sibtho, Sibthec, Stibho, Sibthec, Sibhede, Stibho, Sibho, &c., so that Sethwidhunam, Sithwendam, Sithwoodam, Sithwoodman, was only the chief officer within such a division, the most honorable of the hundred. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Sithwir, (Sax.) The frachity or liberty of a cer- tain company of men, a hundred. Rot. F. 16 Hen. 2. sometimes written Sipto. Caria litem legalum domini. Cowell, ed. 1727.

Sithwirdi, Were servants of the fame nature with rod- knights, viz. bound to attend their Lord wherever they went, yet they were accounted among the Englifh-Saxons, as freemen, because they had lands in fee, subject only to such duties as were imposed by custom. Leg. In. cap. 26. And in the laws of Henry 1. cap. 26. Servi ali clown, alii genitura, i. Liberi ali Thibghindi, ali Sithwirdi, ali Thyfridindi. See Hiberni domini.

Siviri, In the fabrication of our milled money, the gold or silver is cut out of the molten pest into long flat bars, which bars are drawn thro' a mill, (wrought by a horse,) to produce the just thickness of guineas, crowns, &c. Then with forcible engines, called cutters, which answer exactly to the respective sizes or dimensions of the money to be made, the round pieces are cut out from the flat bar, shaped as aforefaid, after which the residue is called Skeld, and is melted down again. See Leander's Essay upon Coin, pag. 96.

Skiarralla, or Skarrailla, Seems to be an engine for catching of fish. It was especially given in charge by the judges in Eyre, that all juries should enquire de bin qui futurant semin habilitati & Skarralia. Crest. 2. Hoy. fol. 38. Creder, is that which we now call a fear, or wound. Si effe extrahatur a capite & Skerda magna levatur, &c. Brayth. lib. 3. cap. 24.

Skerries, (Iland or rock). Patent granted to William French, esq; for a light-house there, confirmed, 3 Geo. 2. c. 39.

Skeiling, None shall take the wool from any skeels-kin or Lamb-kin, unless he make leather or parchment of it, &c. 5 El. 5. c. 22. f. 1.

None shall buy skins but to make leather or parchment, &c. 5 El. 5. c. 22. f. 1.

Exportation of skins and leather prohibited, 5 El. 5. c. 22. f. 2.

Skeels, (howe or stone). Before the wool was turned into English, when judgment was given against the plaintiff in an action, he was said to be in meretriciorum pro falsa clausura suis; and for the defendant, eat inde fine, and the defendant was discharged. &c. 2 Litt. 220.

Of sheep skins tawed permitted, 8 El. c. 14.

None but Artizan skinner shall dref or export black coney-skins, 3 for. c. 1. c. 9.

Merchants shall not buy coney-skins or morkins in small quantities, 3 for. c. 1. c. 9.

Duty on skins imported, 9 Geo. 1. c. 11. f. 1.

Drawback of two-thirds on exportation, 9 Geo. 11. c. 39.

Additional duty on skins imported, 10 Ann. c. 26. f. 1.

Drawback
that tilled and manured his inland or demesne (yielding operam, not consum, work, not rent) and were thereupon called his Sckemen, or ploughmen. Spelman of Fruds, cap. 7. But after the conquest, the proper Sckemann, or Sckemane, or Scemen, of land, was those tenantry who,
and the common law, of which tenant from procantly to be called Sckemann. Cowell, edid. 1727.
Sceatn. Signifies a suffum of grinding at the Lord's mill; and there is land-sacre, where the tenants are bound to it; and brea-sacre, where they do it freely out of love to their Lord. Cowell, edid. 1727.
Sconce, See, Scon, Scone. A privilege, or liberty, or franchise.
Scon, See. A privilege, or liberty, or franchise.
Scone, See, Scon. Generally signify liberty or privileges exempted from customary burdens and impositions. Sometimes Saca, or Saca, was the territory or precinct in which the chief Lord did exercise his Sac, Sale, or Saka, his liberty of keeping court, or holding trials within his Saka or jurisdiction. Sometimes it signified a payment or rent to the Lord for using his land with such liberty and privilege, as made the tenant a Sconen, or freeholder, upon no other conditions
than a quit-rent. Cowell, edid. 1727.
Skeate. See, Set. A privilege, or liberty, or franchise.
Skeate, Set. See, Set. A privileg, or liberty, or franchise.
Skeate, Set. See, Set. Generally signify liberty or privileges exempted from customary burdens and impositions. Sometimes Ska, or Saka, was the ter-rity or precinct in which the chief Lord did exercise
his Saka, Sale, or Saka, his liberty of keeping court, or holding trials within his Saka or jurisdiction. Sometimes it signified a payment or rent to the Lord for using his land with such liberty and privilege, as made the tenant a Sconen, or freeholder, upon no other conditions
than a quit-rent. Cowell, edid. 1727.
Skeat, See. A privilege, or liberty, or franchise.
Skeat, See, Scon. Generally signify liberty or privileges exempted from customary burdens and impositions. Sometimes Saka, or Saka, was the ter-
rity or precinct in which the chief Lord did exercise
his Saka, Sale, or Saka, his liberty of keeping court, or holding trials within his Saka or jurisdiction. Sometimes it signified a payment or rent to the Lord for using his land with such liberty and privilege, as made the tenant a Sconen, or freeholder, upon no other conditions
than a quit-rent. Cowell, edid. 1727.
Skeat. See, Scon. Generally signify liberty or privileges exempted from customary burdens and impositions. Sometimes Saka, or Saka, was the ter-
rity or precinct in which the chief Lord did exercise
his Saka, Sale, or Saka, his liberty of keeping court, or holding trials within his Saka or jurisdiction. Sometimes it signified a payment or rent to the Lord for using his land with such liberty and privilege, as made the tenant a Sconen, or freeholder, upon no other conditions
than a quit-rent. Cowell, edid. 1727.
Skate, See. A privilege, or liberty, or franchise.
Slaves. There are no slaves in England; one may be a villain here, but not a slave. 2 Stat. 666.
Smells, A filip; and there is a tenure of land by holding their filip. Cowell, edid. 1727.
Slaughtr,er. (mentioned in Pet. 43. Siam, pag. 11.) A certain rent paid to the cattie of Wignams, and is in lieu of certain days work in harvest, heretofore referred to the Lord from his tenants. Cowell, edid. 1727.
Smaile. Is that of which painters make blue colour.
Stat. 11 Ed. 10. 7 Ed. 7.
Smok-farthings. The penteecods or eulumy oblations offered by the diseased inhabitants within a diocees, when they made their procession to the mother cathedral church, came by degrees into a flanding annual rent, called Smok-farthings. Cowell, edid. 1727.
Smok-farthings. There is smok-falter and smok-pony paid to the ministers of divers parishes, and to be paid in lieu of tithe-wood; or it may, as in places at this day, be a continued payment of the Ramespet or Peter-paton. Cowell, edid. 1727.
Smuggling. See Privileges.
Smok-falter. There was a custom in the village of Wyleglys, that all thefervile tenants should pay for their tenement a duty called Smuttering-falter, i. e. for each tenement, 1 den. ob. to the abbot of Calkeby.
Place, 15 Ed. 1.
Snuff. The penalties of adulterating tobacco, extended to certain snuff, 5 Geo. I. c. 11. f. 22. The duties on Sot. (Socia) According to Milhej, is a word sig-fying a power or liberty of jurisdiction; whence our Law-Latin word Sota, for a feignity enfranchised by the King, with liberty of holding a court of his Sotemen, Society, or Society, in England, a whole tenure is hence called Sac-se. Cowell, edid. 1727.
Sotemen, See SOCAGE.
Sotemen, See SOCAGE. See, Set. A privilege, or liberty, or franchise.
Sotemen, See SOCAGE. See, Set. A privilege, or liberty, or franchise.
Sotemen, See SOCAGE. See, Set. A privilege, or liberty, or franchise.
Sotemen, See SOCAGE. Generally signify liberty or privileges exempted from customary burdens and impositions. Sometimes Saka, or Saka, was the ter-
rity or precinct in which the chief Lord did exercise
his Saka, Sale, or Saka, his liberty of keeping court, or holding trials within his Saka or jurisdiction. Sometimes it signified a payment or rent to the Lord for using his land with such liberty and privilege, as made the tenant a Sconen, or freeholder, upon no other conditions
than a quit-rent. Cowell, edid. 1727.
Sotemen, See SOCAGE.
Sotemen, See SOCAGE. Generally signify liberty or privileges exempted from customary burdens and impositions. Sometimes Saka, or Saka, was the ter-
rity or precinct in which the chief Lord did exercise
his Saka, Sale, or Saka, his liberty of keeping court, or holding trials within his Saka or jurisdiction. Sometimes it signified a payment or rent to the Lord for using his land with such liberty and privilege, as made the tenant a Sconen, or freeholder, upon no other conditions
than a quit-rent. Cowell, edid. 1727.
Sotemen, See SOCAGE.
Sotemen, See SOCAGE. Generally signify liberty or privileges exempted from customary burdens and impositions. Sometimes Saka, or Saka, was the ter-
rity or precinct in which the chief Lord did exercise
his Saka, Sale, or Saka, his liberty of keeping court, or holding trials within his Saka or jurisdiction. Sometimes it signified a payment or rent to the Lord for using his land with such liberty and privilege, as made the tenant a Sconen, or freeholder, upon no other conditions
than a quit-rent. Cowell, edid. 1727.
Sotemen, See SOCAGE.
Sotemen, See SOCAGE. Generally signify liberty or privileges exempted from customary burdens and impositions. Sometimes Saka, or Saka, was the ter-
rity or precinct in which the chief Lord did exercise
his Saka, Sale, or Saka, his liberty of keeping court, or holding trials within his Saka or jurisdiction. Sometimes it signified a payment or rent to the Lord for using his land with such liberty and privilege, as made the tenant a Sconen, or freeholder, upon no other conditions
than a quit-rent. Cowell, edid. 1727.
Sotemen, See SOCAGE.
Sotemen, See SOCAGE. Generally signify liberty or privileges exempted from customary burdens and impositions. Sometimes Saka, or Saka, was the ter-
rity or precinct in which the chief Lord did exercise
his Saka, Sale, or Saka, his liberty of keeping court, or holding trials within his Saka or jurisdiction. Sometimes it signified a payment or rent to the Lord for using his land with such liberty and privilege, as made the tenant a Sconen, or freeholder, upon no other conditions
than a quit-rent. Cowell, edid. 1727.
Sotemen, See SOCAGE.
Punishment of papists infiltrating, 1 Geo. 1. cap. 47. See 3 Geo. 2. c. 52. f. 15.

Offences against mutiny acts excepted out of general pardon, 20 Geo. 2. c. 12. f. 15.

Foreign protesbants may serve as officers or engineers in America, to the number of 50 officers, and 20 engravers, 2 Geo. 1. cap. 2. f. 5.

For recruiting the army in America, 29 Geo. 2. c. 35.

Foreign troops brought over for the defence of Great Britain in 1757, to be quartered as British, 30 Geo. 3. c. 2.

Men impressed according to the act not to be taken out of the service but for some criminal matter, 30 Geo. 2. c. 18. f. 20.

Mariners not liable to arrests for court or crimes, or debts of the value of 10/. 4 Geo. 3. c. 8. f. 37.

SOLICITOR. See Dol bert. See 3 Geo. 2. Solicitor.

Solicitor (Solicitor.) Is a man employed to take care of, and follow suits depending in law or equity.

COWELL, ed. 1727. See Attorney.

Solidatum. In the matter gender signifies that absolute right or property which a man hath in any thing. COWELL, ed. 1727. See Right.

SULFUR. — In common law. See Sulphur.

SULFUS terreæ. In common law. Sulphus terreæ. Sulphus terreæ dim. que faciat duo filius 12 dim. Demesne. In which book, this word is only used in Kent, and no other county. Various films terreæ sunt 15 Carucates. 1 Infol. fol. 15. According to this computation Sulphus terreæ is about 150 acres, and 7 filins are about 1252 acres, which is less than 17 carucates, for at the lowest carucate terreæ is 100 acres. But my Lord Coke was of opinion, that it did consist of no certain number of acres. This word Sulphus was probably from the Sax. Sul a plough, but what quantity of land this Sulph, fellow, or fellowing did contain, is not so easily determined. It seems to have been the same with a plough-land; so that in Domesday book, Se definde pro uno carucato., is, it is taxed for one carucate or plough-land. COWELL, ed. 1727. See Soil or Solar. (Solarium) A chamber or upper room. Id. ib. SULPRODA. See a term of art, signifying that a man hath wherewith to pay, or, as we say, is a person fitly and industrious. COWELL, ed. 1727.

SULSIT ad diem. Is a plea in action of debt on a bond, bill, &c. that the money was paid at the day limited. MAD. CAFF. 22. To a bond of 50 years standing the defendant pleaded Solit ad diem, relying on the presumption; the plaintiff proved payment of interest two years after the day; this falsifies the plea: The defendant should have pleaded upon the act for amendment of the law, that he paid the money after the day. 1 Strange 652. See Payment.

Solution duo militiae parliament. And SOLUTION Solumienses Burgess. Parliament. Are words whereby of officers and burghers may recover their allowances, if it be denied. Stat. 35 H. 8. c. 11.

SOMERSET house. Affixed to Queen Charlotte for life. 2 Geo. 3. c. 1.

SOMERSETSHIRE. Its history, how preferred, 1 TAC. 1. c. 23. See Fifis. COWELL, ed. 1727.

SON. Abhor. A justification in an action of assault and battery; because the plaintiff made the fist assault, and what the defendant did was in his own defence. 2 Lit. Abr. 523. See Assault and Battery.

SOTAGE. Was according to SOW, pag. 284. A tax of forty thallings laid upon every Knight's see.

STAMPS. Made to be two-pence of four-imparted, pays at flat, 2 H. & W. MSS. 2 cap. 4. f. 47. And every pound 2d. 10 Ann. cap. 19. f. 1. And a penny, 12 Ann. fl. 2. c. 9. f. 1. And home made one penny, 10 Ann. cap. 19. f. 1. And one halfpenny, 12 Ann. fl. 2. c. 19. f. 1.

Wine also sub not to be exported, 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 26. 2

SOU

The duty laid on foep, 10 Ann. 19. made perpetual and part of general fund, 3 Geo. 1. c. 7. 12 Ann. fl. 2. c. 9.

Drawback on tax ued in the woollen manufacturies, 10 Ann. 19. f. 29. 12 Ann. fl. 2. c. 9. f. 16. For every 105 pounds, every 256 pounds, every 856 pounds, besides the rate of the cafe, 10 Ann. cap. 19. f. 8.

Cake foep need not be barreled, 10 Ann. cap. 26. f. 17.

Duties laid by 12 Ann. fl. 2. c. 9. made perpetual, 6 Geo. 1. c. 4. in order to be subscribed into South Sea fund, and the surplus mortgaged to the bank, by 2 Geo. 2. c. 3.

Penalty on concealing foep, 1 Geo. 1. c. 36. f. 12. On beginning to work without giving notice, 11 Geo. 1. c. 30. f. 33.

Penalty on officer falsely admitting notice, 11 Geo. 1. c. 30. f. 38. See Customs, Funds.

SUPPAS. (Princeps,) Naturalized, 4 Ann. 1. c. 1 & 4.

See Bing.

SUTTER. See Conurbation, Witchcraft.

SUTTLE. In sums of money lent upon utter, the principal was called for, as distinguished from the interest. PRY, COLL. tom. p. 161.

Salian scripct, A for or a howar. King John granted to Robert de Hyde, lord in Beren of the honour of Montague, and to be held. For service, or service or service, or service, or service, for service, every man of the people, 2 Geo. 2. c. 17.

Sovereignty, A piece of gold current at twenty-two thallings six-piece in 1 H. 8. when by indenture of the mint, a pound weight of gold of the old standard was to be coined into twenty-four fourrells. In 34 Hen. 8, they coined fourrells at twenty thallings a-piece, and half fourrells at ten thallings. In 4 Edw. 6 Sovereignt of gold at twenty-four fourrells a-piece. In 5 Edw. 6. Sovereignt at thirty thallings. So in 2 Eliz.

SOUTHAMPTON. Its charter confirmed, 3 & 4 TAC. 1. c. 15. For improving the waterworks there, 20 Geo. 2. c. 15. 19. See Harbours.

SOUTH-SEA Annuities. See South-Sea Company.

SOUTH-SEA Bonds, Sealing them made felony, 2 Geo. 2. c. 25. Joel. 3.

SOUTH-SEA Company. Establishment of the South-Sea company and their fund, 9 Ann. 21. 3 Geo. 1. c. 9.

Their flock exempt from taxes, 9 Ann. 21. f. 38. Company to have the places they shall possess, and the prizes taken, 9 Ann. 21. f. 50. 51.

Commanders of ships to obey company's instructions, 9 Ann. 21. f. 52.

No embargo on their ships unless named, 9 Ann. cap. 21. f. 54.

Not to interfere with the East-India company's trade, 9 Ann. 21. f. 58.

Their ships to pass and repass through the fireatts of Madagascar, 9 Ann. 21. f. 58.

Treasurer of the navy, &c. may mortgage South-Sea flock for the publick use, 10 Ann. 19. f. 185.

Their fleet for the fift, 9 Ann. 21. f. 59.

The fame persons not to be directors of this company and of the Bank or India company, 9 Ann. 21. f. 61.

Engagement of the South-Sea funds, 1 Geo. 1. c. 21. 5 Geo. 1. c. 19. 6 Geo. 1. c. 4. Not to purchase crown lands, nor lend money to the crown, 6 Geo. 1. f. 4. Joel. 66.

Annul-
Annunities of 600,000 l. reduced to 500,000 l. 3 Geo. 1. c. 9. f. 15.

Lottery annuities subscribed into the South-Sea stock, 5. Geo. 1. c. 9.

Agreement with the South-Sea company for redeeming the public debts, 6 Geo. 1. c. 4.

Exchequer bills made out for the South-Sea company, 6 Geo. 1. c. 10.

For punishing the frauds of the South-Sea directors, &c., 7 Geo. 1. c. 2. & 28. 8 Geo. 1. c. 23. 9 Geo. 1. c. 23. 10 Geo. 1. c. 14. 13 Geo. 1. c. 22.

2 Geo. 2. c. 8.

For granting their flock into the bank and India company, 7 Geo. 1. c. 5.

Discharge of their payments to the publick, 7 Geo. 1. c. 16. 7 Geo. 1. c. 18. 7 Geo. 1. c. 19. 6 Geo. 1. c. 20. 6 Geo. 1. c. 24. 6 Geo. 1. c. 25.

For redemption of South-Sea annuities out of sinking fund, 4 Geo. 2. c. 5. and see 6 Geo. 2. c. 25. 9 Geo. 2. c. 34. 10 Geo. 2. c. 19. f. 35.

New South-Sea annuities created, 6 Geo. 2. c. 28.

Refrained from issuing bonds without a general court, 6 Geo. 2. c. 28. 7 Geo. 2. c. 29.

Fund for their annuity supplied, 2 Geo. 2. c. 6. f. 60.

The company continued till the annuities shall be redeemed, 24 Geo. 2. c. 2. f. 31.

The company's annuity reduced, 24 Geo. 2. c. 11.

Their servants embrazing their employments made felony, 24 Geo. 2. c. 17.

The first and second subscribed South-Sea annuities to be consolidated, 25 Geo. 2. c. 27. f. 26.

The number of directors reduced to 21, 26 Geo. 2. c. 16.

The King may be governor of the South-Sea company, 1 Geo. 3. c. 6.

Southwark. The inhabitants of the flows there, not to be returned on juries, 11 Hen. 6. c. 1. No market to be held in the high street of Southwark, nor hackney coaches, &c., to ply there, 28 Geo. 2. c. 9. Instead thereof a market to be held in a place called the Triangle. 29 Geo. 2. c. 28. 26 Geo. 2. c. 31.

Southgrove. An old name of the month February, so called by the inhabitants of South Wales.

Sawne. Is a word corrupted from the French sawnier, i. e. ; for the flat, a Hen. 5. cap. 7. in the original French hath Des effrats morts fauves, which by turning the two u into ü, was first made faire, and from faire effrats and casualties as are not to be remembered, run not in demand, that is, are not leviable: It is a word of art used in the Exchequer, where effrats que faune not, are such as the thief by his industry cannot get, and effrats que faune, are such as he may have. 1 Edw. 11. l. 20. f. 147.

Spatarius, (For Spatarius.) A Trow-bearer. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Spatia platinum. Pleas of the fword, or a court martial, for the speedy execution of justice on military delinquents. Ed. 16.

Spatulae. Are numbered amongst the holy garments in the mass. 3 tom. pag. 331. vis. Cum alba, amica, flata, faune, satellati, & miracularii, &c.

Speaker of the Parliament. Is an officer in that high court, who is as it were, the common mouth of the rest: And as that honourable affiniss of two is called, so are two speakers, the one termed the Lord Speaker of the house of Peers, and is most commonly the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper of the Great seal of England. The other (being a member of the house of Commons) is called the Speaker of the house of Commons; both whose duties consist in managing debates, putting questions, and thereby collecting the sense of the houses, passing bills, and laying the orders of each house observed, &c. See Parliament.

Spartialty. (Specialitas.) A bond, bill, or fuch like instrument; a writing or deed under the hand and seal of the party. See 19 Inst. Abr. 487.

Spelum. The cell of a monk, mentioned in Malcolm, lib. v.

Spires. For garbling spires 1 Jac. c. 19. Repealed, 6 Ann. c. 16.

Duty on spires, England, 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 7. made perpetual by 7 Ann. c. 7. and part of bank fund: And the surplus part of the aggregate fund, 1 Geo. 1. c. 12. May be imported in English ships whereof the master and two thirds of the mariners are English, 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 7. f. 3.

Additional duty, 3 & 4 Ann. c. 4. made perpetual by 7 Ann. c. 7. and part of bank fund: And the surplus part of the aggregate fund, 1 Geo. 1. c. 12.

New duties on spires, rafins and snuff, 8 Ann. c. 7. f. 6.

The duties laid by 8 Ann. c. 7. made perpetual by 6 Geo. 1. c. 4. in order to be subscribed in South-Sea Stock. Long term. not charged with the farther new duty of 11. 6 d. by 8 Ann. c. 7. of Ann. c. 6. f. 59.

Dirt in pepper, &c., to be destroyed, 10 Ann. c. 26. f. 45. Licences to import splices shall specify the quantity and place of landing, 6 Geo. c. 1. c. 21. f. 45.

Spices packed in small parcels forfeited, 6 Geo. 1. cap. 21. f. 47.

Duties on spires afoxtained, 8 Geo. 1. c. 15. fet. 17. 18. Licences to import splices shall be delivered up at entering the ship, 6 Geo. 1. c. 18. f. 21. See Customs, Hamb., 12 Ann. c. 18. 3 Will.i.

Spigurnellus. Gallifridius Spigurnellus was by King Henry the Third appointed to be feeder of his wits, and perhaps the first in that office. Therefore in after-times the perfons that enjoyed that office were called spigurnellus, Pat. 5. Hen. 3. c. 7. & Churf. 4 Edw. 1. depo m. 6. Johannes Bern Miles, fuitus domini Franfisi Bauen, & Johanna uxor ejifdem fahnnias concedunt a Regi frjflcmiam fuam fipias capella Regis, & officium Spigurnellorum ad fipias ftefiam atque de Rege tenant in capite, Memora- tand. in Seacrar. Mich. 14 Edw. 1. by Sir John Monypius.

Spinatium. Is that fort of vefsel which we now call a pinnace: It is mentioned by Knighton, anno 1338, Re- diuum Normuni cune galei i2 & cum alta spinacius cam mano bene armata.

Spinoulac. Were those three golden pins which were used about the pall; and from thence spinulacius signified to be adorned with the archiepiscopal pall. Du Perret.

Spinter. It is the addition usually given to all unmarried women, from the vifcount's daughter downward. Yet Sir Edward Coke fays, Generoza is a good addition for a gentlewoman, and that they be named spinster in any original suit, appeal or indictment, they may abate and quam the same. 2 Inst. fol. 668.

Spiritualities of a Bishop. (Spiritualia Episcopii.) Are those profits which he receives as a Bishop, not as a Baron of the Parliament. Staudff. Pl. Car. fol. 132. Such are the duties of his viftitation, his benefit growing in ecclesiastic ordnance, his poffession-money, that is, fullifum charitatis, which upon reasonable excuse he may require of his clergy. Johannes Gregor. de Benefic. cap. 6. num. 9. and the benefit of his juridiction. Joachim Stephanus de Juriff. lib. 4. cap. 14. num. 14. See Duties of the Spiritualities.

Spinulae. Mentioned in the act for abolishing, 15 Car. 2. cap. 9. is a corruption from hopital, and signifies the same thing, or it may be taken from the Teutonic foistal, which denotes an hopital or alms house. Cowell, edit. 1727.
Spoliation, (Spoliation) Is a writ that lies for one incum¬ cumbent against another, in any case where the right of the patronage cometh not in debate; as if a patron be made a bishop, and hath dispensation to keep his rector, or the patron present another to the church, who is infuri¬ ated and indicted. The bishop shall have gainst this incumbent a writ of Spoliation in Court chri¬

Sponsur obulata, A free gift and present to the King was anecdotically called. Cosull. edit. 1727.

Spuntula, Signifies gifts, gratuities, salaries. Ut nec episopus nec alas pro justicia faciendi Sportulis contradi¬ tit (i. e. forbidden) acceptat. From hence Sir Coryan

(Epist. 70, 71. 92.) calls those clergymen Sportulantes

fraters who received such gifts for their maintenance, which afterwards were called Prebenda. Council, edit.

1727.

Spuntalas, The betrothing of a man or woman before marriage. See Clippedares.

Sponde-breath, Adultery, or incontinence, opposed to some fiction, A. D. 1542. The Lady Kather¬ ines was accused to the King of incontinence living, not only before her marriage, but also of Sponde-breath after Spullers of yarn, Are tiers of yarn, to see if it be cap. 7. Spullers are those that work at the spile, i. e. Rota glimmerius testatorum, qua fila retando congradu¬

tur. says Dr. Skinner.

Sporcular, (Sporcular aereum) An ancient god

Squally, (mentioned in fl. 43 Eliz. cap. 10.) Is a note of faultiness in the making of cloth. See Neurp.

Squills, Prohibited and declared publick nuisances, 9

& 10 H. 3. c. 7.

Scabbing of persons is made felony without benefit of clergy, and punished as murder, by fl. 1 1 Jac. 1. c. 8.

See Manlaughter.

Stabilis, It was a custom in Normandy, that where a man in power claimed lands in the possession of an in¬ nexer, he petitioned the Prince that it might be put in his hands till the right was decided; and then he had a writ which was called breve de stabilis. To this a char¬ ter of Henry the first seems to allude, in Prym, lib. Angli.

cap. pag. 1204. viz. Et omne decimus venationis pra¬ dictorum forfarum excepta deinceps illius venationum qui capit infra post stabilis quae Stabilis in forfar de Wendofere. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Stabiliim venationis, The driving deer to a fland, which is also called driving the wondales. Cowell, edit.

1727.

Stable-bird, (Stabiles stabiles, or rather flaus in stabulis)

In four of the four evidences or presumptions whereby a man is considered, to intend the sealing the King's deer in the forest. Monwood, part 2. cap. 9. num. 9. The other three are deg. deum, back-beer, and bloody-hand. This stable-bird, is where a man is found in stabile stabitis, at his landing in the forest with a crofs-bow, or long-bow bent, ready to shoot at any deer, or else landing close by a tree with greyounds in a lead, ready to tip.

Cowell, edit. 1727.

Stadium, Is in Domesday book accounted for a furthong of land, which is eight part of a mile. Id. ib.

Staffe-beding, Is a right to fellow cattle within a forest. 1 1 Jac. 1. cap. 282.

attachment, See Coaches.

Stage-plays, See Ballads.

Stage-maps, See Placate.

Stagiaris, A canon refiduary in a cathedral church.

Stagiaris, the reference to whiche was obliged; Stagiaris, to keep such refidence. As in a flame made in the chapter of Penyll's 2 Id. Jul. anns 1749.

They commonly put this distinction between refidianris and stagiariis; every canon infall'd to the privileges and profits of refidantia, and while he actually kept the right of refidence, he was flagiariis, or stagiaris. The word Stagiaris was likewise used for refidence, as Stagiaris posseam Stagiarum sumps in de¬ minus ecclesiae vicinis incepti, &c. 19. fol. 44.a.

Stagnes, (Stagna) Ponds, pools, or standing waters, mentioned in 5 Eliz. cap. 21.

Stale-beat, A kind of flier's beat. Stat. 27 Eliz. cap.

21.

Stalkers, The going gently step by step to take game.

None shall stalk with bait or beast to any deer, except in his own foreft or park, under the penalty of 10 fl. 19 Hen.

7. c. 11.

Stalkers, A kind of fishing-nets, mentioned 13 Rich.

2. fl. 1. cap. 20. & 17 Rich. 2. cap. 9.

Stallages, (Stallagium, from the Sax. Stoel, i. e. flus¬ tum, flatus,) The liberty or right of pitcher or eating flate in fair market, or the money paid for the same.

Cowell, edit. 1727. See Kennet's Obiffany.

Stallations, It is mentioned by our historians who figured refidentiary, the same officer whom we now call the rector, of the horfe. Sometimes it hath been used for him who hath a stall in a market. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Stamp duties, A tax on proceedings in law, expired,

22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 9.

Grant of a flamp-duty, 5 W. & M. c. 21. Con¬ tinued by 5 Ann. c. 19. and made perpetual and part of the aggregate fund by 1 Geo. 1. c. 12. The second flamp-

Another, 12 Geo. 1. c. 33. 23 Geo. 2. c. 35. Another, 32 Geo. 2. c. 19. Another, 32 Geo. 2. c. 35.

Second, 2 Geo. 3. c. 36. Exemptions from the flamp-duty, and the penalty le¬ fened, 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 12.

Provisions to prevent frauds in the flamp, 1 Ann. fl. 2.

2. c. 22.

Admissions of freemen before 1 Dec. 1705, without flamps, made good, 5 Ann. c. 12. f. 8.

Shibboleth to incur any penalty of the flamp-acts for default of the other party, 5 Ann. c. 19. f. 39.

Warrants of the chief justices in Eyre exempted from stamps, 10 Ann. c. 26. f. 74.

1. The clausus particularly relating to each instrument charged with flamp-duties, reduced to an alphabetical method.

2. Clauses concerning the officers for the management of stamps-duties.

3. General clausus relating to and infringing the payment of stamps-duties.

4. Clauses for the security of those who advanced money on the credit of the stamps-duties.

All of publick nature. See Natural Act.

Ann. in an inferior court that holds plea of forty shillings

but ifuses no writ, or proceeds, or mandate, pays

And

—

Adjudication in Scotland

—

Admission in Letters of latters above 20l. value.

And

—

Exceptions in favour of common soldiers and seamen.

1 21. f. 6. 9 & 10 H. 3. c. 25. f. 44.

Admistratory sentence, attachment and relaxation thereof

And

Warrant
Warrant, mention, or personal decree
And
Label, allegation, deposition, answer, sentence, or final decree
And
Admission into a corporation, or company
Into an inn of courts, or Chancery, or matriculation
And
And into inns of courts
To a fellowship of the college of physicians, or to any office of any court, not being an annual office under the value of ten pounds, per annum
And
And
Admission to a copypath act. See Copyhold.
ADVERTISEMENT IN WEEKLY PAPERS
And
Printer not paying the duty in time, forfeits twelve sum Advertisement in periodical pamphlets, published at a greater interval than a week, pays Affidavits, and copies thereof, pay
And
And
Affidavit of plaintiff's cause of action pays as other affidavits Exceptions in favour of affidavits concerning buying in woolen, and those taken before custom house officers, or justices of the peace, or commissioners for raising the King's duties, 5 H. & M. c. 21, f. 3. 9 & 10 W. 3, c. 25, f. 29. 32 Geo. 2, c. 35, f. 2. And those made for the allowance of duties on foals used in the woollen manufactur, 10 Ann. c. 19, f. 29. 30. 12 Ann. B. 2, c. 9, f. 16, 17.
What payable for affidavits of performance of quarantines, 9 Ann. c. 2. 6, 7.
An licence. See Licence.
Affidavit in the spiritual, or admiralty-court, and copy thereof, pays
An Almanack for any year printed on one side of paper, pays
And
Other almanacks for one year, pay
And
Three for more years pay for three years, 9 Ann. c. 23. f. 23. & 53. and the additional duty for every year,
3 Geo. 2, c. 19. f. 1.
What book to be deemed an almanack, 10 Ann. c. 19. f. 175.
One sheet only needs to be flamped, 9 Ann. c. 23. f. 26.
Provides in favour of almanacks in bibles and common prayer books, and saving the rights of proprietors of almanacks, 9 Ann. c. 25. f. 52. & 53.
What security is to be taken for payment of the duty on paper delivered to the printers of almanacks, and what allowance is to be made for the copies of such almanacks as shall be brought to the commissioners, 9 Ann. c. 23. f. 38.
An Answer in court of equity pays
And Copy thereof
And
Appeal from the court of admiralty, arches, or prerogative court of Crownlands or Yorks, pays
And
And such appeal, and every appeal from the admiralty of Scotland, pays For Writs of Appeal, see Writ.
Appearance on special bail pays
And
And
On common bail, or without bail,
And
Penalty for not entering or filing an appearance within the time limited by the statutes 5 W. & M. c. 21. f. 3.
9 & 10 W. 3, c. 25. f. 33.
Apprentices, masters pay 6d. in the pound for 50l. or under, and one shilling for more, 8 Ann. c. 9. f. 32.
On pain of 50l. 9 Ann. c. 21. f. 66. And double the duty, 18 Geo. 2. c. 23. f. 24.
The time of payment of several duties, 9 Ann. c. 21. f. 65. 12 Ann. B. 2. c. 9. f. 31. 6 Geo. 1. c. 11. f. 52. 7 Geo. 1. B. 1. c. 20. f. 30. 8 Geo. 1. c. 2. f. 38. 11 Geo. 1. c. 8. f. 24. 18 Geo. 2. c. 22. f. 23. 27 Geo. 2. c. 16. f. 5. 28 Geo. 2. c. 19. f. 4.
Things given with apprentices, not being money, how to be valued, 8 Ann. c. 9. f. 45.
The indenture to bear date when executed, and to specify the sum given, on pain of double the sum, 8 Ann. c. 9. f. 35.
And of the apprentice's being disabled from following his trade, 8 Ann. c. 9. f. 39.
And of the indenture's being no evidence, 8 Ann. c. 9. f. 43.
Within what time to be brought to the office and flamped, and the duty—when to be paid, 8 Ann. c. 9. f. 36. 37. 38.
Penalties on non-payment of apprenticeships duties to be discharged on payment of double duties, 20 Geo. 2. c. 45. f. 5.
Encouragement to apprentices paying the duty in the master's default, 18 Geo. 2. c. 22. f. 25. 20 Geo. 2. c. 45. f. 5.
8 H Provisions
Covenants. See Writ.

County palatine and duchy of Lancaster letters patent, or exemplification of the same, pay

And

And

Grants of profits under the seal of the said duchy or county pay

And

Proces from counties palatine pays

And

Coylent-right surrender to a copyhold. See Copyhold.

Bentes for draw-backs. See Certificates.

Declaration and copy pay

And

Decree, or dismissal of a court of equity

And

Decree in the admiralty, or cinque ports. See Admiralty.

Dimissus payfatem. See Writ.

Deed enrolled, pays

Exempted from further duties by 6 & 10 W. 3. c. 25. f. 52.

Indentures, or deeds not otherwise charged, pay

And unless they are made for binding parish children apprentices

And all deeds in Great Britain, not otherwise charged by 12 Ann. except bail-bonds and assignments thereof, and apprentices indentures of poor or charity children, and deeds in Scotland charged with the duty of 21. 21.

And

If ingrafted without being stampled, not to be evidence without payment of the further sum of

And

Degree in the two universities, or inns of court, pays

Exception in favour of bachelors of arts, 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 12. f. 3.

Demurrer in law and copy thereof pay

And

In Equity

Copy thereof

And

Depositions taken in the court of equity by commission pay

And

Depositions in Chancery (except paper drafts by commission before engrossed)

Copies of deposition, and depositions not taken by commission, pay

And

Depositions in the ecclesiastical, admiralty, or cinque port courts, and copies thereof, pay

And

Dissent from the archbishop, or master of the faculties, pays

And

And

Donation. See Presentation.

Drawback. See Certificates.

Ecclesiastical courts, instruments and proceedings. See the Duties on the several instruments.

Entry of actions. See Actions.

Entry of writ of error. See Writ.

Exemplifications of letters patent. See Grants.

Exemption under seal of any court, pays

And

Fines. See Writ.

Grants by the King under the Great seal of the duchy or county palatine of Lancaster, of any honour, dignity, promotion, franchise, or privilege, and exemplifications thereof, pay

And

And

Grant of any sum exceeding 100l. under the Great or Privy seal, not directed to the Great seal

And

Every such grant under the Great seal of Scotland

And grant of office or employment above 50l. per annum

And

And every such grant in Great Britain pays

Grant
Grant under the Great seal, Exchequer, dutchy county palatins, or Privy seal, of lands in fee, or for years, of other grants of profits not particularly charged.

And

Habeas Corpus. See Writ.

Indemnities. See Deeds and Apprentices.

Inquisition pays

And

And

Inquisition, or licence by the presbyters in Scotland

Interrogatories in equity

And

Copy

And

And

Inventory exhibited in ecclesiastical, admiralty, or cinque port courts

And

Copy thereof

And

Judgment signed in any court at Westminster

And

Kalendar. See Almanack.

Laying Bill

Lasts

And

And

Lease. See Deed.

Letters patent, letters of attorney and administration. See Brief, County Palatine, Grant, Administration, Attorney.

Letters of mort

And

And

Libel and copy thereof pays

And

Licence by an ecclesiastical court, or ordinary

And

And

By the Presbytery in Scotland, except to tutors and schoolmasters

Licence of marriage exempt from the duties granted by 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 35. &c. -Penalties for marrying without licence, or banns in England, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 35. f. 15, 2, 3. &c. -Penalties for marrying without licence, or banns in Scotland, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 35. f. 4. -Penalties for marrying without licence, or banns in Ireland, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 35. f. 5. -Penalties for marrying without licence, or banns in Jersey, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 35. f. 6. &c. -Penalties for marrying without licence, or banns in Guernsey, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 35. f. 7. &c. -Penalties for marrying without licence, or banns in St. Thomas, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 35. f. 8. &c. -Penalties for marrying without licence, or banns in the Channel Isles, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 35. f. 9. &c. -Penalties for marrying without licence, or banns in the Leeward Isles, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 35. f. 10. &c. -Penalties for marrying without licence, or banns in the Bismarck Isles, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 35. f. 11. &c. -Penalties for marrying without licence, or banns in the American Isles, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 35. f. 12. &c.

Licence for retailing wine

And where no other licence is taken out

Where a licence for retailing ale, &c. is taken out

Where a licence for retailing spirituous liquors is taken out

For retailing ale, &c.

Penalties on persons taking recognizances of fellers of ale without first causing flamp licences to be made out,

Licences for keeping alehouses on the military roads in Scotland, exempted, 21 Geo. 2. c. 12. f. 19.

Mandate. See Writ.

Marriage licence or certificate. See Licence, Certificate.

Manservant. See Proofs.

Matrimonial

And

Monition, or personal decree in the admiralty, or cinque ports. See Admiralty.

Monition, or citation in the ecclesiastical courts, and copies of them

And

And

News-papers. See Pamphlets.

Nef prize. See Pythia.

Notarial act

And

Novendemus in Scotland

Orders at sea pay the same as those at land, 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 12. f. 6. & 10 W. 3. c. 25. f. 36. &c.

Pamphlets, and new papers of half a sheet or less, pay

Larger than half, not exceeding one sheet, pay

And

Larger than one sheet and not exceeding six fix in octavo, or twelve in quarto, or twenty in folio, pay 2s. for every sheet in one printed copy, 10 Ann. c. 19. f. 101.

Clauses shewing how and under what penalties such papers are to be flampus before they are printed, 10 Ann. c. 16. f. 104, 105.

And printed copies to be brought to the office and entered, 10 Ann. c. 19. f. 111.

And ST A

And under what penalties, 10 Ann. c. 19. s. 112, 113.
Pamphlets unfoled, how to be cancelled, and the like number of sheets stamped duty free to be exchanged for them, 10 Ann. c. 19. s. 114.

What news-papers shall not be deemed pamphlets, &c. 11 Geo. 1. c. 8. s. 13, 14, 15.

Pardon of crime, or forfeiture, reprieve, or relaxation from fine, corporal punishment, or other forfeiture
And all but circuit, or Newgate pardons, and every such relaxation, &c. pay the farther sums of
And the relaxation be of a fine, &c. above 100l.
Parliament (acts of,) proclamations, forms of prayer, &c of state, matters printed by either house of parliament.
School books, books of piety, daily bills of goods exported and imported, and bills of mortality, are excepted, 10 Ann. c. 19. s. 102.

Pofforf
And
And
Patents. See Brief, Grant.
Physicians admissite to the college, pays
And
And
Pleadings in law, and copy thereof
And
And Pleadings in equity
And
And
And all pleadings in law and equity are to be writ as usual, Policy of assurance in England, pays
And
And
And if within the bills of mortality
Clauses for securing the payment of the duties on policies of assurance, 10 Ann. c. 26. s. 21, 72, 73.
By stat. 5 Geo. 3. c. 46. sl. 4, 5. it is enacted, that from and after 5 July 1765, where the properties of more than one person, &c. in a ship or cargo, or both, shall be assured for upwards of 100l. in the same policy, the policy is void, and the premium remains to the insuror; and in like manner, in case of any additional assurance not duly stamped; provided any number may be assured on one policy, with 5 stamps of 5s. each.
Pebbe
And
Copy thereof
Presentation, collation, or donation to a benefice above the yearly value of 10l. in the King's books, pays Probate of wills, except from common seamen or soldiers, pays
And Prorof. See Writ.
Proctor's admittance. See Admission.
Prorogation
And
And Protel
And
And Quo minit. See Writ.
Reconocnance and Writs. See Statute.
Register of Degrees. See Degrees.
Rejoinder and Replication. See Pleadings.
Reliefs enrolled, pays
Common releases, pay
And
And Reprive. See Pardon.
Rules and orders in courts of Westminster, and copies thereof
And
And
Scotch instruments are not charged with stamp during previous to the union, 5 Ann. c. 5. Article 10, 14.
Scotch instruments, what to pay, 10 Ann. c. 19. s. 100.
Scotch deeds, not charged with 2l. 3d. pay Sentence in the Ecclesiastical courts, and copies thereof, pay
And
Sentence in the admiralty or Cinque ports. See Admiralty.
Sweers proceedings pay nothing, 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 12. s. 2, 9, and 10 W. 3. c. 25. s. 45.
Signavit
And

Vol. II. No. 127. 8 1
Surrender of grant, or office, inrolled, pays

Writ of Habeas corpus, pays

Writ of Appeal, except to the delegates, pays

Writ of Covenant for levying a fine, pays

Writ of Error, pays

And every other writ original, except such on which a copias billes

Subpoena, bill of Middropen, lattices, copias, qua minus, destinam posteriorum, and every other writ, process or mandate of courts holding plea of 40s. pays

And

And

And

And

Writs of Covenant, writs of Entry, and writs of Habeas corpus excepted, 32 Geo. 2. c. 25. f. 7.
Salaries of the officers how to be paid out of the duties, 5 W. & M. c. 21. s. 22. 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 25. s. 66. 8 Ann. c. 9. s. 33. 12 Geo. 1. c. 33. s. 5.
3. General clauses relating to and infringing the payment of stamp duties.

Stamps how to be provided and altered from time to time, 5 W. & M. c. 21. s. 7. 8 Ann. c. 9. s. 36. Suits of papers excepted from duties, 5 W. & M. c. 21. s. 14. 12 Geo. 1. c. 23. s. 5.
Probate of wills of feamen and soldiers excepted, 5 W. & M. c. 21. s. 14. And the alteration how to be proclaimed, 5 W. & M. c. 21. s. 7. 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 25. s. 67. 9 Ann. c. 23. s. 33. 10 Ann. c. 19. s. 110. And the proclamation judicially taken notice of by the judges, 10 Ann. c. 19. s. 180.

And in altering the stamp of the party that have vellum, &c., marked with the old stamp, are to be supplied with vellum, &c., stamped with a new stamp, without the payment of penalty, 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 25. s. 65. 9 Ann. c. 23. s. 32. 10 Ann. c. 19. s. 109. 12 Geo. 1. c. 33. s. 8.

Instruments written on paper not duly stamped, shall be of no avail in law till stamped, and the penalties paid, 5 W. & M. c. 21. s. 11. 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 25. s. 59. 9 Ann. c. 23. s. 17. 10 Ann. c. 26. s. 11. 12 Geo. 1. c. 32. s. 8.

Or writing a new instrument, &c., on stamp paper, &c., whereas a former was before written, or tearing off a mark from one writing with an intent to use it on another, 1 Ann. b. 2. c. 32. s. 2.

Or on putting some part of the writing charged with stamp duties, &c., as near the stamps as may be, 1 Ann. b. 2. c. 22. s. 5.

And on officers neglecting to enter or file actions, plaints, bills, appearances, admissions, or other proceedings, 1 Ann. b. 2. c. 22. s. 1. 3 Ann. c. 19. s. 29.

Penalty of $5. for selling un stamped cards or dice, or using cards or dice un stamped, 1 Ann. c. 19. s. 165.

Penalty on defacing the stamp on cards, and new pottle dice, 6 Geo. 1. c. 21. s. 55.

Penalty on not making out all licences duly stamped, 6 Geo. 1. c. 21. s. 56. 29 Geo. 2. c. 2. s. 12.

Penalties in the stamp acts to relate to subsequent duties, 6 Geo. 1. c. 21. s. 56.

The day of fuing out a writ shall be indorsed on the warrant, 6 Geo. 1. c. 21. s. 54.

Penalty on making insuffrance without stamps, 11 Geo. 1. c. 30. s. 44.

Hawkers of unstamped newspapers papers to be sent to the house of correction, 10 Geo. 2. c. 26. s. 5.

Penalties how disposed of, 1 Ann. b. 2. c. 22. s. 6. 9 Ann. c. 23. s. 37. 10 Ann. c. 19. s. 119.

How to be mitigated by justices of peace, 10 Ann. c. 19. s. 120. 173.

Proceeding before such justices not to be supereded by another person, 1 Ann. b. 2. c. 22. s. 6. 9 Ann. c. 23. s. 37. 10 Ann. c. 19. s. 119.

Counterfeiting stamps or procuring paper to be marked with counterfeit feats, &c., where illely, 5 W. & M. c. 21. s. 11. 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 25. s. 59. 8 Ann. c. 9. s. 41. 9 Ann. c. 25. s. 34. 10 Ann. c. 19. s. 115. 12 Geo. 1. c. 26. s. 72. 6 Geo. 1. c. 21. s. 60. 29 Geo. 2. c. 12. s. 21. c. 13. s. 5. 30 Geo. 2. c. 19. s. 27. 32 Geo. 2. c. 35. s. 17.

Stamp duties not to extend to licences by commissioners of excises, 29 Geo. 2. c. 12. s. 25.

4. Clauses for the security of those who advanced money on the credit of the stamp duties.

Such creditors how to be paid, 5 W. & M. c. 21. s. 17. 23. 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 20. s. 13. 13. 8 Ann. c. 9. s. 45. 47. 48. 9 Ann. c. 21. s. 9. 10. 11. 13. 14. 15.

Stamp duties how appropriated, 6 Ann. c. 23. s. 54. 32 Geo. 2. c. 19. s. 31.

Definitive rules to be kept of the payments, 5 W. & M. c. 21. s. 18. 10. 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 44. s. 40. 44. 5 Ann. c. 19. s. 7. 13. 14. 8 Ann. c. 19. s. 7. 34. 21 Ann. c. 29. s. 9. 10. 13. & c. 23. s. 51. 10 Ann. c. 19. s. 108. 12 Geo. 1. c. 33. s. 11. And regulated, 5 W. & M. c. 21. s. 19. 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 30. 44. 5.

And pulled annually, 1 Ann. b. 2. c. 21. s. 8. And the arrears fet in paper on the parties chargeable therewith, 1 Ann. b. 2. c. 22. s. 9.

But not on any person not duly charged, on pain of treble damages, 1 Ann. b. 2. c. 22. s. 11.

The sale of paper and writing, &c., to be set on the foot of the account, 1 Ann. b. 2. c. 22. s. 10.

Clauses concerning the continuance of stamp duties, 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 25. s. 1. 1 Ann. b. 1. c. 13. s. 11. 12. 5 Ann. c. 19. s. 3. 4. 6 Ann. c. 5. s. 4. 6. & c. 17. s. 6.

And declaring them to be redeemable by parliament, 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 25. s. 27. & c. 44. s. 75. 6 Ann. c. 17. s. 6. 9 Ann. c. 21. s. 24.

Standard, (From the Fr. teintaud, &c., figurum, vacillum,) In the general signification, is an enfin in war. And it is used for the standing measure of the King, to the fleeting whereof all the measures in this land or ought to be framed, by the clerks of markets, alms-negers, or other officers, according to Magna charta and divers other Statutes: And it is not without good reason called a standard, because it flanfeth constant and immovable, having all measures coming toward it for their conformity; and even folders in the field have their standard or colours, for their direction in their march, &c., to be repaired. Britton, cap. 30. There is a standard of money, directing what quantity of fine silver and gold, and how much allay, are to be contained in coin of old flatering, &c., and standard of plate, and flour manufactories. Stat. 6 Geo. 1. c. 1.

Standell, is a young flour oak-tree, which may in time make timber; twelve such are to be left flanding in every acre of wood at the felling thereof. Stat. 35 H. 8. c. 17, and 13 Eliz. cap. 25.

Standing arm, Not to be kept in time of peace, without consent of parliament, 1 W. & M. biff. 2. cap. 2.

Stautes, For maintaining Stane's bridge, 13 Geo. 2. cap. 25.

Stannaries, (Stannaria, From the Latin lannum, tin,) Signifies the mines and works where this metal is dug and purifed, as in Cornwall, and other places: Of this read Camul. Brit. pag. 110. The liberties of the stannary-men granted by Edward the First, before they were abridged by the statute 50 E. 3. fee in Plou- den's cafe of mines, fol. 327, and Co. 12 Rep. fol. 9. And further, for the liberties of the stannary-courts, fee 10 Car. forfeiture on account there are four in Devon, and four in Cornwall. Couttey, edit. 1727. Laborers in the stannaries may recover their wages before justices of the peace, 27 Geo. 2. c. 6.

Staple, (Staplum,) Comes from the Fr. Estafte, i. e. forum dominum, a market or staple for wares, which are the principal commodity of France; or rather from the Germ. stapelen, which signifieth to gather, or leape any thing together: In an old French book it is written A Ca-
1.0. The annual amount of the customs of the staple at Calais, 27 H. 6. c. 2.
Protections shall not be allowed in the courts of Calais, 1 H. 7. c. 3.
The officers of the staple prohibited from taking recognition of any duties but of staple, 23 H. 8. c. 6. f. 3.

Star (Starreu). A contradiction from the Hebrew Shebar, which signifies a deed or contract. All the deeds, obligations, and releases of the Jews, were anciently called Stars, written for the most part in Hebrew alone, or else in Hebrew and Latin; one of which yet remains in the treasury of the Exchequer, written in Hebrew without points in King John's reign, the substance whereof is expressed in Latin just under it, like an English condition under a Latin obligation. See the Plea rolls of Feoff, 6 Ed. 1. Rot. 45. 5, 6, &c. where many Stars, as well of grant and release as obligatory, and by way of mortgage, are pleaded and recited at large. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Star and Bent. Penalty on cutting fir and beat on sand-hills, 15 Geo. 2. c. 33. sect. 6.

Star-Chamber. (Camera felatiata, otherwise called Chamber des cajiples.) Was a chamber at Westminster to call the children of all that imported wool from foreign parts, and to inflict penalties on them of sufficient, as well as of an inferior nature, as boatage, forgeries, perjury, and other such misdemeanors as were not sufficiently provided for by the Common law, and for which the inferior judges are not so proper to give redress: And because that place was before set apart to the same service, it was still used accordingly. Touching the orders belonging to this court, see Canis, p. 112, 113. But by the statute 16 Car. 1. c. 10. This court, commonly called the Star-Chamber, and all jurisdiction, power, and authority thereto belonging, are abolished. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Statarius, A canon refidential in a cathedral church. See Statarius.

Statuarium, A grave or tomb adorned with statues, lugubri. 853. Scapulare manum. All the tenants and legal men within the liberties of a manor, met in the court of their Lord, to do their customary suit, and enjoy their usages and rights. Parch. Antig. 450.

Statutum, (Statutum,) is a written law, made with the concurrence of the king and both houses of parliament. 4 Bat. Abr. 923.
1. Of some requisites which are essential to the validity of a statute.

2. Of those things which are incident to a statute; and from what time a statute begins to take effect.

3. How long any act of parliament continues in force; and of the great power of an act of parliament.

1. Of some requisites which are essential to the validity of a statute.

No statute is good, unless it is assented to by the King and both houses of parliament. 4 Inf. 25. Brs. Parl. p. 76. Hob. 111.

If the statute, however, after having been assented to, voluntarily abdicate themselves, the King, Lords temporal and Commons, may make an act of parliament without them. 2 Inf. 585.

This is notoriously the case, where a bill is brought into parliament for attaining an offender of high treason. The Lords spiritual, however, by the canon law, being prelates and holding such a bill; yet, if the act proceeds, it is valid. 2 Inf. 585, 586.

In like manner where the spiritual Lords, being present, refuse to give their assent to, or protest against the passing of any bill, and the act proceeds, it is good without them. 2 Inf. 585, 586.

Two bills being read in parliament, the one intituled, a Confirmation of the Statute of Provisors, and the forfeiture of him that accepteth a benefice against that statute; the other intituled, the Penalty of him that bringeth a Summons, or Sentence of Excommunication, against any person upon the statute of provisors, and of a prelate executing it; both which tended to restrain the authority which was claimed by the pope, of dispensing of ecclesiastical benefits within this realm; the archbishop of Canterbury and York, for the whole clergy of their provinces, made their solemn protestations in open parliament, that they would in no wise assent to any law in restraint of the pope's authority; these protestations were at their request intolled; yet both bills were passed by the King, Lords temporal, and Commons, and are amongst the printed statutes. 2 Inf. 585, 586. 11 R. 2. 2. cap. 2. 11 R. 2. 2. cap. 3.

As the voices in parliament ought to be absolute, either in favour of the bill or in the negative, if the bishops and clergy give their voices with a condition, such conditional voices are as none; and an act is good without their concurrence. 2 Inf. 585.

A bill was brought into parliament in the time of Henry the sixth, that no man should contradict or marry himself to any Queen of England, without the special licence and assent of the King, on pain to lose all his goods and lands. The bishops and clergy alleged thereto, as first forth as the fame sweared not from the law of God and the church; and so as the same import ed no deadly sin. This being held as no affent, it was specially entered, and it was enacted by the King, Lords temporal and commons. Rat. Parl. 6 H. 6. nun. 27. 2 Inf. 587.

And wherever an act is so specially entered in the parliament rolls, to have been enacted by the King, Lords temporal and commons, it is not to be inferred, that the proposed statute was not assented to parliament; But it must be intended that they voluntarily abdicated themselves; or refused to give their assent to, or protest against the passing an act; or gave such voices as were contra legem et confutandum in parliament. 2 Inf. 585, 587.

Many ancient statutes are indeed passed in the form of charters, ordinances, commands or prohibitions from the King, without mentioning either Lords or commons, Vol. II. No. 127.

and many others have only the general words, it is provided, or it is ordained, without saving; by whom: But, as these have constantly been received as statutes, the presumption is, that the law is not to be understood as having been received from a source inferiour to the statute. 1 Inf. 98.

The difference, according to lord Coke, between a statute and an ordinance is, that the latter has not the assent of the King, Lords and commons, but is made by only one or two of those powers. 2 Inf. 25.

Mr. Pynson, in his remarks on this passage, says there is no such difference, that in any different at all, between a statute and an ordinance. To prove this, he produces more than an hundred acts of parliament, in which the words act and ordinance are either used indifferently, or coupled together as synonymous terms. He likewise cites a clause, contained in all writs for electing knights, citizens and burgesses of parliament, which runs thus, "Statutum et confersandum biij, quae de communi concisi regni subjiciant ordinarii, et infers, that the name Ordinance of Parliament took its rife from the word ordinari in this clause. Pynson's Animado. on 4 Inf. 13.

Pynson's Animado. 74.

Where any statute is against common right and reason, or repugnant, or impollible to be performed, the Common law shall control it, and adjudge it to be void. 8 Rep. 118. Bonham's cases. 2 Inf. 527. Finch 74.

A statute contrary to natural equity, as to make a man judge in his own cause, is likewise void; for jura naturae sunt immutabilia. Hob. 87. 8 Rep. 118.

But it is said in another case, where this last case is cited, that an act must be clearly contrary to natural equity; for that the judges will strain hard rather than interpret any act of parliament void ab initio. 11 Rep. 69. Feller's case. 1 Mod. 115.

Before the art of printing was introduced into England, all statutes were, at the end of every session of parliament, transcribed on parchment, and sent to the sheriffs of every county, and with them a writ from the King, commanding him to proclaim them throughout his bailiwick. After he had proclaimed them, which was usually done in his county court, the transcripts were deposited, that any person might read or take copies of them. 2 Inf. 526, 644. 4 Inf. 26.

But an act of parliament was, even in the ancient times when this laudable practice prevailed, equally binding, although it had not been so proclaimed. 4 Inf. 26. 2 Inf. 526.

This is usually framed by the clerk of that house in which the bill first passes; and is seldom read more than in one place.

The custom of fixing titles to statutes did not begin till about the eleventh year of the reign of Henry the seventh. Ld. Raym. 77. Chance v. Adams. Hard. 324.

A preamble generally contains the motives and inducements to the making of a statute; but it is no part thereof. Herefore acts of parliament were made without preamble. 6 Mod. 62. Mills v. Wiltins. 8 Mod. 144.

2. Of those things which are incident to a statute; and from what time a statute begins to take effect.

Wherever any thing is provided for generally by an act of parliament, all remedies and requisites thereto necessary are supplied by the Common law. 1 Inf. 235. 2 Inf. 226.

If any offence is made felony by statute, it is clear, that every such statute does, by necessary consequence, subjeft the offender to the like attainder, forfeiture, &c. and does require the like confiscation, as to those who shall be accounted accessories before or after, and to all other intents and purposes, as is incident to a felony at common law. 4 Hawk. 392. 3 Inf. 474. 49. 50. 8 K.

Milton
Of this decision in the case of the Statute of Uses, as well incidental to a felony by statute, as to one at the Common Law. 1 H. H. P. C. 652.

When any power is given by statute, all incidents, necessary to the making in effect, are also given: for the maxim is quod lex expressa non deduce videatur et id, per quod deuentur ad illud. 12 Rep. 130, 131.

If an act of wafe should now be given against tenant in tail, after possibility of issue, &c. treble damages would have been made, &c. and all for the benefit of the plaintiff. For these were recoverable under a former statute, by which this action was given; and whenever the same action is given, and whenever the same action is given in any new case, all that before appertained to it is also given. Br. Wals. pl. 68.

Every statute begins to have effect, unless a time for its commencement is mentioned, fixed and certain, or by the first of that fection of parliament in which it is made. 1 Roll. Atr. 465. Hunter's case. Br. Relat. pl. 35. Br. Parl. pl. 86. 4 Ingl. 25, 27. H. 309. Sid. 310.

But wherever a particular day, to which it shall extend, is appointed by an aét of parliament, its relation shall be continued to the day, with the same force, &c. &c. as to the day, &c. &c. of the act, so long as it continues, &c. &c. as to the day, &c. &c. of the act, so long as it continues. 318.

Maxim

The maxim is, where the maxim is a thing done, or an act of parliament comes after, and compels him to do it, the statute repeals the covenant: Or if A. covenants to do a thing, which is lawful, and an act of parliament comes, and hinders him from doing it, the covenant is repealed. But if a man covenant not to do a thing, which is lawful, and an act of parliament comes, and makes it lawful to do it, such act of parliament is no repeal of the covenant. Salt. 198. Bren. v. Rich. 11 Hil. W. 9. 3.

It has however been, in a later case, held, that in contriving an act of parliament, made ex pTo. fault, the words ought not to be strained to defeat a covenant, to the benefit whereof a party was well intitled at the time the act was made. Ld. Raym. 1532. 172. 9 Vin. 47. v. Mayor, Exch. 10 Geo. 1.

Statutes are either temporary or perpetual: Temporary statutes continue in force, unless repealed, till the time for which they were made expires: Perpetual ones till they are repealed. Every statute, for the continuance of which no time is limited, is perpetual, although it is not expressly declared to be. 4 Boc. Abr. 637. It has been laid down, that, where a statute is made for seven years, and, after the expiration of that term, it is by another act made perpetual, the latter only is to be considered in force. Lit. Rep. 213. The Cafe of the College of Physicians.

But this case does not seem to be law. The statute against perjury, made in the 5th year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, was only to continue in force till the end of the next parliament. Another parliament began in the thirteenth year of her reign; another in the twentieth and twentieth; and another in the twenty-eighth: But this act was not made perpetual till the twenty-ninth year of the reign of that Prince. The first statute has, however, been always held to be in force, and the offence of perjury is constantly charged, in an indictment, to have been committed against the form of that statute. Duch. 276. 24 Geo. 1

In an indictment for perjury, in an affidavit to hold to bail, the affidavit was laid to be taken by virtue of the 12 Geo. 1. c. 29, which was a temporary law for five years only, and after continued with some alterations by the 3 Geo. 2. c. 27. It was objected for the defendant, that it ought to have been perpetual, and to have been taken by virtue of the latter act, and especially as it is no bare continuance; but the statute is in some respect altered, This objection was over-ruled; and by Lord Hardwicke, Ch. J. When an act is continued, every body is entitled to say that it is not in force; and as there has been no alteration in this respect, it is not, but a continuance made quod lex. 1068. Rev. Morgan.

If, before the expiration of a temporary act of parliament, another act is made to continue it for ever, the former remains in force as much as if it had been at first perpetual. Lat. 221. Ann. Owne 135. 637. 213. 9 Geo. 4.

Divers parliaments have attempted to bar, refrain, suspend, qualify, or make void, the acts of subsequent parliament: But this could never be effected, for a latter parliament hath ever power to abrogate, suspend, qualify, or make void, the acts of a former, in the whole or in part. Perjury, notwithstanding any words of restraint or prohibition in the acts of the former. 4 Ingl. 43.

Some parts of Magna Charta, altho' it expressly declared by the 42 Ed. 3. c. 3. That all statutes contrary thereto shall be void, have been repealed or altered by subsequent statutes; yet their last have been manifestly held to be in force. 30 Geo. 1.

Where an act which has been repealed, is revived, the repealing act becomes of no force. 1 Ingl. 686.

By the repeal of a reviving statute, the first statute is revived. 12 Rep. 4. The Bishopc's case. Ld. 12 Rep. 7.

But if an act has been repealed by three different acts, although two of these repealing acts are repealed, yet the third continues in force, and repeals the original act. 12 Rep. 7. The Bishopc's cafe.

When a statute is repealed, all acts done under it while it was in force, are good: But, if it is declared null, all those are void. 1 Ingl. 686. per. 56. 4 Ingl. 43.

Notwithstanding that they may be put an end to by being in fact repealed, are likewise liable to a repeal by implication.

Every affirmative act is a repeal, by implication, of a precedent affirmative one, so far as it is contrary thereto, although there are no negative words in it. For, every positives requires abrogation. 11 Rep. 61. foletter's cafe. Shop. 520. Ld Raym. 160. 4 Ingl. 43.

But
But where a statute, before perpetual, is continued, by an affirmative statute, for a limited time, this does not amount to a repeal of it at the end of that time.

Repeal and for yet, the latter only shall take effect. 5 Mth. 287. The Inhabitants of St. Clement's v. The Inhabitants of St. Andrew's.

If a proviso is repugnant to the purview or enacting part of a statute, it shall stand, and be, so far as it is, a repeal of the purview because it was left agreed to be by the makers of the law. Fitzg. 195. The Attorney General v. The Governor of Chifia Water-warks.

But repeals by implication are not favoured in law, nor are they allowed, except the inconstancy or repugnancy is plain; for they carry with them a reflection upon the wisdom of the legislature; and such repeals have been ever confined, to the repealing as little of the preceding laws as is possible. 11 Rep. 63. Foster's cafe. 1 Rell. Rep. 38. 10 Mth. 118.

Altho' two acts of parliament are seemingly repugnant, yet, if there be no clause of nnn esse in the latter, they shall, if possible, have such a construction, that the latter may not be a repeal of the former. Dv. 347. Watson's cafe. Bro. Parl. pl. 9. 11 Rep. 63. Hard. 344.

The power of an act of parliament is so preceding great, that the nature and nature can control it. An act of parliament can do no more, but it may do some things which look pretty odd; for it may discharge a person from the allegiance he lives under, and reforce him to a state of nature. 12 Mth. 688. The city of London v. Wood.

An effate may be made to cease by a statute, in the same manner as if the party possiffing it was dead; as is done by the 21 6 H. 8. C. B. which declares, that if, any person accepts a second benefice, the first shall be void in the same manner as if the incumbent had died. 6 Rep. 40. Mid cyt's cafe.

A man can only forfeit such effate as he has, as where tenant in tail with remainder over forfeits, the remainder is saved: But, if the land of tenant in tail is given by marriage to a lady, the remainder is not saved. Godd. 315. Sheffield v. Ratcliffe.

If the King is intituled by an act of parliament to the land of J. S. he takes it discharged of all tenures whatsoever. Bro. Parl. pl. 27.

Where land is subject to a rent-charge, if this land is given to any person by a fluate, the rent is thereby discharged. Bro. Parl. pl. 28.

A fluate cannot make it lawful for A. to commit adultery with the wife of B. for the laws of God forbid this: But it may disolve the marriage with B. and make her the wife of A. 12 Mth. 688. The city of London v. Wood.

An act of parliament cannot alter the course of nature so as to make a woman a man: But it can make her a man to all civil purposes; for it can make her a mayor or a judge of peace. 2 Js. 12. Crew v. Ramfey.

For more learning on this subject, see 4 Bac. Abr. and 1 Rell. Abr. The Statutes.

Statute Merchant, Is a bond of record, acknowledged before the mayor of the flate, in the presence of all or one of the constables; to this end, says the flate, there shall be a seal ordained, which shall be affixed to all obligations made on such recognizances acknowledged in the flate; the seal of the flate is the only seal of the mayor and the council of the flate, and no other. The mayor and the council of the flate have the power and disposal of the mayor, than that appointed by the flate merchant; for though the flate appoints him the custody of it, yet it is in such a manner, that he cannot affix it to any obligation without their consent, it being to remain in the mayor's hands, under the security of their own seals. 2 Rel. Abr. 466. Stat. 25 Ed. 3 c. 6.

To understand a little of the original and constitution of the flate, and the advantage the nation had by this establishment, we must observe, that the place of residence, whither the merchants removed with their flate commodities, was not near enough to make it no more than mart or market; and this was formerly appointed out of the realm, as at Calais, Antwerp, and other ports on the continent, which were nearer to us, and whither the merchants might with safety coast it.

4 Ed. 238.

But besides these flable ports appointed abroad, there were others appointed at home, whither all the flable commodities were carried in order to their exportation, such as London, Weymouth, Hull, &c. this was found to be of great use and convenient. There was nothing more particularly dear to the interest and credit of the nation in general; for at these flable ports were the King's customs easily collected, and were by the officers of the flable, at two several payments, returned into the Exchequer: besides, at these flables, all merchandize goods were carefully viewed and marked by the officers of the flable; and this twice yearly avoided the exportation of decayed goods, or ill wrought manufactures, and consequently fixed a flamp of credit on the merchandize exported, which, upon the view, always answered the expectation of the buyer.

Malins's Lex Merc. 337—338. See the 27 Ed. cap. 8.

The flable merchandize, according to Lord Coke, are only wool, woolfells, leather, lead and tin; others butter, cheese and cloths; but whatever they were, the mayor and confable had not only converse of all contrats and debts relating to them, but they had likewise jurisdiction over the people and all manner of things touching the said flable. Now this power was given them, left the merchants should be diverted and drawn from their buiness and trade, by applying to the Common law, and running through the tedious forms of it, for a determina-tion of their differences, and for the greater encourage-ment of merchants, that they might have all ima-ginable security in their contrats and dealings, and the most expeditious method of recovering their debts, without going out of the bounds of the flable.

4 Ed. 238.

Malins's Lex Merc. 337. 27 Ed. 3. c. 8.

By this it appears, that this security was only designed for the merchants of the flable, and for debts only on the sale of the goods bought by them; yet it was time enough to apply it to their own ends, and the mayor and confable would take recognizances from strangers, surming it was made for the payment of money for mer-chandizes brought to the flable; to prevent this mifchive, the parliament in 23 H. 8. reduced the flable flate to its former channel, and laid a penalty of 40L on the mayor and confables who would extend the benefit of the flate to any but those of the flable; but though the flate of 23 H. 8. cap. 6. deprived them of this benefit; yet it framed a new fort of security, to be used ad libitum by all men, known by the name of a recognizance on 23 H. 8. or a recognizance of officers in the matter of a flate.

Coke. C. 1. 272. Because this act limits and appoints the fame procefs, execution and advantage in every particular, as is set down in the flatable flate.

Co. Lit. 290.

A recognizance therefore in nature of a flatable flate, as the words of the act declare, is the fame with the former, only acknowledged under other names; for as the flature runs, the chief justices of the King's bench and Common pleas, or in their absence, out of term, the mayor of the flate at Weymouth, and the recorder of London jointly together, shall have power to take recogniza-nces for payment of debt in the form set down in the flate; in this, as in the former of acts, particular attache themselves to attend the contract, which the said juftices shall have the keeping of, and the said mayor and recorder another of the same print and fashion; and every obligation made and acknowledged before either of the juftices, or the mayor and recorder, must be sealed with the seal of the confurer, with the King's face on one side, and the date of the recognizance, and the name of the person and the recorder before whom it is taken, who are likewise obliged to subscribe their names; besides this, the clerk of the recognizance, (who is appointed for this purpose by the King) or his deputy, shall make and write all obligations thus acknowledged, and deliver them in the same fashion as the several recognizances, with such of the said juftices, or with the mayor and recorder that takes the recognizance, and the other with the clerk, who is farther obliged, at the request of the confurer, his executors or administrators, to certify such obligations, into Chancery under his seal.

Statutes, or Statuto-Slillons, Are vulgariy taken for the petit sejje, which are yearly kept for the dispo-sing of certain offices, by 5 Eliz. cap. 5. And their flatable sejje, otherwise called petit sejje, are a meet-ing in every hundred of all the freises in England, where by custom they have been used, whereunto the confables and others, both haulholders and veters, repair, for the debating of differences between matters and veters, the rating of veters, and service, by 5 Eliz. cap. 5. And their sejje are made for veters that stand fit to serve, either refuse to serve, or get matters.

Stat. 5 Eliz. c. 5. Cowell, edit. 1777.

Statute Herreratio, is a write for the imprisoning of him that has forfeited a bond called flatable mercant, until the debt be satisfied. Reg. Orig. fol. 146. And of these there is one against in-persons, and another against ecclesiastics. Ibid. & 148.

Statuta Stapulace, is a write that lies to take his body to prison, and feive upon his lands and goods, that hath forfeited a bond called flatable-flate. Reg. Orig. fol. 151.

Statuta de Labaritoriis, is a writ judicial, for the appropriating of such labaritors as refuse to work according to the flate. Reg. Judic. fol. 27.

Statutum, Any flare, or framing flock of cattle, provision, &c. Matt. Wilm. anno 1259. Viginti infiuper & quinque libros pro statero ejusdem fac. When formerly the bishops occupied their own demeine lands, they were obliged to leave at their death such a determined quantity of cattle for a flock to its successors; which flock upon the ground was called staturum, and de flare, de inflaure. Cowell, edit. 1777.

Stering, is the fraudulent taking away of another man's goods, with an intent to find them, again, or with the will of him whose goods they are. The Civil law is where this is to be satisfied by the recom- pense of four-fold; and peace theft, by the recom pense of double; but the law of England adjudges both those offences to death, if the value of the thing stolen be above twelve-pence. Cowell, edit. 1727. See Larceny.

Steel. See Iron.

Stevens (Josephus). Reward of 5000L. for the discover-y of her hidicine for dilolving the flone, 12 Geo. 3. c. 23.

Stepney. The rector of every church and chapel, converted into a parochial church in the parish of Stepney, to be nominated by Brazen-nose College, 12 Ann. 1. c. 1. 1718.

Sterling. (Sterlingum,) Was and is the epithet for silver money current within this realm; and took name from this, that there was a pure coin stamped first in England by the Eafberyings, or Merchants of Eaf-Berry, by the command of King John, and accordingly Roger Heredon parte poter, four. annal. fol. 377 writes it Eafterling. See the flature of Purveyors, cap. 13. By the flate 31 Ed. 1. the penny which is called the Sterling, round, and without clipping, weighs thirty-two grains of wheat, well dried, and twenty pence make an ounce, twelve ounces a pound, and eight pound a gallon, and the penny is called a s. and a half a d. a bushel, which is the eighth part of a quarter, 17 E. 2. cap. 19. The word is not yet out of use; for though we ordinarily say lawful money of England, yet in the Mint, and the like, they say Sterling money. When it was found convenient in the fabrication of monies, to have a certain quality or proportion of base metal to be mixed with the pure gold and silver, the word Sterling or Eafter-ling was then introduced, and has ever since been used to denote the certain proportion or degree of finenics, which ought to be retained in the respective coins. See Lavard's Essay upon Coins, p. 14. See Kenna's Glossary in Stephenson's Law Dictionary.

Steward. (Servuscallus,) Is compounded of the Saxon Stada, i. e. room, place, or field, and Ward, i. e. a ward or keeper; as much as to say, a man appointed in my place of steward, and always signifies a principal officer.
Stolen Goods. To help people to stolen goods for reward, without apprehending the felon, is felony, 4 Geo. 1. c. 11. Prosecutors of such offenders how rewarded, 6 Geo. 1. c. 23. Persons having or receiving lead, iron, copper, brats, bell metal or foil, knowing it to be stolen, may be transported, 20 Geo. 1. c. 30.

Stolen Goods. (Theodore L. Records, fol. 15.) A stolen goods may be transported, 11 H. 7. c. 4.) Ousted to weigh fourteen pounds; yet in some places it is more; and in others it is but twelve and a half, Le charre du Plomo confat ex 30 formellis, & qualimet formella contenit 6 petra excepta dubia libris, & qualimet Petra confat ex 12 libris. Compositio de Panderellis. A stone of wax is but eight pounds, nor is the stone of beef at London any more. See Wrights and Surpfl, and also Stow, as formerly worn by priests, like unto those which we now call hoods: And sometimes it is taken for the archiepiscopal pall. Exod. c. 188. Alfo a vellum which maturest wore. Cowell, edid. 1777.

Straw. Was a garment formerly worn by priests, like unto those which we now call hoods: And sometimes it is taken for the archiepiscopal pall. Exod. c. 188.
to the church of Rechleser—Concedo & confirm pro per con. tom. 3, p. 4. So the same prince granted to all re-cants the freedom of Westminster, that —by water and by land, by wood and by strand, quies finis de tholoein, paffisis, &c. Par. antiquit. p. 114.
Hence the fleet in the west suburbs of London, which lay next the shore or bank of the Thames, is called the Strand.
Cowell, edit. 1727.

Strand, (from the Saxon Strand, a shore or bank of the sea, or any great river,) Is, when any ship is either by tempest, or ill fleerage, run on ground, and Stranger, (derived from the French Etranger, alienney) Signifies generally, a man born out of the place or known; but in the law it hath a special signification, for him that is not privy or party to an act. As a stranger to a judgment, Old Nat. Brul.

fol. 128. is he to whom a judgment doth not belong; and in this sense it is directly contrary to party or pri-cy. Cowell, edit. 1727. See Philip.

Strait. See Way.

Stray. See Citay.

Streamworks, A kind of works in the stannaries, mentioned in 27 H. 8. c. 23.

Street, How to be cleaned and repaired in market-towns, Gow. 1. st. 2. c. 52. f. 29. Strand of London to be demolished, 32 Hen. 8. c. 23. f. 9. sept. 8.

Streptus/Substlistica. The circumstances of noise and crowd, and other turbulent formalities at a proces or trial in a public court of justice. And therefore our wise ancestors did in many cases provide, that right and justice should be done in a more private and quiet manner.
Cowell, edit. 1727. Par. antiqu. p. 344.

Streetward, Was an officer like our surveyor of the highways, or rather a scavenger. It is mentioned in the Monstflec, 2 tom. pag. 187.

Striking, See Church, Palaces.

Strip, (Substitius,) Destruction, mutilation, from the French Substituo, to substitute & supplant facere, i.
to make strip and wafts, or strip and wals. See Scripmentum.

Strong, Is a Saxon word, signifying a scarce or bank of a sea, or any great river. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Strumpet. (Metraxis,) A whore, harlot, or courte-fan: this word was heretofore used for an addition.
Cowell, edit. 1727.

Strongen, May be imported, 10 & 11 Will. 3.
c. 24. The King, where intitled to strungen, 17 Ed. 2.
fl. 1. c. 11.

Style. (Appella.) To call, name, or intitle one; as the style of the King of England, is George the Third, by the grace of God, King of Great Britain, France and Ireland, Defender of the faith, &c. There is also an old and new style, used in the dates of things abroad. Junc.
See Calendar.

Subdeacon, Is an ancient officer in the church: He is mentioned in the apocryphal canons, vis. 43, 43. He was not made by imposition of hands, but by the delivery of an empty platter and cup by the bishop, and of a pitcher, basin, and towel, by the archdeacon. His ofcise was to wait on the deson with the linen on which the body, &c. was consecrated, and to receive and carry away the plate with the offerings, and the cup with the wine and water in it, &c. He is often mentioned in the monkish historians; and therefore it is thought proper to write so much of his name and office. Cowell, edit.
1727.

Subdeco. (Subdit.) Are the members of the commonwealth under the King their head. Wood’s Inst. 28.
Subigalis, Is any beast carrying the yoke. Mot.
Par. 146, 146.

Sublegerous, One who is guilty of incest; from the Saxon Sib, cognates, and later, conubins, or rather from the Saxon sbiger, i. e. incebus.

Submarital, (Submaritale.) Is an officer in the Marshall, who is deputy to the chief marshal of the King’s house, commonly called the knight marshal, and hath the custody of the prisoners there. Cresp. Jurisdi.
fol. 164. He is otherwise called Under-Marshel.

Substitute, Is an officer who is to be set up in Subverture. To cut the fenns of the legs or thighs, to hamstring. It was an old custom in England, Mere-tries & impudicua mulieres subveresc. See Oberram. de
p. 149.

Subvocation, (Subvocatis,) A secret or underhand preparing, infruding, or bringing in a false witness, or corrupting or allowing to do such a false act. Hence Subvation of perjury mentioned in the act of general pardon, 12 Car. 2. cap. 8. is the allowing to perjury. Subvention of witnesses, 32 Hen. 8. c. 9. and 3 Par. Infl. fol. 176.
See how the word is used in the words in the writ, which charge the party summoned to appear at the day and place assigned, subvana centum lib-aram, Cowell, edit. 1727. Subvana not to be granted without security found for the oath, 15 Hen. 3.
Penalty on perors not appearing to give evidence, when served with a subvana, 5 Eliz. cap. 9. Subvana shall not issue out of a court of Equity, till after the bill is filed, except for an injunction, 4 Ann. c. 10. f. 22.

Subsidy, (Subsidium,) Signifies an aid, tax or tribute, given by the crown to the King, for the urgent occasions of the kingdom, to be levied of every subject, according to the rate of his land or goods, after four fillings in the pound for land, and two fillings eight pence for goods. No history mentions that the Saxon Kings had any subsidies after the manner of ours at present; but they had both levies of money and personal services towards the building and repairing of cities, castles, bridges, military expidions, &c. which they called Burgage, Brightage, Herseage, Horsedge, &c. But when the Danes harrassed the land, King Ethelred submitted to pay them for redemption of peace several great sums of money yearly.
The first called Dangell, the second called Legging, which levying of every hyde of land was taxed yearly for twelve pence, lands of the church only excepted, and thereupon it was after called bydagem, and that name remained afterward upon all taxes and subsidies imposed upon lands; for sometimes it was laid upon cattle, and then was termed bydagem. The Normans called the sometimes taxes, tontalage, otherwise auxilia & subsidies. The Conqueror had these taxes, and made a law for the manner of their levying, as appears in Eadmalstitionius emin, pag. 125. sed. Volumus & firmatur, &c. Many years after the conquest they were levied otherwise than now, as every ninth land, every ninth fiddle, and every ninth thousand. E. 3. sect. 20. Of which you may see great variety in Roafili’s Agricilum, tit. Taxes, Tentis, Fifteenths, Subsidies, &c. and 4 Infyl. fol. 26 and 33. Whence we may gather there is no certain rate, but as the parliament shall think fit. Subsidy is in our flates sometimes confounded with cumbous. 11 H. 4.
c. 17. 1727.

A fifteen granted for Magna charta, and the Charta de

The ninth fiece, &c. granted, 14 Ed. 1. b. 1. c. 20.
No aid to be taken but by allent of parliament, 14
Ed. 3. b. 1. c. 20.

A demand of the revenue enfranched in parliament, 14
Ed. 3. b. 1. c. 1. 5 R. 2. b. 2. c. 3.

The penalties of the fatutes of labourers given to the people in aid of their subsidies, 23 Ed. 3. c. 8.

Subsidies which it is said are not traversable, as there are for prohibitions to the spiritual or admiral courts. 1 Pimat. 76.
Breaches of the peace of fume must be fugggued upon record. 2 Ed. 9 & 10 W. 3.

Subsitt, (Sella,) Signifies a following another, but in sdivers fenes. The first is a suit in law, and is divided into real and personal, and is one with all action real and personal. Kitchen, fol. 74. Secondly, Suit of court, or suit-fruit, courts. At the suit of tenants one to the court of their lord. 7 H. 7. exp. 2. Thirdly, Suit-covenant is where your ancestor hath covenanted with mine to give to his court. Fourthly, Suit-covenant, when men combine the interest of any one. 2 Ed. 9. Sixthly, Suit signifies the following one in chaf, as a, fit suit. Westminster. 1 cap. 46. Lastly, It signifies a petition made to the King, or any great person. Cowell, edit.
1727.

No suits in King's courts under 40s. 6 Ed. 1. c. 8.
Suits not to depart from the King's court without remedy, 13 Ed. 1. st. 1. c. 50.

A writ de nativo not to be granted, unless the Chancery be amerced that it is fixed with the consent of the confmant, 10 Ed. 3. st. 2. c. 3. art. 4.

The performance of the premises taken at the suit of another by procex of the King's Bench at Marlbafern, or inferior courts, without the plaintiff's assent, 8 El.
2. c. 4.

Suit of Court, That is to suit the Lord's court, is that service which the feudatory tenant was bound to do his lord's court, and the tenant again his lord. 18 Ed.
1. c. 57. See flat, 4 Ed. 2. c. 28.

Suffragan, (Suffragent,) Is a titular bishop appointed to aid and assist the bishop of the diocese. Co. 2 Inst. fol. 79. calls him a bishop's Fuggerent. Spelman says, Divorcat episcopi qui archiepiscopo suffragari & affidentialiter et suffragenti dictator quae suorum suffragan cause ecclesiasticum judicant. It was enacted, (anno 26 H. 8. c. 14.) that it should be lawful for every diecesan, at his pleasure, to elect two honest and difcreet spiritual persons, within his diocefe, and to prefer them to the King, that he might give one of them such title, name, and dignity of such in the fees in the suit statute pecuniary, as he should think convenient, &c. and that every such person shall be called Bishop Suffragan of the same see, H. Camden in his Britan, tit.
Kent, speaking of the archbishop of Canterbury's Suffragans, says, When the archbishop is busied in weightier affairs, he has no time to attend to matters that pertain to order only, and not to the episcopal jurisdiction. Others call them sufficiency bishops; whose number is limited by the suit statute. Covell, edit. 1727.

Sugar, Importing it, not within the statute against regrat. 15 El. c. 25. f. 21.
A duty upon sugar, expired, 1 Jac. 2. c. 4.
Duty upon sugar, 6 Geo. 2. c. 13.
The drawback on exportation of sugar imported from the English plantations in America, 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 23.
6. 8. Geo. 2. c. 13. f. 9. 26 Geo. 2. c. 32. f. 5.
And on exportation of brown Muscovado sugars refined
6 Geo. 2. c. 13. f. 10.
Sugar may be imported from Spain and Portugal, as usual, 6 Geo. 2. c. 13. f. 13.
Drawback on British refined sugar out of the last subsidy, 21 Geo. 2. c. 4. f. 7.

Suggestion, (Suggests,) Is in law a furnace, or representing of a thing; and by Magna Charta no person shall be put to his law on the suggestion of another, but by lawful witnesses. 9 H. 3. c. 28. Suggestors are grounds to move for prohibitions to suits in the Spiritual courts, &c. where as they meddle with matters that pertain out of their jurisdiction, 2 Lib. Ait. 536. Though mere matters of record ought not to be stayed upon the bare suggestion of the party; there ought to be an affidavit made of the matter suggested to induce the court to consent, a rule for fraying the proceedings upon the record. 2 Lib. 557.
There are suggestions in repose, for a return balance;
sugg to

Sunnight, (From the Sax. Sunib, i. c. Aratmarum,) Signiifies a Flough-land, also tol for carriage on hoarse-back.
Cromb. Jar. fol. 191. For where the charter of the forest, cap. 14, hath their words, For a horse that bears loads every half year a halfpence, the book called Popula Odali, with these words, Pros uso eque partus funngtunm, per dimidium annum oblatum. Chart. E. num. 7. It is otherwise called a Seame; And a Seame in the wether parts is a hoarse-load. Covell, edit. 1727.
Lift forfeiture or in any and, for Jac. 8d., according to the c. fummons or non-fummons. Judgment before the defendant would be made, if any of these persons, in whose name a joint action is commenced, does not appear, or if after appearance make default, the other or others may have judgment ad quoddam solvendum, in other words, a judgment of severance. Harrod. 318. Manly. 2 Bac. Summ. and Swe. p. 4, 16.

If two bring affizes, and one comes not at the day, a fummons ad quodnam finum may issue; and, if the party fummoned does not appear at the return of the fummons, the other party may pray judgment ad quodnam solvendum, Bac. Summ. and Swe. p. 4, 18.

So if eight have joined in affize, and five of them are nonsuit, or will not judge, judgment of severance may be against thefe five. Bro. Summ. and Swe. p. 16.

So in quo jure, by two, if one makes default, fummons may issue, and then the nonfuit of the one shall not be the nonfuit of the other. Fiz. N. B. 182. 1 Inj. 139.

The confedence of this judgment is, that, notwithstanding the feverance of one or more who did not appear or make default, the other plaintiff or plaintiffs in the action may proceed in the fuit. 4 Bac. Abr. 661.

The judicis of nisi prius have no power to give a judgment of severance; for this can only be done by the judicis of that bench where the record is. Bro. Summ. and Swe. p. 10. 2 Rol. Abr. 485.

If the plaintiff is joined in an action, and one of these has not appeared, he must be summoned before judgment of severance can be given against him: For it is a general rule, that a nonfuit is in no cafe remittory before appearance, because a writ may have been purchased in the plaintiff's name without his privy. 1 Inj. 159. Bro. Summ. and Swe. p. 10. 2 Rol. Abr. 485.

But if two joint plaintiffs have both appeared, and afterwards one makes default, the court may, without if- suing any fummons, immediately give judgment of feverance. Bro. Summ. and Swe. p. 10. 10 Rep. 135. Harrod. 317.

No judgment of severance can be given in a wait of error, unless it is prayed before the defendant has pleaded nolo of eratnam, Cro. Jac. 117. Blunt v. Sneldine.

But fuch judgment may be after joinder in the alignment of error. 2 Lii. Pr. Reg. 683.

For more learning on this subject, see 20 Vin. and 4 Bac. Abr. tit. Summons & Severance.

Summons ad Warrantisandum, Is the procwels where- by the vouchee is called. See Cate in Lottit. 5. 104. 663.

Summaries Laboris, Are laws made to restrain exces in apparel, and professedly costly clothes; of which we have heretofore had many in England, but all repealed. Ann. 1 Jac. 3. Inj. 90.

Sunday, (De Dominico), Is the Lord's day set apart for the service of God, to be kept religiously, and not to be profaned. Perons using bull-baiting or bear-baiting, or fuch like sports on a Sunday, shall forfeit 6s. 4d. and 50s. defrauding, bowling, &c. Stat. 1 Car. I. And if any butchers kill or fell meat on a Sunday, they are liable to a penalty of 6 s. 8d. Carriers, drovers, &c. travelling on the Lord's day, incur a forfeit of 20l. Stat. 3 Car. I. c. 1. No person shall do any worldly labo on a Sunday, (except the works of necessity and chari- ty), under a penalty of 10s. and crying and exuding to fell any wares or goods on a Sunday, the goods to be forfeited to the poor, &c. on conviction before a judge of peace, who who may order the penalties and forfeitures to be levied by diftaif; but this is not to extend to dressing meat in families, inns, cook-shops, or victorious houses; nor crying of milk on a Sunday in the morning or evening, 29 Car. 1. c. 7. An indictment for exercising the trade of a butcher must be laid to be contra funam tumturis; for the same reason, a suit for any court of justice be entered and recorded to be done on a Sunday, it makes it void. 2 I. Sa. 364. 3 Shop. Atr. 181. The service of a citation on a Sunday is good, and not restrained by the flat. 29 Car. 2. And by two judges, the delivery of a declaration upon a Sunday may be well thought, it not being a process; but Sale, Ch. J. thought it ill, because the act intended to refrain all sorts of legal proceedings. 1 La. Ragm. 706. A writ of inquiry cannot be executed on a Sunday. 1 Strange 387. See 20 Vin. Atr. cit. Sunday.

Super-injunction. (Super-injunction.) One Injunction upon another; as where A. is admitted and Influated to a benefice upon one title, and B. is admitted, Influated, etc., by the prevenient of another. See Hutchinson's cafe in 4 Rep. 2 Part. fol. 453.

Super-jurate. When a criminal endeavored to execute himself by an Oath, or by the oath of one or two witnesses, and the crime was so notorious, that he was convicted by the oaths of many more witnesses; this was called Super-jurare. Leg. Hn. 1. c. 47. Leg. Albion. c. 16.

Supercontractions paleant. Is a writ judicial, that is, which the person who is implicated in the contract, for the over-burdening of a common with his cattle, in case where he was formerly implicated for it in the county, and the caufe is removed into the King's court at Westminster. Reg. jud. 4.

Super-particulare Regis. Is a writ which lay against the King's widow, for marrying without his licence. F. N. B. fol. 172.

Superfedeas, Is a writ in divers cafes, and signifies in general a command to stay or forbear the doing of that which ought not to be done, or in appearance of law to be done, were it not for that whereon the writ lies. See the table of the Reg. Origs. and just. and F. N. B. fol. 256. For preventing the superfedeas of executions, see the statute 16 & 17 Car. 2. cap. 8. Cowell, edit. 1727.

By a superfedeas the doing of a thing, which might otherwise have been lawfully done, is prevented; or a thing that has been done is, notwithstanding it was done in a due course of law, thereby made void. 4 Bac. Atr. 667.

A superfedeas is either express or implied: An express superfedeas is sometimes by writ, sometimes without a writ. Where there is a by writ, some performance to initiate the writ is directed is thereby commanded to forbear the doing of something therein mentioned; or, if the thing has already been done, to revoke, as far as that can be done, the act. 4 Bac. Atr. 667, 668.

If an exigent is awarded against a man, he may have this writ; and by this writ, some performance to initiate the party's finding securies to appear at the return of the exigent, that, if he has not arrested the party, he do not arrest, but suffer him to go in peace; or that, if he has arrested him, he discharge him out of custody. Fithb. N. B. 236.

Or the party, against whom an exigent has been awarded, may, upon finding securies in the court which has power to grant him a superfedeas, have an absolute writ Vol. II. No. 128.

of superfedeas, to the same effect, directed to the sheriff. Fithb. N. B. 236.

An express superfedeas without writ is, where some person, who has, pursuant to an authority in him vested, made an order for doing a thing, dees by a second order forbid that thing to be done. 4 Bac. Atr. 668.

If a judicial writ is made, and order by surprize, he may, upon finding that he has made an improper order, by a second order superfede it. Str. 6. The inhabitants of Pancras and The inhabitants of Rambald.

But if the thing ordered to be done was before the delivery of the second order, it is doubtful, whether this shall, by virtue of the words which are inferred in it, annul the act; and it may perhaps be proper, that no express superfedeas, unless it be by writ, shall have such a retrospective power. 1 Hawk. 145.

That is an implied superfedeas, by which, also' no writ of superfedeas issues, the doing of a thing that otherwise might lawfully have been done is prevented. 4 Bac. Atr. 668.

A writ of error, a certiorari, and divers other writs have by implication of law, in to mere effects the same effect as a writ of superfedeas, but an implied superfedeas never makes any act void which was done before it existed. 4 Bac. Atr. 668.

No writ of superfedeas lies from any other court to the court of chancery: but this court may supersede its own writs. 4 Bac. Atr. 668.

If one man hath fixed out a supplication from the court of chancery commanding another to find securies of the peace, he, against whom this is granted, may have a superfedeas from the same court commanding the sheriff to forbear to arrest him. Fithb. N. B. 238.

But a writ of superfedeas lies from the court of chancery to any other court.

A capias ad futurum diem having issued from the court of King's bench, a superfedeas was issued from the court of chancery commanding the justices of that court to supersede. This superfedeas was thought to be done to contrary to law: But Finch, because it was out of a higher court, superseded, and no further proceedings were had. Br. Superf. pl. 5.

Where securies of the peace is granted by the court of King's bench, if a superfedeas comes from the court of chancery to the justices of that court, their power is at an end, and the party is, as to them, discharged. Br. Peasc. pl. 17.

Any case of the Westminster may, in term, award a superfedeas to any writ or process, which has issued from such court; or to the proceedings of any other court, which has proceeded in a matter properly notuable in the court from whence the superfedeas issues. 4 Bac. Atr. 668.

For more learning on this subject, see Vin. and 4 Bac. Atr. tit. Superfedeas.

Super statuto de Articulis Cleri, Cap. 6. Is a writ lying against the sheriff or other officer, that disturbs in the King's highways, or in the glebe land, anciently given to redorses. F. N. B. fol. 176.

Super statuto de Anglia, qui sunt tregellis, &c. Is a writ lying against him that uses uisingual either in groes or by retail, in a city or borough town, during the time he is mayor, etc. F. N. B. fol. 172.

Super statuto facta per Benedictum de Marzali de Rop. Is a writ lying against the servand, or merchant, for holding plea in his court of freehold, or for trespas or contrails not made within the King's hou-

Super statuto 1 Ed. 3. cap. 12, 13. Is a writ that lay against the King's tenant holding in chief, who aliened the King's land without his licence. F. N. B. fol. 175.

Super statuto veritatis librarum & laboratorum, Is a writ that lies against him who keeps my ferialis, departed out of my service, against law. F. N. B. fol. 167.

Superstitiosi uere, To churches were void, 23 H. 8. c. 10.

8 M Beneficed
SUR

Benefited clerk not to take salary to sing for any soul, 21 H. 8. c. 13. f. 37.

Colleges, chantries and hospitals, given to the king, 37 H. 8. c. 1 Ed. 6. c. 14.

Commotions not to issue of lands given to superstitious uses, 1 Ed. 6. c. 14. f. 10.

Lands given to superstitious uses vested in the crown for the use of the publick, 1 Geo. 1. f. 2. c. 50.

Superius, is a Latin word, signifying a surveyor or overeer: It was anciently and still is a custom among farmers, especially of the better sort, to make a supervisor of a will, but it is of little purpose; however the intention might be good, that he should superintend the executor, and fee the will performed. Cenwell, edit. 1727.

Suppliant, is a writ signing out of the chancery, for the taking of a protest of peace against any man: It is directed to the justices of peace of the county, and the sheriff, and is granted upon the statute, anns 1 E. 3. c. 16, which ordinates, That certain persons in chancery shall be attainted to take care of the peace. See F. N. B. fol. 80.

This writ was of old called Breve de ministris, as Lambard says in his Eiusarchea, out of the Regift. Orig. fol. 88. See Surety of the peace, and 20 Vin. Abr. 99.

Surety, The King bound to provide remedy in parliament for militia in the church, 23 Ed. 3. f. 6.

The King patron paramount, ibid. f. 4.

Note shall have benefit withiin the realm without the King's licence, 3 R. 2. c. 3. 7 R. 2. c. 12.

The realm of England free, and subject only to god, 16 R. 2. c. 5.

The submission of the clergy to the king, 25 H. 8. c. 19. f. 1.

The bishop of Rome to be abjured, 28 H. 8. c. 10.

The penalties of denying the King's supremacy, 1 Ed. 6. c. 10.

Cenwell, edit. 1727.

The supremacy denied, 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 8. f. 41.

The supremacy restored, 1 El. c. 1. f. 17.

The oath of supremacy appointed to be taken, 1 El. c. 1. f. 19. 5 Ed. c. 1.

Penalty of disability, or on refusal of the oath, 1 El. c. 1. f. 21. 1 W. & M. c. 1. f. 8. c. 9. 13 W. 3. c. 6. 5. 1 Geo. 1. c. 13. f. 8. 14. 17.

Surety of the peace, (Superioratione Foris) is when a commoner puts on more beatts in the forreth than he has a right to. Monmouth, part 2. cap. 14. num. 7. And is taken from the writ De seco di Super- ceremonia Portus, which was for fear when the commons furchargeb. 3 Inst. fol. 293. Sure to be hit, is a writ that lies for the heir of that woman, whose husband has alienated her land in fee, and the brings not the writ of Cou in vita for the recovery of her own land; in this case her heir may have this writ against the tenant after her decease. F. N. B. fol. 193.

Surety, See Ball, and 20 Vin. Abr. 101.

Surety of the Peace, (Securitas Pacis, so called, because the party that was in fear, is thereby secured,) is an acknowledging of a bond to the prince, taken by a commoner or judge of record, for the keeping of the peace. This peace may a justice of the peace command, either as a minifier, when he is commanded thereto by a higher authority; or as a judge, when he doth it of his own power, derived from his commiffion. Of both these, see Lamb. Eere, lib. 2. cap. 2. p. 77. Surety of the peace, may, according to his discretion, bind all those to keep the peace, who, in his presence, shall make any affray, or shall threaten to kill or beat any person, or shall set about together with hot words, and all those who shall go about with unusual weapons or attendance, to the terror of the people; and all such persons, must be known by him to be common barattors; and all who shall be brought before him by a contable, for a breach of the peace in the presence of such contables; and all such persons who, having been before bound to keep the peace shall be convicted of having forfeited their recognizance. Lamb. 77. 78. Brus. Peace, pl. 7. c. 17.

All persons under the King's protection, being of free memory, whether they are natural born subjects or aliens; good subjects or attainted of treason or some other crime, have a right to demand surety of the peace. Lamb. 78. 79. 80. 1 Hawk. 126.

The question whether Jews, pagans, or persons, attainted of praemunire have a right to? Lamb. 80. 1 Hawk. 126.

A wife may demand surety of the peace against her husband, if he threatens to beat her outrageously, or to kill her. Frib. N. B. 80. Lamb. 8. 2 Le. 128. 4 Le. 33.

A woman exhibited articles of the peace, filling herself the wife of the defendant, letting out facts of cruelty, and the tendency of a fault in the ecclesiastical court for the restitution of conjugal rights. When the defendant came to put in bail, he infifted, that the recognizance should not be taken of to carry with it any imposition of the marriage: And the court ordered it to run thus; to keep the peace towards our sovereign Lord the King, and all his liege people, and particularly towards Hannah Penn, who hath exhibited articles of the peace against him the said James Bamberdise, by the name of King's Surety, and the said James, &c. Str. 1231. Rex v. Bambridge.

Articles of the peace may be exhibited by a husband against his wife. Str. 1207. Sim's case, 1 Hawk. 127.

Surety of the peace is usually granted at the request of some one person, for the fear of one man can scarce ever be the fear of another. He cannot be otherwise attainted, and his wife brought to impeach his letters of attorney, and to put himself and his wife, and his lands, and other things, out of his possession. But infants and feme covertcs ought to find surety by their friends, and not to be bound themselves. 1 Hawk. 127.

When ever a person has just cause to fear that another will burn his house: or do him some corporal hurt, as by killing or beating him; or that he will procure others to do him such mischief, he may demand the surety of the peace against such person. Lamb. 82. 1 Hawk. 127.

Surety of the peace may be had against every person whatsoever, being of free memory, whether he be peer or commoner; magistrate or private person; of full age or of age under, as a surety. 1 Hawk. 128.

But of children of covertes ought to find surety by their friends, and not to be bound themselves. 1 Hawk. 127.

It is said that surety of the peace shall not be granted for fear of imprisonment, because damages may be recovered in an action of false imprisonment. Brus. Peace. pl. 32.

But the better opinion is that it may; for every unlawful imprisonment is an affaul and injury. The reason given, that an action will lie, is no more conclusive in this case than in the case of a battery; and yet there is no doubt but suery of the peace may be granted for threatening to beat. Lamb. 83. 1 Hawk. 127.

Surety of the peace may be demanded by a wife, if her husband gives her unreasonable correction. Ms. 974. Sir Thomas Seymour's case. Grot, 215. Pitz. N. B. 80.

Some persons having a dispute in a church, and attending the common prayer out of the defile, an attachment of the peace was, on exhibiting articles in the court of King's Bench, iffued out against them. 1 Ecc. 290. Rex v. Douglas.

But suery of the peace ought not to be granted to a man for fear of danger to his tenant or cattle. Lamb. 83.

It hath however been said, that a man may have the surety of the peace against one who threatens to hurt his wife or child. Dalt. 266.

The surety of the peace ought not to be granted for any peace, unless it is a fear of some future danger; But the offender must in such case be punished by scandal or indictment. Dalt. 266.

The demand of the surety of the peace ought to be soon after the cause of fear; for the sufferings much time to pass, before it is demanded, flown that the party has been
Of granting surety of the peace by the court of Chancery.

2. Of granting surety of the peace by the court of King's Bench.

3. Of granting surety of the peace by a justice of the peace.

4. Of forfeiting a recognition for keeping the peace, and how such recognition may be discharged.

At the Common law it was sufficient, in order to obtain process for surety of the peace from the court of Chancery, if the party who demanded it made oath, that he was in fear of some corporal hurt, and that he did not crave the same out of malice, but for the safety of his body. Finch, N. B. 79, 80.

When the party or parties shall be. After reciting, that divers turbulent and contentious persons, come out of malefic and others in hope of gain by way of composition, do oftentimes, upon their corporal oaths, or otherwise upon false suggestions and surmises, procure process of the peace for good behaviour, out of his majesty's courts of Chancery and King's Bench, and assist divers of his majesty's quiet subjects, whose dwellings and abodes are, for the most part, in countries far distant and remote from the said courts, to their intolerable trouble and vexation, whereas they might, upon good cause shown, receive justice at the hand of the justices of the peace in the counties where they dwell, it is enacted, 'That all process of the peace or good behaviour, to be granted or awarded out of the said courts, or either of them, against any person or persons whatsoever, at the suit of or by the procurement of any person or persons whatsoever, shall be void and of none effect, unless such process shall be granted, or awarded, upon motion first made before the judge or judges of the same courts respectively, sitting in open court; and upon declaration in writing, upon their corporal oaths, to be then exhibited unto them, by the parties which shall desire such process of the causes for which such process shall be, or out of the said courts, respectively, and unless that such motion and declaration be mentioned to be made upon the back of the writ, the said writings there to be entered and remain of record: And if it shall afterwards appear to the said courts, or either of them, in effect, that the causes expressed in such writings or any of them be untrue, that then the judge or judges of the said courts, or either of them respectively, shall and may award such costs and damages unto the parties grieved, for their or any of their wrongful vexations in their behalf, as they shall think fit; and that the party or parties so offending shall or may be committed to prison.'

When articles of the peace are exhibited in the court of Chancery, and oath is made that the surety of the peace is not erased by the party through malice, but for the safety of his life, a writ of suppliant issues, directed to the justices of the peace generally, or to some one justice of the peace, or to the sheriff, commanding them, or him to take security in the sum thereon indorsed, and, if the party refuses to find such security, to commit him to the next gaol, until he does find such security. Finch, N. B. 80.

Where the writ is directed to the sheriff, he may issue a precept to a bailiff to arrest the party, but only himself can take the security or make a return to the writ; for the power given by the writ, it being a judicial one, cannot be abrogated. Bro. Off. pl. 39. Finch, N. B. 81.

If the writ is directed to the justices of the peace generally, only he to whom it is delivered can grant a warrant to compel the party to find sureties. The warrant must also be returnable before him alone; for he alone can take the recognizance and make return to the writ. Bro. Pies, pl. 9. Lamb 127.

The recognition must, in this case, be in such form as is indorsed upon the writ of suppliant. 1 Hawk. 129. Lamb 101.

This is sometimes very large. A writ of suppliant was once indorsed in the sum of 4000l. 2 Will. 202. Chancery's cafe.

If no return is made to the writ of suppliant, the party who filed it out may have a certiorari, directed to the perfon who ought to make a return, commanding him to certify the writ of suppliant, and what has been done thereupon. Fisz, N. B. 81. 1 Hawk. 129. Lamb 100.

When a writ of suppliant has issued from the court of Chancery against any perfon, he may by himself, or some friend, come into the court of Chancery, and find sureties there that he will not do any harm to him who hath filed out the writ; and thereupon he shall have a writ of supersedeas, reciting the writ of suppliant, and the security given, directed to the judges or justices of the peace, or to the sheriff, commanding that they suspend execution of the writ until he has furnished the party with sureties, or if they have arrested him for that cause and no other, that they deliver him. Fisz, N. B. 81, 238.

2. Of granting surety of the peace by the court of King's Bench.

At the Common law the oath of the party was a sufficient ground for the court of King's Bench to grant the surety of the peace; but this case is not within the power of the court. But the party may have his case made in the 21 year of the reign of King James the First, be done, unless articles of the peace are exhibited in this court upon motion in open court. Fisz, N. B. 83, 80.

Mullineux, who had been taken into custody by a suppliant out of the court of Chancery, being brought by a habeas corpus before Jones, a justice of the King's Bench, he was bound by a recognizance to appear in the court of King's Bench the first day of the next term. He appeared at the time; and the court was moved, that the articles exhibited in the Chancery might be read, and that he might enter into a recognizance: But it was refused; and per curiam: The record is not before us, but, if the witnesses who swore to the articles in Chancery, had been here and had sworn articles to the same effect in court, we could have made the surety for the peace. 6 Sim. 61. Mullineux's case.

Where articles of the peace are exhibited in the court of King's Bench, and oath is made, that the party does not crave the security of the peace out of hatred or malice, but merely for the preservation of his life and person from the menacing, or by the apprehension of the peace issues to the sheriff commanding him to take a bond for the appearance of the party at the return of the writ to put in bail to the articles in this court; and, if such bond be not given, to commit the party to the next gaol. Camb. 427. Ruffell's case. Finch, N. B. 79.

Where the party against whom articles of the peace are exhibited, comes into court to put in bail, the articles must be read to him. 6 Mod. 132. The Queen v. Lane.

Articles of the peace have been exhibited against Lord Fans, and processes of the peace having issued upon them, it was instructed, when he came to put in bail, that the facts charged were not a sufficient ground for demanding surety of the peace; or, if sufficient, that the facts were false, and affidavits were offered to disprove them; the reading of these affidavits was opposed, and it was said, that the court had always been at liberty to give such credit to the oath of the party as to order. But it was admitted, that the court may review the articles, and hear any objections arising upon the face of them. Per curiam: This is all we can do, the other was never attempted before; and we must adhere to the course of the court, by taking the articles to be true. Upon reviewing these articles, the court was of opinion that the facts, if flated, were a sufficient ground for granting the surety of the peace.
the peace, and security was given. Str. 1202. Lord Vane's case.
Robert Parneel having exhibited articles of the peace against Sir Thomas Allen, Bart. and three others, an attachment of the peace issued against them. Before ball was put in, Parneel, in a petition to the court, that the faid articles were exhibited to the court, and endeavoured to explain them. Hereupon the counsel for the defendants moved for a rule to review the articles, and some affidavits were read to contradict the facts therein charged. Upon reading this petition, and the affidavits, in which the facts were flatly contradicted by five or six per-cents, a rule was made to shew cause, why the articles should not be reviewed, and that Parneel should attend upon the day for shewing cause. He did attend, and the court was, upon the whole, so satisfied of his having be-guilty of perjury that he was immediately committed for willful and corrupt perjury ; and a rule was made, that all further proceedings upon the articles should fail.
The rule was pronounced in these terms, and not to take the articles off the file, in order to give the defendants an opportunity, which could not otherwise have been done, Sir Thomas Allen, Bart. and others. Hil. 32 Geo. 2.
And it is upon the peace being exhibited, by John Brown, against Hannah Benett, and three others, a rule was, upon reading the affidavits of the defendants, made to shew cause, why these affidavits should not be reviewed.
In these affidavits it was sworn, that the defendants did not know any such person as Brown the petitioner, and, being himself being falsly sworn to, it was suggested, that this was a contrivance of the defendant Bennett's huband to oppress her. No cause being shewn, the articles were ordered to be taken off the file. MS. Rep. Rex v.
Benett and others. Engli. 32 Geo. 2.
A motion being made for a mandamus to three judges of the peace in the county of Brecon, to take security upon articles of the peace exhibited in the court of King's Bench, an affidavit was produced, that the defendant, who lived in that county, was seventy years of age and unable to travel; and Seymour's case, M. 6 Ann was cited.
A mandamus was in this case granted. Str. 353.
Rex v. Lewis.
In a late case a motion of this kind was refused; and by Denfijon J. such a mandamus has of late years been granted but once, in the King and Lewiso; and there the court had great doubt, although the circumstances of that case were very peculiar, as to the granting it. MS. Rex
v. Lewis. Hil. 29 Geo. 2. 1787.
It is a very great grievance, that it should be in the power of one man to compel another, who lives perhaps in the most remote part of England, to appear and put in ball to articles of peace exhibited in the court of King's Bench, when he might have had the security of the peace from his own local body, and it was the opinion of the court of King's Bench many years ago, that this mischief, although not provided against by the enacting clause of that statute, is within the equity of the 21 Jac. 1.
c. 8. 4 Bat. Abp. 691.
Upon a motion, on the behalf of Ruffell, to exhibit articles of the peace against seven or eight persons, who lived at Nottingham; Holt Ch. J. faid, Then we shall give seven or eight persons the trouble to come up to put in ball; why did you not go to the judges of peace in the county? The complainant answered, I could not have had justice there, they are relations. Hereupon the motion was
It has not of late years been the practice, of the court of King's bench, to refuse the receiving of articles of the peace, where the charge contained in them is sufficient for craving the rarity of the peace: But it seems, as if that rule was now come to a revolution of putting a stop to this vexation of the subject; for in a very late case, in which a motion was made by Beragh, to exhibit articles of the peace against Wait, the court, it appearing that Wait lived at the Drivert, and that Beragh had not endeavoured to obtain rarity of the peace in the county, unanimously refused the motion; and my Lord Mansfield,

3. Of granting security of the peace, by a justice of the peace.

A justice of the peace may grant the rarity of the peace, under the authority of the commiission of the peace, by which he is empowered to caufe to come before him all those, who to any one or more of our people, concerning their bodies or the firing of their houses have served, as if for a breach of the peace, for the security of their good behaviour, towards us and our people; and if they shall refuse to find such security, then in our prisons, until they shall find such security, to caufe to be fafely kept. Lam. 36.
Whenever oath is made before a justice of peace by any perfon, that he is actually under fear that another will burn his house, or do or procure to be done to him some corporal hurt, and that he does not crave the rarity of the peace through malice, but for the safety of his life, the justice is bound to grant it. Lam. 83.
F. N. B. 79. 1 Hawk. 127.
Where security of the peace is directed against a peer, the safest way is to apply to the court of chancery or King's bench. 1 Hawk. 127, Lam. 81.
If the person against whom it is demanded, be present,
the justice of the peace may commit him immediately, unless he offers forfeitures; and a forfeit he may be commanded to find forfeitures, and be committed for not doing
But if he be absent, a warrant for committing him cannot be granted till the warrant has kissed commanding him to find forfeitures, and this warrant, which must be under seal, ought to shew the caufe for which it is granted, and at the same time. Lam. 83, 1 Hawk. 128.
The justice of the peace, who grants the last mentioned warrant, may in this case make it special for bringing the party before himself only, for, as he has most knowledge of the matter, he is best qualified to do justice in it. 5 Co. 59. Pylter's case. 1 Hawk. 128.
But if the justice be of general terms to carry the party before any justice of the peace, the officer, who executes it, has his election to carry him before what justice he pleases, and may carry him to gaol, by virtue of the same warrant, if he refuses to find forfeitures for such justice; for the warrant has these words in it, if he shall refuse to find security, &c. Bro. Ff. Eif. Infrmp. pl. 11.
1 Hawk. 128. 5 Co. 59.
If one, however, who apprehends that the rarity of the peace will be demanded against him, finds forfeitures before any justice of the peace of the same county, either before or after a warrant is issued against him, he may have a supersedeas from such justice; and this shall prevent or discharge him from an arrest, under the warrant of any other justice, at the suit of the same party, for whose security he has found such forfeitures. Lam. 95.
1 Hawk. 128.
A supersedeas may also be had, to a warrant granted by a justice of the peace, upon finding forfeitures in the court of chancery or King's bench. F. N. B. 23.
But by the 21 Jac. 1. c. 8. par. 3. After reciting, that divers turbulent and contentious persons, deservedly, fearing to be bound to the peace or good behaviour, by justices of the peace of the counties where they dwell, did often resort to the court of King's bench, to bind to the peace or good behaviour in the court of chancery or King's bench, upon sufficient forfeitures, or upon colourable procution of some perfon or perrons, who will be ready at all times to release them at their own pleasure; whereonupn their majesty's wishes of supersedeas are oftentimes directed to the justices of the peace, which advice of his majesty's officers, requiring them and every of them to forbear to arrest
In support of a rule to try proceedings in a _false facta_, upon a recognizance for keeping the peace, it was said, that the assault, which had been made, was not upon him at whose request the surety of the peace was granted, but upon another person. It was held that this makes no difference; and the rule was discharged. _M.S. Rep. Rex v. Stanley, and his bail, Trin. 27 Ges. 2._

But a recognizance for keeping the peace, is not forfeited, where an officer, having a warrant against one who still will not suffer himself to be arrested, beats or wounds him in the attempt to take him. _Lamb. 128. 1 Hawk. 130._

So it is not forfeited, if a parent in a reasonable manner chaffles his child; a master his servant, being actually in his service at the time; a schoolmaster his scholar; a grocer his servant, a helthind his wife. _Sid. 176, 177. Lamb. 127, 129. Hill. 149, 150. 1 Hawk. 130._

F. N. B. 80.

And, without enumerating all the actual assaults, which a man may make upon the person of another, and not forfeit his recognizance for keeping the peace, it may be laid down as a principle, that such a recognizance is not forfeited by any assault which could have been justified in an action, or upon an indictment, for the assault. 4 _Brow. Atr._ 694.

It has been held that a recognizance for the keeping the peace may be forfeited by any treason against the person of another, or by any unlawful assembly in _terror populi_. _Lamb. 115. 1 Hawk. 130._

Words which tend directly to a breach of the peace, as challenging a man to fight, or threatening to beat one who is present, amount to a forfeiture of such recognizance. _Lamb. 115. 1 Hawk. 130._

_Cro. Eliz._ 80.

A recognizance is likewise forfeited by threatening to beat a person who is absent, if the party, who has so threatened, does afterward in wait to beat him. _Lamb. 115._

But it is not forfeited by words of heat or cholera, as the calling a man knave, liar, or rascal: For, although such words may provoke a faulty man to break the peace, they do not directly challenge him to do it; nor does it appear, that the speaker intended to carry his refection any farther. _Cro. Cas._ 198. _Reed v. Heyward, and his bail._ 1 Hawk. 130.

_Nay, it has been held, that a recognizance for being of good behaviour shall not be forfeited for such words; and a _fortisior_ one for keeping the peace shall not._ _Cro. Eliz._ 86. King's _cafe._ _Me. 249._ 1 Hawk. 130.

Such recognizance shall not be forfeited by a trespass on the lands or goods of another, unless it is with force. _Cro. Jot._ 508. 1 Hawk. 130.

A man is not forfeit a recognizance for keeping the peace, who does a hurt to another in playing at cudgels, or such like sport, by consent; for these sorts, which tend to promote activity and courage, are lawful. _Dalt._ 234. 1 Hawk. 131.

But he who wounds another in fighting with naked swords, forfeits his recognizance, because no consent, nor even the command of the king, can make so dangerous a diversion lawful. _Bro. Cor._ 329. 1 Hawk. 131.

If a soldier hurts another soldier, by discharging his gun in a manner which will be dangerous, it is no forfeiture of a recognizance for keeping the peace; for although he would be liable in an action for the damage occasioned by his negligence, this, it not being a wilful breach of the peace, is not within the purport of the recognizance. 1 _Hawk._ 131. _Hib. 132._ 2 _Rial._ 549.

A court of quarter-seessions cannot in any case proceed against the parties, for a forfeiture of a recognizance for keeping the peace; but the recognizance must be sent into some of the King's courts in _Wiltshire Hall._ 1 Hawk. 130.

All proceedings upon a forfeited recognizance must be by _false facies_, and not by indictment; because where a _false facies_ is brought, the parties have an opportunity of pleading any matter in their discharge. 1 _Rial._ 900. _Perrot's cafe._ _Cro. Jot._ 598. 1 Hawk. 130.
Privileges granted to surgeons, 32 H. 8. c. 42.

The surgeons company in London separated from the barbers, 18 Geo. 2. c. 15.

Surgeons of the army to be examined by examiners appointed by the surgeons company, 18 Geo. 2. cap. 15. vetl. q.

Sutcliiff. Upon his oath. Leg. Will. I. c. 16.

Surmifce. Is something offered to a court to move it, to grant a probator, auditia querea, or other writ grantable thereon, and which shall be allowed to be a good returnable or not. See 2 & 3. Eliz. 529, 527. See Sur- g gestion, and 20 Vin. Atr. r. 111.

Sutuulage. (Fr. Surplus, Lat. Surplusagium, Carolinum,) Is a superfluity or addition more than needful, which sometimes is the cause that a writ abates; but in pleading many times it is absolutely void, and the writ voided the clause or record, and the claim well plaid. Bro. Plap. 637.

And on a writ of inquiry of damages in wafhe, in which the sheriff was commanded to go to the place, and there to inquire of the wafhe done and damages, who returned the inquisition, without mentioning that he went to the place wafhe; this was held to be forufplage in the writ that would not hurt, because by the plea in the action the wafhe was acknowledged, so that he need not go to the place wafhe to view it. Poph. 24. A dispositio was returnable Tre Tri. Nifi prius venerator Mathaus Huls, Mil. Capital. Baro, &c. on such a day, quatenus mox curia; whereas the mouth of faw was not the move to the move of judgment as a discontinuance; but adjudged that the word ejusdem shall be rejected as forufplage and void, and then the word juri shall be intended fame next, as a covenant to pay money at Michaelmas, shall be intended Mis- cibution next ensuing. Hard. 1390. In a de- claration for debt, upon demure, it was objected a- gainst the declaration, for that the plaintiff averred the defendant had not paid prad. xqungina libras, &c. When the word forfeatio was not before mentioned: And it was resolved that it should be forufplage, then it is that the defendant had not paid prad. librris, which must be the grounds for which the plaintiff had declared. 1 Laws. 445. Cn. Eliz. 647. 3 Nelf. Atr. 262. A plaintiff being right named through all the proceedings, but in the last place, where it was said that a copia ulugatum was prosecuted against praditi. Johannes Fowler, and his true name was George: It was ruled, That the word Johannes shall hold as the last name at that place; and the defendant was ordered to be that a copia ulugatum was prosecuted against praditi. Fowler. 2 Laut. 919. 1 Lec. 420. If a jury find the subsitude of the issue before them to be tried, other superfluous matter is but forufplage. 6 Rep. 46. See 20 Vin. Atr. 114 419.

Surrender. Is a second rebruter, or a rebtung more than once. See Rehuter.

Surrender, Is a second defence of the plaintiff's declaration in a caufe, and answers the rejoinder of the defendant. Woff. Synb. part. 2. As a rejoinder is the defendant's answer to the replication of the plaintiff; so a furrender is the plaintiff's answer to the defendant's rejoinder. Wood's Inf. 586.

Surrenderer, (Surfum-redlatio,) Is an inframment in writing, testifying with apt words, that the particular ten- unt of lands or tenements for life, or years, doth suffi- ciently confer and agree. That he which has the next or immediate remainder or reversion thereof, shall also have the present estate of the fame in poftession, and that he yield; and gives up the name unto him; for every fur- renderer ought forthwith to give poftession of the things forrendered. Woff. Synb. part. 1. lib. 2. fet. 502.

Surrender, (Chergerus,) May be deduced from the French Chergerus, signifying that he dealeth in the me- chanical part of physick, and the outer wards perform- ed with the hand; and therefore is compounded of two Greek words, viz. μετέχειν, manas, epy, σχολον. : And for this reason are they not allowed to administer inward medicine. Cowell, edit. 1727.

None to practice physick or surgery in London, unless admitted by the bishop, or by the dean of St. Paul's. 3 H. 8. c. 42.

The surgeons incorporated with the barbers, 32 H. 8. c. 42. f. 3.

Surgeons shall have their names over their doors, 32 H. 8. c. 42. f. 3.
is also a customary surrender of the copyhold land, for which see Coke, loc. Litt. 74. And a surrender may be of letters patent to the King, to the end he may grant the estate to whom he pleases. Cowell, edit. 1727. See 20 Vin. Abr. 119—145.

Sutragate. (Sutragatus,) One that is subsumed or appointed to a bishop, or another, not, munificence of a bishop, or of a bishop's chancellor. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Suttrifie. (Superfetia,) mentioned in Stat. 32 H. 8. cap. 48.) Seems to be an especial name used in the caille of Duer, for such penalties and forfeitures as are laid upon those who pay not their duties or rent for Copyhold at their days of service. Bradshaw, By the Prop. it is a general

Sutteyp, (Superfus,) Is a French word compound ed of jur, i. super, and vort, verrae, verrae, Verrae. It signifies with one, that has the over-feeding or care of some great person. As a superius-general of the King's manors, Crump. Jus. fol. 39. And in this sense it is taken in Stat. 33 H. 8. cap. 39, where there is a court of sufteries erected: And the sufteries of the wards and Tiveries. But he is taken away with the court of wards and Tiveries, by the statute made anno 12 Car. 2. cap. 24. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Sutey of the King's Exchange, (mentioned in Stat. 9 H. 5. fl. 2. cap. 4.) Was an officer whose name seems in these days to be changed into some other, for there is none such now, or else the office is now difused. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Suspiration, (Superfis,) Is a随时 compound ed of jur, i. super, and vort, verrae, verrae, Verrae. It signifies the longer liver of two junior tenants. Id. ib. See Jointtenants, and 20 Vin. Abr. 140—150. ib. Suspension, (Superfis,) Is a temporal fop of a man's right; as when a legiency, rent, &c. by reason of the unity of poftime thereof, and of the land out of which they lay, are not off for a time, &c. dorminum, but may be revived or awaked, and so differs from ex- tinguishment, which dies for ever. Br. tit. Extinguishment and Suspension, fol. 314, and Co. on Litt, ib. 3 cap. 10. fol. 559. Suspension is also used sometimes by us, as it is in the Canon law pro miniari excommunicationis, fl. 24 H. 8. cap. 12. Suspension ab officio. And when he niter for a time is declared unfit to execute his office, Suspension a beneficio is when a minifter for a time is de- prived of the profits of his benefice. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Suspicion, A person may be taken up on suspicion, where a felony is done, &c. but those who are im- proximately related to the person guilty or robbers, are bail- able by statute. 2 Hawk. P. C. 101. And the party being a private person, that takes up one on suspicion of felony, must do it of his own suspicion, or not upon that of another; and he must have reasonable caules of it, &c. 2 Hal's Hist. P. C. 78. See 20 Vin. Abr. 152—153.

Suspitcul, (Lat. Suspicula, i. ducere suspicium,) Seems to be a spring of water passing under the ground toward a conduit or cistern. Stat. 33 H. 8. cap. 10. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Sutters, Its fumare, where to be held, 19 Hen. 7. c. 24.

Sutboure, The South door of a church. It is mentioned in Gerv. Durb. de generatione Cantuar. Eccl. and it was the usual place where canonical purga- tion was performed; that is, where the fact could not be proved by sufficient evidence, the party accused came to the South door of the church, and there in the presence of the people, made oath that he was innocent. This was called judicialis Dei, and so was the vulgar purga- tion, which was by fire or water. It is for this reason that porches are built at the South door of the church. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Sutimes, (Lat. Suspirare, i. ducere suspicium,) Is a noble bird of game; and a per- son may prefer to have game of swans within his ma- nor, as well as a warren or park. 17 Rep. 17, 18.

Nall shall keep a game of swans unlesse he have lands of the yearly value of five marks, 22 Ed. 4. c. 6. Per- sons taking their eggs out of the nest, &c. how pun- nished. 2 Hen. 7. cap. 17, 1. 11. 1. c. 77. 3. Cap. 2. See Cont.
Forfeit.

17. The 30 Geo. 3. c. 21. and the 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 11. shall be repealed.

18. A penalty of concealing sweats, &c. 8 W. 3. c. 30. § 16.

20. What to be deemed sweats, and who the makers thereof for sale, 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 21. § 5.

21. Sweats, to be removed without a permit, 6 Geo. 3. c. 21. § 22.

22. A less duty laid on sweets, and extended to made wines, 10 Geo. 2. c. 17.

23. Wines of British grapes exempted, 10 Geo. 2. c. 17. § 1.

24. Made wines not to be retailed without licence, 10 Geo. 2. c. 17. § 10.

25. Retailers of sweets or made wines to take out licences, 31 Geo. 2. c. 31. § 7.

26. Wine or Hoggs, Shall not go untrained in woods, 35 Geo. 2. 8. c. 17. § 17.

27. For keeping wine in London, &c. 2 W. & M. c. 1. § 8. 2d. 38. &c. 9 W. 3. c. 37. § 4. See Cattle.

28. Drinking, or Selling of Land, Selling, Selling, &c. Selling terra, in Saxon Selling, from sail of bath, aram; &c. to this day in the western parts, a plough is called a Sell, and a plough-hall, a Sell padder. It is the same with Carnarvon terra, that is, as much as one plough can till in a year: A hide of land, though others say it is an uncertain quantity. Lovell, ed. 1727.

29. Swain's-hills, Silver swound-hills may be exported, 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 28.

30. Swain's-hills, (Fratres jurati,) Persons by whom real and personal coventants to share each the other's fortune. In any notable expedition to invade and conquer an enemy's country, it was the custom of the more eminent soldiers of fortune, to engage themselves by reciprocal oaths to share the reward of their service. So in the expedition of Duke William into England, Ethel and Ethel were swain brothers, and co-partners in the estate which the conqueror allotted to them. So were Robert de Olilly and Roger de Eorly. Paroch. Amity, 57. No doubt this practice gave occasion to our proverb of swain brothers, and brethren in iniquity, because of the dividing plunder and spoil. Lovell, ed. 1727.

31. Copper-cace. Wood under twenty years growth; Copper-wood. See the statue 45 E. 3. cap. 3. It is otherwise called in Law-Lrench Sulkeins, 2 Ifyl. fol. 642. See Eithers.

- E. it remembered, That on the — to wit. £1 in the — of his majesty's reign, A. B. was convicted before me, one of his majesty's justices of the peace for the county, riding, division, or liberty aforesaid; or before me mayor, justice bailiff, or other chief magistrate of the city or town of —— within the county of —— (as the case shall be) offavering one or more profane oath or oaths, or of cursing one or more profane curse or curses, as the case shall be.

Given under my hand and seal, the day and year aforesaid.

Which form and conviction shall not be removed by certiorari into the king's bench, but shall be final; and the said justices, mayor, or other chief magistrate, before whom such conviction is made, shall cause the same to be writ upon parchemin, and returned to the next general or quarter sessions of the peace for the county wherein such conviction was made, to be filed by the clerk of the peace, and be kept among the records of the said county.

Sect. 9. All justices of peace, and every mayor or other chief magistrate of any town corporate, shall put this act in execution within their several jurisdictions, although such chief magistrate be rated, and pay to the said effect of the poor of any parish or place where any offence is committed.

Sect. 10. All penalties inflicted by this act, for profane cursing and swearing, shall be dipt of for the benefit of the poor of the parish wherein such offence was committed; and all charges of information and conviction shall be paid by the party offending, if able, over and above the penalties, which charges shall be ascertained by the justice of peace, mayor or chief magistrate, before whom such conviction is made; and in case such party be not able, or not immediately pay the said charges, or give security for the same, it shall be lawful for the justice, or, to commit such offender to the house of correction, to be kept to hard labour for six days, over and above such time for which such offender may be committed in default of payment of the penalties; and in such case no charges of information and conviction shall be paid by any person.
TAB

Symbolum, (Gr.) is the apostles creed; in Latin Collatius, because the catholic faith was by them in unum collata: It is often called by this name in our historians.owell. edit. 1777.

Spurius. To cut his words short, to pronounce them fo as not to be underfood; the word is ufed in several of our ecclefiaical councils and synods. Iis quod ex fallitum minus verba non præsidentur vel scriptura. Concilium Sarr. cap. 26. Synag. Nigra. cap. 10.

Spontius, A patron or advocate: It is mentioned in Matt. Paris. anno 1245. Synodum omnium ecclesiasticorum urbs fabularum, &c.

Spend, (Synodus.) A meeting or assembly of ecclefiaical persons concerning religion, of which there are four kinds: 1. General, where bishops, &c. meet of all nations. 2. National, where those of one nation only come together. 3. Provincial, where they of one only province meet. 4. Diocesan, where but of one diocfe meet. Convocation is all one with a synod, only the one is a Greek and the other a Latin word. Our Saxon Kings usually called a Synod, or mixed council, confenting both of ecclefiaical and state Nobility, three times a year, which was not properly called a Parliament till Henry the third's time. Connell, edit. 1727.

Synodal, (Synodale.) Is a tribute in money, paid to the bishop, or archdeacon, by the inferior clergy at Easter visitation; and it is called Synodale quasi in simplicem facultatem deutor. See Hierarchia de Preparatio ur Synodalis. p. 66. & 98. These are called otherwise Synods in the statute of 32 Hen. 8. c. 16. Yet in the statute of 25 H. 8. c. 19. Synodale Provincial seem to signify the canons or constitutions of a provincial synod. And sometimes Synodale is ufed for the synod itself. See Dug. Harewood's, fol. 126. and Spelman de Concil. 1 Tom. p. 529.

Synodals, tellers, The urban and rural deans were at first called so, from informing and attesting the disorders of clergy and people in the episcopal fund. But when they funk in their authority, the synodal writsles were a stock of unqualified grand jury, to inform of or present offenders, a priest and two or three laymen for every parish. At laft two principal persons for each diocefe were annually chosen, till by degrees this office of inquest and information was devolved upon the churchwardens. See Kever's Dist. Antiq. p. 649. Synodale juramentum, was the solemn oath taken by the said Typerists, as is now by churchwardens to make their presents. Connell, edit. 1727.

T.

EVER peston convid of any other felony (save murder) and admitted to the benefit of his clergy, shall be marked with a T, upon the brawn of his thumb. Stat. 4 H. 7. c. 13.

Tabard. Tabard, The bachelor scholar on the foundation of Queen's college Oxford, are called Tabards, or Tabarders, from a gown wore by them, called a tabar, tabbor, or tabbard; for Verigenus tells us, that tabard anciently signified a short gown that reached not farther than the middle of the leg, and it remains for the name of some in Germany and other countries, which, with the Tabard and Saxon tabor, signify all a kind of garment, &c. Connell, edit. 1727.

Tabardinn, A long garment like a gown; sometimes it signified a herald's coat, but generally a gown wore by ecclesiastics. Mut. Par. 164.

Tabellion, Tabellion, a petty public officer, or scrivener allowed by authority to ingres and register private contracts and obligations. Convol. edit. 1727.

Tableau, (Reddittus ad memoriam.) Rents paid to bishops or religious prelats, referred or appropriated to their table or house-keeping. Such rents paid in specie, Vol. II. No. 79.

Tableturn, or provision of meat and drink, were sometime called bord-land rents. Connell, edit. 1727.

Tabling of fines, Is making a table for every county where his majesty's writ runs, containing the contents of every fine paid in any one term; as the name of the county, towns and places, all the lands or tenements leis; the name of the dammandant and defcorant, and of every manor named in the fine. This is to be done properly by the chipographer of fines of the Common pleas, who every day of the next term, after the ingress of such fines, must take the said tables in some open place of the said court, during its fitting. And the said chipographer is to deliver to the sheriff of every county, his under-sheriff or deputy, fair written in parchement, a perfect content of the table so made for that thire, in the term next before the afsises or that quarter, and to be set up every day of the next afsises, in some open place of the court, where the justices of afsises shall then sit, and to continue there during their fitting: And if either the chipographer or the afsisse fail herein, he shall suffer privilege. And the chipographer's fee is thus; if any land each totaling is four pence, 23 Edw. 3. c. 5. and 5th. Synod. part 2. tit. Fines, fol. 130.

Tabula. See Cudomariaus.

Tail, (Tallum, from the French word Taille, i. e. tertia, from taillor, to cut or limit.) Signifies two several kinds being to the ground, and a man's cloth of each. Vol. 2. p. 251. Willson's cafe. First, it is ufed for the fine, which is opposite to fee-simple, by reason it is so minc'd or parted as it was, that it is not in the owner's free power to dispose of it, but is by the first giver cut or divided from all others, and tied to the issue of the donee. C. lib. 4. in Prow. And this limitation of tail in this or any other kind is called a tail special, Tail general, is that whereby lands or tenements are limited to a man, and to the heirs of his body begetter; and so it is called, fo many hundreds over the tenant holding by this title shall have, one after another in lawful marriages, till the title by them all have a possibility to inherit one after another. Tail per stirpes is when lands or tenements are limited to a man and his wife, and the heirs of their two bodies begetter; and hath this term of special, because if a man bury his wife before issue, and take another, the issue by his second wife cannot inherit the land, &c. Also if any land be given to a man and his wife, and to their son Thomas for ever, this is Tail special. Connell, edit. 1727. See Cudate, and 20 Fin. Abr. tit. Tally.

Tail after possibility of issue extinct, Iere was land given to a man and his wife, and to the heirs of their two bodies respectively; and a man not being without issue between them begetter; he shall hold the land for term of his own life, as tenant in Tail after possibility of issue extinct, and notwithstanding he do waste, he shall never be impeached of it. And if he alien, he is the reverent, or to have a writ of entry in conveyance, but he may enter, and his title is lawful; by R. Thorpe Chiri Justice. 28 E. 3. 96. and 45 E. 3. 25.

Talit, (Attititua, Fr. Teintis, i. intestus.) And signifies subluminously, either a conviction, or adjecively a person convid of felony or treason, &c. See Attaint.

Talies, (Lat.) Is ufed in our law for a family of men impannelled upon a jury or inquest, and not appearing, or at their appearance challenged by either party as not indifferent; i in which case the judge, upon motion, grants a supply to be made by the sheriff of one or more such there present; and hereupon the very act of supplying is called a Talies, or inquest. And it is that he had had one Talies, either upon default or challenge, may not have another to contain so many as the former: For the first Talies must be under the principal panel, except in a case of appeal, and fo every Talies less than other, until the same be made manifest in court, and such as are without exception. Yet this general rule is not without exceptions, as appears by Stannard, Pl. Cor, lib. 3. c. 5. These commonly called Talies may in some forts, and indeed are called Miloires, viz. When the whole jury is challenged, as appears by Br. tit. 8. 9 O. Tales,
T A N

Tales, &c. TALE. Tales, fol. 105. See Cc. lib. 10. fol. 99. Bruegge’s cafe. See JUR.Y.

Tales, Is also the name of a book in the King’s bench office, of such jurisdiction as were of the Tales. Co. lib. 4. fol. 93.

Tallage, (Tallagium,) May be derived of the French Taille, or TALL. and it properly signifies a piece cut out of the whole, but metaphorically is used for a share of a man’s substance paid by way of tribute, toll, or tax. Stat. de taliaggio nun concedendo temp. E. 1. and Ston’s Annuals, pag. 445. Thence our tallagiers in Chaucer for tax or toll gatherers. See SUTTHOP. Tallage says Cole, is a general word for all taxes. 3 Inst. fol. 323. But tenancies in ancient demesne are quit of these taxes and tallages granted by parliament, except the King do tax ancient demesne, as he may when he thinks good, for some great cause. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Tallagere, or Tallyer, are usually paid, to give up accounts in the Exchequer, where the method of accounting is by tallies. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Talley, (Talha, Fr. Taille, Ital. Taggiare, i.e. finders,) A thick cut in two parts; on each of which was marked what was due between debtor and creditor; and this was the ancient way of keeping accounts. There are two sorts of tallies mentioned in our flattaxes, to have been long used in the Exchequer; the one is termed tallies of debt. Stat. 1 Rich. 2. cap. 5. which are a kind of acquittance for debt paid to the King. As for example, The university of Cambridge pays yearly ten per cent by such items as are by their charters granted to them in fee-farm, viz. 3l. 51. at the Annunciation, and 5l. at Michaelmas. He that pays these sums, receives for his discharge a talley at each day, with both which, or notes of them, be repairs to the clerk of the pipe office, and there instead of them, receiveth an acquittance in parchment for his full discharge. The other are talley of reward spoken of 22 H. 8. 11. and 33 & 34 H. 8. 16. and 2 & 3 E. 6. cap. 4. which seem to be tallies or tallies of allowance, or remittance made to sheriffs for such matters, as to their charge they have performed in their office, or for such men or thing as by course have capp upon their accounts, but cannot levy, 2. Vis. Atr. 135.

Tally, Every canon and prebendary in our old cathedrals church, had a flatted allowance of meat, drink, and other distributions, to be delivered to him per modum tail, that is, as much meat or drink as was called a tallia. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Tallow, Prohibited to be exported, 18 El. e. 9. 13 & 14 Car. 2. cap. 47. 57. Tallow, to what duties liable on importation, 2 Will. & M. c. 3. fol. 36. May be imported from Ireland duty free, 32 Geo. 2. c. 6. and as much or less is excused to and from the port of London, 3 Geo. 2. c. 10. and continued by 4 Geo. 2. c. 6.

Talidhte, or Tallow, (Talatutur,) is Fire-wood, cleat and cut into billots of a certain length. Stat. 34 & 35 H. 8. cap. 3. and 7 Edw. 6. cap. 7. This was anciently written tahybponde. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Tant quam, is in nature of a qui tam, being where a man accusation as well for the King as for himself, on an information for breach of some penal law, whereby any penalty is given to the party that sues. Terms de Ley 556. In every case where a statute prohibits a thing, and do not annex a penalty to the committing thereof, the party offending may be indicted for a contemp against the statute; or action lies against him for breach of it, which must be brought tam pro domino Rige, quam pro se ipso, as there is a fine to be paid to the King. 2 Inst. II. 118. Co. Exc. 655. G. 4. 134. In action popular, brought quam quan, the King can demand but his own parte, or course; but after acquitte, the King may discharge the whole. 3 Inst. 238. See Adon, Information, Qui tam.

Tanger, An ancient city of Barbary, lying within the kingdom of Fez, mentioned in the statute of 15 Car. 2. cap. 7. is a yearly part of the common be- longing to the crown of England. Tanger not to be deemed a plantation, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 26. 1

T A X

Taxi, is a law or custom in some parts of Ire- land, of which Sir John Davis in his reports, fol. 28. thus, Quot aequam perquin jussi de aequis cafuata, manures, terres ou tenementus del nature & de tenure tanality, que donues imposse les caules, &c. don’dulc defendr & de temps divinitus done perquin iustamentur de ayans, &c. But some have so understood it, as to fancy it did not mean a cultivation, at least not so far as the French understand the word, but either for a revenue, from that time forward, not to levy it but by content of the realm. Stat. 25 Ed. 1. cap. 5. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Tammare, To dred or tan leather. Plac. Part. 18 Ed. 1.

Tannery, Shall not use the mystery of a shoemaker, 13 R. 2. fl. 2. 12. 21 R. 2. c. 10. 2 H. 6. c. 7. 2 & Ed. 6. c. 6. 2. Ed. 6. c. 7. H. 7. c. 11. Shall sufficiently dry their hides, 10 H. 7. c. 10. Shall not export leather, 27 H. 8. c. 14. 5. 5 El. c. 8. Direction for their true working their goods, 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 11. 1 Jac. 1. c. 22. 3. 5. 11. Who may exercise the trade of a tanner, 1 El. c. 9. 1 Jac. 1. c. 22. 3. 5. No butcher to be a tanner, 5 Ed. c. 8. 1 Jac. 1. c. 22. 3. 4. None but tanners may buy rough hides, 1 Jac. 1. c. 22. 3. 7. Any deep skins need not be searched or sealed, 4 Jac. 1. c. 6. Shall not have their hides, 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 7. 5. 8. Regulations concerning tanners, 9 Ann. c. 11. Exempt, From exemption of the duties called the two third subsidies, 7 Ann. c. 7. 9. 14. Tar. See Pitch, Stones.

Tar and Exer. The first is the weight of box, straw, clothes, &c. wherein goods are packed; the other is a consideration allowed in the weight for wafle, in emptying and re-covering the goods. Book of Rates.

Tarreget, A field; from the Latin Taraxes, because it was formerly made of leather wrought out of the back of an ox. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Tartgia, (Tarida,) Was a ship of burthen, since called a taritas, Kingston, anno 1385. calls it tartia, viz. Captis duos tarias bone vino. Walsingham, anno 1386. a ship of five tons, it tartia, viz. Captis for tartias refertus multus bons.

Tartaron, (mentioned in flat. 4 Hen. 8. cap. 6.) A kind of fine cloth or silk.

Tassum, A mow or heap, from the French toasser, to pile up; hence toasser, to mow or heap up; and ad toasser, to heap into a mow. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Tath, In Norfolk and Suffolk, the lord of each manor had the privilege of having their tenants flocks of sheep brought at night upon their own demesne ground, there to be folded for the benefit of their danga, which liberty of improving their land is called satb. Cowell, edit. 1727. See Sompain, Tenants.

Taverne, See Alehouses, Inns.

Tauri libri Libertas. In some ancient charters taurus liber signifies a common bull, so called, because he is common to all the tenants within such a manor or libery, viz. Cam libertatis sallia, tauri libri & liberi cap. 3. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Taur, (Tara,) from the Gr. τάρα, æra. Was such a tribute as being certainly rated upon every town, was wont to be yearly paid, but now not without content in parliament, as subsidies are. It differs from a subsidy in this, that it is always certain, as it is set down in the Ex- chequer book, and listed in general of every town, and not particularly of every man. It is also called a fif- tenth, flat. 14 Edw. 3. flat. 1. cap. 20. and 9 H. 4. cap. 7. It seems that in ancient time, this tax was im- posed by the King at his pleasure, but Edward the First, by his fir Sachne, brought it forever, from that time forward, not to levy it but by content of the realm. Stat. 25 Ed. 1. cap. 5. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Taxes
T I E

Taxes granted to the King shall not be drawn into cuffs, Conf. Chart. 35 Ed. 1. c. 5. Aid shall not be taken but by common assent, Conf. Chart. 55 Ed. 1. c. 5. 13 Cor. 2. b. 1. c. 4. No taking or sale shall be taken without common assent. St. de talag, non censis. 34 Ed. 1. b. 3. c. 1. Aids granted to the King shall be levied after the old manner, 1 Ed. 3. b. 2. c. 6. Impositions shall not be set upon staple merchandise without assent of parliament, 45 Ed. 3. c. 4. 11 R. 2. c. 6. Goods shall be charged to a fifteen, where they were at the time of granting, 9 H. 4. c. 7. A collector of fifteens shall have debt against his companions for what he shall pay in their default, 9 H. 5. b. 10. A collector in a city shall not be appointed in a county, unless he has lands of the value of 5l. a year, 18 H. 6. c. 5. Subsidies granted, 31 H. 6. c. 8. 11 H. 7. c. 10. The subjects shall not be charged with any charge in nature of a benevolence, 1 Ed. 3. c. 2. Collectors of public money may plead the general fates, 13 & 14 Cor. 2. c. 17. A tax laid on flocks in trade, 1 Ann. fl. 2. c. 15. Duty on places and pensions, 31 Gen. 2. c. 22. Military offices exempted, 31 Gen. 2. c. 25. f. 24. Duties laid on tea and chocolate and criminals elusîon, and in their armour led them through the Holy land, to view the sacred monuments of christianity, without fear of infidels: for at first their profussion was to defend travellers from highwaymen and robbers. This order continuing and extending for near two hundred years, was far spread and extended both to Christians and particularly here in England. But at length some of them at Jerusalem, falling away (as some authors report) to the Saracens from christianity, or rather because they grew too potent and rich, the whole order was suppressed by Clement Quirinus, anno 1307. by the council of Vienna 1312. and their substance given given possession of Jerusalem, and all their revenues, to the Templars of Jerusalem, and partly to other religious. Caffari de gloria mundi, temp. Bar. 9. Confid. 4. and See Ann. 1 Edw. 1. cap. 24. Those flourished here in England from Henry the second's days, till they were suppressed. They had in every nation a particular governor, whom Braden, lib. 1. cap. 10. calls Mangisium Militis Templi. The master of the Temple here was summoned to parliament, 45 H. 3. m. 11. in Schedule. And the chief minifter of the Temple church in London, is still called Master of the Temple. Of these knights read Mr. Drygale's Antiquities of Warwickshire, fol. 190. for the records they were also called Fratres Militis Templi Salomonici. And Stow, par. fol. 554. b. About nine years after their institution, they were ordered by a council held at Triers, to wear a white garms, and afterwards in the pontificate of pope Eugenius, they wore a red crofs on their garments. The Templars, which we now call Knights of Cash, was the place where they dwelt, and in the Middle Temple the King's treasure was kept. Cowell, edit. 1727. Temporals shall be forfeit for eroding their crofles, St. Vit. fem. 2. 13 Ed. 1. c. 33. The jurisdiction of the conservators of their privileges restrained, St. Vit. fem. 2. 1. Sid. 1. The lands of the Temporalitas of Bishops, (Temporalia Episcoporum) Are such revenues, lands, and tenements, and lay-fees, as have been laid to bishops fees, by Kings and other great persons, to the world, as they are barons, and lords of the parliament. See Temporalitas of Bishops. From the 31 Ed. 1. to the time of the reformation, a custom did obtain, that when bishops received from the King their temporalities, they did by a solemn form in writing renounce all rights to the fald temporalities by virtue of any papal constitutions, and accept of them only owing to the King's bounty. This practice was in the occasion of a bull of pope Gregory 8. which censred the fee of Wurcefler upon William de GenevibrORG, and committed to him Administration spiritualis & temporalis
In Ji.

Particulars, Matt.-time, which is from Mich-aelmas to St. Lucy. New. 1407. After it was called retropannagium. Cavell, edit. 1727.

Seems to signify as much as to offer, threw forbearance; as to tend the efface of the party of the demandant. Old Nat. Breu. fol. 123. To tend an averment. Britton, cap. 76. To tend to traverse. Staunf. 15. Cavell, edit. 1727.

Tender, (From the French tendre, i.e. tener, dedica,- tur,) used adjectively signifies the fame with us in English. But in a legal sense it denotes as much as carefully to offer, or circumspectly to endeavour the performance of any thing belonging to us. As to tender rent is to offer it at the time and place where and when it ought to be paid, (by the life-time of the tenant,) under his law-furnac. Kitchin, fol. 197. It is to offer himself ready to make the tender, or prove that he was not fummoned. Cavell, edit. 1727.

Tender, is an offer to pay a debt, or perform a duty. In every plea of tender, where money is the thing de- manded by the action, and the debt or duty is not di- charged by the tender and refusal, money may be brought in without leave of the court: But as other things, as well as money, may, where a tender is pleaded, be brought into court, this is with more propriety called bringing in- to court generally, than a bringing money into court. In all other cases, the leave of the court must be had, before money can be brought into court. The rule, under which this leave is granted, is, as in the case of an ejectment by a mortgagee, founded upon a particular act of parliament. In other cases, it is founded upon that discretionary power, which is, for the furtherance of justice vested in the court. By the discretionary rule it is, whenever it appears to the court, that it is expedient, that upon bringing money into court, all proceedings in an action shall be stayed. At other times it is ordered, that the money brought into court shall be struck out of the plaintiff's declaration, and that the plaintiff shall not, at the trial of the issue, be permitted to give any evidence as to this money. This rule, by which the court prevents the plaintiff from being obliged to be struck out of a declaration, is, from its being more frequently granted than that by which it is ordered that the proceedings shall be stayed, called the common rule. 5 Bac. Abr. 1.

1. By whom a tender may be made; and what is a good tender.

2. At what place, and at what time a tender must be made.

Wherever the right of tendering is personal, it cannot be exercised by any other than the party in whom it is. 7 Rep. 13. 1 Inf. 208.

A tenant, who is liable to a writ of ejection, must, if he would prevent the landlord from recovering is land, in perfon tender his rent, which is in arrears. Bro. Tend. pl. 29. Terra de Ley 102.

If a feoffment is made, with condition that, if the feoffor pays a sum of money to the feoffee, it shall be lawful for him and his heirs to enter, and the feoffee dies before the money is paid, no tender can be made either by his heir or executor: For the right of tendering is in that case personal, the meaning being the same, as if the words had been, if the feoffor during his life pays the money. 2 Inf. 208.

If a feoffment is made, with condition that, if the feoffor pays a sum of money to the feoffee on a day cer- tain, it shall be lawful for the feoffor and his heirs to enter, and the feoffee dies before the day, a tender may be made at the day, either by the heir of the feoffor, as privy in blood, or by his executor, as privy in repre- sentation; because the right of tender is not in this case personal. 1 Inf. 208, 208, 209. 4 Rep. 120.

A tenant devised land to Anne his wife for life, re- mained to Daniel his second son in fee; provided never-
A tender in any money coined, upon which there is the King's flamp, is good; for all such money is current in proportion to its value without any proclamation. Cant. 387. Dixon v. Willingsbr. 1 T. T. 207. Sack. 446.

If a contract is to pay 100l. in any foreign coin, a tender to the amount of that sum in any current coin of this kingdom is good. Lat. 84. Ward v. Ridgway.

If money is made current by proclamation at a higher rate than its intrinsic value, a tender in forch money according to the value it is current at, is good. 5 Boc. Abr. 5.

Queen Elizabeth had some mixed money coined at the Mint, and sent it into Ireland, with a proclamation to be current there at a certain value; and by the same proclamation it was put to the current of all other coins in that kingdom. It was held that a tender made in this money was good. Dox. 18. The Case of mixed Money.

But if the money, which has been tendered, becomes afterwards current at less value, it was current at, and when the tender was made, was tendered by the party who refused to accept it must bear this loss. 5 Boc. Abr. 5.

In debt for rent, the defendant pleaded a tender of the rent in pieces of English money called shillings, every one of which was, at the time of the tender, current at the value of twelve pence, and that he yet is ready to pay the rent at the rate per annum, when the act was put to the current of all other coins at that value, and brings the same into court. The plaintiff demurred, and for cause alleged, that before the bringing of the action, the said pieces of money were by proclamation made current only at the value of six-pence; But he afterwards thought proper to accept the money, according to the value when the tender was made. Dyr 81. Barrington v. Potter. Dav. 27.

If any foreign coin is made current in this kingdom by proclamation, a tender in such money is good, for it thereby becomes lawful money of this kingdom. 5 Rep. 114. Wode’s cafe. 1 T. T. 207.

If the money tendered is once accepted, the acceptor has no remedy, although some of it be counterfeited, or deficient in value, or although there is not so much as it was tendered for; because it was his duty to have examined and told it, before he accepted it. 1 T. T. 208.

The party to whom money was tendered, had accepted it, and put it into his purse: But, upon examining before he left the place, he found some counterfeit pieces amongst it, and for this reason refused to carry the money away with him. It was held, that, as he had not objected to the money before he did accept it, he could not afterwards return it. 5 Rep. 115.

A tender of a bank note, as money, is not strictly speaking a legal tender: But if the tenderer offers to turn it into money, that makes it a good tender. Eq. Caefer. Abr. 319. Austin v. The Executor of Destwell.

It seems reasonable, that a tender of any sort of goods should, unless they are to be delivered according to some sample, be made in a middling kind of goods of the sort. 5 Boc. Abr. 6.

2. At what place, and at what time a tender must be made.

If the contract is, that money in grog, or rent of the land shall be delivered, as at a place certain, a tender can only be made at such place. Bro. Tond. pl. 17. Bro. Cond. pl. 17. 1 T. T. 210. Freem. 149.

If no place is appointed for the payment of money in grog, a tender must be made at whatever place the person to whom it is due, happens to be: But, if he is out of England, the party who ought to pay the money is not bound to go out of the realm to seek him. Bro. Tond. 1 T. T. 210.

So, in the case of money due upon a mortgage, it was formerly held, that this, which is to be considered in grog, and collateral to the title of the land, must, if no place is appointed for the payment thereof, be tendered to the person, if he is within England. 1 Inif. 210.
TEN

But it has been held in the court of Chancery, that a tender to the person is not in such case necessary.

A mortgagee, after a mortgage was in possession under the mortgagor, went to the mortgagee's house with money sufficient to redeem the eflate, and tendered it there: But it did not appear that the tender was to the mortgagee, or that he was in the house at the time; yet this was held to be a good tender. 1 Eyn. Ca. 29. Memm. 7.

Personal notice was given to a mortgagee, the day before the 25th day of March 1722, that the mortgage would, on the 25th of September following, between the hours of ten and twelve in the forenoon, tender the principal money, which was 1000l. and all interest due thereon, in Lincoln's Inn Hall, and a tender was accordingly made; it was objected, that no place being appoin ted in the mortgage deed for the payment of the money, the tender ought to be made to the mortgagee in person: But the tender was held to be good, and by King Chancellor, the money being lent in town, and no objection made by the mortgagee to the place where notice was given, it would be very hard to compel the mortgagee to travel with this great sum of money to Oxford where the mortgagee lives. 2 Will. 378. Gyles v. Hole.

If no place is appointed for the payment of rent issuing out of a land, a tender upon the land is good, for it is not in this case necessar y to make a tender to the person. 1 Inif. 209. Bro. Tent. pl. 17.

But although a tender to the person is not, in the case of rent issuing out of land, necessary, a tender made to the person would be good. 3 Eyn. 48. Crep v. Hambleton.

If any special corporate service is referred in a grant of land, this, although issuing out of land, must be tendered to the person of the grantor; and the tenant must seek him to whom it ought to be done, if he is within England. 1 Inif. 210, 211. Bro. Tent. pl. 17.

If no place is appointed for the delivery of heavy goods, a man is not to bound to carry such goods with him, and tender them to the person to whom they ought to be delivered; for, if he goes to such person to know at what place he will receive them, and afterwards tenders them at that place, it is a good tender. 1 Inif. 210.

Every tender, whether it be given by the Common law, or by statute, must be made before an action is commenced. In cases where the defendant pleaded, that he tendered amends before the action commenced, to wit the 2d day of October. The plaintiff replied, that, before this tender he had filed out a lattit, telle the last day of the preceding Trinity term, and had thereupon procured the defendant to be arraigned; but at this time was held to be false. For a tender, after the failing out of an original writ, comes too late. 4 Eyn. Car. 264. Watty v. Bakir.

But where a tender has in fact been made before a writ is found out, the court, out of which such writ issues, will upon application take care, that the tender shall not be void, by any relation of such writ to a day anterior to the tender. 5 Bor. Arr. 7.

A defendant pleaded a tender on the 4th day of May ante diem exhibitione billae. The plaintiff replied non obstant ante diem; and, in order to out the defendant of the benefit of his tender, made up the paper book with a general memorandum. At by this means the writ would be related to the first day of the term, which was before the 4th of May, the court of King's Bench, on affidavit being laid before them that the writ was not found out till the fifth day of May, made a rule that the plaint iff should make his memorandum special, to the time of filing, to be of no effect. 5 Eyn. 288. Smith v. Key.

A tender was pleaded to have been made, on the 1st day of January. The plaintiff replied an original telle the second day of January. Upon application of the defendant, the court of Chancery ordered the telle of the original to be altered, from the 2d day of January, the common telle day of an original returnable on the Other Tenement, (Tenementum) Signifies properly a house or home-stall; but more largely it comprehends not only a house, but all corporeal inheritances differing out of, or exercisable with the same.

Cot. Lit. 6. 9. 154. A tenement may be said to be any house, land, rent, or others, for life in fee for life. 2 Hawk. P. C. 295. For the tenement being but being a word of a large and ambiguous meaning, and not so certain as meffuage, therefore it is not fit to be used to express any thing which requires a particular description. 2 Lid. Ab. 566. The word tenement is join'd with the adjective frank, to denote an estate in lands, offices, &c. for life in fee for the King. 6. 7.

Tenementary Land, The Saxon Thome or possessor Buckland, or hereditary free eftates, divided them into two sorts, inland and outland. The inland was the domains which the lord kept in his own hands. The outland was granted out to tenants under arbitrary rents and services, and was usually in these words, Tenendum per servitium. But by the flat of Quia emptores terrarum, (16 Ed. 1.) the tenendum was usually from the soccou and his heirs, and not of the chief lord of the fee, whereby lords lost their ejectments, forfeitures, &c. But since the flat disposed the tenendum, where the fee-simple palfes, must be of the chief lord of the fee, by the customs and services, whereby the soccou held; yet this flatte does not extend to a gift in tail; for the donee shall hold of the donor.

Cot. Lit. 6. a. 2 Inf. 66. 67. 509. 501. 502. 505. The tenendum most commonly and properly succeeds the soccou, and was usually in these words, Tenendum per servitium. But by the flat of Quia emptores terrarum, when the fee-simple doth palfes, the tenure is always of the chief lord, and is thus fet forth, Tenendum de capitisbols dominis, &c. But this clause at this day is for the most part left out of deeds, and altogether omitted; and where former grants now must be incorporated with the hatendum, for we say, To have and to hold, in which clause the estate is limited, &c. Tenentibus in affilia non onerandis, &c. Is a writ that lies for him to whom a dilferer hath alienated the land, whereby he diññs another; that be he nor not, whether the damages are awarded, if the dilferer have wherewith to satisfy them himself. Reg. of Writs. fol. 214. 6.

Tenmantale, (Sex. tenmantale, i.e. decem virorum numerus) Decanaria, tithing, Leg. Ed. Conf. Alto an ancient tax or tribute paid to the King. Hen. 7. 37.

Tenor, (Lat.) Of write, records, &c. is the substance or purport of them, or a transcript or copy. Tenor of a libel hath been held to be a transcript, which it cannot be if differs from the libel; and justum tenorem imposes it, but not ad officium, &c. for that may impair an identity in sense, but not in words. 2 Salk. 437. In action of debt brought upon a judgment in an inferior court, if the defendant pleads null et tiel record, a tenor recordi only shall be recorded; and by Holie Chief Justice it must be the same on coroner's. 3 Salk. 296. A tenementary land, which is divided out from Lands, or cessoria to remove the ind-Ément, is good by the city charter; but in other cases it is usual to certify the record itself. 2 Hawk. P. C. 295.

Tenures immutabilia innitentes, is a writ whereby the record of an indenture, and the proceeds thereupon is called out of another court into the Chancery. Reg. of Writs. fol. 60. a.

Tenures pecuniaria. The tenure of these presents, If the matter contained therein, or rather the true intent and meaning thereof, as to do such a thing according to the tenure of a writing, is to do the same according to the true intent and meaning thereof. Consol. edit. 1737.

Tenures pecuniaria. This is the word whereby the record or document is chargeable to which all ecclesiastical livings pay to the King; for though the bishop of Rome does originally pretend right to this revenue, by the example of the high priest among the Jews, who had tenths from the Levites, numb. cap. 9. Hieron. in Exepl. yet we read in our chronicles that these were often granted to the King by the Pope upon divers occasions. Sometimes for one year, sometimes for more, till by the statute 26 H. 8. cap. 3. they were annexed perpetually to the crown. See Jfrt Fritius and Tenures. It signifies also a tax levied of the temporary. 4 Stat. 34. 3d. Fifth fruits and tenths were first on occasion given, and generally by custom claimed, in an acknowledgment to the fee of Rome. The tenths of all ecclesiastical benefices in England were first allowed by Pope Innocent 4. to King Elon. 3. anno 1253. for three years; which occasioned the Norwich taxation, anno 1254. This proved a great opprobrium to the clergy, and was soon made more grievous. For when the king had again granted the tenths to the King for three years, for a compensation of what they tell short of the expected value, the King in the 53rd year of his reign, anno 1269. made the clerg)' pay within those three the tenths of four years, and made the chief landlord, the king, by the statute 1 anno 1285. 4 Stat. 3d. whereas Pope Nicholas IV. granted this favour to the crown for six years, towards an expedition to the Holy land; that they might be then collected to the full value, a new taxation by the King's precept was begun anno 1288. and finished anno 1291. 20 Ed. i. by the bishop of Lincoln and Winchester. For a particular account whereof, see Ken's Prebec. Parb. Antq. p. 1325.

Tenor, A stretcher, tryer or prover, which dyers and clothiers use. Stat. 1 R. 3. cap. 8. but prohibited by 30 Eliz. cap. 20.

Tenures, Robbing of, in faire and markets, is felony, and pardoned in burgage, & 6 Ed. 6. cap. 14.

Tenure (Tentura, from the Lat. Tentura,) Is the manner whereby lands or tenements are held; or the service that the tenant owes to his lord: And there can be no tenure without some service, because the service makes the tenure. 1 Inf. 1. 93. A tenure may be of houses, of land, or of other things; but not of persons. All lands in the hands of a subject are held of some lord or landlord, by tenure or service: And all the lands and tenements in England are said to be held either mediately or immediately of the King, and therefore he is famous domus supra annus. 2 Stat. 531.

Under this tenure is included all rights in an inheritance; but the significacion of this word, which is a very extensive one, is usually restrained by coupling other words with it; this is, sometimes, done by words which denote the duration of the tenant's estate: As if a man holds to himself and his heirs, it is called tenure in fee simple. At other times the tenure is coupled with words pointing out the instrument by which an inheritance is held; thus, if the holding is by copy of court-roll, it is called tenure by copy of court-roll. At other times, this word is coupled with words that shew the principal service by which an inheritance is held: As where a man holds by knight's service, it is called tenure by knight's service. 5 BeC. Abr. 34.

Tenure in fee-farm, burgage, socage, or petit jeñalty, shall not give warclippage. M. C. 9 H. 3. c. 27. Of a signory feoffage to the King, the tenants shall hold as before, 20 Stat. 4 H. 3. c. 31.

A tenure during life shall referre enough to do the service. M. G. 9 H. 3. c. 32. A fee or part of a fee aliened shall be held of the chief lord, and the services shall be apportioned. Stat. Quia emptores terrarum, 18 Ed. I. fl. 1. c. 1. 2. Seignories revived of lands of perfons attainted granted by the King. 7 Ed. 4. c. 5.

\[\text{Lands}\]
Lands coming to the crown by surrénder, &c. not to be held in capite, 1 Ed. 6. c. 4.

Fines and fealties for alienation taken away, 1 Car. 1. c. 3.

Tenure in Bramfield and Isle, in Denbyshire, confirmed, 3 Car. 1. c. 6.

Fines and fealties to be free and common socage, 12 Car. 2. c. 24.

Saving of rents, certain heriots, &c. 12 Car. 2. c. 24. f. 5.

Not to take away frankalmoign, coypholds, &c. 12 Car. 2. c. 24. f. 6.

Not to infringe any title of honour by which any person may have a right to fit in the lords house, 12 Car. 2. c. 24. f. 11.

Tenure of ward-holding, &c. in Scotland, taken away, 2 Geo. 2. c. 50.

For more learning on this subject, see 20 Vin. and 5 Bac. Abr. tit. Tenure.

Term. (Termini, ) Signifies commonly the limitation of time or estate; as a lease for term of life or years, &c. Dra^t. lib. 2.

Tenour (Tenour ex terminis.) Is he that holds lands or tenements for term of years or life, Litt. 100. A term for years cannot plead in assize like tenant of the freehold; but the special matter, viz. his lease for years, the reversion in the plaintiff, and that he is in possession, &c. Dyer 246. Jenk. Cent. 142.

Terms, Are those spaces of time, wherein the courts of justice sit for all that complain of wrongs or injuries, and seek their rights by course of law or action, in order to their redrefs; and during which, the courts in Westminster-hall sit and give judgments, &c. But the high court of parliament, the chancery, and inferior courts, do not obferve the terms; only the courts of King's bench, Common pleas, and Exchequer, the highest courts at Common law. Of these terms there are four in every year, viz. Hilary term, which begins the 23d of January, and ends the 1st of February; Easter term, that begins the Wednesday fortnightly after Easter day, and ends the Monday next after Ascension day; Trinity term, which begins the Friday after Trinity Sunday, and ends the Wednesday fortnight after; and Michaelmas term, the 6th, and ends the 28th of November. Each term had certain returns; as Hilary term has four; Easter hath five; Trinity four; and Michaelmas six: But by statute Trinity term was abridged four returns; and Michaelmas two. returns; for those terms were formerly longer than they are now, till contrahed by the statutes 32 H. 8. c. 21. and 16 Car. 1. c. 16. There are four terms in day, called Effion day; the day of exceptions; the day of return of writs; and day of appearance, called the quarter die post. The term is said to begin on the Effion day, which begins on the day following the Wednesday at law at Westminster, to take and enter effions; but the third day afterward is the first day of the term, at which time the judges in all the courts fit to do the business of the term. 2 Lit. Abr. 569. All the term in construction of law is accounted for as one day to many purposes, for a plea that is put in the last day of a term, is a plea of the first day of the term; and a judgment on the last day of term is as effectual as on the first day. Trin. 23 Car. B. R. And for this reason, the judges may alter and amend their judgments in the same term, &c. It hath been held, that the courts sit not but in term, as to giving of judgments: And the judges of B. R. and C. B. before Trinity term 1651. did not sit longer in court than till one o'clock upon the last day of term; because they would not encourage attorneys to neglect their clients business till the last day of term, as too commonly they do, to the till of the court, and too much hurry in dispatch. Mich. 27 Car. 2. c. 8. The term is still so constitutioned, and the returns of writs and proceedes confirmed. 1 W. & M. ss. 5. t. c. 4. Where there is a term intervening between the term and a return of a writ of copias, &c. or when the term to which a suit is continued is adjourned, and the suit is not adjourned, it is a discontinuance. 2 Hawk. 258. The illative terms are Hilary and Trinity terms only; so called, because in them the illives are joined, and records made up of cases, to be tried at the Lent and Summer assizes, which immediately follow. 2 Lit. Abr. 568.

By statute, 24 Geo. 2. c. 63. sect. 1. There shall be in Michaelmas term four common days of return only, viz. the morrow of All Souls; the morrow of St. Martin; in eight days after St. Martin; and in fifteen days after St. Martin.

Sec. 2. The same days of return shall be observed in all the high courts of record of the King; and there shall not be more than five returns, from the first term of St. Michael, in three weeks, nor from the day of St. Michael in one month, nor either of them; and the said term of St. Michael yearly shall begin upon the morrow of All Souls, (except it be on a Sunday, and then on the morrow next after) for the keeping courts, prorogued terms, &c. in like manner as had been used, and the day of the return, called from the day of St. Michael in three weeks; and the full term of St. Michael, shall yearly begin upon the fourth day of the said morrow of All Souls, except it be on a Sunday, and then on the morrow next after.

Sect. 3. If any writ of dower unde nihil habet, or writ of entry for common recoveries, or writ of right of advowson, or in any other real action, be returnable in the Common pleas, in the morrow of All Souls, day shall be given in fifteen days of St. Martin; if on the morrow of St. Martin, then in eight days of St. Hilary, if in eight days after St. Hilary, then in fifteen days of St. Hilary; if in fifteen days of St. Martin, then on the morrow of the purification; if in eight days of St. Hilary, then in eight days of the purification; if in fifteen days of St. Hilary, then in fifteen days of Easter; if on the morrow of the purification, then in three weeks from the day of Easter; if in eight days of the purification, then in one month from the day of Easter; if in fifteen days of Easter, then in five weeks from the day of Easter; if in three weeks from the day of Easter, then on the morrow of the Akenfian of our Lord; if on one month from the day of Easter then on the morrow of the Holy Trinity; if in five weeks from the day of Easter, then in eight days of the Holy Trinity; if on the morrow of the Holy Trinity, then in three weeks from the day of the Holy Trinity; if in eight days of the Holy Trinity, then on the morrow of All Souls; if in fifteen days of the Holy Trinity, then on the morrow of St. Martin; if in three weeks of the Holy Trinity, then in eight days of St. Martin.

Sect. 4. In all writs of dower unde nihil habet, after issue joined, it shall not be needful to have above fifteen days betwixt the telle and return of the venue, or any other process for trial of the issue.

Sect. 5. If any writ of dower unde nihil habet be made out of any of his Majesty's courts at Westminster, and having day from the fourth day of the morrow of the Akenfian, to the morrow of the Holy Trinity, shall be good notwithstanding there be not fifteen days between the telle and the return of the said writs. 2 Hawk. 239.

Sect. 6. Upon common recoveries in writs of entry, and writs of right of advowson, all writs of summons to warrant upon the appearance of the tenant to such writ of entry and writ of right of advowson, shall be abridged to four returns exclusive.

Sect. 7. In such cases as special days have been used to be given, it shall be lawful to the justices of the King's courts of record to appoint special days of return. 2 Hawk. 239.

Sect. 8. The days of assize in darrein preferment, and in a plea of quo re impedit limited by the statute of Marlborough, 52 H. 3. c. 12. and also the days to be given in antient limited in 5 Ed. 3. c. 6. and 23 H. 8. c. 3. may be extended by shortland to other cases.

Terms of the Law. Are artificial or technical words and terms of art, particularly used in and adapted to the profession of the law. 2 Hawk. 239.

Terms for payment of Rent. (Termini census.) Rent-terms or times, the four quarterly saults upon which rent was usually paid. Cowell. ed. 1777.
...and...and...and...Jilt...of...fuch...caruogio,...by...men,...and...and...eas...in...the...Land...of...the...King...in...the...of...25.1.2...nor...of...lands,...goods...or...chattels,...formerly...seized,...after...he...has...cleared...himself...of...that...femy,...upon...fufpiion...whereof...he...was...formerly...converted,...and...delivered...to...his...ordinary...to...be...purged. Reg. Orig. fol. 68.

...and...Terra...texit...ultra...brevitatem...levaturn. Is...a...writ...for...the...delivery...of...lands...or...goods...to...a...debtor...that...is...discharged...above...the...quantity...of...the...debt. Reg. Jud. fol. 38.

...and...Terra...texit...ultra...brevitatem...levaturn. Is...a...writ...for...a...man...con-...victed...by...attaint,...to...bring...the...record...and...proceeds...before...the...King,...and...to...take...a...fine...for...his...imprisonment,...to...deliver...him...his...lands...and...emoluments...again,...and...to...rely...him...of...the...fine...and...waft. Reg. Orig. fol. 232. It...is...also...a...writ...for...the...delivery...of...lands...to...the...heir...after...homage...and...relief...performed. Ibid. fol. 293. Or...in...security...taken...that...he...shall...perform...them. Ibid. fol. 212.

...and...Terrat...a...measure...containing...fourteen...and...four...miles,...mentioned...in...the...fartes...1 Rich. 3. cap. 13. 2 Hen. 6. cap. 11. So...called...because...it...is...the...third...part...of...a...tun. A...tierce...of...wine. Coswell. edit. 1727.

...and...As...to...bring...one...to...the...telle...is...to...bring...him...to...a...trial...by...an...inquest...before...the...King. Ch. 2. commonly...called...the...Tepl-adil,...all...officers,...civil...and...military...are...to...take...the...oaths...and...teft;...and...if...they...neglect...it,...and...execute...any...office...within...the...words...of...that...finance,...being...legally...convicted...thereof...upon...information,...preliminary...or...indenture,...in...any...of...the...court...at...Wiff-......and...examination...of...the...offices,...they...shall...forfeit...to...500l...to...be...recovered...by...him...who...will...fue...for...the...same...after...act...of...duty. Cap. 25...2...e. 2.

...and...Sefta...de...Novil,...An...ancient...and...authentic...record...in...the...cuboty...of...the...King's...remembrancer...in...the...Exche-...quer,...said...to...be...compiled...by...John...de...Novil...a...justice...in...the...judicial...office...in...the...beginning...of...the...25th...of...the...2nd...year...of...Ed. 9. was...known...as...a...writ...for...the...delivery...of...lands...in...grant...or...fealty...suits,...with...fees...and...feate...to...the...King,...or...especially...within...the...county...of...Hereford. See...Nicholson's...English...Library, P. 3. p. 103.

...and...Tentamentum...is...then...defined...by...Plutarch...Tentamentum...of...testats...montes,...a...teamentum...is...a...writ...of...the...mind:...But...Aulus...Gellius,...lib. 6. cap. 12. denies...it...to...be...a...compound...word,...and...faith,...It...is...verba...simplices,...as...Calebamentum,...Paludamentum,...&c....And...therefore...it...may...be...thus...better...defined,...Tentamentum...of...ultima...volucis...sicut...facientia,...de...qua...quis...quis...partim...fum...firt...trial,...and...in...writing...of...the...words,...or...in...the...affid...of...a...teamentor...teamentum...writing,...and...a...teamentum...in...words,...which...is...called...a...Nuncpiusatu...teamentum,...which...is,...when...a...man...being...fick,...and...for...fear,...left...death,...want...of...memory,...or...speech,...should...come...to...suddenly...upon...him...that...he...should...be...prevented...if...he...fliald...the...writing...of...his...teamentum,...defers...his...neighbours...and...friends...to...bear...witnes...of...his...latt...will,...and...then...declares...the...fame...before...them...by...words,...which...after...his...deceafe...is...proved...by...witnesses,...and...put...in...writing...by...the...ordinary,...and...then...flands...in...as...good...force...as...if...it...had...at...the...first...in...the...life...of...the...televantor...in...writing,...except...only...for...lands,...which...are...defeivable...by...but...a...teamentum...put...in...writing...in...the...life...of...the...televantor. See...Co. a...Liti. 2...c. 10. f. 167. Placed. fol. 541. Parmandus...and...Jurdin's...calf...Co. 6...Rep. Marquis...of...Winchesfer's...calf...Teamentum...was...anciently...used...according...to...Splagem...pro...fcripto...charts...in...&...in...the...Allan's...freeters...in...the...&...in...the...Allan's...freeters...in...the...Superfinius...perfunctio...full...tit...ulterior...and...in...the...Te-...mentum...ferret...ulterior...nomina...continetur.—Si...quis...contra...hoc...meo...auriatus...teamentum...aliquod...machinae...imperium...promunifit...Chatta...Croylandes...ab...Ethel-...baldno...Rece...Anno...Domini...716...Coswell...edit. 1727.

...and...Televantor...Lat)...He...that...makes...a...teamentum. See...Swinburne...of...Wills...and...Teamentum....And...especially...see...8...Q...differentarion...
THA

disfutation of the probate of wills or testaments by the learned Sir Henry Spelman among his late remains, pag. 127. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Tefflatum, A writ in personal actions, as if the defendant could not be arrested upon a copy in the county where the action is laid, but is returned non est inventus by the sheriff. This writ will be returned in every county where such person is thought to have wherewith to satisfy: And this is termed a teflatum, because the sheriff first tollified that the defendant was not to be found in his bailiwick. See Kitchin's Return of Writs, fol. 287.

Telfo, Is a word commonly used in the last part of every writ, wherein the date is contained, which begins with these words, Telfo me ipse, &c. if it be an original writ; or if judicial, Telfo Roberto Raymond militis, or Roberto Eure militis, according to the court whence it issues. Yet we read in Gallois, lib. 1. cap. 6. &c. and lib. 2. cap. 4. The last clause in an original writ be Telfo Radulpho de Clavillano apud Clauden, &c. and writs in the Register of Writs, Telfo custode Anglie, as namely in the title Prohibition, f. 42. and Conclavity, f. 54. See 20 Vin. Abr. 262—266.

Tennal, A burden or fine levied on the tenants of the manors of the time and place when and where a lord or bailer landed, and the place of his dwelling and birth, unto which he is to pass, or such like. 3 Iof. f. 85.

Telfon, or Telfou, (2 & 3 Ed. 6. cap. 17.) A fort of money, which, among the French, did bear the value of a florin; in Henry the Eighth's time being of brass, lightly gilt with silver, it was reduced to 12d. and in the beginning of Edward the Sixth 10d. and afterwards to 6d. For the fabrication and value of teffon, see Lauderi's Essay upon Coins, p. 22.

Tertius, Is mentioned in several authors, to signify the Third Term. It was written in golden letters, and carefully preserved in the churches. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Tertius Hoffmanus, An ancient manuscript containing many of the Saxons laws, and the rights, customs, tenures, &c. of the church of Rochester, drawn up by Ermulf bishop of that see from 1114 to 1124. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Thames, Persons navigating boats on the river Thames, committing thefts, how punished, 2 Geor. 3. cap. 28.

Thamage of the King, (Thamamium Regis,) Signified a certain part of the King's land or property, whereof the ruler or governor was called Thame. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Thame, (From the Sax. Theman, ministrare,) Was the title of those who attended the English Saxon Kings in their courts, and who held their lands immediately of those Kings, and therefore in Domesday, they were proficuously called theami & servientes Regis, though not long after the conquest the word was disused, and instead thereof, those men were called Barones Regis, who as to their dignity, were inferior to Earls, and took place next after Bishops, Abbots, Barons and Knights. These were also theiri ministers, and those likewise called barons: They were lords of manors and had a particular jurisdiction within their limits, and over their own tenants in their courts, which to this day are called barons courts: But the word signifies sometimes a nobleman, sometimes a freeman, sometimes a magistrate, but more properly an officer or minister of the King. Edward King gave mine Bishops, and mine Earls, and all mine Thenege, and the Ipshe mine Prefel in Paulus minifter babdov land. Charter Edw. Conf. Pat. 18 H. 6. m. 9. per Iospe. Lamb. in his Expedition of Saxon words, verb. Thane, And Skene de vorbor, signif. faith. It is a name of dignity, that equal part with the son of an earl. This appellation was in use among the Normans, as appears by the Mappa, and by a certain writ of William the First: Williamm Rex Salutar Hermannum episopus, & Steuinam, & Brityi, & omnis Thanes mess in Dorfereyn pago amicabiliter. MS. de Abbatisbury. Camden says, They were ennobled only by the office which they administered. Thomas Regis is taken for a baron. 1 Ios. fol. 5. 1. And in Domesday tenants, qui esti caput manoris. See Adilis, de Notitia, fol. 134. The Saxon Thane was fcelen from Thelian, servite; and in Latin minister a ministries. So that a Thane at first (in like manner as an earl) was not properly a title of dignity, but of service. But according to the Regiam Custum, one of greater estimation, found in Douro: So that the title of Kings, and the eminency, either in court, or commonwealth, were called Thani majors and Thani Regis. Thane that served under them as they did under the King were called Thani minores, or the leffer Thane. Cowell, edit. 1727. See Skene, fol. 132.

Thane-Lands, Such lands as were granted by charter of the Saxon Kings to their Thanes with all immunities, except the threefold necessity of expulsion, seer of cattle, and mending of bridges. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Thalsela, Was a certain form of tributary money, imposed by the Rannet on the Britons and their freemen, and paid every year; which payment continued under several reigns of the Saxon, Danjilb and Norman Kings; for the word is mentioned in the laws of H. 1. c. 78.

Thiefs, (Partum,) Is an unlawful family taking away of another man's movable and personal goods, against the law and the commonwealth, which is divided into theft simply so called, and petty theft, whereof the one is of goods above the value of twelve pence, and is felony; the other under that value, and is no felony, but called petit larceny. See Lactenn and Felony. Theft from the person, or in the presence of the owner, is called theft. Whif. Symbol. pass. 2. Indictm. sect. 58. 59. 60.

Thief-Bote, (From the Sax. Theof, i. e. Furtum, and Bote, Campefnato,) Is the receiving of a man's goods again a a thief, after stolen, or other remedy not to prosecute the felon, and to intent the thief may ecape; which is called Furtum. It is considerable with fine and imprisonment, etc. H. P. C. 139.

Theleumon, or Beve effecuti querci de Theleumon, Is a writ lying for the citizens of any city, or burgesses of any town, that have a charter or prerogative to free them from toll, against the offices of any town or market, who would confine them to pay toll of their merchandise contrary to their said grant or prerogation. F. N. B. fol. 226.

Thelemonomanus, The toll-man or officer who received the toll. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Thelemonus rationabilis habebus pro dominus habebas titus coumitia Regis ad firmamentum, Is a writ that lies for having the King's demesne in fee-farm, to recover reasonable toll of the King's tenants there, if his demeine had been accustomed to be tall. Reg. Orig. fol. 87.

Themagium, A duty or acknowledgment paid by inferior tenants in respect of theme or team. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Themc, Tociici agricola, i. e. Auctum crescentia circa agris pro clavaris curum, vulgarly called hedgerows or dike-rows. Lindew. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Theodan, In the degree or definition of parts among the Saxon, the earl or prime lord was called theodan, with the title of the King's thane; and the husbandman or inferior tenant was called theoden, or under thane. See Than.

Theodoves, The bondsman among their Saxons were called thedoves and eftoves, who were not counted members of the commonwealth, but parcels of their masters goods and subsistence. See Steven of Douro, cap. 5.

Theofaurus, Was sometimes taken in old charters for theofaurarius, the treasurers; and Domesday register, where Waters was often called Liber theofaur, Cowell, edit. 1727.

Thehninga, A titling. Tothningamannus, a titling-man.

Theifaker. See Felony.

Thegreg, (Thamux,) A nobleman, a knight, or freeman. Cokuur. far. fol. 157.

Thehropus, Is used for a confable, in fol. 28 H. 9. c. 10. and Lambard's Duty of Confables, pag. 6. and founds feems to be corruptly used for the Saxon Freeberg, ingen-naud sueijjfer. Couell, edit. 1727.

Thirdings. The third part of the corn or grain growing on the ground at the tenant's death, to the lord for the lord not within a certain manor, and lands belonging to the manor of Teward in the county of Hereford. Id. 1b.

Third Night aum-hinde, (Triaun notum Hifes),
By the laws of St. Edward, (cap. de Hopitibus.) If any guay lay a third night in an inn, he was accounted a domous住在son of the house, or the opposite, as he should he foomit. Formam night, unceau, two night guue, third night aum-hinde, that is, the first night a stranger, the second night a fugit, the third night a domestic. Bract. lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 10. num. 2.

writes bygone for终身.

Thistle. (See Denarius curtius Comitatus.
Thistlake. It was a custom within the manor of Hilton, in the county palatine of Chester, that if in iving beasts over the common, the driver permits them to graze or take but a thistle, he shall pay a half-penny to the lord of the fer. But at Eyerton in Nett-hamshire, the ancient custom, if a false thistle or a cottage killed a swine above a year old, he paid to the lord a penny, which purchase of leave to kill a hog was also called thistle-take. Reg. Priorat. de Thurgarton. Couell, edit. 1727.

Thites, Fifth with broken bellies, 22 E. 4. cap. 2.
what said statute are not to be mixt or packed with tale-fish.

Thopo, Throp, Crop. Either in the beginning or end of names of places, signifies a street or village, as thirop: From the Sax. Thorp, villa, view.

Thorn, Thorn. Thorny land, from the Saxon Thorun, i.e. a bundle, or the Britith drea, i.e. twenty-four. In most parts of England consitts of twenty-four sheaves, or four shocks, six sheaves to every thock, 2 H. 6. cap. 2. yet in some counties they reckon but twelve sheaves to the thorne. King Alfred's ann.
915 gives by his charter to St. John of Beverley's church, four thrawes of corn from every plough-land in the East Riding of Yorkshire. Couell, edit. 1727.

Threab, Thread, oatmeal, to what duties liable on importation, 4 Will. & M. c. 5. Sifters thread exempt from the two third subsidies, 7 Ann. c. 7.

Thrip, (From the Saxon Thrimp, which signifies three,) Was an old piece of money of three thrippings, according to Lombard, or rather, (as Selden thinks) the third part of a threepence of solmum, f. 60. See Wergeld. It was certainly but a groat, or the third part of a thlling. Couell, edit. 1727.

Thriiling, (Thribingham,) In the statute of Merton, fignifies a court which consists of three or four hundred.
Co. 2 H. 6. f. 59.

Thwip, Thwip, or throwing Silk. See Silk.

Thwanni, The sole printing thereof granted to Samuel Buxley, 7 Geo. 3. c. 24.

Thwode, Thwode. A woodwoard, or one who looks af the woods.

Thumllum, Signifies a thumb: 'Ts mentioned in Lev. xiv. 25, apud Brompton.

Thumucht, A word, which in some old writers is taken for the custom of giving entertainments to the sheriff, &c. for three nights. Rot. 11 & 12 Ric. 2.
The text is a page from a historical document discussing the cultivation and regulation of trees and shrubs. It includes references to the law regarding the proper treatment of trees and the penalties for offenses related to tree cultivation. The text also touches on the responsibilities of the owner in the event of damage or theft.
Tithes are due either by rule, or by custom: All tithes, which are due by rule, arise from such fruits of the earth as renew annually; or from the profit that accrues from the labour of a man. Hence it follows, that such tithes can never be part of, but must always be collateral to, the work from which they arise. 1 Rep. 13, 14. Priddle v. Napier.

Nay, tithes due by rule are so collateral to every kind of land, that if a lease is made of the glebe belonging to a rectory, with all the profits and advantages thereof; and there is besides a covenant, that the rent to be paid shall be in full satisfaction of every kind of exaction, and demand, belonging to the rectory; yet, as the glebe is not expressly discharged of tithes, the lease shall be liable to the payment thereof. 11 Rep. 13, 14. Priddle v. Napier. 1 Roll. Abr. 655. pl. 1. Gor. Edin. 261, 162. Gor. Carr. 352.

No tithes due by rule of the produce of a mine or of a quarry, because this is not a fruit of the earth renewing annually, but is the substance of the earth, and has perhaps been to a great number of years. F. N. B. 53. Br. J. P. p. 18. 2 Inf. 514. 1 Roll. Abr. 657. Gor. Carr. 352.

But in some places tithes are due by custom of the produce of mines. 2 Le. 49. Baxter v. Hutchinson.

No tithes are due by rule of time: The challs, of which this is made, being part of the soil. 1 Roll. Abr. 657. pl. 5.

Tithes are not due by rule of bricks, which are made from the earth itself. 2 Mod. 77. Stratfield's case.

Nor is tithes due by rule of turf, or of gravel: Because both these are part of the soil. 1 Mod. 35.

It has been held, that no tithes is due by rule of fall; because this does not renew annually. 1 Roll. Abr. 642. pl. 16.

But every one of these, and all things of the like kind, may by custom become tithable, 1 Roll. Abr. 642. pl. 7. pl. 8.

No tithes are due by rule of houses; for tithes are only due by rule of such things as renew from year to year. 11 Rep. 16. Brown's case.

But houses in London are, by decree, which was confirmed by an act of parliament, made liable to the payment of tithes, 2 Inf. 659. 7 H. 8. c. 2.

And before this decree, houses in London were by custom liable to pay tithes; the quantum to be paid being that which the market value of such houses for which the tithre was no customary payment. 2 Inf. 659. Hard. 116. Gibb. Ed. Rep. 153, 194.

There is likewise in most ancient cities, and boroughs, a custom to pay tithes for houses; without which there would be no maintenance in many parishes for clergy.

It was held by three barons of the Exchequer, Price, Montague, and Pigg, contrary to the opinion of Lord Chief Baron, that two tithes may be due of the same thing, one de jure, the other by custom. Bank. 43. Earl of Scarsborough v. Hunter.

Tithes are of three kinds, personal, prefidential, and mixt. Such tithes as arise from the profit of the personal labour of a man, in the exercise of any art, trade or employment, are called personal tithes. 2 Inf. 649.

By the statute 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 15 par. 7. Common day labourers are exempted from the payment of perifhial tithes.

No perifhial tithes are due from servants in his husbandry; for by their labour the tithes of many other things are increased. 1 Roll. Abr. 646. pl. 1.

The better opinion always was, that a miller, except he be occupied a corn mill, was only liable to the payment of 8 R. of

1. Of what tithes are in general due, and where personal tithes are due.
2. Of what preidential tithes are due; and of the tithes of application, corn, hay, wood, &c.

Vol. II. N°. 132.
of personal tithe. 2 Infl. 621. 1 Roll. Abr. 641. pl. 19.
Cra. Tet. 523.

But it seems to have been formerly held, that the occupier of a corn mill was liable to pay, as personal tithe, the tenth part of his toll. 2 Roll. Rep. 84. Seeow. 281. Brenvold. 32.

It is however now settled, by a decree of the house of Lords, that an appeal from a decree of the court of Exchequer, that only personal tithe are due from the occupier of a corn mill. 1 Ecf. Cap. Atr. 366. Newt v. Chamberlain, 2 Will. Rep. 453.

The occupier of a newly erected mill is liable to tithes, although such mill is erected upon land discharged of tithe. 2 Raym. 734. 460. 19.

It is said in one book, that the occupier of an ancient mill shall not pay tithes: But that the occupier of a new mill is, by the 9 Ed. 2. c. 1. e. 5. made liable to pay tithes. Mar. 15. pl. 36.

This seems to be a mistake, for that statute only provides, that new erected mills shall be liable to the payment of tithes: But, as nothing therein is said concerning ancient mills, there can be no doubt, that such ancient mills, as before the making of this statute were liable to pay tithes, continued afterwards to be liable. 12 Med. 245. Hort v. Hads. 3 Baff. 212.

No personal tithe is due by the occupier of the parson, who receives without personal labour, or of the profit which one man receives from the labour of another. 1 Roll. Abr. 656. pl. 1. pl. 2. 2 Infl. 621. 649.

If a man lets a ship to a fisherman, no personal tithe is due of the money received for the use of such ship, because it is a profit from without personal labour. 1 Roll. Abr. 656. n. pl. 2.

If a man purchases a house for 300l. and afterwards sells it for 500l. no personal tithe is due; for the personal labour bears no proportion in this case to the profit. 1 Roll. Abr. 656. n. pl. 5.

If a inn-keeper rents a house, profit, out of his kitchen, cellar, and stables, as to make 200l. of what cost him only 100l. no personal tithe is due of this profit: Because the profit did not arise from personal labour alone, and so far as it did, it perhaps arose more from the personal labour of servants, than from that of the master of the inn. 2 Baff. 141. Dolley v. Davitt.

2. Of what predial tithe are due; and of the tithe of agistment, corn, hay, and wood.

Such tithes, as arise immediately from the fruits of the earth, as from corn, hay, hemp, hops; and all kinds of the seeds and herbs, are called predial tithes. 2 Infl. 649. 1

They are so called, because they arise immediately from the fruits of the farm, or earth. 2 Infl. 647. By the ecclesiastical law many things are liable to the payment of predial tithes, which by the Common law are not so. 2 Infl. 621. 4 Med. 314.

The design under this head, is to show what things are liable by the Common law to pay predial tithes.

In doing this, it will appear, that some things, which are in the general exempted therefrom, become by custom liable to the payment of predial tithes. 1 Roll. Abr. 635. E. pl. 2. 2 Roll. Abr. 642. S. pl. 7. pl. 8.

It will also appear, that divers things, which are in the general liable thereto, are under particular circumstances exempted from the payment of such tithes. 1 Roll. Abr. 645. pl. 11. Cra. Eliz. 475. Pream. 355. 12 Med. 235.

But whenever any fraud is used, to bring a thing under those circumstances, by reason of which it would, if it had come fairly under them, have been exempted from the payment of predial tithes, it is by such fraud rendered liable thereto. Cra. Eliz. 475. Pream. 355.

They are not to be so considered, as to enumerate all the things which are liable to predial tithes, only those shall be mentioned, concerning the tithes of which some question has arisen; but, from such as will be mentioned, it may be easily collected of what other things predial tithes are due.

T I T

Adition. Agitation, in the first sense of the word, means the depasturing of a beast the property of a stranger; But this word is constantly used, in the books, for depasturing the beast of an occupier of land, as well as that of a stranger. 5 Bar. Ab. 53.

An occupier of land is not liable to pay tithe for the pasture of hoes, or other beasts, which are used in husbandry; and which there are depastured. Because the tithe of corn is by their labour increased. 1 Roll. Abr. 646. pl. 2. pl. 3. pl. 6. pl. 7. Cra. Eliz. 446. Ld Raym. 132.

But if hoes or other beasts be used in husbandry out of the parish, in which they are depastured, an agistment tithe will be laid upon them. 7 Med. 114. Harrow's cafe. Ld Raym. 130.

It seems to be the better opinion, that no tithe is due for the pasture of aaddle horse, which an occupier of land keeps for himself or servants to ride upon. 1 Roll. Abr. 643. 4. Cra. Jac. 430. Boff. 174. Bank. 3.

An occupier of land is liable to an agistment tithe, for all horses which he keeps for sale. Cra. Jac. 430. Hambton v. Wild. 1 Roll. Abr. 647. pl. 14.

No tithe is due for the pasture of milk cattle, which are milked in the parish, in which they are depastured; because the tithe is paid of the milk of such cattle. 1 Roll. Abr. 641. 2. Ld Raym. 130. Cra. Eliz. 446.

Milk cattle, which are referred for calving, shall pay no tithe for their pasture whithd they are dry: But if they are afterwards foid, or milked in another parish, an agistment tithe is due for the time they were dry. Hext. 110. Ld Raym. 130.

No tithe is due, from an occupier of land; for the pasture of young cattle, reared to be used in husbandry, or for the. Cra. Eliz. 446. 476. Sheringb v. Fleetwood.

But, if such young beasts are sold, before they come to such perfection as to be fit for husbandry, or before they become an agistment, the tithe must be paid for them. Hext. 86. Woolmer's cafe.

An occupier of land is liable to an agistment tithe, for all such cattle as he keeps for sale. Cra. Eliz. 446. 476. Cra. Eliz. 446. 476. Cron. Car. 237.

It is in general true, that an agistment tithe is due, for depasturing any fort of cattle the property of a stranger. Cra. Eliz. 279. Cra. Jac. 279. Bank. 1. Pream. 320.

No tithe is due for the cattle, either of a stranger or an occupier, which are depastured in grounds, that have in the same year paid tithe of hay. Bank. 10. 79. Pream. 334. Ld Raym. 131.

No agistment tithe is due for such beasts, either of a stranger or an occupier, as are depastured on the head lands of ploughed fields: Provided that these are not wider than is sufficient to turn the plough and horses upon. 1 Roll. Abr. 646. pl. 19.

No tithe is due for such cattle as are depastured upon land, in the same the year paid tithe of corn. Bcs. Disfm. 18. 1 Med. 216.

If land, which has paid tithe of corn in one year, is left unvown the next year, no agistment is due for such land; because, by this lying fallow, the tithe of the next crop of corn, will be exempted. 1 Roll. Abr. 646. 2.

But the land, which has paid tithe of corn, is suffered to lie fallow longer than by the cours of husbandry is usual, an agistment tithe is due for the beasts depastured upon such land. Slep. Abr. 1008.

As the question, whether an agistment tithe is due for sheep, does not seem to be quite settled, it will be a matter of great importance the principal cases, in which this has been agitated.

It is laid down in one old case, that no tithe is due for the pasture of sheep, because they are animalia fructuosa. 1 Roll. Rep. 63. pl. 7. Muscal v. Price. Mabs. 12. Tac. 1.

But
But in another book of the same author, where this very case is reported, there is a dubitator. 1 Rel. Ab. 642. pl. 8.

In a cafe, not long after, it was held, that an agrimen tite should be paid for sheep, which, after having been been turned to corn, and by the Lady—day, were removed into another; and by Ded dridge, justice, otherwise the parson of the parish might be declared of his tite; for the sheep are now carried into a second parish, and they may not be brought back and In another case, by Whittington, justice, that Di animalibus autilia, as horses, oxen, &c. the parson flasl have agrimen tite: But that De animalibus utilibus, as cows, sheep, &c. be shall have in specie.
In another cafe, it is said to have been laid down, that notwithstanding the nature of sheep eat in the
But, in another report of the same cafe, it is said to have been held, that no tite is due for the pasture of wethers; because they will yield a tite of wool. 1
Rel. Ab. 647. pl. 13.
In a modern cafe, in the court of Exchequer, it is said that, it seemed to be admitted, that tithe is due for the agrimen of yearling sheep, because it is a new

In another cafe shortly after, in the same court, it appeared, that sheep after paying tite of wool, had been sheared by the same person, by which they were bet tered to the value of five shillings each; and were then fold. It also appeared, that the defendant had, before the next shearing time, bought in as many as were fold; and that of the tite of wool was paid. It was infis ted, that, if an agrimen was to be paid for the sheep fold, this would be a double titing: But the court held, that this was a new increase, and decreed the defendant

In this cafe no notice was taken of the cafe of Baker and Sweet: But the cafe of Dammer and Wood field was not mentioned. In which it was held, that there had been decreed, and the decree had been affirmed on a rehearing, that the tite for depasturing sheep from the time of shearing till they were fold, should be account ed for.

But in a still later cafe, the court of Exchequer were of a quite different opinion. A bill was brought for the agriment of depasturing sheep four months in the parish after they had been thorn; it appeared also, that at the end of this time they were removed into another parish; and that they were thorn there at the next shearing time. In this cafe the cafes of Coleman and Baker, and Dammer and Woodfield was mentioned. But the court held, that no agrimen tite should be paid, because sheep are animalia fruitu.
Barns. 132. Poor v. Seymour, Hils. 5 Geo. 2.

Corn. It is laid down in some books, that no tite is due due to the reakings of corn incontinently fattened. 1 Mor. 278.

But, if more of any sort of corn is fraudulently fet tered, than, if proper care had been taken, would have been fattened, tite is due of the reakings of such corn. Cro.
Eliz. 475.

And it has been said by Holt, Chief Justice, that tite is due of the reakings of all corn, except such as is bound up in fheaves. 12 Med. 125.

No tites are due of the strubbles left in corn fields, after mowing or reaping the corn. 2 Inl. 621. 1 Rel. Ab. 646. 12.

Hay. Tite of hay is to be paid, although beefs of the plough or plail, or sheep to be foddered with fuch pl. 12. 12 Med. 497.

But no tite is due of hay grown upon the headlands of corn. It was held, that beefs that headlands are not wider then is sufficient to turn the plough and horspes upon. 1 Rel. Ab. 646. pl. 15.

It is laid down in one old cafe, that if a man cuts down grafs, and, while it is in the fheathes, carries it away and gives it to his plough cattle, not having sufficient fustenance for them otherwise, no tite is due thereof. 1

And in a modern cafe, the court of Exchequer femed to be held, that no tite is due of vetches or clover, cut green, and given to cattle in hufbandiy.
Bunb. 279. Hayes v. Dufay, Hils. 3 Geo. 2.

But in another cafe, some years before this latter cafe, it was held, that the right to tite of hay accurses upon mowing the gras, and that the fubsequent application of this, which is to grafs, or when it is made into hay, shall not, although beacts of the plough or pail are fed with it, take away this right. 12 Med. 498.

And the doctrine of this latter cafe coincides with that of an old cafe; in which it was held, that tares cut green, and given to cattle, the beacts of the plough, may by special custom be exempted from the payment of tites; from whence it follows, that such tares are not exempted de jure. 12

It is laid down in some books, that no tite is due of af termowth hay; because tite can only be due once in the Reym. 243.

But it is held in other books, that tite is due of aftermowth hay. 1 Rel. Ab. 64. pl. 11. Cro. Eliz.
Bunb. 541.

And the principle, upon which the doctrine that no tite is due of aftermowth hay is founded, is denied in some modern cases.

In some of thefe it is laid down, that tites shall be paid of divers crops grown upon the same land in the Bunb. 314. Swainf. v. Digg, Hils. 5 Geo. 2.

In others it is held, wherever there is in the same year a new increase from the same thing, tite is due. Bunb.

Wood. Tite of wood is not due of common right, because wood does not renew annually: But it was, in very antient times, paid in many places by custom.
Bunb. 61.

A confitution was made, in the twentieth year of the reign of Edward the Third, by John Stratford, archbishop of Canterbury, that tites shall be paid, within this province, of hifta caudis. 2 Inl. 642. Palm. 37, 38.

In the fame year, the commons petitioned the King, that no man be impleaded in court Chriftian for tites of wood or underwood, unless in fuch places where fuch tites be not due of common right, because wood does not renew annually: But it was, in very antient times, paid in many places by custom.
Bunb. 61.

A confitution was made, in the twentieth year of the reign of Edward the Third, by John Stratford, archbishop of Canterbury, that tites shall be paid, within this province, of hifta caudis. 2 Inl. 642. Palm. 37, 38.

In the same year, the commons petitioned the King, that no man be impleaded in court Chriftian for tites of wood or underwood, unless in fuch places where fuch tites be not due of common right, because wood does not renew annually: But it was, in very antient times, paid in many places by custom.
Bunb. 61.

A confitution was made, in the twentieth year of the reign of Edward the Third, by John Stratford, archbishop of Canterbury, that tites shall be paid, within this province, of hifta caudis. 2 Inl. 642. Palm. 37, 38.

In the same year, the commons petitioned the King, that no man be impleaded in court Chriftian for tites of wood or underwood, unless in fuch places where fuch tites be not due of common right, because wood does not renew annually: But it was, in very antient times, paid in many places by custom.
Bunb. 61.

A confitution was made, in the twentieth year of the reign of Edward the Third, by John Stratford, archbishop of Canterbury, that tites shall be paid, within this province, of hifta caudis. 2 Inl. 642. Palm. 37, 38.

In the same year, the commons petitioned the King, that no man be impleaded in court Chriftian for tites of wood or underwood, unless in fuch places where fuch tites be not due of common right, because wood does not renew annually: But it was, in very antient times, paid in many places by custom.
In consequence of this, a statute was made in these words: 'At the complaint of the Great men and Commoners, laying by their petition, that when they fell their gros wood, of the age of 20 or 40 years, and of a greater age, to merchants, to their own profit, and to the aid of the parish, the priests, and the common charges of Holy church do impede and trouble the said merchants, in court christian, for the tithe of the said wood, under the denomination of titua casta, by the reason of which they cannot feel their wood for the real value, to the great damage of themselves and the realm; it is ordained and established, that a prohibition in this case shall be granted, and upon the same an attachment, as it hath hitherto been.' 45 Ed. 3. c. 3.

From these petitions and answers, from this statute, and from books of the belt authority, it appears plainly, that no tithe of gros wood was due de jure at the Common Law, and that the demand thereof is such by virtue of the constitution made by the archbishop, was an encroachment. 2 Inf. 642. 45 Ed. 3. c. 3. Plowd. 470. Bro. Paroch. pl. 1. Cres. Jes. 100.

After the making of this statute, prohibitions were constantly granted to suits instituted in spiritual courts for tithes of gros wood. But two questions often arose, What is gros wood? And of what age gros wood must be before it is exempted from the payment of tithe? 2 Inf. 643. 644. 645.

For the putting an end to these, it hath been long settled, that by gros wood is not meant small wood, nor h一经 wood, but such wood as is generally, or by the custom of a particular part of the country, used as timber; and that all such wood, if of the age of 20 years,

Oaks, ashes, and elms, being universally used as timber, it hath been always held, that such trees, if of the age of 20 years, are gros wood. 2 Inf. 642. 643.

It had been held upon great deliberation, notwithstanding what is laid down to the contrary in Plowd. 470.

that a horn-beam tree, if of the age of 20 years, is gros wood; because this is used in building and repairing.

2 Inf. 643.

It is for the same reason been held, that an aspen tree, of the age of 20 years, is gros wood. Ibid.

Tithes are not in the general due of beach, birch, hazel, willow, fallow, alder, maple or white-thorn trees, or of any fruit trees, of whatsoever age they are: Because there are not timber. Plowd. 470. Cres. Eliz. 1 Cres. Jes. 190. 1 Roll. Abr. 640. pl. 5. pl. 6. Brentw. 94.

But, if the wood of any of these trees is used in a particular part of the country, where timber is scarce, in building and repairing, no tithe is due of such wood, if of the age of 20 years, in that part of the country. Hib. 20. Brentw. 94.

It is laid down in several old books, that, if a timber tree, after it is of the age of 20 years, decays so as to be unfit to be used in building, no tithe is due of the wood of this tree; because it was once privileged. 11 Rep.

But the contrary is laid down in some other books. In two of these it is laid down, that, if the wood of a coppice has been usually felled for firing, such wood shall pay tithe, altho' it stand till it be 40 years of age.

Sid. 500. 4 Lev. 189.

And in another it is laid down, that, if the wood of a timber tree is sold for firing, it is, altho' the tree was of the age of 20 years, liable to pay tithe. Banc. 99. Greenaway v. The Earl of Kent.

The reporter of this last case mentions four others, in which the same had been held; and says, that it was in one, that timber, if laid down, that tithes of timber-trees is only exempted from the payment of tithe, on the account of its being used in building. Buckle v. Lasare.

The doctrine, however, of the old books is confirmed by a very late case in the court of Chanery. A bill being brought for tithe of the lopping of timber-trees, which had been sold for firing, it was infilled that this wood, which would otherwise have been exempted from the payment of tithes, was liable thereof, because it was sold to be used for firing; and the cafes just now cited, were held by Hardwicke Chancellor, in the cafe in 1 Lev. 189, and Sid. 300. the wood in question was coppice wood, which had been usually felled for firing; and such wood, of whatever age it is, is always tithable. The cafe of Greenaway and the earl of Kent, is quite a singular one, and is not law, for in the cafe of Biddle and Durley, Hil. 11 Ges. 1. it was agreed, that no tithe is due of the wood of a timber tree, which has been once privileged from the payment of tithe, altho' such wood is sold to be used for firing, M.S. Rep. Walton v. Tryon, Mabel. 25 Ges. 2.

It is laid down in divers books that, if a timber-tree of the age of 20 years is lopped, no tithe shall be paid of the loppings altho' they are not of 20 years growth, for that the tree, which is privileged, shall privilege the loppings. Bros. Difam. pl. 14. 1 Rep. 4. Cres. Eliz. 4. Gibb. 175. 1 Roll. Abr. 640. pl. 3.

But the doctrine laid down in one old book, is, that such loppings of a timber-tree, as are of the age of 20 years, shall be exempted from the payment of tithes; and it is added as a reason, that branches of that age may be useful in building. Plowd. 470. Payy. v. Miltn. 3.

The former, however, is the better opinion.

But in this case the court appear, that the lopping of the trees, for the tithe of which the bill was brought, were not of 20 years growth: But it also appeared, that the trees were of the age of 20 years, before they had ever been lopped. It was held by Hardwicke, Chancellor, that no tithe was due of these loppings; for that, if a tree is once privileged from paying tithe, the privilege extends to all future loppings, of whatsoever age they are. M.S. Rep. Walton v. Tryon.

It has been said, that, altho' a tree has been once lopped before it was of the age of 20 years, the future loppings of such tree, provided these are of twenty years growth, are not tithable. 3 Roll. Abr. 640. pl. 1.

But in the case already cited, it was laid down by Hardwicke Chancellor, that wherever a tree has been lopped before it was of the age of 20 years, all future lopping, altho' ever so old, are liable to pay tithe. M.S. Rep. Walton v. Tryon.

It has been said, that, if a tree, which was once privileged from paying tithe, is felled, the germins that spring from the root of such tree, are also privileged. 11 Rep. 48. Lisler's cafe.

But in the case already cited, it was said by Hardwicke Chancellor, that all germins, which spring from the roots of trees that have been felled, are tithable. M.S. Rep. Walton v. Tryon.

The wood of a coppice, which has usually been felled for firing, is liable to pay tithe, altho' the same is of the age of 40 years. 1 Lev. 189. Sid. 300.

And in the case afore cited, it was said by Hardwicke Chancellor, if, when the wood of coppice is felled, some trees growing therein, which are of the age of 20 years, and have never been lopped, are lopped, and these loppings are promiscuously bound up in faggots with the coppice wood, tithe must be paid of the whole: because it would be very difficult, to separate the tithable wood from that which is not so; and the owner ought to fur-

3. Of what mixed tithes are due.

Such tithes as aris from beasts or fowls, which are fed with the fruits of the earth, are called mixed tithes. 2 Inf. 649. 1 Roll. Abr. 635.

Many things are by the ecclesiastical law liable to pay such tithes, which by the Common law they are not. 2 Inf. 621. 4 Med. 344.
That is eden'd, roll, roll, roll. That it is eden'd, roll.

Any young lambs at Matlock.

And at Milltimpton, the sockets for the future there is a use of such young pigeons as are from the house of the person who breeds them. 1 Will. 14. 1.

No title is due of the young of all birds and beasts, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

And the same remain in due, but by custom, or by use, such crops, cuts, and marks, as may happen to the same, shall be kept only for such purposes as the persons for whom they are kept or used, shall have before paid their due.

No title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

This is to certify, to enregister all the things which are liable to pay mixed tithe, only their due. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But that no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

The due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But that no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But that no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.

But no title is due of the young of all birds, except such as are free from the general liable to pay tithe. 1 Will. 14. 1.
pay such sum as upon such complaint shall be adjudged as aforesaid.

par. 12. It is enacted,* That the said justices shall have power to give costs, not exceeding ten shillings, to the party prosecuted, if they find the complaint false and vexatious.

By par. 5. It is provided, That this act shall not extend to titles within the city of London, or in any other place, where the fame are settled by any act of parliament.

By par. 7. An appeal is given to the felctions, and it is enacted, That if the justices there present, or the majority of them, shall confirm the judgment of the two justices, they shall decree the fame by order of sellion, and if the said two justices shall give such costs as to them shall seem just and reasonable.

By the fame par. it is enacted, That no proceedings, or judgments, had by virtue of this act, shall be removed, or superceded, by any writ of certiorari, or other writ whatsoever, unless the title of such titles shall be in question.

By the 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 34. par. 4. It is enacted, That where any quaker shall refuse to pay, or compound, for his great or small titles, it shall be lawful for the two next justices of the peace of the same county, other than such justice of the peace as is patron of the church, and appeal, to which the said titles belong, or any ways interred in the said titles, upon the complaint of the person who ought to have and receive the same, by warrant under their hands and seals to convene before them such quaker, and to examine upon oath, which oath the said quaker are impowered to administer, or in some manner as by this act is provided, the truth and justice of the said complaint, and to ascertain what is due from such quaker to the party complaining, and by order under their hands and seals to direct the payment thereof, so as the sum ordered, as aforesaid, do not exceed ten pounds; and upon refusal of such quaker to pay according to the said order, or upon refusal of any one of the said justices, by warrant under his hand and seal, to levy the money, thereby ordered to be paid, by diversfies and sale of the goods of such offender.

By the same par. it is enacted, That any person finding himself aggrieved, by any judgment given by such two justices of the peace, may appeal to the next general quarter-fellions, and the justices of the peace there present, or the major part of them, shall proceed finally to hear and determine the matter; and if the justices then present, or the major part of them, shall find cause to continue the said judgment, they shall then decree the same by order of sellions, and shall proceed to give such costs to the appellant, as to them shall seem just and reasonable.

And by the same par. it is enacted, That no proceedings, or judgment, had by virtue of this act, shall be removed or superceded by any writ of certiorari, or other writ out of his majesty's courts of Westminster, or any other court whatsoever, unless the title to such titles shall be in question.

By the 1 Geo. 1. fl. 2. cap. 6. par. 2. The like remedy is given for the recovery of all titles and all other ecclesiastical dues from quakers, as by the 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 34. is given for titles to the value of ten pounds.

And or thereby further provided, That any two or more justices of the peace of the same county or place, other than such justice as is patron of the church, or chapel, to which the said titles or dues belong, or any ways interred in the said titles, upon complaint of any parson, vicar, curate, farmer or proprietor of such titles, or other of such goods, that he hath received or recoverd, any such titles or dues, are hereby required to summons, in writing under their hands and seals, by reasonable warning, such quaker or quakers, against whom such complaint shall be made; and after his or their appearance, or upon default of appearance, the said warning or summons shall be proceeded upon, to hear and determine the said complaint, and to make such order therein as in the said act is limited or directed; and also to order such costs and charges, not exceeding ten shillings, as upon the merits of the cause shall appear just; which order shall and may be so executed, and be so recovered or affirmed, by the general quarter-fellions of the county or place, with such costs and remedy for the same, and shall not be removed into any other court, unless the title to such titles shall be in question, in like manner as in and by the same act is limited and provided.

For matters relating to this subject, see 5 Bat. Abp. tit. Titles, 8 Vin. Abt. tit. Disfrs, and a new tractise on the laws concerning Titles.

Citing, (Tittlingum, From the Saxon Teuthang, which signifies Describer,) Signifies, (according to Lambard, in his Book of Confultic) the number or company of such tithes, connected in one society, all being bound to the King for the peaceable behaviour of each other. Of these companies, there was one chief or principal person, from whom his office was called teuthang-man, at this day in some places tittlingum, but is indeed a confable, for the old way of tithing is long since left off. It is also used for a court, Magna charta, cap. 25. Morton, cap. 10, and 23 B. 3. cap. 4. Cowell. edid. 1727. See Chief pledge, Frank-pledge, December and Titlingum.

Citing'men, In the Saxon times, for the better conservation of peace, and the more easy administration of justice, every county was divided into ten districts or tithings, each tithing made up of ten fribergis, each friborg of ten families; which tittlingmen, or civil deans were to examine, and determine all leffer causes between villages and neighbours, but to refer all greater matters to the superior courts, which had a jurisdiction over the whole hundred. Cowell. edid. 1727. See Ew. Parisb. Aux. p. 633.

Title, (Titulus,) Properly is when a man hath lawful cause of entry into lands whereof another is seised, for which he can have no action, as title of mortmain, or title to enter for breach of condition; But legally this word is used only for an absolute title or right in the personal word, for every right is a title, but every title is not such a right for which an action lies, and therefore Titulus of jusfa canfa Joflalini quad tisfum off, and signifies the means whereby a man cometh to his land, as his title is by fine or feoffment. And as by a release of a right a title is released, so by release of a title, a title is released also. See Co. 4. Rep. Ew. Allam's case. This is a word mentioned in several councils and synods; and it signifies the church to which a priest was ordained, and where he was constantly to reside. Const. London. an. 1125. Nulius in proutetamen, nullus in diatamen, titulus in quibuslibet. Every title of the church signifies many reasons why a church is called titulus. But that which seems the best, is, because in former days the name of the Saint to whom the church was dedicated, was engraved on the porch, as a figur that the saint had a title to that church. From whence the church itself was afterwards called titulus. Cowell. edid. 1727. See 2 Vin. 276. 258.

Title of Entry, Is when one seised of land in fee, makes a feoffment thereof on condition, and the condition is broken; after which the feoffee hath title to enter into the land, and may do so at his pleasure, and by his entry, the seised title shall be liable to be set aside in him prefently. And it is called Title of Entry, because he cannot have a writ of right against his seoffice upon condition, for his right was out of him by the feoffment, which cannot be reduced into entry; and the entry must be for the breach of the condition. Cowell. edid. 1727.

Dilinpho, T. B. 2. edid. 1706. Deuot. For rebuilding the town of, 5 Geo. 2. c. 14.

Talatat, A towel. In the inquisition of seignories and knight's fee, within the counties of Essex and Hertford, made in the 12th and 13th year of King John,—Petrus Pictus tenat domicilium cum domino in civitatem Hept-Nive in county Essex et coronatione Regis.—i. e. by the service of waiting with a towel at the King's coronation.—Ex Lib. Rab. Sanc. fol. 137.
Tobacco. Not to be planted in England or Ireland, 2. Car. 2. c. 34. 15 Car. 2. c. 7. f. 18. 2 & 3 Car. 2. c. 26. 5 Geo. I. c. 11. f. 19.

A duty of 3d. per pound upon tobacco, 1. Jace. 2. c. 10. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 21. f. 29.

This duty made perpetual, and part of the South-Sea fund, by 9. Ann. c. 21.

Security to be given on importing tobacco, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 23. f. 10.

Tobacco to be imported in cafe or chaff only, 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 21. f. 29.

Three months time given for paying the subsidy on plantation tobacco, 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 23. f. 10.

Tobacco to be imported in cafe or chaff only, 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 21. f. 29.

Nine months time given for paying the one third subsidy on tobacco, 2 & 3 Ann. g. c. 9. f. 11.

European tobacco or of foreign plantations not to be sold on board ships of war, 6 Ann. c. 32. f. 12.

No debenture or drawback for ships under 20 tons, 8. Ann. c. 12. f. 20.

Allowances made out of the duties on tobacco, 12 Ann. f. 2. c. 8. 5 Geo. I. c. 7. 9 Geo. I. cap. 21. fess. 3. 12.

The adulterating tobacco and snuff prohibited, 1 Geo. I. c. 46. 5 Geo. I. c. 11. f. 22.

Importation of foreign tobacco prohibited, 1 Geo. I. c. 46. 5 Geo. I. c. 11. f. 22.

Importation of tobacco as well as smuggling is prohibited, 1 Geo. I. c. 46. 5 Geo. I. c. 11. f. 22.

Allowance for wafe in exporting to Ireland, 6 Geo. I. c. 21. f. 48.

Penalty on landing tobacco in Ireland, that is entered for other foreign parts, 6 Geo. I. c. 21. f. 49.

Condemned tobacco to be fold or burnt, 12 Geo. I. c. 38. f. 13.

Importation of tobacco flacks prohibited, 12 Geo. I. c. 28. f. 13.

Repeal of a prohibition of importing tobacco stripped, 2 Geo. II. c. 2. 9.

Allowance and drawback upon tobacco out of the last subsidies, 2 Geo. II. c. 2. f. 5.

Importers of tobacco to bring a manifefl from the officer of the custom in the plantations, 24 Geo. II. c. 41.

Regulations for removing tobacco by land, 24 Geo. II. c. 41. f. 9. 26 Geo. II. c. 13.

Regulations for carrying tobacco coastwise, 24 Geo. II. c. 41. f. 10.

No tobacco to be exported unless in vefsels of 70 tons, 24 Geo. II. c. 2. 41. f. 25.

Interest to be paid on tobacco bonds from the day in the condition to the day of the feeder's certificate, 24 Geo. II. c. 41. f. 30.

An interest may be allowed on a tobacco bond, before it is due, 24 Geo. II. c. 41. f. 30.

Tobacco removed without certificate may be feized, 26 Geo. II. c. 13. f. 2.

Claud Joinfion relieved from his bond for fecuring duty on tobacco, 3 Geo. III. c. 26. f. 8.

For other matters, fee Customs, Plantations, Snuff.

Tobacco pipe clay, not to be exported: 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 18. f. 8. 5 Geo. I. c. 21. fess. 32.

Toe of wool. Contains twenty-eight pound, or two flacks, contained in the flacks 12 Car. 2. cap. 32. See 3 f. 7. f. 96.

Toft, (Tifiun) A mefflage or rather a place where a mifflage formerly flooded, but is decayed or casually burnt, and not re-built. It is a word much used in fhips. Wolf. Symbol part. 2. lit. Finals. fett. 26.

Toile, (French Toile, f. Tela) Signifies with us a net or cord to encompass or take deke; which is forbid to be unlawfully in parks, on pain of 20l. for every deer taken therewith, Stat. 3 & 4 Will. & M. c. 10. f. 5.

Tolled (Signet) Of difteners. See Newcomenfmiths.

Toff, To bar, defeat, or take away; as to toll the entry, i.e. to deny or take away the right of entry. Stat. 8 Hen. 6. c. 9.

Toll, (Tollum, theodunum) Is a Saxon word and properly a payment in towns, markets, and fairs, for goods bought and fold. It is a reasonable fum of money due to the owner of the fair or market, upon falfe of Things tollable in a town, market, or for tollage, piege, or the like. 2 Sift. 250.

Information againft B. farmer of Newgate market, for extortion, in taking divers fums of money of the market people for rent for the use of the little flalls in the market, and divers great sums for fines, and was found guilty. It was helid by the court of B. R. and by Hild Chief Justice at Guildhall, that if the defendant confeds feveral flalls, and does not leave fufficient room for the market people to tend and fettle their wares; fo that for want of room they are forced to hire the flalls of the defendant, the taking of money for the use of the flalls and of the said rent in that way, is extorfion, if the people have room enough clear to themselves, to come and fell their wares, but for their further convenience they voluntarily hire thefe flalls of the defendant, without any necelfity compelling them, there it is no extortion, tho' the defendant takes a fine and rent for the use of them. The law has not appointed any flalls for the market people, but only that they shall have the liberty of the market, which the defendant does not abridge, having left room enough besides the place where the flalls are fet; and then if they will enjoy the convenience of the flalls, they must comply with the defendant's term. 1. Raym. 148. 149. Hill. 8 & 9 W. 4. c. 12.

Taking outrageous toll prohibited. St. Walm. 1. 3 Ed. 1. c. 31.

Toll of a mill how to be taken. Ord. pro fijlar. c. 4.

Toll not to be taken, or any thing in lieu thereof, but in the usual proportion, 22 Car. 2. c. 8. fess. 8. See 5 Ed. 1. c. 16. fess. 7.

Portoll. A prefcription to have port-toll for all goods coming into a man's port may be good; and this 'tis faid without any confideration. 2 Leov. 90. 2 Lat. 1519. And it hath been adjudged, that the liberty of bringing goods in a port for safety, implies a confideration in itself. 3 Lat. 37. Preffcription of toll for goods landed in a manor, or to have port-toll for all goods coming into ports, is a good preffcription; but not to have toll of goods brought into a river, 2 Leov. 96, 97.

Toll may be appartenant to a manor. 2 Mod. 144.

Shoynough-toll is properfly where a toll is taken of men for tolling them in the high ftreets. 22 Roll. Afr. 522. 22 Af. 58. by Thorpe. Mich. 41. & 42 Ed. B. R. in Smith v. Shepherd's cafe. Thorough-toll improperly is when toll is taken of men for fifting thro' a vill, in a place which is not the high ftreets. 22 Roll. Afr. 522. 22 Af. 58. by Thorp.

Toll traverfe is properly when a man pays certain toll for fifting over the fof of another man in a way not a high ftreets. 22 Af. 58. by Thorp, M. 41. 42 Ed. B. R. in Smith v. Shepherd's cafe. The words tollo-through and toll-outerve are used promiscuously. Arg. And the court feared to agree. Mod. 232. in cafe of James v. Jefhorn.

A man cannot preffcribe to have thorough-toll of men paffing thro' a vill in the high ftreets, because it is againft the common law and common right; for the high ftreets is common to all. 2 Roll. Afr. 522. 22 Af. 58. by Thorp, M. 41. 42 Ed. B. R. between Smith v. Shepherd. dubitatatur without alleging of a special confideration, as the repairing the way.

And the King cannot have fuch toll for paffing in the high ftreets, as in the cafe aforefaid, for the caufe aforefaid. 2 Roll. Afr. 522. 22 Af. 58. by Thorp.

A man may preferve to have toll-traverfe of men paffing thro' a vill in a place which is not the high ftreets; for it is more than the law allows to go there. 2 Roll. Afr. 523. 22 Af. 58.

A man may preferve to have toll-traverfe of men paffing over his fof in a way which is not a high ftreets, and the preference is fecured. 2 Roll. Afr. 522. 22 Af. 58. Bro. Tell. pl. 6. cites S. C. Toll-standes, is when one claimeth to have toll for every bead driven over his ground; fo for a man may null
trade, tho' it be to a particular place only, if there was no consideration for it, it is void; if there be a consideration, in such case it may be good: But if the restraint be general throughout England, altho' there be a consideration, it will be void. 2 Litt. Abr. 179. L. Rep. 1457. Tho. 32. 390.

A person not qualified to exercise a trade himself, by having served an apprenticeship, entering into partnership with a qualified partner, and only sharing the profits and flanding the risks, of the partnership, without ever exercising or interfering in the trade himself personally, is within the prohibition and penalty of 5 Eliz. c. 4. So as to be liable to the penalties of it. Burn. Rep. 5. 10. See 20 Vin. Abr. 317. 335.

Traga, Was a fort of waggon without wheels. It is mentioned in the Magnon. 1 tom. p. 851. Drain, &c. See Dri.

Tranfcriptio, (Mentioned in flat. 24 & 35 H. 8. cap. 14. Is the copy of any original written again or exemplified, as the Transcript of a fine. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Tranfcriptio recognizantium factae rogationi juriariai intertitumatis, Gr. Is a writ for the certifying of a recon- sistance taken before justices in eyre in the Chancery. Reg. Orig. fol. 192.

Tranfcriptio orallis, Is a writ commonly called a writ or action of trespass, of which Fitchbury reckons two forts; one invento, so called because it is directed to the sheriff, and is not returnable, but to be determined in the court; the form whereof differs from the other, because it hath their words, Quare ui & arnis, &c. F. N. B. fol. 84. The other is termed a writ of trespass upon the cafe, which is to be sued in the King's Bench or Common Pleas, in which are used always these words, ui & arnis, F. N. B. fol. 92. See Trespass, and the divers uses of this writ in the table to the Register of writs, and 2 Leif. f. 419.

Tranfcriptio, (Mentioned in flat. 14 Car. 2. cap. 11.) Is used for a Cufforn houfe warrant or let-pafs; from tranfies, to go forth or let pafs. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Tranfcriptio is the opposite to local. See Local.

Tranflation, (Translatio) In a common fenie of the word signifies a verion out of one language into another; but in a more confined acceptation, it denotes the setting from one place to another, and the removal of a bishop to another diocefe, &c. this is called tranflying. And such a writ Mnore writes not anna confecratio, but anna tranfizationis mysteri, &c. A bishop tranfflated is not confecratas ne new; for a confecration is like an ordina- tion, and is an indefeasible character, and holds for ever. 3 Salt. 72. but a bishop is to be a new elected, &c. 1 Salt. 137.

Tranfposition, Notorious spoil-takers in Northam- berland, &c. may be tranfposed. 18 Car. 2. c. 3. f. 2. 2.

The judges may transport felon that flees cloth from the rack in the night, or embezzle the King's stores. 22 Car. 2. c. 5.

Felons burning flacks of corn, or killing cattle in the night, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 7. f. 4.

Felony is the benefit of clergy may be punished with imprisonment, 4 Car. 2. c. 11.

Felons may be tranfposed by a subsequent court for the fame county, 6 Geo. 1. c. 23.

Expence of tranfposition to be paid by the county treasurer. 6 Geo. 1. c. 33. f. 3.

Submissions for tranfposition to be in the name of the clerk of the plece. 6 Geo. 1. c. 23. f. 4.

Refusing transporte, death, 6 Geo. 1. c. 23. f. 5.

Convicts not transporting themselves, or returning, to suffer death. 16 Geo. 2. c. 15. f. 1.

Directions for trial of offenders who return from transpo, or do not transport themselves. 16 Geo. 2. c. 15. f. 2.

Reward for convicting such offenders, 10 Geo. 2. c. 15. f. 3.

Vol. II. N° 110.

TRA

Rebels transported and returning, or going into France or Spain, guilty of felony without clergy, 20 Geo. 2. c. 46.

Transubstantiation, A declaration against the doctrine of transubstantiation used in the church of Rome is requir'd. 20 Geo. 2. c. 39.

Traverfie, (from the French Traverse, f. Transfier) Signifies sometimes to deny, sometimes to overthrow or undo a thing, or to put one to prove some matter; much used in answers to bills in Chancery; or it is that which the defendant pleads, or faith in bar to avoid the plaintiff's bill, either by confessing and avoiding, or by denying and traversing the material parts thereof. West. Synb. part 2. tit. Chancery, fect. 54. 55. The formal words of which traverse are in our French fœns cert, in Latin pig. box, and in the English without that. See Kitchin, fol. 227, and 1741. Pr. Wroxf. Prer. cap. 20. See 20 Vin. Abr. tit. Traverse.

Traverse an inquit, Is to take issue upon the chief matter, and to contradict or deny some point of it. As in a pretention against A. for a highway overflowed with water, for default of securing a ditch, &c. A. may traverse either the matter, that there is no high- way there, or that the ditch is sufficiently secured; or otherwise he may traverse the cause, viz. That he hath not the land, or that he and they; whole eftate; &c. have not used to fow the ditch. Lamb. Eiren. lib. 4. cap. 13. f. 521. 522. Cowell. edit. 1727. See 20 Vin. Abr. tit. Traverse.

An office Issued, to prove that an inquisition made on lands or goods by efeecor is defective, and untruly made. Cowell, edit. 1727.

An office returned by an efeecor in Chancery may be traverse. 2 Ed. 3. c. 2.

Lands feized on an inquisition shall not be let to farm till a month after it is returned, and shall be let to the party that will traverse the inquisition, 8 H. 6. c. 16.

No grant to be made of lands till a month after the inquisition is also returned. 18 H. 6. c. 6.

No protection to be allowed to a patentee in the fire facius, 23 H. 6. c. 16.

Rights faved that are not found by the inquisition, 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 8.

Traveile given, where the King is intituled by double matter and execution, 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 8. f. 7.

Traveller, A ferry. 'Tis mentioned in the Ma- gnificon. 2 tom. 1002.

Travellers, Of those fhillers who used unlawful arts and engines to destroy the fifh upon the river Thames, some were flipt, t'other others hanged, two were drowned, and the others fleaven of London, p. 19. Hence to trawl or traveile with treliving-line for pikes.

Trawlbotton. See Jifsices of Trawlbotton; and fee copies of severable commissions granted to them by Ed- ward the first in Spelman's Slugary, trelle Trawlbotton. The common people in those days called them Trawlbotton, quid fonts, trelle baculum. Edward the first in his thirty-second year, lends out a new writ of inquisition, called Trawlbotton, against intrudors on other men's lands, who, to oppress the right owner, would make over their lands to great men; against batters hired to beat men, breakers of the peace, ravifhers, incendiaries, murderers, fighters, false affirows, and other such malefactors: Which inqui- sition was so strictly executed, and such fines taken, that it brought in exceeding much trelve to the King. Chron. fol. 111. See Plac. parliamentaria, fol. 211. & 230. Anno 1303. 2 Ed. 1. In a parliament of 1 Rich. 2. the Commons of England petitioned the King, that no commiion of Eyle or Trawlbotton, might be issued during the wars, or for twenty years to come. R. Par. 1 R. 2. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Trafalgar, (from the French Trafalgar, f. Transfier) See Trafalgar.

Tranfportation, Of taking arms by the King's authority against his perfon, and those that are com- mission'd by him, condemned by the flat. 14 Car. 2. cap. 3.

8 T. E. B. C.
The initial letters half of this continuall note of time in the dariTuye r giTfer, where the valuation of mansors is recounted, what it was in the time of Edward the Conqueror; and what since the conquest. As in Oxenforde—manorium de

(Ed. Perdris.) Of the French Treasur, and it is divided into high treason and petty treason; high treason is defined to be an offence committed against the security of the King or kingdom, whether it be by imagination, word, or deed; as to compass or imagine the death of the King, Queen, or Princess, to deface, despite, or defend the King's wife, or that her eldest son's wife: or levy war against the King in his realm, adhere to his enemies, counterfeit his Great seal, Privy seal, or money;

Or wettingly to bring false money into this realm counterfeited like the money of England, and utter the name. To kill the King's Chancellor, Treasurers, Justices of either bench, Justices in Eyre, of seise, or of Oyer and Terminer, being in their place doing their office. Stat. 25

E. 2. cap. Forging the King's seal manual or privy signet, Privy seal, or foreign coin current here. Stat. 22

Mar. cap. 6. Or diminishing or impairing current money. Stat. 14 Eliz. cap. 2, 18 Eliz. 1. Or to lay the King is an heretick or papist, or that he intends to introduce popery, &c. ann. 13 Car. 2. cap. 1. &c. In case of this treason, a man shall be drawn, hanged, and quartered, and forfeit his lands and goods to the King. It is called also treason paramount. Ann. 25 E. 3. 2. Petit treason, or counterfeiting treason in the statute

14 Car. 2. cap. 29, Cowell, edit. 1727.

Many offences, which are not mentioned in the 25
Ed. 3. fl. 5. c. 2, before the making of this statute were

It was high treason, to have compassed the death of the father, or uncle of the King. 32 I. 7.

If one subjete of this realm, instead of having fum-momed another to anfwer in the King's courts, had fum-momed him to appear before the tribunal of a foreign prince, this was high treason. Ibid.

By the 25 Ed. 3. fl. 5. cap. 2, after declaring divers offences to be high treason, it is enacted, "That because many cases of the like treason may happen in time to come, which a man cannot think of nor declare at present, if any other cafe supposed to be high treason, which is not specified above, doth hereafter happen before any one of the Justices, such justice shall not proced to the same of treason, unless the same be laid before the King in parliament, and be declared, whether it ought to be adjudged a treason or another felony."

Notwithstanding this clause, some justices did presume to adjudge certain offences, that are not mentioned in this act, to be high treason: But they were for so doing, it was very fit they should, severely punished.

3 I. 22, 23.

In confequence of the power given by this clause, divers offences were by different parliaments declared to be high treason. 3 I. 3, 14, 23.

As some of the acts of parliament, by which these diverse offences, were penned in general terms; others of them in particular terms; and others in obscure terms;

and as some offence, which had in some parliaments been declared to be high treason, were in other parliaments declared not to be so; the mischief, which arose from the difficulty of knowing what was or was not, high treason, as great as it is, so that they had to make the

by the making of the 25 Ed. 3. fl. 5. cap. 2.

In order to put a flop to these, it was by the 1 Mar.
fl. 1. cap. 1. par. 3, enacted, "That from henceforth none act, deed, or offence, being by act of parliament made high treason, other than the words in the bills, or otherwise whatsoever, shall be taken, had, deemed or adjudged, to be high treason, but only such as be declared and expressed to be high treason, in or by the act of parliament made in the twenty-fifth year of the reign of the most noble King of famous memory Edward the Third, touching or concerning treason or the declarations of treason, and none other; any act or acts of par-lament had or made at any time heretofore, or after the said twenty-fifth year of the reign of the said late King

Edward the Third, or any other declaration, or matter, to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding."

The consequence of this clause is, that no offence is at this day high treason, unlefs it is declared to be so by the 25 Ed. 3 fl. 5. cap. 2, or has been made so by some further statute subsequent to the fifth year of the reign of Queen Mary.

And no offence is to be adjudged high treason, unlefs

it be clearly, and without argument or inference, within the meaning of some act of parliament; for no foranary, whereby any offence is declared to be, or made, high treason, is to be extended to equity. Pleas. 86.

3 I. 12. 20, 21. 18 Ed. 1. c. 1. s. 1.

There can be no accurary in high treason. Bro. Treof.
Pl. C. 310.

And it seems to be always agreed, that, what would have made a man an accurary before the fact in any other

d felony, does make him a principal in high treason. 3
Pl. C. 310.

It has been determined, that the receiving and aiding a traitor, after the offence has been committed, does make him a principal in treason, the act of counterfeiting the King's money, make a man a principal in high treason. Dyer 556.

Corner's case.

But the better opinion is, that the receiving and aiding a man, who has been guilty of counterfeiting the King's money, makes the person doing a principal in this, as well as in every other species of high treason. 3

Pl. C. 310.

By the 7 Ann. cap. 21, par. 1. It is enacted, That after the first day of July 1709, such crimes and offences, which are high treason within England, shall be considered, adjudged, and taken to be high treason within Scotland, and that no crimes or offences shall be high treason within Scotland, but those that are high treason within England.

The distinction of high and petit treason was not known to the law of Scotland; for every offence, which made a man a principal in England petit treason, was by the law

At this day, an offence, which is in England petit treason, is in Scotland only a capital offence: It being by the 7 Ann. cap. 21, par. 7, enacted, "That murder under trut, which was by the law of Scotland treason, shall for the time be only adjudged and deemed to be a capital offence."

1. Who are in the capacity of being guilty of high treason, and against whom high treason may be committed.

2. Of the different kinds of high treason.

1. Who are in the capacity of being guilty of high treason, and against whom high treason may be committed.

Every subject, who is within the age of discretion, may be guilty of high treason. 3 I. 4. 1 Hawk. P. C. 2, 35.

35. But out of the duty of allegiance to the King is so indiscernible from a natural born subject, that, notwithstanding all he can do to renounce it, and transfer his subjection to a foreign prince, if he prattises any thing, which would be high treason in any other person, it is so in him. 1 Hawk. 139. 3 I. 35.

35. In the first times, if a madman has been guilty of any attempt upon the life of the King, it was high treason. 3 I. 6. 4 Rep. 124.

But
But since the statute made in the 25th year of the reign of Ed., 3, the words of which are, when a man doth commit any treason for which the King the King's Majesty shall have been declared by any person in the actual possession of the crown, it has been held that a man, who is non campus mentis, is incapable of compassing or imagining; and, consequently, that such a one cannot be guilty of 'that species of high treason, which confit in compassing or imagining the death of the sovereign of the realm,' 3 H. 6., c. 20., p. 1. It was enacted, 'That, if any person shall commit high treason, when he is of good and whole memory, and after accusation, or confession thereof shall fall to madness, the treason done by such person may be tried in his absence; and that when he shall, if found guilty, suffer such pains and forfeitures, as if he had been of good and whole memory, and had been personally arraigned.'

And pare. 2. It was enacted, 'That if any person shall be attainted of high treason, and afterwards fall into madness he shall, notwithstanding such madmen, have and suffer execution.'

But this cruel law was, as it was highly reasonable it should, soon repealed; for the design of all punishment is example, ut parva ad paucos, metus ad amuros, perpetuat: But, when a madman is executed, it is both a miserable spectacle, and an infalute of extreme inhumanity and cruelty, if the execution of such a one can be no example to others. 3 Inst. 4., 6.

The husband of a Queen regnant may be guilty of high treason against such Queen because he is, in the eye of the law, a distinct person to divers purposes from her husband. 3 Inst. 8.

An ambassador from a foreign prince may be guilty of high treason; because, as he came into the kingdom in a friendly manner, and has enjoyed the King's protection, a local allegiance is due from him. 3 Inst. 153.; 7 Rep. 6. 1 Hawk. P. C. 35.

The offence of high treason may be committed against any person, who has in the actual possession of the crown, although such person is only King or Queen de facto, and not de jure; for, as the lives and properties of the people are protected, by such King or Queen, during his or her administration of the laws, allegiance and subjunction are due in return for his protection. 3 Inst. 7. H. P. C. 124.; 3 Hawk. P. C. 35.

Nay, it has been held, That, if any offence amounting to the crime of high treason has been committed against a King de facto, and the King de jure afterwards comes to the crown, this offence is still punishable as high treason. 3 Inst. 7. Bro. Trost. pl. 10. H. P. C. 124.; 3 Hawk. P. C. 35.

By the 11 H. 7., cap. 1. It is enacted, 'That no person who attends upon the King for the time being, to do him true and faithful service of allegiance, or in other places, by his commandment, in his wars, within this land, or without, shall for the said deed be convicted for high treason.

And it is in the general true, that the offence of high treason cannot be committed against the person who has a right to the crown, so long as any king de facto is in actual possession thereof: because allegiance is only due to the latter. 3 Inst. 7. H. P. C. 104. 1 Hawk. P. C. 35.

It was indeed resolved, after the restoration of King Charles the Second, that all the acts, which had been done to prevent his acquiring the actual possession of the crown, were high treason. Kel. 15. The case of the Regicides.

But this resolution does not contradict the doctrine just laid down: For it had been first resolved, by the fame judges, that this prince, notwithstanding he had been for some years hindered from exercising the regal power, had been 'not an enemy of this state, as well as King de jure; and it is certain, that no other person has, during this time, been in the actual possession of the crown.' Kel. 15. 1 Hob. 315., 454. 1 Hawk. P. C. 36.

The crime of high treason may be committed against the person on whom the crown rightfully descends, before he becomes legally the King; it has been determined, by all the judges, that the coronation of a King or Queen is only a solemnity. 3 Inst. 7. Wauchope's case. H. P. C. 12. 1 Hawk. P. C. 36.

But, if the person so called is next heir to the crown, is of the Romish religion, or has married a papist; the crime of high treason cannot be committed against such person; for by the W. & M. fl. 2. c. 1. par. 9. is enacted, 'That every person, who is or shall be reconciled to the Romish religion, the fee or church of Rome; or shall profess the popish religion, and shall be guilty of any crime, shall be excluded, and be for ever incapable to inherit, possesse, or enjoy the crown and government of this realm, and Ireland, and the dominions thereunto belonging, or any part of the same; or to have, use, or execute any authority, power, or jurisdiction, within the same; and, in all and any such court or causes, the people of these realms shall be, and hereby are, abolved of their allegiance.'

2. Of the different kinds of high treason.

By the 25 Ed., 3. cap. 2. par. 1. It is declared to be high treason, when a man does compass or imagine the death of our Lord the King, or the Queen his consort, or of their eldest son and heir; and thereto be provably attained of overt deed.

This clause does not expressly mention a Queen regnant; but the construction has been, that such a Queen is within the meaning of the words our Lord the King. 3 Inst. 7. H. P. C. 12. 1 Hawk. P. C. 36.

The husband of a Queen regnant seems to be within the meaning of the words, in this clause, of the Queen his consort; as is not within the letter of the words, it has been held, that it is not high treason to compass or imagine his death. 3 Inst. 7. H. P. C. 12. 1 Hawk. P. C. 36.

This clause does not extend to any Queen dowager; for although the retain the title of Queen she is not the comfort of a King regnant. 3 Inst. 8. 1 H. P. C. 124. 1 Hawk. P. C. 37.

And if the wife of a King regnant is divorced a vinculo matrimonii, it is not high treason to compass or imagine her death, because the cestuis are to his comfort. 3 Inst. 8. 1 H. P. C. 124. 1 Hawk. P. C. 37.

If the elder son of a King or Queen regnant dies, without leaving any issue, during the life of such King or Queen, this clause extends to the next son; because he thereby becomes the eldest son and heir. 3 Inst. 8. H. P. C. 12. 1 Hawk. P. C. 37.

But it has been doubted, whether, if the eldest son of a King or Queen regnant dies, during the life of such King or Queen, and leaves issue a son, it be high treason to compass or imagine the death of such son. 1 H. P. C. 125., 126.

It is said, that the eldest daughter of a King or Queen regnant is not within the meaning of this clause. 3 Inst. 9. 1 H. P. C. 126., 127.

In one book this difference is taken, that this clause does not extend to a collateral heir apparent, who is only proclaimed heir apparent; but that, if such collateral heir apparent is declared to be heir apparent, by an act of parliament, it extends to him. 3 Inst. 9. But
As the words in this clause compass or imagine do imply a design, it follows, that the taking away the life of the person included therein is not high treason, unless it be accompanied with some circumstance of design. 3 Inst. 5. 1 Hawk. P. C. 35.

By whatever design upon the life of one of the persons comprehended in this clause is manifested by an overt act, this, although such design is not afterwards carried into execution, is high treason; for the words of the statute are death compass or imagine.

If divers meet to consult the destruction of the King, this is, in every one of them, an overt act of compaining or imagining his death. 3 Inst. 12. 1 And. 104. Kel. 17, 21. 1 Hawk. P. C. 56.

Nay, the knowledge of a design to destroy the King, if accompanied with any circumstance of intent, or approbation, is an overt act of this species of treason. 3 Inst. 14. H. P. C. 127. Kel. 17, 21. 1 Hawk. P. C. 35.

If a man, knowing that a meeting is to be held to consult the destruction of the King, goes to such meeting, this, altho' when there he fays nothing, is evidence of his intent to, or approbation of, the traitorous intention. Kel. 17, 21. The case of the Regicides. 1 Hawk. P. C. 56.

If a man, who has once been accidentally present at an assembly to consult the destruction of the King, goes a second time to such an assembly, this is also evidence of his intent to, or approbation of, the traitorous design. Kel. 17, 21. The case of the Regicides. 1 Hawk. P. C. 55.

Many other acts, besides such in which the design, in the first instance, is to take away the King's life, are overt acts of this species of treason.

If a man incites a foreign prince to invade the realm, this is an overt act of compaining or imagining the King's death; because it has a direct and natural tendency to bring his life into imminent danger. 3 Inst. 14. H. P. C. 13. Dyer 238. 1 Hawk. P. C. 35.

The assembling of men, with an intention of compaining the King to comply with a certain demand is, for the same reason, an overt act of this species of treason. 3 Inst. 16. H. P. C. 29, 571. 1 Hawk. P. C. 35.

If divers persons are assembled for the purpose of imprisoning the King, this is likewise an overt act, in every one of them, of compaining or imagining his death: Because it is very likely, that such imprisonment will end in his death, 3 Inst. 6, 12. H. P. C. 11. 1 Hawk. P. C. 35.

It has been doubted, whether an assembling of men, with a design to depose the King, is an overt act of this species of treason; because it is said, there may be a design to depose the King, without intending to take away his life. Bro. Treas. pl. 24.

But it seems to be the better opinion, the assembling of men, with such design, is an overt act of compaining or imagining the King's death; Because, if this design is carried into execution, the death of the King will in all probability be the consequence thereof. 3 Inst. 6, 12. H. P. C. 11. 2 Vintr. 316. 1 Med. 312. 1 Hawk. P. C. 35.

Coke Chief Justice was of opinion, that the levying of war against the King is not an overt act of compaining or imagining the King's death; for that such levying of war, which is by this statute declared to be one distinct species of high treason, can never be an overt act of the other species of treason; because, if it should be held to be so, two distinct species of high treason would be confounded. 3 Inst. 14.
But in another book it is said, that to prophecny the King's death does not seem to be an overt act of this species of treason. 1 H. H. P. C. 108.

And it is laid down, that to calculate the King's nativity is not an overt act of compassing or imagining his death. 1 H. H. P. C. 111. 1 H. H. P. C. 108.

It is concluded, that the words, which contain a treasonable position, does, altho' the fame are never published, amount to an overt act of compassing or imagining the King's death; for that a fictive act ager, 2 Roll. Rep. 88. William's case.

But it seems to be the better opinion, that the writing of such words, does not, at least the fame are published, amount to an overt act of this species of treason; because they may have been written merely by way of amusement, and without any treasonable design. Cro. Car. 125. 1 Hawk. P. C. 38.

It is laid down in former books, that the bare speaking of words cannot be an overt act of compassing or imagining the King's death; and, from the special acts of parliament made at different times after 25 Ed. 3. 6 c. 4. to attain persons guilty of speaking treasonable words, it is inferred, that such words were not an overt act of compassing or imagining the King's death, within the meaning of the acts; for that, if they had been such, such special act would have been quite nugatory. 3 Inst. 14. 38. 140. 1 H. H. P. C. 111. 112.

It seems to be the better opinion, that words alone may, in some cases, be an overt act of this species of treason; but the speaking of words are the most natural way of expressing the imagination of the heart. St. P. C. 2. Trel. 107. Kel. 13. 1 Leu. 57. Salk. 631. 3 Med. 35. 1 Hawk. P. C. 39. 40.

The speaking of any words, which plainly flew a design to take away the King's life, is an overt act of compassing or imagining his death; altho' such design be future or conditional, or both future and conditional. St. P. C. 2. Trel. 107. Kel. 13. 3 Med. 55. 1 Hawk. P. C. 39.

These words, if it meet the King, I will kill him, have been held to be an overt act of this species of treason. 1 Leu. 57. Accept's case.

And it is said by Holt, Chief Justice, that it is not necessary that the words should in such case be express; for that any words, provided the jury are plainly and clearly satisfied, from the tenor of them, that the speaker has been engaged in a design upon the King's life, are an overt act of compassing or imagining his death. 4 Stat. Tri. 720. Lovell's case.

It is laid down in former books, that if the words spoken are only in contempt, or in dispraise, of the King's person, as if they charge him with some personal vice, or with some personal defect, such words are not an overt act of compassing or imagining his death. Cro. Car. 125. Plutus's case. 1 Hawk. P. C. 39.

It has been held, that to say the King is a bastard, or to say another person has a better title to the crown than him, is an overt act of this species of treason; because it discovers the mind to be traitorous. Trel. 107. 2 Roll. Rep. 90. Palmer 426.

But the better opinion is, that no loose words, which are spoken without reference to an act or design, do amount to an overt act of compassing or imagining the King's death: because it is not certain, that the speaker has any design upon his life. Salk. 631. Charnecl's case. 1 Hawk. P. C. 39.

To pray that god should shorten the Queen's days, 1 Inst. 88. 2 & 6 Ed. 7. 4 & 5 Ed. 7. is certain the practice against King Philip made treason, 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 11. importing counterfeit foreign coins made treason, 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 11. impugning the Queen's title, &c. 1 El. c. 5.

Second refusal of the old oath of supremacy to be punished as high treason. 5 El. c. 1. s. 11.

Clipping and impounding money made treason, 5 El. c. 11.

Certain offences by words, &c. made treason during the life of Queen Elizabeth, 13 El. c. 1.

Treason for popish priests to remain in the kingdom, or for persons in popish feminities not popish, not to return and submit, 10 & 11 El. 1. 9.

Reconciling any person, or being reconciled to the fee of Rome, putting in use the Pope's bulls, &c. made treason, 13 El. c. 1. 23 El. c. 1. 3 Jac. 1. 4. sed. 22.

Corroding to enlade prisoners committed for treason, 14 El. c. 1.

No past attainer to be revered after execution, 28 or 29 El. c. 2.

Certain offences by words made treason, during the life of King Charles 2d, 13 Car. 2. 9. 1.

Corresponding with enemies, 3 W. & M. c. 13. 3 & 4 Ann. c. 14.

Repairing to France, 3 W. & M. c. 13. 9 W. 3. c. 1.

Corresponding with the late King's family made treason, 9 W. 3. c. 1.

Corresponding with the pretender, 13 W. 3. c. 3.

To compas the death of the Princess Anne, 13 W. 3. c. 6. f. 15.

Endeavouring to hinder the succession, 1 Ann. b. 2. c. 17. f. 3.

Officers or soldiers beyond sea, corresponding with enemies, 2 & 3 Ann. c. 20. f. 35.

Offences may be tried in K. B. 2 & 3 Ann. c. 20. f. 35.

Treason to purvue the depoping the King, or to reheve certain acts, 21 Ric. 2. c. 3. 4. &c.

For several old condemned opinions relating to treason and the prerogative, see 21 Ric. 2. c. 3. 1 H. 4. c. 3.

Nothing shall be adjudged treason but as was ordained by the statute of Ed. 3, 1 H. 4. c. 10.

Clipping, whiting, &c. made money, treason, 3 H. 5. c. 6.

Escape of prisoners committed for suflpection of treason, declared to be treason, 2 H. 6. c. 17.

Serving the King for the time being incurrs no forlorniture. 1 H. 7. c. 12.

Wilful poisoning made high treason, 22 H. 8. c. 9.

Praecipit. against the establishment of the succession made treason, 26 H. 8. c. 22. f. 8.

Other offences declared treason, 26 H. 8. c. 13. f. 2. 28 H. 8. c. 18.

Being of banbury taken away in cases of high treason, 26 H. 8. c. 13. f. 3. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 11. f. 6. extended to natives of Scotland. 7 Ann. c. 21. f. 5.

Counterfeiting the sign manual, or privy signet, made high treason, 27 H. 8. c. 2.

A repeal of all treasons since 25 Ed. 3. 1 Ed. 6. c. 12. f. 2. with exceptions, 5. &c.

Prescribing, &c. against the King's title, the third offence, 1 Ed. 6. c. 12. f. 6. repealed, 1 M. 1. c. 1.

High treason to deny the supremacy, 1 Ed. 6. c. 12. f. 7.

To intercept the succession of the crown, 1 Ed. 6. c. 12. f. 9.

The third offence of affirming that the King is a heretick or uffurer made treason, 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 11. repealed 1 Mar. b. 1. c. 1.

With-holding the King's cattles or fences, &c. made treason, 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 11. f. 5. 14 Ed. c. 1.

It shall be treason to counterfeit coins current here, or the Queen's sign manual, privy signet or privy seal, 1 M. 1. b. 2. c. 6.
Whereas a wife murders her husband, a servant his master, or a miller, or an ecclesiastick a prelate, or to whom he owes obedience, every one of these is petit treason. 3 Ed. 3 H. P. C. 57. 1 Hawk. P. C. 87, 88.

As every petit treason implies a murder, it follows, that where the mere killing of a husband, master, or prelate, is not always petit treason; for, if there are not such circumstances, in the case of killing one of these persons, as would have made it murder in the case of killing any other, then it does not amount to this offence. H. P. C. 24. 1 Hawk. P. C. 88.

And if, upon an indictment for petit treason, the killing appears to have been upon such a sudden provocation, that it would, in case the fault had been committed by a stranger to the person killed, have amounted only to manslaughter, the jury may acquit the person indicted of the petit treason, and find him guilty of manslaughter. 1 H. H. P. C. 378.

Some offences which are not mentioned in the 25 Ed. 3. fl. 5. c. 2. were before the making of this statute petit treason, 1 Hawk. P. C. 87.

If a woman had procured a stranger to murder her husband, and the fault be no more than the want of a petit treason at the perpetration of the murder, it was petit treason. 3 Inf. 20. Ifl. 10. It was also petit treason, for a servant to counterfeitt the fact of his master. Ibid.

By the 25 Ed. 3. fl. 5. c. 2. after declaring divers offences to be petit treason, it is enacted, That, because divers acts of mischief happen in time to come, which a man cannot think of or declare at present, if any other cause, supposed to be treason, which is not specified above, does hereafter happen before any one of the justices, such justices shall not proceed to judgment of treason, until the case be laid before the King and parliament, and it is declared whether it ought to be adjudged a treason or other felony.

It does not appear, that any offences were, in consequence of the power given by this clause, declared in parliament to be petit treason.

And by the first of Mar. fl. 1. cap. 1. par. 3. the power itself is taken away, it being thereby enabled, That no act, or offence, shall be taken, had, deemed or adjudged, to be petit treason, but only such be declared and expressed to be petit treason, in or by the act of parliament, made in the 25th year of the reign of the most noble King of famous memory, King Edward the third, touching or concerning treason or the declaration of treason.

As this offence has been by any statute subsequent to this made petit treason, it follows, that no offence is at this day petit treason unless it is one of those, which is by the 25 Ed. 3. fl. 5. c. 2. declared to be so.

And no offence is to be adjudged petit treason, unless it is clearly, and without argument or inference, within the meaning of this statute; for a statute declaring any offence to be treason, ought not to be extended by equity. Plowd. 86. 3 Inf. 12. 21. 18 Eliz. c. 1. f. 1. f. 2.

The diffinution of high and petit treason was not known to the law of Scotland: For every offence, which was by the law of England petit treason, was by the law of Scotland murder.

At this day, an offence, which is in England petit treason, is in Scotland only a capital offence: It being by the 7 Ann. cap. 21. par. 7. enacted, 'That murder under trust, which was by the law of Scotland, shall for the time to come be only adjudged and deemed to be a capital offence.'

There may be an accessory, either before or after the fact, in petit treason. 3 Inf. 20. 21. 138.

At the Common law, an accessory to this offence, before the fact, was intituled to the benefit of the clergy.

But by the 4 & 5 Ph. & Mar. cap. 4. par. 1. it is enacted, 'That if any person, after the first day of December, 1705, with malicious, wicked, or malicious command, hire, or counsel, any person to commit or do any petit treason, every such offender shall not have the benefit of the clergy.'

It is by the 25 Ed. 3. Parl. 5. c. 2. declared to be petit treason where a wife layeth her husband.

If A. who is married to B. during such inter marriage has been married also to C. this last woman, altho' she is to be regarded as the wife of A. enfrances him, is that wife within the meaning of this clause; because the second marriage was after satis voit. 1 H. H. P. C. 381.

If a woman, after having been divorced causa adulterii vel furavit, murders the man from whom she was divorced, this is petit treason: For, as a divorce for either of these causes does not, by the law of England, dissolve the vinculum matrimonii, the continuance to be his wife, Ibid.

But, a woman, who has been divorced causa confu- gunitatis vel pereconstruit, cannot be guilty of this offence; because the vinculum matrimonii is dissolved by a divorce for either of these causes. Ibid.

If A. is to be married to B. It is sufficient to be, in petit treason, that the is, altho' the fact be committed in her absence, guilty as an accessory to petit treason, 3 Inf. 20. H. P. C. 25. 1 Hawk. P. C. 88.

But, if a wife, who has procured a stranger to kill her husband, is absent when the fact is perpetrated, she is only as an accessory to murder: For the principal is only guilty of this crime; and the maxim is, Accesnur sequitur naturam sui principis. 3 Inf. 20. 139. H. P. C. 24, 25. 1 H. H. P. 379. 1 Hawk. P. C. 88.

If a wife, however, after having procured a stranger to kill her husband, was, by agreement with such stranger, and whether the murder was committed or not, the is, although she was not in the room at the time of the perpetration thereof, guilty of petit treason: For, as the murderer, was in this case, emboled, by the expectation of having her immediate assistance, if the same had been wanted, to commit the crime, she is in judgment of law, as much a principal, as if she had stood by, with a weapon in her hand; ready to face him. Mor. 93. H. P. C. 25. 1 Hawk. P. C. 88.

If a stranger and a wife are both principals in the murder of her husband, the wife is guilty of petit treason, the stranger of murder only. 3 Inf. 20. H. P. C. 25. 1 Hawk. P. C. 88.

But, if a stranger kills her husband by the procurement of a stranger, the latter seems to be guilty as accessory to petit treason. 1 Hawk. P. C. 88. By the 25 Ed. 3. fl. 5. c. 2. It is declared to be petit treason, where a servant layeth his master.

The murder of his mistress, or of his master's wife, by a servant has been adjudged to be petit treason. Neither of these cases, it is said, lie within the latter thereof. But both of them are clearly within the meaning of this clause; for the word master signifies any person, to whom another stands related as a servant. 3 Inf. 20. Plowd. 86. 1 Hawk. P. C. 88.

If a child kills his mother, or his mother's child, this, altho' it be committed by the heinous crime, is not petit treason: Because it is not a case provided against by this statute; and the judges are restrained, by an express clause therein, from interpreting it a finittii, or a minore ad major. Plowd. 86. 3 Inf. 20. 22. 23. H. P. C. 24. 1 Hawk. P. C. 87.

But, if a child, who serves his father, or his mother, for meat, drink, clothes, or wages, murders such father, or mother, this is petit treason. 3 Inf. 30. H. P. C. 24. 1 Hawk. P. C. 87.

A servant, after having quitted his master's service a year, killed the person who had been his master. This was not petit treason, because it appeared that the crime was committed in consequence of malice conceived against the person killed while the murderer was in his service. Bros. Com. 116. Plowd. 206. 3 Inf. 20. H. P. C. 23. 1 Hawk. P. C. 88.

It has been just now shown, in treating of that species of petit treason, which conflits in the murdering of a husband, or his wife, in what case the wife is a principal in, or accessory to, petit treason, or an accessory to murder only.

It is in this place sufficient to say, without repeating them, that any circumstance, which would in the case of a wife have made her so, does in the case of a servant make him, a principal in or an accessory to petit treason, or an accessory to murder only. 5 Bat. Abr. 136.
TRE

By the 25 Ed. 3. st. 5. c. 2. It is declared to be petit treason, when a man secular or religious, flayeth his prelate, or whom he owes obedience.

If an ecclesiastick, who enjoys a benefice in the diocefe of A. within the province of B. flays the archbishop of the province of B. this, although he is not the immediate superior of such ecclesiastick, seems to be petit treason. 1 H. H. P. C. 381.

If a beneficed man enjoys benefices in different diocefes, it is petit treason to murder the bishop of either of these; because a canonical obedience is due to both of them. Ibid.

And it has been laid down, that, if an ecclesiastick slays the bishop who ordained him, this is petit treason, although he does not thereby enjoy benefice of the cure of souls within the diocefe of this bishop; because he professed, at his ordination, a canonical obedience to such bishop. Ibid.

For more learning on this subject, see 5 Est. Abr. tit. Treason.

"Tresaur. (Theofaurus.) Signifies riches and wealth; and as the King's treasurers are the stewards of the realm, the power and safety of the King in time of peace, fundamental bell & ornamentum pacis; if any mine of base metal be found in any ground, it belongs to the lord of the soil; but if it be of gold or silver it appertains to the King, who makes ground forever they be found. Cowell, edit. 1727." 4 TRE.

"Tresaurer, (Theofaurus) Is an officer to whom the treasurer of another is committed to be kept, and truly dispofed of. The chief of thefe with us is the treasurer of England, who is a lord by his office, and one of the greatest in the land, under whose charge and government is all the Prince's wealth contained in the Exchequer, as also the clerks of all officers any way employed in the collecting of the imposts, tributes, or other revenues belonging to the crown. Smith, de Rep. Anglor. lib. 2. cap. 14. See more belonging to this office, 20 E. 3. 6. 4. 5. 17 E. 4. 5. 21 H. 8. 20. and 1 E. 6. 13. This high officer hath by virtue of his office, the nomination of all eccentors yearly throughout England, and giveth the places of all customers and searchers in all the ports of the realm, with divers other matters. &c. There is also the treasurer of the King's household, who is of the privy council, and, in the absence of the Lord of the Treasury, hath power with the controller and chamber of the Middlesex, without commissio, to hear and determine treasons, imprison events of treason, murder, homicide and bloodshed committed within the King's palace. Staunty. Pl. Cor. lib. 3. cap. 5. In Plin. hist. 2. cap. 1. there is mention of the treasurer of the Roman army, which is the same as the treasurer of the king's wardrobe. 27 E. 3. flat. 2. cap. 18. 35 Eliz. cap. 4. treasurer of the King's chamber, 26 H. 8. 31. 33 H. 8. treasurer of the King's wardrobe. 15 E. 3. flat. 1. cap. 3. 25 E. 3. flat. 5. cap. 21. whole office you have well set out in Fitzis, lib. 2. cap. 14. Treasurer of the county for poor soldiers. 25 El. 4. and most corporations through the kingdom have an officer of this name that receive their rents, and disburse their common expenses, and is of great credit among them. Cowell, edit. 1727. 4 TRE.

"Treasurer in Cathedra! Churches. A dignitary who was to take charge of the vestments, plate, jewels, relics, and other treasurer of the said church. But at the time of the reformation, when some who abhorred idols did commit sacrilege, and took away the infinite treasurer of the church and conventual churches, then the office was extinguished as needful in some churches, as York, Lincoln, Hereford, but still remaining in Salisbury, London, &c. Cowell, edit. 1727. 4 TRE.

"Treasurer of the County. To be chosen by the justices of the peace, 43 Eliz. c. 2. 1st. 14. See Counties rate. 4 TRE.

"Treasurer, (Theofaurus inventus.) Signifies in our civil law as it is in the Civil, Veteran, defponsion pecuniae, cuius non estoest memoria, ut jam dominium non habet, with which definition Bracton agrees: And though the Civil law give it to the finder, according to the law of nature, yet the law of England gives it to the King by his prerogative, or to some other who claims by the King's grant, or by prescription, as appears, Bract. lib. 3. cap. 3. He, 4. 3 cap. num. 4. The punishment for concealing treasure found, is imprisonment and fine. Staunty. Pl. Cor. lib. 1. cap. 42. Fitzher. Abid. pag. 187. But if the owner may any ways be known, then it does not belong to the King's prerogative. Briton. cap. 17. says it is every subject's part, as soon as he has found any treasure in the King's or his representative, to deliver it to the coroners of the county, &c. See Kitchin, fol. 30. anno 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 15. This was antiently called findaluris, of finding the treasure. Log. Hag. 1. c. 11. See 3 Leyf. fol. 132, and 20 Vin. Abr. 414. 4 TRE.

"Tresury. Signifies sometimes the place where the King's treasures are kept; and at other times the office of treasurer. Cowell, edit. 1727. 4 TRE.

"Tributum, (Terbitium.) A tumbrel, or cucking stool. 3 Pur. Leyf. fol. 329. See Tributum. It was also a great engine to call floses to batter walls. Alsit. Paris. 1726. 4 TRE.

"Trescy, The proprietors of trees cut down or taken away how recompened and the offenders punished, 43 El. c. 7. 15 Car. 2. c. 2. f. 2. Ingroving oak bark prohibited, 1 Jas. 1. cap. 22. fett. 19. Penalty of selling oaks to be barked, 1 Jas. 1. c. 22. f. 20. The houses of persons suspected to have cut or taken them away to be searched, 15 Car. 2. c. 2. f. 3. Persons defraying plantations punished as treasurers, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 7. f. 5. 1 Geo. 1. st. 2. f. 48. 6 Geo. 1. 9. 39 Geo. 2. c. 30. f. 6. As felon, 9 Geo. 1. c. 50. f. 1. The neighbouring inhabitants, 1 Geo. 1. c. 6. 2 Geo. 1. c. 16. And the hundred answerable for damages, 9 Geo. 1. c. 22. f. 7. 29 Geo. 2. c. 30. f. 9. See Elizit. and 20 Finl. 35. 47. 4 TRE.

"Trent. (Trentu, i.e. Wheat,) In the stature of 51 H. 3. bread of Trent seems to be that bread which was made of fine wheat. Cowell, edit. 1727. 4 TRE.

"Trenegmianum, (Trenemium, Trensum.) The seafon for fowling fuminum-corn about March, the third mouth, to which the word may poftibly allude. For corn fowed in March is by the French called tremis et tremuts, and sometimes mars ou marviz, which the Italians call martulio or martul. Trensum was commonly opposed tolichinum, i.e. the seafon for fummer corn, barley, oats, beans, &c. to the seafon for winter-corn, wheat and rye. Cowell, edit. 1727. 4 TRE.

"Trentsne, A word used for granary, in Mon. Ang. t. 4. p. 470. 4 TRE.

"Trenchaa, (From the Fr. trancher, to cut,) A carver of meat at a table, as we often find in the patent-rolls, pensions granted by our Kings to F. S. uni trenchemantium nozarium. Cowell, edit. 1727. 4 TRE.

"Trencher, (Francie, Fr. trancher, to cut,) A trencher, or d'ke newly cut. Id. ib. 4 TRE.

"Trental, (Trentas,) An office for the dead that continued thirty days, or confanding of thirty miles, from the Italian trento, that is, trintaga, mentioned 1 Ed. 6. 14. 4 TRE.

"Trepid, A great engine to throw floses against a wall in forming a town. It is mentioned in knightes, anno 1382. 4 TRE.

"Trelpsal, (Trelpsa,) Signifies any tranfegregion of the law under treatment, felon, or mifprision of either. Staunty. Pl. Cor. fol. 38. where he says, That for a lord of the parliament to depart from the parliament without the King's licence, is neither treason nor felony, but trespass. But it is most commonly used for that wrong or damage, which is done either to the King in his fett, or by one private man to another; and in this signification it is of two sorts, trepsal general, otherwise it is termed trespass, and trepsal partial, otherwise called trepsal upon the cafe, and if the crown have to be without force, howbeit sometimes they are confounded. How to diftinguish the forms of these writs or actions, fee
In an action of trespass, the plaintiff always sues for damages, or for the value of the hurt done him by the defendant. There is also trespass local, and trespass transitory. Trespass local is that which is so annexed to a place certain and distinct from the defendant, as to traverse the place only by saying ab non loco, that he did the trespass in the place mentioned in the declaration, and aver it, is enough to defeat the action. Trespass transitory is that which cannot be defeated by the defendant’s traverse of the place, because the place is not material, but actions of trespass transitory are of a farther description to be local. Breden, lib. 4, cap. 34. num. 6. divides transfregissent in majorem & minorem. Cowell, edit. 1727.

The word trespass, which is derived from the Latin word transgressus, signifies a going beyond what is lawful; hence it follows that every injurious act in the large fence will be regarded as a trespass. But, as many injurious acts are distinguished by particular names, as trespass, murder, rape, and others, the legal sense of the word trespass is confined to such injurious acts as have not acquired a particular name. Some trespasses are not accompanied with any force; a trespass of this fort is called a trespass upon the fence: And the proper remedy for the party injured is by an action upon the fence. Other trespasses are accompanied with force, either actual or implied. If a trespass, which was accompanied with either actual or implied force, has been injurious to the public, the proper remedy in every such case is by an indictment, or by informations. And if a trespass that was accompanied with an actual force, has been injurious only to one or more private persons, the offender is in every such case liable to an indictment, or to an information; for, although the injury has in such fence been only done to one or more private persons, as every trespass accompanied with actual force is a breach of the peace, it is to be confedered and punished as an offence against the public. 5 Bac. Abr. 150.

Besides the remedy which is given by law, in the case of a trespass accompanied with actual force, for the offence against the publick, every private person, who has received any injury from such trespass, may recover a satisfaction for the same by an action of general trespass. And if a trespass has been only accompanied with implied force, the proper remedy, (this not being a publick offence,) is likewise by an action of general trespass. The writ of general trespass, upon which this action is founded, is sometimes returnable, at other times it is not. And it is at the option of the injured party to make the trespass in force, or fore out a writ of general trespass, that is, or one that is not returnable. The latter sort of writ is called viciotext write: Because the matter therein contained of is to be heard before the sheriff to whom it is directed. But, as the viciotext writ of general trespass is at this day very seldom used, it is by no means necessary to go into the particular consideration thereof. That writ of general trespass which is returnable has, from the words vi et armis therein contained, obtained the name of a writ of trespass vi et armis; and the action thereupon founded is called an action of trespass vi et armis. 5 Bac. Abr. 150, 151.

1. For what injuries an action of trespass vi et armis lies in general.

2. In what cases an action of trespass vi et armis lies for an all which was at first lawful, but becomes afterwards a trespass with force ab initio.

3. For what injuries an action of trespass vi et armis lies in general.

Wherever any unlawful act, from which a private injury has been received, was accompanied either with actual or implied force, the party injured may bring an action of trespass vi et armis. Fitzh. N. B. 93. Bro. All. for the cafe, pl. 46, Ld. Raym. 1402. Sir. 635.

But, where the injury that has been received was occasioned by a fraudulent or negligent act, which was not accompanied either with actual or implied force, this action does not lie. Bro. All. for the cafe, pl. 46. Fitzh. N. B. 93. Ld. Raym. 188, 1402. Sir. 635.

This action does not lie for any injury which is the consequence of a mere non-assignation, where no action has been done, therefore can be done.
one, be well pronounced: because that, which comes under the per se, is not to be considered as an independant substantive iuris, but as laid merely in aggravation of damages. ld. Raym. 174. Courteny v. Collet.

It is laid down in two books, that if the bailee of cattle, which have been lent him to plough his land with, kills any of them, the owner thereof has his election to bring an action of trespass vi et armis, or an action upon the case. ibid. 57.

It does not moreover seem reasonable, that an injured party should at any time have been at liberty to bring which of these actions he pleases, because the judgment in them is very different. ld. Raym. 273. Courteny v. Collet.

And this is less reasonable now than heretofore; for if the injured party has in any case such an election, he may in every such case, by choosing to bring an action of trespass vi et armis, or of an action upon the case, thereby make the owner of cattle, it is also laid down, that the party injured by a rescue may have either an action of trespass vi et armis, or an action upon the case. ibid. 182. Whately v. Stone.

But in some other cases it is laid down generally, that the bailee of cattle, who kills any of them, is not liable to an action of trespass for the same. ld. Raym. 54. Courteny v. Collet.

2. In what cases an action of trespass vi et armis lies for an act which was at first lawful, but becomes afterwards a trespass with force ab initio.

It is in general true, as has been shewn under the last head, that no injury, which has been occasioned by a lawful act, is trespass with force. But in some cases an act, which in the first instance lawful, becomes after wards a trespass with force ab initio. Where the law gives a general authority or licence to do a thing, and the person, who has begun to act under either of these properly, is afterwards guilty of some positive abuse of the same, he becomes a trespasser with force ab initio. ibid. 154.

If S. who has disinfringed a beast damage-feasant, afterwards kills or 'fects the same, he becomes a trespasser with force ab initio; he had indeed by law an authority to disinfriter this beast: But, as this extends only to the keeping it as a pledge to enforce the making satisfaction for the loss, or damage, or hurt done by this beast, it becomes an abuse of this authority. Rep. 146. The fix carpenters cafe. Bro. Tref. pl. 359.

But every meddling with a thing, which has been disinfringed, does not amount to such an abuse of the general authority given by law to disinfriter, as to make the disinfriter a trespasser with force ab initio.

If a man who has disinfringed armour scourers the same, in order to preserve it from rust, he does not become a trespasser with force ab initio: For the doing of this, so far from being injurious, is beneficial to the owner. Cra. Eliz. 783. Danemob v. Reeve.

And, in the case of a diffrers for rent, an injurious meddling with what has been disinfringed does not make the disinfriter a trespasser with force ab initio.

For by the 11 Geo. 2. cap. 19. par. 19. it is enacted, 'that any man to prevent any unjustly due, and any unlawful act shall be afterwards done by the party disinfringing, or by his agent, the disfriffers shall not be therefore deemed unlawful, nor the party making it a trespasser ab initio.

The law gives every man a licence of going into an inn at any time he pleases; but a man to prevent law fullly into an inn, is afterwards guilty of any injurious act there, he becomes a trespasser with force ab initio: Because this is a positive abuse of a general licence in law. Rep. 146. The fix carpenters cafe. Bro. Tref. pl. 359.

But where a man is only guilty of a negative abuse of a general authority or licence in law, he does not become a trespasser with force ab initio: For a man, who has only been guilty of a mere non-licence, can never be a trespasser with force. 5 Bac. Abr. 155.

If S. who has disinfrigned a beast damage-feasant, returns to deliver it on a tender of amends before the impounding thereof, this is an abuse of an authority given by law to disinfriter; and the owner of the beast may recover damages for the detention: But, as the injury arises from a non-licence, S. does not become a trespasser with force ab initio. Rep. 146. The fix carpenters cafe. Bro. Tref. pl. 359.

So if a man, who went lawfully into an inn, refuses to pay for the liquor he has drank there, this is a negative abuse of a licence given him by law to go into an inn: But he does not become a trespasser with force ab initio. Rep. 146. The fix carpenters cafe. Bro. Tref. pl. 359.

A confable, who had the warrant of a justice of the peace to search the house of I. S. for stolen goods, pulled down the clothes of a bed in which there was a woman, and attempted to search under her shirt, it was held, that by this abuse of his authority he became a trespasser with force ab initio. Clayt. 44. Ward's cafe.

But by the 17 Geo. 2. cap. 38. par. 6. it is enacted, "That where any disfriff shall be made by any overeer, by virtue of a warrant of disfriff, for any money justly due for the relief of the poor, the party disfriffing shall not be deemed a trespasser ab initio on the account of an irregularity done by such party.'

And in some cases a man, who is only guilty of a negative abuse of a particular authority given him by law, becomes a trespasser with force ab initio.

If a sheriff has not returned a writ which ought to have been returned, he becomes, altho' this is a mere non-licence, a trespasser with force ab initio; as to every thing that has been done under this writ. Bra. Faux impr. pl. 5. pl. 7. pl. 12. pl. 23. 1 Jorn. 378. Salk. 409. Ld. Raym. 460.

But, if a bailiff has by virtue of a warrant from a sherife executed a writ which ought to have been returned, he does not, altho' it has not been returned, become a trespasser ab initio: for it would be hard to punish the bailiff for the default of returning this writ; which, as it was directed to the sheriff, could only be returned by him. Bra. Faux impre. pl. 5. pl. 22. 1 Jorn. 378. Cro. Cor. 446.

If however, the bailiff of an inferior court has not returned a writ which ought to have been returned, he becomes a trespasser with force ab initio, as to every thing that has been done under it; because he is a principal officer, and not, as in the case of a bailiff acting under a warrant from the sheriff, a subordinate one; and consequently it was his duty to return this writ. 1 Roll. Abr. 503. pl. 18. Ld. Raym. 632.

A man, who is guilty of an abuse of an authority or licence in law, is not, altho' this is a positive one, become a trespasser with force ab initio.

If the bailee of a beast, which has been delivered to him to be kept, kills or uses it, he is liable to make satisfaction for his abuse of an authority given him by the owner thereof: But he does not become a trespasser with force ab initio.

Vol. II. No. 131.
TRI

So if a breach, which has been disinnombr'd for a rent-charg, is killed or used by the disinnombrer, he does not become a trespasser with force ab initio: Because the diftresch in this cafe is made under an authority in fact; for the wrong is, that it is in the cafe of a rentseverc, incident to the rent, but must always have been given by the grantor thereof. 1 If. 142, 143. Perk.

f. 691.

The reason of the difference, between this cafe of a pos-tive abuse of an authority or licence in fact, and that of a positive abuse of authority or licence in law, is, as one book faid to be, that the abuse in the latter cafe is deemed a trespass with force ab initio: Because the law intends from the subsequent tortious act, that there was from the beginning a defign to be guilty thereof. 8 Rip.

146. The six carpenters cafe.

But this reason, which equally applies to both cafes, is by no means conclusive: For it may be as well in-semed in the former cafe, from the subsequent tortious act, that there was from the beginning a defign of being guilty thereof. Perhaps the difference between the two cafes may better accounted for in the following manner. In the one, where the law has been an authority or licence, it seems reasonable, that the fame law should, in order to secure the persons, who are without their direct affent made the objects thereof, from all positive abuses of such authority or licence, whenever either of these is positively abused, make the fame void from the beginning; in the other, where the authority or licence is made, as if he had added without any authority or licence. And this agrees perfectly with the maxim Aenus legis novemini facit injuriam. But in the other cafe, where a man, who was under no neceffity of giving an authority or licence to any perfon, has thought proper to give one to thefe to a certain perfon, who is afterwards guilty of a positive abuse thereof, there is no reason that the law should interfere; and make all that has been done, under the authority or licence by him so voluntarily given, void from the beginning: because it was his own folly to place a confidence in a man, who was not fit to be trusted. 5 Bac. Abr. 156.

The interpoftion of the law in such cafe would, moreover, be quite contrary to the maxim, Vigilantibus non dormientibus foris lex. 5 Bac. Abr. 156. For more learning on this subject, fee 20 Vin. Abr. and Bac. Abr.

iii. Trefpafs.

Trefpaffants, (Fr.) Is used by Britten, cap. 29, for passengers.

Trefpasse, To turn or divert another way; as trefpasse wiam, to turn the road. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Chatt. King John.

Trial, (Trias;) Is used for the examination of all casues civil or criminal, according to the laws of the realm, before a particular judge; of which there are divers kinds; as matters of fact shall be tried by the jurors, matters of law, by judges, matters of record by the record itself. A lord of parliament, upon an indictment of treason or felony, shall be tried without any oath by his peers upon their honours and allegation; but in appeal at the fall of any object, they shall be tried by the high court of judiciaries. If ancient demesne be pleaded of a manor, and denied, this trial shall be tried by the record of demeslay. Baftardy, excommencement, lawfelheds of marriage, and other ecclesiastical matters, shall be tried by the bishop's certificare. Of the ancient manner of trial by combat and great officials, see Combat and Office.

But also Stead. Pl. Cor. cap. 1, 2, 3, and 12; and tenet men.

Trias orbis confalit sit, tributus, eum judicium per duos hos socios sacra, mutant, exigit. It is usual to ask the criminal how he will be tried; which formerly was a very fignificant question, but it is not so now, because formerly there were ferial ways of trial, ex combat, by battel, by oxford, and by jury. And when the criminal answered the question, By god and his country, it flowed that he made choice to be tried by a jury. But now there is no other way of trial. Cowell, edit. 1727.

1. What is to be tried by the court; and what is to be tried by the record.

3. Of giving notice of trial; and of concomitancing a trial.

1. What is to be tried by the court; and what is to be tried by the record.

Every question which arifes concerning any matter of law, is to be tried by the court in which the caufe de-pendeth. 1 If. 125.

It is agreeable to common fenc, that civilius in arte fas praeclarum et pravum, and it is a known maxim of law, that ad quasdam juris non fupradjum juratares.

Ibid.

It is the province of the judges to determine what the meaning of any word or fentence in an act of parliament is. Bro. Trial, pl. 143. 2 If. 617.

If a question arifes, whether a certain fentence is a maxim of law, this is to be determined by the judges.

Bro. Trial, pl. 143.

If a man who was feiled of a house for life had at the time of his death any goods therein, his executer or administrator shall have free insects and ejects to fetch them away, as being a reasonable time; and the judges before whom the caufe dependeth shall judge what is a reasonable time.

1 If. 56.

The reasonableness of a fine, which has been afcribed by the lord of a manor on the addition of a tenant to a copyhold tenant, shall be defcibed by the judges upon the construction of the fine, appearing to them. Ibid.

If a qclion arifes concerning the exiflence of a general cuflom of the realm, this is to be determined by the judges: Because every general cuflom is a part of

It is in general true, that if a question arifes concerning the exiflence of a cuflom of a particular place, it is to be tried by a jury. 1 If. 74. 2 Reg. Abr. 579.

580.

The question, What is the legal effect of a deed? is to be tried by the court; because this depends upon the construclion of the deed. 1 If. 252. Bro. Condition, pl. 183. Frien. 146.

But if the question be, Whether a deed has been seal-decl and delivered? This which depends upon a matter of fact is to be tried by a jury. 1 If. 252.

It is the province of a jury to try the fath, whether any rafure or interlination in a deed was made before the delivery thereof. Ibid.

But the question, Whether the rafure or irrolina-tion in a deed is of any thing material? is to be tried by the court. Ibid.

Every question concerning the practice of a court is to be tried by the fame court; for the practice of every court is the law of such court. 9 Rol. 30. Abbot of Strata Marcellas's cafe. 12 Abr. 573, 573.

If a question arifes concerning any matter of record, this can only be tried by the record itself. 9 Rol. 50. Abbot of Strata Marcellas's cafe. 1 If. 117. 2 Rol. Abr.
574.

The reason is that a record imports fuch verity in itself, that no averment contrary thereto is to be received.
The receiving of any fuch averment would also be attended with great inconvenienc; for if one averment could be received in order to contradifl a record, another might afterwards be received in order to contradifl the second record; and fo this might go on ad infinitum. 1

In the prmciple, that the record is joined upon the plea of null tial record, the trial must be by the record. Bro.
Trial, pl. 46. 2 Rol. Abr. 574.

If a question arifes concerning a privilege claimed by a city or borough under a charter, this is to be tried by the record of the charter. Trial per Paiz 15.

The question whether a man is an attorney? is to be tried by the record of the court in which the attorneys Trial, pl. 76. Lid. Rysm. 1173.
The question whether an original suit was filed out is not to be tried by the record: Because until a return is made thereto the writ does not become a matter of record. 2 Web. 524. Peter v. Stafford.

If the question be general, whether the defendant did appear? This is to be tried by the record: Because every appearance ought to be entered on the record. Cres. Ellis, 131, 362.

But if the question be, whether the defendant did appear at a day certain? This is to be tried by a jury: For it is not necessary that the very day of appearance should be entered on the record. Ibid.

If the question however be, whether a person was sued at a certain day in discharge of his bail? This is to be tried by the record: because the very day of the render ought to be entered on the record. Hob. 310.

Welly v. Canning.

If the question be, whether a deed was enrolled? This shall be tried by the record. 4 Rep. 71. Hynde's cafe.

But if the question be, at what time a deed was enrolled? This is to be tried by a jury; because it is not necessary, nor was it formerly the practice, to mention the time of enrolling a deed in the inrolling. 4 Rep. 71. Hynde's cafe.

If the question be, whether J. S. was sheriff of the county at such time? This is to be tried by the record: Because every sheriff is appointed by letters patent which always are of record. 9 Rep. 316. Abbot v. Strata Melle's cafe.

But the question whether J. N. was under-sheriff to J. S. is to be tried by a jury; for the appointment of an under-sheriff is by matter in pais, and not by matter of record. Brew. Trial, pl. 113.

If a sheriff, who has returned a capi vertum, afterwards pleads to an action of escate that the party never was in his custody, the question, whether he has ever been in his custody? is to be tried by the record of the return. 2 Dods. 165.

But if a sheriff who did in fact arrest J. S. returns non est inventus, the question, whether J. S. was arrest ed? is to be tried by a jury: Because it does not in this case appear from the return that he has been arrested. 2 Rol. Abr. 574. pl. 5.

If a man justifies the having done any thing as a justice of the peace, the question, whether he was a justice of peace? is to be tried by the record of the commission of office. 2 Rol. Abr. 574. pl. 9.

If the question be, whether a man has a right to a peage on by creation? This is to be tried by the record of the letters patent creating him a peer. 9 Rep. 11. Abbot v. Strata Melle's cafe. Ed. Raym. 14. 12 Med. 57.

But if the question be, whether a man has a right to a peage by defiance? This is to be tried by a jury: For it can never appear from the record, that the person now claiming the peage is defended from the person who was first created a peer by letters patent. Ed. Raym. 14. Res v. Kadiyla. 12 Med. 57.

If a matter of record is only laid by way of inducement to a matter of fact, the trial of such matter is not to be by the record, but by a jury. Palm. 242. Bigg v. Woffon.

Every question concerning the proceedings of a court, where a court of record, is to be tried by a jury. Infl. 117.

If a question arises concerning a decree of the court of Chancery, this is to be tried by a jury; for the court of Chancery is not, so far as it is a court of Equity, a court of Record. Trial per Pari 156. See Feature of Record. 2. What is to be tried by a jury.

It is in the general true, that every question of fact is to be tried by a jury: And in some cases where a question of fact is to be tried, it is in the discretion of the court to send it to be tried by a jury. Brew. Trial, pl. 60. Bro. Appeal, pl. 47.

If any new offence be created by a statute, and the statute is silent as to the manner of its being tried, the trial thereto is to be by a jury: because this manner of trial is agreeable to Magna charta. 7 Mod. 224. Bag. v. Stormey.

Where the agreement is in general terms, that a certain fact shall be proved, the general rule is that it must be proved to a jury: For this is the most legal way of proving any matter of fact. Hob. 247. Crockbath v. Woodward. Hob. 93. 5 Rep. 108. Sid. 313. Cra. Jac. 388.

But if any particular manner of proving a certain fact has been agreed upon by the parties, the fact must always be proved in the manner agreed upon. Hob. 247. Crockbath v. Woodward. Sid. 313. 5 Rep. 108. Hob. 93.

If the agreement be, that a certain fact shall be proved before the court, it is to be tried by the witnesses to be examined by J. S. 3 Lev. 231. Byning v. Beal.

And although the agreement be in general terms, that a certain fact shall be proved; yet if it appears clearly from any circumstance attending the agreement, that the parties did not intend a proof to a jury, the fact may be otherwise proved. Cra. Jac. 388. Sid. 213.

If the agreement be that a certain fact shall be proved in two days, this is not to be proved to a jury, but by the examination of witnesses; for as a trial by a jury cannot be had within so short a time as two days, this manner of trial could not have been intended. Cra. Jac. 388. Sid. 213.

The condition of a bond dated the 23d day of August was, that the defendant should pay to the plaintiff 10l. for every 20l. which the plaintiff shoulclby sufficient proof make it appear that J. S. was indebted to him; and that one half of the fame should be paid on or before the 25th day of November then next ensuing. An action of debt being brought upon this bond, the defendant pleaded, that the plaintiff did not make it appear by sufficient proof that J. S. was indebted to him in the sum of 20l. The plaintiff replied that before the said 25th day of November he and J. S. settled an account, by which it appeared, that the sum owing by the defendant was, to be included to the plaintiff in the sum of 310l. upon a demurrer to this replication it was infituted that the proof ought to have been made to a jury: But it was held that such proof could not have been intended: Because a trial by a jury could not have been had before the time limited for the payment of part of the money was expired. Lartu. 665. 1 Lea. 37. T. Guild.

And where it is necessary that a fact should be tried to a jury, it is not necessary that it should be proved in a distinct action.

A promis was made by J. S. to pay J. N. three pounds upon his proving that a certain cock died in his battle. J. N. may be otherwise tried, this is to be proved by the witnesses to be examin'd by J. S. And it is pleaded that no such proof had been made. The plea was held to the bad: Et per cur: It was not necessary to make the proof before the bringing of an action for the money; for it may be made in such action. Mar. 431. Griffith's case. 2 Lea. 215.

A penalty was given by a statute, upon proving by two witnesses that a certain thing thereby prohibited had been done. In an action of debt for this penalty the question was, whether it was necessary to make proof of the offence by two witnesses in another action before an action could be brought. If a penalty is only to be paid to the crown, it is not to be necessary; for that such proof may be well made without the action upon the statute. Cra. Jac. 188. Aldred v. Mathew.

It is in the general true, that the question, what the intent of a party was is not to be tried by a jury; because this, not being a question of fact, cannot be well judged of by a jury.

But wherever the question does not depend upon a fact alone unless it was coupled with a certain intent, the intent as well as the fact must be tried by a jury: Because the intent in such case is the only thing material. And the jury must judge of this in the best manner they are able to form in the circumstances which attended the fact. 1 H. H. P. C. 229.

If the question be, Whether a tenantchafed his beasts from a manor after the lord who came to dilate had seen them upon the manor, with an intent to prevent their their being disfrained? This intent must be tried by a jury. Bro. Illes, pl. 45.
If the question be, whether the intent of the defendant was to carry the wool which had been by him put on board a ship to Calais? The intent in this case must be tried by a jury. Bro. Illes, pl. 21. 1 H. H. P. C. 229.
Notwithstanding that the words for which an action is brought would in the general be actionable, the jury are to judge from all the circumstances that attended the speaking of them, whether they were spoken with an intent to flander the plaintiff; for unless there was such an intent, the plaintiff ought not to recover any damages. 1 L. 229. Graydon v. Middleton. Cre. Eiz. 297. 1 Roll. Abr. 58.

3. Of giving notice of trial; and of countermarching a trial.

Every notice of trial must be given in writing. It has been held that a notice of trial cannot be given in the country. 1 Barn. 216. Hankey v. Hoblin. Trin. 8 Geo. 2.

But in a later case the following distinction is taken, that if the notice of trial be given with the issue, it must be given to the defendant that the issue can only be decided in town: but that if it be not given with the issue, it may be given in the country. 2 Barn. 239. Topham v. Hujdick. Mich. 10 Geo. 2.

Eight days notice of trial were heretofore sufficient in any case, unless the cause was to be tried in London or Middlesex, and the defendant lived about 40 miles from these cities respectively; in which case it was necessary to give 14 days notice.

But by the 14 Geo. 2. c. 17. par. 4. it is enacted, "That no inditement, information, or cause whatsoever, shall be tried before any judge of assize or nisi prius, or at any sitting of a jury of a petit ment, if the defendant lives about 40 miles from either of the said cities respectively, unless notice of trial in writing has been given ten days at the least before such intended trial." Notice cannot be given of a trial at bar until the day appointed for trial is covered in the book of the clerk of the papers. 2 Litt. Abr. 744.

By the ancient rules of the courts of King's Bench and Common Pleas, a whole term's notice was necessary to be given before there could be any proceeding for the space of four terms.

As some doubt has arisen concerning the construction of these rules, it is by a rule of the court of Common Pleas of Easter 14 Geo. 2. ordered, "That in every cause wherein there has been no proceeding for four terms exclusive of the term in which the last proceeding was, the party who defers to proceed again shall give a term's notice to the other of such proceeding; that such notice shall be given before the eftive day of the fifth or other subsequent term: that a judge's summons, if no order has been made thereupon, shall not be deemed a proceeding; but that notice of trial, abid it was afterwards countermarched, shall be deemed a proceeding within the meaning of this rule."

But abid's a cause has been at issue more than four terms, if the trial has been delayed by reason of a claim of privilege of parliament, it is not necessary to give a whole term's notice of trial. 1 Sid. 93. Poyns's case.

So if the trial of a cause, which has been at issue a-bout four terms, has been delayed part of the time by any unjustifiable conduct of Equity, it is not neccessary to give a whole term's notice of trial. Ibid.

If a notice of trial has been countermarched, it cannot afterwards be continued: But a new notice must be given. 1 Barn. 220. Smith v. Holf.

If the name of the cause is not noticed in the notice of trial, the notice of trial will not be cured by inserting the name in the continuance of the notice. 1 Barn. 214. Jacob v. Mars.

A notice of trial can be continued only once; for the court will not suffer this which amounts to the giving of short notice of trial to be done a second time. 1 Barn. 206. Boyt v. Tew.

But if the full time required for a new notice of trial be given in a second notice of continuance, this is good as a new notice of trial; for the court will reject the words of continuance as forlornage. If a cause be brought for discovery de jure, a new notice of trial must be given. 2 Litt. Abr. 744.

But it is said, that if a cause be made a remainet by the judge, because there was not time to try the fame, it is not necessary to give a new notice of trial, for the defendant at his heard is bound to attend until it be tried. 2 Litt. Abr. 745.

Wherever the defendant proceeds to the trial of a cause with proviue, he is liable to all the rules as to the giving notice of trial, as the plaintiff would have been. Rep. in Pr. C. P. 173. Small v. Lawer.

Every notice of countermarching a trial must be given in writing.

A notice of countermarching a trial may be delivered in the country. 1 Barn. 216. Hankey v. Hoblin. 2 Barn. 239.

It was heretofore sufficient, to give two days notice of trial in the county if any cause which was to have been tried at any sitting in London or Westminster, Rules of K. B. Mich. 4 Ann.

It was also heretofore sufficient, to give two days notice of countermarching the trial of any cause which was to have been tried at any assizes, unless the notice was delivered to the agent in town: in which case four days notice were necessary. 1 Barn. 275. Stafford v. Thompson.

But by the 14 Geo. 2. c. 17. par. 5. it is enacted, "That where any party shall have given notice of the trial of any cause whatsoever before any judge of assize or nisi prius, or at any sitting in London or Westminster, where the trial of such cause has been countermanded, the cause shall not be brought again to try, but shall be tried in the court of Westminster, and shall not afterwards countermarch the cause in writing six days at the least before such intended trial; every such party shall be obliged to pay the like costs and charges as if such notice of trial had not been countermarched."

Bertuch & Trebuxet, (Teribicetum,) A tumbled, or cuckoo seed. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Creticae, Creticam, The fame with tentral.

TRINITY, An ancient cultus so called in the borough of Bromyard in com. Heref, because thirty burgesses paid a d. yearly rent for their houses to the bishop who was lord of the manor. Lib. Niger Heref. Lib. 3. 179. 17.

TRINITY, The English Saxon called the month of May by this name, because they milked their cattle three times every day in that month. Beza de rituone Temp. c. 17.

TRINITY, See Wholphamp.

TRINITYHOUSE, A house at Deptford, which belongs to a company or corporation of f senate, that have power by the King's charter, to take knowledge of those that destroy fea-marks, and to redress their doing: as also to correct the fault of sailors, &c. and to take care of all things belonging to the navigation, and the feats. Stat. 8 Eliz. 13. and 35 El. 6. Pilots licenced by this corporation how regulated and governed, 5 Geo. 2. c. 20. See Ships.

TRINITY, A kind of net or any engine to catch fish with. 2 Stat. 11. c. 15.

TRIMMENDYK, A threefold necessary tax, or imposition, to which all lands were subject in the Saxon times, i.e. toward the repairing of bridges, the maintaining of cattles or garrisons, and an expedition to repel invading invading enemies. In the grant and conveyance of lands, they were many times exempted from all other secular services. — Excepta trinada necesseitate—except his tribus, part. ii. p. 25.
T R O

Lições of strict, Are such as are chosen by the court to examine whether a challenge made to the panel, or any of the panel, be just or no. Br. cit. Challenge.
fol. 122, and Old nat. brev. fol. 158.

Tripitum. Leg. 2. 1. cap. 64. In quibus estae tripitum lubatere, forst jubilia tripartite, i.e. for four. The meaning is, that as for a small offence, or for a trivial cause, the composition was twenty shillings;
so for a great offence, which was to be purged tripitice loda,
the composition was to be three times twenty shilling,
in. tripartis. Cowell, edit. 1773.

Benedicere, to bless a quantity of land containing three rods or perks. Id. 16.

‘Tilla, A post of fation in hunting. Id. 18.

‘Tillis, Tripitris & triptis, Is an immunity whereby a man is freed from his attendance on the lord of a forest, when he is disposed to chase within the forest, and shall not be compelled to hold a dog, follow the chase, or stand at a place appointed, which otherwise he might be, under pains of amercement. Adamovd, part 1, pt. 86.

Tripping-truc. The third part of a county, or three or more hundreds or wapentakes, were called a tripping or triuplet. In more remote ages are the lands in Kent, the rapes in Suffolk, and the ridings in Yorkshire, and those who governed those trippings, were thereupon called tripping-reeves, before whom were brought all causes that could not be determined in the wapentakes or hundreds.
p. 123.

Triltrega, Was the uppermost room in the house, a gar-et or room three stories high. 'Tis mentioned in Matt.
Paris, anno 1247.

Triumvir. A tripping-man or confable of three hundreds. Ellinw. 1. 42.

Trone, (from Tren, a trench,) A trench or a cunol or toll taken for weighing of wool. Fleta, lib. 2, cap. 12. fayt, That trone is a beam to weigh with, mentioned in Weston, 2.
cap. 25. See Pidge. Montefini., 1 tom. 1796. Et fint quisti de annu pensione, pleagio, terragio, traengis, pationis.
And indeed trone was used not only for the cunol or toll in the weight of wool, but for the weighing of it in a flag or publick mart, by a common trone, or legal flandard. This trone or beam for the troneage of wool, was fixed at Leadhall in London. Cowell, edit. 1777.

Tronato, (from Trena, i. satora,) An officer in the city of London, who weighs the wool that is brought there.

Truper, (Treperium, Treperarium,) A book of alternate turns or repose in fishing masts, called by Lindewode,

Trophy money. See Stilitta.

Tuber, (from Pr. Tuvra, i. truvera,) Is an action which a man hath against one, that having found any of his goods, refuseth to deliver them upon demand,
Cowell, edit. 1777.

An action of trover lies where every man, who came to the possession of any of the goods of another by actual finding, does convert the same. And an action of trover does, likewise lie where every man, who came to the possession of any of the goods of another by delivery, does convert the same; for alio there be not in this cafe an actual finding, there is such a finding in law as is sufficient to found this action upon. 2 Burtr. 313. 1 Inst v.
Clark.

Any of the goods of I. S. have been taken by I.
S. in such a tortious manner that an action of trespass et armis would lie, an action of trover does likewise lie; but I. S. can only recover in the latter action dam-ges for the conversion of the goods; for he does, by electing to bring this, with his own case to recover damages 50. Cro. Cor. 89. 1 Med. 31. Sir 128.
Vol. II. No. 131.
If the forces of I. S. be taken and rode by I. N. this is, altho' the forces be afterwards referred to I. S. a new conversion. 1 Roll, Abr. 5. Countess of Radclifie's cafe. 6 Med. 212.

If I. S. who has lawfully distrasred the beast of I. N. work it, this is a conversion; because it is an affambling of time, and the beast as if it was his own, which is not lawful for I. S. to do. Cre. Joc. 148. Byng haw v. Gudow. Brou. 5.

If I. S. after having lawfully distrasred the goods of I. N. for rent in arrear, had heretofore fold them, it would have been a conversion; because the sale of such goods was before the making of the statute of 2 W. & M. cap. 5, unlawful. Cre. Joc. 225. V. 194. See 5 Bac. Abr. tit. Treas.

Drop-titling. (Poind tee Jufo.) See Treas. It is called try-weight, from tryos, a city in Champagne, from whence it first came to be used here. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Truce, (Tregge.) A league or cession of arms and; and anciently there were keepers of truces appointed as King Ed. 3. constituted by commission two truce keepers between him and the King of Scots, with this clause,

Truncks, A trunk or wooden box, fet in churches to receive the obligations of pious and well disposed people, which, in the times of popery there were many at several atars and images, like the boxes, which since the reformation were displaced nigh the churches, for to receive all voluntary contributions for the poor. —

Colletum Testamentum suum utibus de jumentis trunctus in tugulis ecclesias adducere jura confultat. Rad. de Diceto jub anno 1166. These customary free-will offerings that were droped into these trunks or boxes, made up a good part of the endowment of vicars before the reformation, and thereby, as in many other respects, made their condition then better, than in later times. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Trutn, Is a right to receive the profits of land, and to dispose of the land in equity; per Pemberton, arg. Med. 17, in the cafe of Smith v. Wheeler. As holding the possession and disposing thereof at his will and pleasure, are signs of trust. Chan. Rep. 52. A trust is but a new name given to an use, and invented to de fraud the statute of uses. Arg. St. 40. See Ufe.

Truts and legal eastes are to be governed by the fame rules; and this is a maxim which has universally prevaild. It is so in the rules of descension, of allkinds, and thuroughout English lands; there is a pelfus fratris of a trust, as well as of a legal eate. The like rules in limitations, and also of barring entailts of trusts, as of legal eastes; per the Master of the Rolls, who faid he thought there was no exception out of this general rule, nor is there any reason that there shou'd; and that it would be impossible to fix boundaries, and shew how far, and no farther, it ought to go; and that perhaps in early times the necessity of keeping thereto was not seen, or throughly confidered. 2 P. Win. Rep. 645. Sutton v. Sutton.

Trusts being ceded in fee of certain lands devisd them to trustue in fee, in trust to pay his debts, and to convey the surplus to his children equally; the younger married and died leaving an infant son, and her husband fur- vivering; the eldest daughter brought a bill for a partitio; and the only action was, whether the husband of the younger daughter died intestate for life conveyed to him, as tenant by the curtesy? Upon which it was decreed by Lord Chancellor, that trust eates were to be governed by the same rules, and were within the same reason, as legal eastes; and as the husband should have been tenant by the curtesy, had it been a legal eate, fo shoul he be, of the trust estate. That is, the same title of property in all courts, all things would be, as it were, at fee, and under the greatest uncertainty. 2 P. Plsins. 188. Whatts v. Bates.
So if J. S. makes his will, and his wife executrix, and the son afterwards prevails on his mother (by telling her that the executrixship would be troublesome to her, &c.) to get J. S. to make a new will, and him executor therein, he promises to be a trustee for the mother, which is done accordingly; and in that will there is but a small legacy given to the wife; the son having obtained a trust from the polluting of the fund, notwithstanding the statute of frauds and perjuries, which requires a declaration of trust in writing. 1 Vern. 296. Thynn v. Thynn.

But where one pollified of leaves for years devised them to his wife, and his son took them away, and his son died; and her second husband granted the leaves away; and the son fuel to be relieved, his bill was dismissed; for it was no trust for the son. Cited by Lord Chancellor as a case he remembered in Lord Egerton's time. Chan. Civ. 310. Civil v. Rich.

With respect to raising of trust, it has been held that where a trusts is created by marriage settlement or will, or a trust of a term to raise money at twenty-one or marriage, and the person dies before the time, a court of Equity will not suffer the trustee to raise the money at law. MSS. Rep. Fry v. Fry in Chan. Trin. 27 Gen.

Where A. by his will devised his real estate to his wife for life, with remainder over, and gave a legacy to his daughter, to be paid within one month after the death of his wife, and charged upon the real estate: The daughter died in the life of the mother, unmarried; and after the wife's death the representative of the daughter was charged with her part to have this legacy paid out of the estate. For the plaintiff it was infinced, that this was different from the common case of a legacy payable out of the lands, for the time the payment was postponed out of regard to the circumstances of the fund, and not of the person. But Lord Chancellor: The general rule is that where a legacy or portion is given to be raised out of lands, payable at a certain time; if the legacy or child dies before that time comes, and before the time, when in the view of the testator he could be supposed to want the legacy or portion, it shall sink into the land for the benefit of the heir or devisee, and this rule has only been broke into in favour of the husband or children of such legatee, &c. where she was married; but that is not the present case, and as to the argument made use of from the circumstances of the fund, that is only brought as an auxiliary reason; and no case has been determined upon such circumstances alone. If it had been given out a marriage settlement or a contingency upon the failure of life of A. &c. there might have been some reason to have given it to the representative, as the testator might probably think the legatee could not be living at such a distant period. But here it depends on the death of his wife, which might happen in a reasonable time. In cases where it has been given to A. his executors and administrators, it shews the intention of the testator to make it transmissible; and where it has been charged by a condition, or a conditional limitation, and the legatee has had a remedy at law to defeat the devise of the estate to the devisees, this court will not interpose to take that remedy from him, because he is charged to the devisee to make it conclusive. But in the case of a trust created by marriage settlement or will, or a trust of a term to raise money at twenty-one or marriage, where the person dies before, this court will not suffer the trustee to raise the money at law, where there might be a remedy at law contrary to the rules of this court. The testator here, in the latter part of his will, gives legacies to his two daughters, and if either of them die, her share to go to the survivor; this looks as if he did not intend that the representative should have it even in the first bequest, and is a further circumstance to confirm the opinion given arising against the legacy outstanding the real estate. Bill dismissed, but without prejudice. Here the court had made the trust in the child who had married, and left children, it might have been real other- wise. Fry v. Fry in Chan. Trin. 27 Gen. 2. MSS. Rep.

2. What shall be deemed a resulting trust, or a trust by implication.

It has been shown under the head, that by the statute against frauds and perjuries, the 29 Car. 2. cap. 32. all declarations of trusts were to be made in writing; but it is now a saying with regard to trusts resulting by implication of law, which are left on the footing where they stood before the act; now a bare declaration by parol before the act, would prevent any resulting trust. Arg. And the court seemed to be of that opinion. 2 Vern. 294. 2l. 285. Lady Belasyse v. Campbell and others.

It was likewise ruled by Lord Chancellor Cooper, that the statute of frauds, sect. 8. which says, 'That all conveyances, where trusts and confidences shall arise or result by implication of law, shall be as if that act had never been made, must relate to trusts and equitable interests, and cannot relate to any use which is a legal estate.' Mich. 1709. in the case of Lamplugh v. Lamplugh, 1 P. Wms. 112.

If a man purchases lands in another's name, and pays the money, it will be a trust for him that paid the money, tho' there be no deed made, declaring the trust thereof; for the statute of frauds and perjuries extends not to trusts raised by operations of law. 2 Vern. 361. Ann. 1 Vern. 366. S. P. Goafyger v. Thyngh.

No rule is more certain than a man makes a conveyance in trust for such person, and such estates as he thinks fit, and makes no appointment, the resulting trust must be a trust for him who paid the money; and the interest must be in the person who had the use of the money in the purchase, for the estate must be in him who is impelled by the statute to follow the rules of law in the case of an use, and that it would be so in the case of an use is undoubtedly true, and that was Sir Edward Child's case in 6 Rep. per Lord Chancellor. Fiz. Ghi. 223. Fitzgerald v. Ed. Powisbridges.

But trusts arising by operation of law have been but of two kinds, (first) either where the conveyance has been taken in the name of one man, and the purchase money paid by another; or (secondly) where the owner of the estate has made a voluntary conveyance of it, and made a declaration with regard to one part of the estate, and has been fleasit with regard to the other part of it. Per Lord Chancellor. Bernard, Rep. in Chan. 388. Lloyd v. Splitl.

Where it plainly appeared upon the evidence of both sides, that the consideration money paid on a purchase was the price of A.'s (though mentioned in the conveyance to be paid by B.) in fact it was never paid; and it not being for the statute of frauds, this would have been a resulting trust; and B. after A.'s death executing a declaration of trust, this plainly took it out of the statute, per Lord Chancellor Cooper. 1 P. Wms. 323. Ambrose v. Ambrose.

Wherever there is a consideration there can be no resulting trust. But if a lease be made for years without a consideration, there will be a resulting trust to the lessor.

Where a daughter's portion was charged upon the father's land, he, at the request of her father, had released her interest in the land, to the intent that he might be enabled to make a clear settlement thereof upon the son. It was declared by the Lord Keeper, that if this was done by the daughter without any consideration, there would be a resulting trust in the father, whereby he should be chargeable to the daughter for so much money. Freem. 305. Lady Trefal's case.

But where a trustful purchases lands out of the profits of the trust estate, and takes the conveyance in his own name; tho' probably, if he cannot make other satisfaction for the misappropriation, these lands may be sequestrated, yet it is to be considered, he could not be charged for the use of his own. If after your trust, no more than A. borrows money of B., and it is not a trust in writing; and a resulting trust it cannot be; because that would be to contradict the deed by parol proof, directly against the statute of frauds. But if this proof be thought to be defective, it has been with the profits of the trust estate, this appearing in writing might ground a resulting trust. On appeal to the house of
And see fort. R. 26

Yet punishment, Markant. nations, deratur.
iun. ufed man's before to reward, but it was proclaimed that he at several times declared it must be sold to make A. satisfactory; yet the court (though inclined to decree a conveyance to A. the executor being dead infant) declared it to be not, because there was no express proof of the application of the trust money. Co. Pet. 169. 18; 130, Holst, v.

In the case leading hereunto, ibid, for 23 Vin. Abr. tit. Traft, and 5 Bac. Abr. tit. Usas and Trutfs.

Trutnes of papifts, are disabled to make presents to churches, by fl. 12 Ann.

Lumbell, (Tambrellum, Turbicbemat,) Is an engine of punishment, which ought to be in every liberty that hath view of frank-pledge, for the correction of fools and unquiet women. Kitchin, fol. 13. See Turking-tool.

Ett, or Lott, In the end of words, or names, of places, signify a town, village, or dwelling-place. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Ett, (Tambelum,) Is a measure of oil or wine, containing twenty-six gallons and four quarts, or four hog-

Tungrewe, (Sax. Tungerewe, i.e. villa praepulsi,) A reeve or bailiff, qui in villis (Quo quae dicimus manusrici) domini præsidii, fuit, quique vicino dispensa & moderat. Smalman.

Tonnage or Coumage, (Tunmagium and Tenmagium,) Is a custom or impost due for merchandise brought or carried in tonnage, and such like vellics, from or to other nations, after a certain rate for every ton, mentioned in fl. 12. H. 4. c. 3. 1. 1 Ed. 6. cap. 17. 23. Car. 1. c. 12. and 12 Car. 2. cap. 4. It is sometimes used for a duty due to the mariners for unloading their ships arrived in any harbours, after the rate of so much a tun. Tonnage and poundage began in the 45th of Edward the third. Cowell, edit. 1727. See 4 Infli. fol. 32.

Turquagium, the liberty of digging turfs. Man. Anglo. 1 tem. p. 632.

Turbarb, (Turbaria, from turbus, an obsolete Latin word for a turf,) Is a right to dig turfs on another man's ground. Kitchin, fol. 94. And common of turbary is a liberty which some tenants have of privilege to dig turfs in a certain passage. Turbaria is also taken sometimes for the ground where turfs are digged. And you shall find an office brought of common of turbary in 5 Alf. pl. 9. and 7 E. 3. fol. 43. They likewise used turbary for the turf, and turbantia for the turbary. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Turfts, may be imported as they might have been before 10 & 11 Will. 3. 1 Grou. 8. 2. c. 18.

Turkey company. Any subject may be admitted on payment of 20 l. 26 Grou. 2. c. 18.

Exportation of gold and silver subject to by-laws, 26 Grou. 3. c. 18. f. 4.

Their by-laws subject to be revised by the board of trade, 26 Grou. 2. c. 18. f. 5.

No woollen goods of France to be imported into the levant feas, 32 Grou. 2. c. 34. Nor British except from Britain, 32 Grou. 2. c. 34. f. 2. See French goods.

Turking, is a sort of illy-coloured cloth. 'Tis mentioned in the fit. 1 B. 2. c. 25.

Turn or Coura, Is the sheriff's court kept twice every year, viz. within a month after Epiftler, and within a month after Michaelmas. Magna Charta, cap. 35. and 3 E. 3. c. 15. From this court are exempted only archbishops, bishops, abbes, priors, earls, barons, all religious men and women, and all such as have hundreds of their own to be kept. Stat. 25 H. 3. c. 10. Brit.

Turn cap. 29. calls it tur, id eis, ambiti, circuitus: It is a court of record in all things that pertain to it. It is the king's seat through all the country, and the sheriff is judge, and this court is incident to his office. See Cramp, jur. fl. 230. and 4 Infli. fl. 260. See Fleta, lib. 2. cap. 52. and Mirror of jufi. lib. 1. cap. de turmis. It is called the sheriff's turn because he kept a turn or circuit about his house, holding the same in several places. Sir Js. Danderleig's life of Wales, fl. 50.

Turns, for every year, AL. C. 9 H. 3. c. 35. 31 Ed. 3. fl. 1. c. 15.

Peers, religious persons, and women, privileged from coming to the turn, Stat. Marg. 52 H. 3. c. 10.

Articles to be impri'd of in the turn, Stat. Wall, 12 Ed. 4. in appendix.

She should not make their interloc with 12 men, who shall fett their feasts, 13 Ed. 1. c. 13.

The sheriffs shall deliver over to the juftices the indents taken in the turn, and shall not make out processes upon them, 1 Ed. 4. c. 2.

Jurons in the turn shall have 20 1. a year, treehold, or 1 l. 6s. 8d. wrig, 3. c. 4. 3. 4. 3. c. 4. 3. See County court.

Turnips, Penalties on healing turnips, 23 Grou. 2. c. 26. f. 13.

Turno vicariumus Is a writ that lies for those that are called to the sheriff's turn out of their own hundred. Rog. of wifh, fl. 173.

Waking or cutting them down, punished as a trespass, 1 Geo. 2. fl. 2. c. 19. f. 1.

Charges of profecution to be defrayed out of the tolls, 5 Grou. 2. c. 33. f. 3.

Turspikes illegally erected, to be removed by order of quarter-lefions, 5 Grou. 2. c. 33. f. 4. See Highways.

As mentioned in fl. 24. Hen. 6. c. 8. See tournaments.

Turrepine. See Drugs, fire.

Tuts, See Schools.

Tvattte, Signifies a wood grubbed up, and turned to arable. Co. On. lit. fol. 4.

Zwangthee geffe, (Holpvs duarum materiam,) If he did any harm to any, his body was not answerable for it, but only himself. Freeden, part, post, fuper. freom. annal. fl. 345. See Thirdnight aume bindache.

Twulfhundus, The fame with Thunus. Amongst the English Saxons every man was valued at a certain price; and where an injury was done either to the person or goods, a pecuniary-mild was imposed, and paid in satisfaction of that injury, according to the worth and quality of the person to whom it was done. And all men were ranked into their classes, which see in bindane: Those who were worth 1200£. were called twulfhundis; and if an injury was done to him, satisfaction was to be made accordingly to his worth. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Twelve men (Dodecem bonis legatis,) is a number of twelve persons, or upwards, to the number of twenty-four, by whole oath at to matter of fact all trials pass, both in civil and criminal causes, through all courts of the Common Law in this realm. Fifth, in civil causes, when the matter in question, then the point (that they are to give their verdict) upon is delivered likewise unto them, which we call the ifles; then they are put in mind of their oath to do right, and are by the judges, who turn up the evidence, fent out of the court by themselves, to consider upon the evidence on both sides, which they judge, and which done, they return to the court, and deliver their verdict by the mouth of their foremost; according to which, (if the matter be not arrested or stayed by the court) the judgment paffed. Cowell, edit. 1727. See Jury.

Twyfulhdene, Twyblende, twybind, twybinden. Under our Saxon government all persons had such an estimation or value put upon their heads, according to their quality or degree, and according to such estimation were reduced to their different classes, rank, or order. The lowest order was that of the twyulfu, or husbandmen, who were valued at 200 shillings, and called twulfuhenden. The middle, that of the ochreblunden, or men whose value was fixed at 600 shillings, and thence called fakhuhenden. The highest, that of the thanes or noblemen, who were rated at 1200 shillings and called twulfuhenden. For which see the laws of King Alfred, cap. 12, 30, 31, 32, and of King H. i. cap. 76, and 87. Cowell, edit. 1727.
VAD

Accusation, imprisonment, or charge of no trespass or offence. Leg. Eberd. c. 2. There is a Mistake in the laws of King Canute, as published by Bromyard, cap. 56. Si quis amicus delittus vel alerentia di tantum laborum servitut, at plebiam non habet, in prima tithe (it ought to be tytbe) id tdt, accipitern potest carceana, & id jus datius ad dei judicium covell, edit. 1777.

LYTHWIT, Is a British word signifying, familia, familia, tribe, and is derived either from plys, i. e. hui flitid demis, vel leon addicionae domus opus, or else from tyth, which signifies, tribe, to plys. In the first derivation it signifies a place where to build a house, and in the second a beam in the building. And tythwite is a tribe or family, branching or influing out of another, which we in our English heraldy call second or third bye. So that in case the paternal flock branched itself into several tythwits or houses, they carry no fecond or younger house than this tythwite farther; and the use of thes tylwits was to shew not only the originals of families, as if their work had been merely to run over a pedigeous, but the several divisions and distances of birth, that in case any line should make a failure, the next in degree may make use of their interest, according to the rules of partition in Gemelynd. Covell, edit. 1777.

Lymouth. There is a customary defcent of lands in the honour of Tymouth, that if any tenant hath issue two or more daughters, and die fell in fee, the life-time of the eldest, of the male part of the issue, and af-to the court of the male line; and for default thereof to escheat. 2 KB. 111, 114.

Epitaph. See Epitaphes.

V.

ACUZIA, A void place, or waife ground. Memonard, in Soc. Mich. 9 Ed. 1. by Sir John Mynard.

Vacation. (Vacatio) Is all the time betwixt the end of one term, and the beginning of another. Where such times began and ended in our ancestor's days, see Roger Humeon's annals, part. 2. fol. 743. Where you shall find that this intermission was called par dei & necrologos. Also the time from the death of a bishop, or other spiritual person, till the bishoprick or other dignity, be supplied with another, is called vacat. Wotton.
cap. 1. 24 and 13 E. 3. cap. 4. 5. Fruits of benefits taken in the time of vacation, shall be referved to the next incumbent, 26 Hen. 8. c. 11. See Puncary, non term.

Vacat. See Judgment, and 21 Fin. Ab. 356.

Vacatur. A voidance, or vacancy of any ecclesiastical benefit that shall hereafter happen. As prima vaca-tura, the first voidance, praesum vacatur, etc.

Vacaray, or Vachary. (Vaccaria, al. vachoria, vachoria and vachoria) Is a house or place to keep cows in, Fleet, lib. 2. cap. 41. Domus ficta que vaco vacvaria, vel quo negatius quod ad eas attinet perpetua. Sphen.
a dairy-house or cow-paftu. A yard where a fish may have a vacary within the forest. Cremel.
seems to be a special name of a certain compass of ground within the forest of Aheaton. And we read of the vaccary of Wyndale in Com. Lawr. Rot. Fin. 35 Edw. 3.
c. 23. Covell, edit. 1777.

Vacarium. The cow-herd, or herds-man, who looks after the common herd of cows. See his office described in Fleet. lib. 2. cap. 2.

Vacharia dulciurn, To wage a combat; which was when a person challenged any other to decide a controversy by combat or duel, and threw down a gauntlet, or the like sign of defiance, which if the other took up, this was vacharia dulcium, as it were to give and take a mutual pledge of fighting. Covell, edit. 1777.

Vol. II. No. 132.

VAD

MADUMI Morrison, Literally a mortgage; lands of immoveable goods to pawned or engaged to the creditor; that he has a right to the mean profits for the use of his loan or debt. See Glowne, fol. 10. cap. 8.

Per vacuum ponerre, To take security, bail, or pledge for the appearance of a delinquent in some court

Vagabonds, (Vogabundus) One that wanders about;
and has no certain dwelling; an idle fellow. Rogere, Vogabonds, and Rody beggars, mentioned in divers flu-

Vagabonds, Given to such a person able to work prohibited, 23 Ed. 3. ft. 1 c. 7.

Vagabonds, of justice c. to bind vagrants to good behaviour, 12 R. 2. c. 7.

Vagabonds, able to work shall be set in the Rocks, 12 R.
c. 2. c. 7.

Vagabonds, Prisoners arrived from beyond sea shall have passe from the magistrates, 12 R. 2. c. 8.

Punishment of vagrants and those that relieve them, 19
3. 28 & Ed. 6. c. 16. 52 Ed. 6. c. 2. 62 Ph. H. c. 12.
14 Ed. 4. c. 14. 18 Ed. 3. 1. c. 7. 7 f. c. 1. 4.

The punishment by going, burning through the ear,
&c. repealed, 35 Ed. c. 7. f. 24.

Wandering soldiers or mariners shall forfeit to labour, and shall have a testimonial of a justice of peace, 39
Ed. c. 1.

General provy (search to be made for vagrants, &c.
Jus. c. 1. c. 4.

For apprehending of vagrants, 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 12.
f. 16. 17 Ann. ft. 2. c. 23.

The judges may transport rogues and vagrants, 13 &
14 Geo. 2. c. 12.

Confable may make rates for re-imbusng the charge of conveying vagrants, 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 14.

Vagrants paid by contables to be brought before a justice, 11 & 12 H. 3. c. 18.

Vagrants to set down the rates for conveying vagrants,
1 Ann. f. 2. c. 13. f. 6.

Vagrants to be put into the Queen's fes service, 2 & 3 Ann. c. 6. f. 10.

Vagrants to make rates for conveying vagrants, 5 Ann.
c. 32.

General directions concerning vagrants, 12 Ann. ft.
c. 23. 13 Geo. 2. c. 24. 17 Geo. 2. c. 5.

Breaking out of house of correction felony, 17 Geo. 2.
c. 5. f. 14.

Directions concerning women delivered in the street,
17 Geo. 2. c. 5. f. 25.

Vagrants whose settlements cannot be found, may be sent to the plantations, 17 Geo. 2. c. 5. f. 28.

End-gatherers to be deemed rogues and vagrants, 13
Geo. 1. c. 23. f. 8.

Plants within five miles of the universites, deemed vagabonds, 10 Geo. 2. c. 19. f. 1. or selling without licence, 10 Geo. 2. c. 28.

The judges may examine a vagrant upon oath, and for want of bail commit him till the affizes, 25 Geo. 2.
c. 36. f. 12.

Method of conveying vagrants, 26 Geo. 2. c. 34.

Valeat, Valeat, or Ealed, Valed, and Valleret, (Valeatut vel Valeatia. Qui juxta dominum vadit seu mi-netur; Fr. Valez,) A servitor, or gentleman of the primary chamber, according to Cameron. But Selden (in his Title of bonorum, fol. 231.) says, vales anciently signified the young heirs which were to be knighted, or other gentlemen of great defect or quality, but now given to thole of the rank of yeomen. In the accounts of the 8 Z
V A S

I, the Temple, is used for a bechener's clerk, or servant; the butlers of the house corruptly call them varlets. In Reg. of writs, 25 b. valentus. If the stuff or a vale.

It is mentioned in Statuta Hanover, and the 13 Ed. 1. cap. 4.

Valeuthiria, The kindred of the plain, on the father's side, and another on the mother's side, to prove that he was a Welshman: It is mentioned in Statuta Hanover, and the 13 Ed. 1. cap. 4.

Value, (vaiutum, vaiutus,) A known word, yet W'll in his symbolism, part 2. tit. Indictiments, sect. 70. Nicely distinguishes between value and price: His words are these: The value of those things in which offences are committed, is usually comprised in indictments, which terms are necessary in the case. In the 2d. Ed. 1629, but lower, and in trifles to aggravate the fault, and increase the fine: but no price of things first natus, may be expressed, as of deer, hares, &c., as if be they not in parks and warrens, which is a liberty. Stat. 8 Ed. 4, f. 5, nor of charters of land. And where the number of the things taken is a matter of difference, as of young doves in a dove-house, young hawks in a wood, there must be said (pretii) or (ad valorem) but of divers dead things ad valorem, and not pretii; of coin not current it shall be pretii; but of coin current it shall not be said pretii nor ad valuation, for the value and price thereof is certain. Cowell, edit. 1727, part 3. Ed. 14, pag. 537.

Value of marriage, (valeur maritilogi,) Was a writ that lay for the lord, having preferred a covenental marriage, to the infant, without dispargagement, if he refused to take the lord's offer, to recover the value of the marriage. Reg. Orig. fol. 164. Old nat. brev. fol. 90. See Part.

Vaniatus, (Precarior) As vanitatis Regis, the King's foro footman: Richardus Rychste miles teutic teras Sextiatae per ferjationis off vanitatis Regis in Gufltio, dome perusus fuit parti plurarum pretii 4, d. alien triumphi per coelum pretii 4. Rur. de finibus, Term. Merch. 2 Ed. 2.

Vaniatio, (Variantia, from the French Parier, i.e. alterare,) Signifies any alteration of a thing formerly laid in a plea, or where the declaration in a cause differs from the writ, or from the deed upon which it is grounded, Gr. 2 Litt. Abr. 6. &c. Where a variance between the declaration and the writ, it is error; and the writ shall abate. And if there appear to be a material variance between the matter pleaded and the manner of pleading it, this is not a good plea; for the manner and matter of pleading ought to agree in substance; and there will be no certainty in it. The 2d. Ed. 1629, part 3. Ed. 14, pag. 537.

Vane, the pleasing is good in substance, a small variance shall not hart. 3 Mod. 227. If the record of pretii prior agrees with the declaration delivered, a variation in the issue is not material. 2 Strange 1313. Where the original writ varies from the declaration, it is not remedied by any statute of Jealits. 5 Rep. 37. There is no variance between the writ and declaration, in an action of the case, the one being for more than the other, and tho' the plaintiff had a verdic, he could not get judgment: It was held, that it was not aided by the statute 18 Eliz. for that statute helps when there is no writ, not where there is one that varies in substance from the declaration. 2 Cow. 290. In a case of varietas pretii, it was adjudged ill, and not to warrant the declaration; and thereupon the judgment was reversed. Cow. Cap. 98, 205. See 21 Vin. Abr. tit. Vaniatio.

Vaffa, (Vaffallia) Signifies him that holds land in fee of his lord; we call him more usually a tenant in fee, whereas some owe fidelity and service, and are called vaullia juravit. Scena de voleret. sign. verb. Ligurian, faith that vaullallia is divided into homologum & non homologum. Homologum is he that waless have service with exception of a higher lord, and non homologum is he that waless without exception, all one with ligus. And the confederator, verb. Vaffallia, faith, that it is regular vaullallia, l. inferior fuishe, because the waull allia is inferior to his master, and must serve and reverence him; and yet he is in a manner his companion, because each of them is obliged to the other. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Vallaghe, Signifies the state of a vassal, or servitute and dependence on a superior lord: Ligii vaullallia became only to the King, Jeste. Is a writ that lies for the heir against the tenant for term of life or of years, for making waal; or for him in the reverson or remainder. F. N. B. fol. 20, pag. 29. See 21 Vin. Abr. tit. Vallaghe. 21 & 26. vide 6 E. 1. cap. 5.

Vallum, A waale or common lying open to the cattle of all tenans, who have a right of commonning. Parech. Antip. 171.

Vallum Forrespel vel Scrori, That part of forest or wood, which the trees and underwood were do destroyed, that it lay in a manner waale and barren. Parech. Antip. p. 351.

Vallatao, or Vallatafo, Is one that in dignity is next to a baron. Camd. Brit. pag. 109. Brafdon, lib. 1. c. 8. says thus of them. Sund & all potes regni, qui decimur in manu regis, sive in fundatione capitis, sive in fundatione vaularum, sive magnae digitallis. Vaulatao enim nihil mihiius dici potest quam sua fortitum ed vaullalliaruni. See Coins. 188.

Vallum, (Vexforum,) The lands that a waless held. Bratt. lib. 2. c. 39.

Vallal-Heny, The tenants of one of the tithings within the manor of Bradford in Wiltshire, pay a yearly rent by this name to their lord, the marquess of Winchester, which is in lieu of waale paid formerly in kind. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Venerabilis Judicatorium, Is applied to money or fines paid to the King, to defray the charge he is at in maintaining the courts of justice, and protection of the people. 3 Salk. 33.

Aporus, (Fijeros, from the French vair, videre, in- teriri,) Are such as are sent by the court to take view of any place in question for the better decision of the right. Old Nat. Breve. fol. 112. So likewise Brattion us. lib. 5. trat. 2. c. 8. It signifies all such as are sent to view those that enjoin themselves de modo legi, whether they be in true so fack as they can: appear, or whether they counterfeit. Bratt. lib. 5. trat. 2. cap. 10 & 14. Lastly, It is used for thate for those that are appointed to view an offence, as a man murdered, or a vaullallia. 21. Cowell, edit. 1727. See Ulpsr.

Veliacra, (Ministerium de Velacra,) The office of dog-leader or a coursier. Rot. Pip. 5 Steph.

Velacra, One who leads grey-hounds, which dogs in Germany are called Welters, in Italy Velatores, in France Flateurs. And lands are held per servitium innum. vel de vadium vulgarium casus duce, St. Blain's Ter.

Vemagog, pag. 9.

Venaria, Are those beasts which are caught in the woods by hunting. Leg. Canut. cap. 128.

Venatio, Was sometimes used for the exercice of hunting, but more often for the prey taken, or venison. If any hunted without licence within the liberties of the King's forests, a severe penalty was imposed at the next quartermore; which fines and amercements were due to the King, but commonly referred to the King. So when William Fitz-Nigel enjoyed several privileges as forester of Berwode, it was— Exceptis in.

Venatione, que Domino Regi communi se servitutis. Parech. Antip. p. 73.

Venationem, Is a writ judicial, directed to the under therif, commanding him to fell goods which he hath formerly by commandment taken into his land; for the satisfying a judgment given in the King's court.

2
VEN

Regis, The King's teller or facteman; the person who exposed to sale those goods and chattels which the defendant failed to answer and demand due to the King.

Philippus or Laurens, a famous vendor's name.

Dominus Regis de foetus in caen. Eius, de omnibus rebus but que vendit debeat pro debito Dominus Regis, vel eum torem.

Eius, a famous vendor's name.

Judic. vendit, vendem, vendere etc., vendem, vendit, vendum.

Venu, a famous vendor's name.

and it appears by the return to such venire, that the party has lands in the county whereby he may be diftrain'd, the diriffs infinite shall be awarded till he do appear; and he shall forfeit on every default, as much as the defendant returns upon him in fines: But if a nulli be returned, a copy, alias, or abit, an alias, or abit, a venire facias ad respondendum may be without a day certain, because by an appearance the fault in this process is cured; but a venire facias ad triennium, extum must be returned on a day certain, &c.

The book of destraffetos; so called because of the great number of fine bills.

In hotam, &c.

It often occurs in the history of our English fynods, and is called venitariam.

F. &c. pag. 332.

Gunter, Signifies the belly; but is also used for the children by a woman of one marriage: There is in law a first and second venter, &c. where a man hath children by several wives; and how they shall take in different of lands, see Deferent.

Venire inpetитiendo, is a writ for the search of a woman that hath life with child, and thereby with-holdeth land from him that is next heir at law.

Regist. fol. 227.

Sir F. W. died, his lady enfeint. P. who married Sir F. W.'s eldest daughter, and who had the greatest part of the estate settled on him upon the marriage in default of a venire facias, or a venire facias ad triennium, or a venire facias ad respondendum; but to be the remainder in use, limited to the first son of Sir F. and to disinherit the issue in venire facias. The widow of Sir F. petitioned the judges and the lords in council, to stay his proceedings, suggesting that she was with child; which was granted. Whereupon P. suggested in Chancery, that she was not with child, but by such pretence detained the evidences of the lands, and stopped his recovering a remedy, and prayed the writ de venire inpetitendo, which was granted.

Whereupon the sheriffs of London, with a jury of women, whereas two of midwives, came to the lady's house, and into her chamber, and sent to her the women, sworn by the sheriffs before, to fear, try, and speak the truth whether she was with child or not. The men all went out, and the women searched the lady, and gave their verdict that she was with child; whereupon the sheriffs returned the writ accordingly.

A widow married again within a week after the death of her first husband, whose cousin and heir brought the writ de venire inpetitendo, directed to the sheriff of London; who returned, that he caueth her to be searched by such matrons, who found her with child, and good pari tura, to be admitted, within seven weeks, so that if then the sheriffs might take her into custody, and keep her till the child was delivered. But because the ought to live with her husband, the court would not take her from him, he entering into a recognizance, that the should not remove from his then dwelling-house, and that one or two of the women returned by the sheriffs should see her every day, and that two or three of them be present at the delivery; and a writ was awarded accordingly to the sheriffs of Surry.

And afterwards she was delivered of a daughter, who was found by inquisition to be the daughter and heir of the first husband.

Venu, (Victimenum, or Fisitetum,) is taken for a neighbouring place, locus quasi vicini habitans: It is the place from whence a jury are to come for trial of causes.

F. M. 115.

The several general rules respecting the necessity of a venue are, that a venue is necessary in all cases where the matter is trasversable, or where it affects the right of the action; but where it merely regards the person, or concerns damages only, there a venue is not necessary.

The other cases on the cause the defendant pleaded in abatement, that the plaintiff was an alien enemy, and laid no venoire:

VEN
VENUE: And on demurrer it was adjudged to have been well pleaded, and the plaintiff might have replied, that he was born in England generally. But if such a matter is pleaded in bar, it must be pleaded with a venire, and that venire should issue, if he was born in such a place in England, and in the principal cause judgment was given, quod bills caustifiant. 2 Ed. Raym. 1243.

Pie v. Cooper.

Matters touching the person, as privilege of attorney, may be pleaded without a venire, and be tried where it is brought. 2 Ed. Raym. 1175, 1173. Scaten v. Garret.

In covenant against one as affignee, there is no need of laying any venire, because an assignment is always intended to be made on the lands assigned: per Cor. Carth. 235. Buckle v. Hild."--H. 8d. C. 113.

If the declaration executory is transferable, and therefore a venire must be laid, Civ. Elia. 880. The Lady Shandas v. Simpson.

Where the judgment is upon a nihil dictat, the want of a venire is not material to its falling aside, because the enquiror is not to be any thing besides, judgments, which may be enquired by any jurors in the county. 1 Lart. 225. Remington v. Taylor.

It is a general principle, that the want of a venire is only curable by such plea as admits the fact for the trial whereof it was necessary to lay a venire: Or by a verdict. 6 Mod. 222. 3 Salk. 381. Thus in the case of a venire is necessary to be laid over; and where in trespass a defendant pleaded a submission to an award, and that an award was made, which he had performed, but laid no venire where the performance was. The plaintiff replied another award and the defendant tendered issue upon it, whereupon the plaintiff demurred. Holt Chief Justice said, that the want of a venire was added by the pleading over. Ed. Raym. 1039. Purflove v. Bailey.

So in debt upon bond, tho' no venire is laid where the bond was made, yet if the defendant pleads a release, this admits the bond, and aids the want of a venire; per Holt Chief Justice. But if the defendant had demurred, the want of a venire had been ill. Ed. Raym. 1040. Purflove v. Bailey.

By the 16 & 17 Car. 8. c. 8. the want of a venire is aided after verdict; and this in cafes not only where there is a wrong venire, but also where the cause is tried in a wrong county, as appears from the following cases. Baltic v. Botes. S. C. Raym. 181. by the name of Craft v. Winter. And it is there added, that the defendant might have demurred upon it. Many niceties which were formerly to be observed with respect to the laying of the venire, are now removed by the 4 & 5 Ann. cap. 16. which enacts, ' That every venire ought for the trial of any illise in any action or suit, shall be awarded of the body of the proper county where such illise is triable.' And see Stat. 24 Geo. 2. c. 18. which extends this a\ to trials of illises on penal

The venire in the declaration was laid at Leek, and not at Leek in the county aforesaid. Defendant demurred, and threw the want of a proper venire for cause, plaintiff joined in demurrer, and upon argument the court gave judgment for the plaintiff. It was held sufficient according to the course of the court to lay the venire at Leek which has reference to the county in the margin; and since by the act of parliament the venire facias is to be awarded de corpore commissarii, it is not necessary that any particular place in the county be laid. 1 Barnes's notes in C. B. 342. Spooner v. M'Ward.

It is a general rule likewise, that the county in the margin of a declaration will help the venire laid in the body of it, but will not hurt it; as appears from the following case:

In the margin flood the word Norfolk, in the body of the declaration, the venire was laid at the city of Norwich, in the county of the same city throughout. The plaintiff executed a writ of inquiry of damages directed to the sheriff of the city of Norwich. Had no venire been laid in the body of the declaration, reference must be had to the margin; but where a proper venire is laid in the body of the declaration, the word in the margin shall not vitiate it, for it is a fenallel which is helped by the 4 & 5 Ann. cap. 16. 1 Barn's notes in C. B. 345. Hendc v. Horsefield.

It is to be observed however, that in all real actions the venire ought to be laid in that county where the thing is for which the action is brought; for being local, it is only triable there; whereas matters which are transtitory may be tried in any county. 2 Litt. Abr. 728, 783.

In an action of debt brought for rent due for land upon a lease under hand and seal, where there is no privity of contract, as against an affigree, the venire shall not be laid out of the county where the land lies for which the rent is due; for the action is, for want of privity of contract, a case where a venire out of the county is out of which the rents are sufficing, and not transtitory: But where the action is brought by the lessor against the affigree, there being privity of contract, the action is transtitory, and the demises may be laid to be made in any other county than that where the land lies. 2 Litt. Abr. 783, 785.

With respect to criminal cases it is ordained by the statute 21 Jac. 1. cap. 4. that all informations or penal statures shall be laid in the counties where the offences were committed. And upon this statute the following point was adjudged. 21 Jac. 4. c. 3. See 5 Bac. Abr. 327, 329.

Verdicto, (Vereditum, quod dictum verita) is the answer of a jury made upon any cause, civil or criminal, as the commonwealth bring before the court to their examination. And this is twofold, general or special; a general verdict is that (Stannf. Pl. Cor. lib. 2. cap. 9.) which is given or brought into the court in like general terms to the general issue, as in an action of deceitful, the defendant pleaded, no wrong, no deceitful; then the issue is general, whether in the giving of evidence or in the examination before the court, they upon consideration of their evidence come in and say, either for the plaintiff, that it is a wrong and deceitful; or for the defendant, that there is no wrong, no deceitful. A special verdict is, when they say at large, that such a thing and such a thing they find to be done by the defendant or tenant, so declaring the cause of the fact, as in their opinion it is proved; and as to the law upon the fact, they pray the judgment of the court: And this special verdict, if it contain any ample declaration of the cause from the beginning to the end, is also called a verdict ad large, whereof read examples is Stannf. ab. Sagra, and Co. en Lit. fdl. 328. Casuall, edit. 1777.

Verdicti de bene eff is a conditional verdict, the validity of which depends upon something subsequent to the taking thereof. 5 Bac. Abr. 284.

If the judge before whom a cause is tried has a doubt as to the finding of a venire, he may direct the jury to find one de bene eff; and if it shall upon consideration be thought right to have taken the verdict, it shall be absolute. Browne Met. 13.

If an action of debt be brought against husband and wife, and at the trial of the cause the wife make default, and a protection be call for her, the judge may direct the jury to find a verdict de bene eff; and if the protection be disallowed
A special verdict is so called, because the matter in issue is thereby found specially. 5 Bat. Abr. 286. It seems to have been always held clearly, that where the general issue is pleaded, and issue is thereupon joined, the jury may find a special verdict. Bro. Verdit. pl. 45, p. 56, pl. 85.

It is laid down in some books, that if issue be joined upon a special plea, the jury cannot find a special verdict. Bro. Verdit. pl. 45, p. 56, pl. 85.

But it is laid down in one book, that altho' there be some opinions to the contrary it is now settled, that the jury may find a special verdict in any case where issue is joined upon a special plea; for that a question of law may as well arise upon such issue as where the general issue is pleaded. 1 Id. 226, 227.

And in another book it is said to have been holden by all the justices of the King's Bench, that in all pleas of the crown and in every civil action, whether it be real, personal or mixed, in which any issue is joined, either between the King and a party, or between party and party, the jury may find a special verdict, which is insufficient to the issue specially. 9 Rep. 12. Dawran's case.

Nay, it is laid down, that the court cannot in any case refuse to receive a special verdict, provided the matter specially found be pertinent to the issue; in as much as the jury have a right to find such a verdict in every case where that appears to them to be doubtful. 1 Id. 228. 9 Rep. 12.

But however true it is, that the jury may in any case which appears to them to be doubtful find a special verdict, it is not necessary even to their own safety for them so to do in every case. 1 Id. 228. Fang. 145. Ld. Raym. 1494. Fift. 256, 257.

For if in any case the judge, before whom the cause is tried, do take it upon himself to determine a question of law, concerning which the jury might otherwise have some doubt, and to direct them to find a general verdict, they may safely do it. 1 Id. 228. Fang. 145. Ld. Raym. 1494. Fift. 256, 257.

Nor are they in such cases, altho' the law should be mistaken, liable to an attaint; for it is only said, that the jury are liable to an attaint where they will take upon themselves the knowledge of the law and find a general verdict, it follows that they are not liable thereto, unless they do no more in finding a general verdict than follow the direction of the judge. 1 Id. 227. 4 Rep. 54.

If it appear upon the trial of a person indicted for murder, that he is of insane mind, the jury may, upon being informed by the judge that such a person cannot be guilty of any crime, (for eritum num contribuit nihil voluntis suae), find a general verdict of not guilty. 2 H. H. P. C. 303. Fift. 279.

If upon the trial of a person indicted for murder the judge is, upon the whole circumstances of the case, of opinion, that the homicide is justifiable, the jury may under his direction find a general verdict of not guilty. 2 H. H. P. C. 303. Fift. 279.

Hence it appears that the jury may with safety to themselves, in any case under the direction of the judge, find a general verdict. Ld. Raym. 1494. Fift. 256, 257.

But it is likewise said, that if the jury are in any case dissatisfied with the opinion of the judge, they are not obliged to follow his direction, but may find a special verdict. Ld. Raym. 1494. Fift. 256, 257.

It is usual when a special verdict is found, for the jury to find only the matter of fact, and to submit some question of law thereupon arising to the consideration of the court. 5 Bat. Abr. 285.

But if the judge before whom the cause is tried, do in a case where the verdict ought in his opinion to be a special one, take it upon himself to determine the law, the jury may find a special verdict without submitting any question of law to the consideration of the court. 5 Bat. Abr. 285.

If, upon a trial of a person indicted for murder, the judge is upon the whole circumstances of the case of opinion, that the homicide amounts to manslaughter, the jury ought to find a special verdict; for it would be dangerous to themselves to find a general verdict contrary to the opinion of the judge. Edf. 264.

It would also be very improper in them so to do; for if their verdict should be that the offender is guilty, he who is not in the opinion of the judge guilty of murder would be liable to suffer death as a murderer; and if their verdict should be, that the offender is not guilty, he who is so in the opinion of the judge, if guilty of felony would not be liable to a forfeiture of his goods and chattels, which every person convicted of felony, notwithstanding his being intitled to the benefit of the clergy, is liable to.

But the jury may in such case under the direction of the judge find the offender guilty of manslaughter; for
When a special verdict is directed by the court, the minutes of it ought to be setted and signed by one of the counsell of each party; and these ought to be delivered to the jury before they consider of a verdict. If this be not done, the jury may, without inquiring the claim of any one, find a general verdict. 2 Litt. 972. F. 792. F. G.

When the counsel for one of the parties refused to sign the minutes for a special verdict, the court may direct the jury to find one from the minutes as signed by one of the counsel for the other party. 2 Litt. 973. G.

It is intended to submit by a special verdict any question of law to the consideration of the court, the minutes for the special verdict are, so far as they relate to a question of law, to be approved of by the judge; for it is his province to see that every question of law be fairly stated. 2 Litt. 971. F.

It is rather incumbent upon the party, at whose instance a special verdict is found, to draw it up from the minutes as settled and approved of at the trial of the cause: But either of the parties may do this; and if the other party neglects to pay his share of the expense of drawing up the special verdict, the court will not hear any counsel for him who comes on to be argued, by a Litt. 971. E.

For more learning on the subject, see 5 Bac. Abr. tit. Verdict.

The Clerk, a place, adjoining to a church, where the vestments of the minister are kept; also a meeting at such place: And sometimes the bishop and priests sat together in vestries, to consult of the affairs of the church; in reformation of which ancient custom, the minister, churchwardens, and chief men of mult pluries, do at this day make a parish verity. By custom there may be feched verities, or a certain number of persons chosen to have the government of the parish, make rates, and take the accounts of churchwardens, &c. 2 Strange 738.

And when rates are made, the parishioners must have notice of a verity held for that purpose, and then all that are able are to be made by a rate, as the statute maketh. If all be present, who in contruction of law are the whole parish. Wood's 48. 90.

And if a parishioner be flut out of the verity room by the clerk of the verity; and he makes it appear that he hath a right to come into the room, and to be present and vote in the verity, &c. for the church在其, as a remedy. Mod. Co. in L. & E. 52. 254.

Vestrymen, London are a feched number of the chief parishioners in every parish within the city and suburbs, who yearly choose officers for the parish, and take care of its concerns, &c. by statute 15 Car. 2. c. 5.

On erecting parishes for the new churches to be built in or near London and Westminster, the commissioners for building the churches are empowered to name a sufficient number of the inhabitants of each new parish to be vestry-men; and on their oaths or removal, the majority of the parishioners to choose others, &c. and the parish officers, with the vestry or principal inhabitants of the new parishes, are in the session for the making of the new parishes, 9 Ann. 2. 11. And there may be vestry-men for parishes, who are to be constituted by parish officers, to give their attent to hiring of houses for the better employing and maintaining the poor. 9 Geo. 1. The right of appointing a verity is in the parish at large. 2 Stat. 1043.

Clerg. by the plaintiff as a parishioner of G, against the defendant, clerk of the verity there, for fluting the verity door, and keeping the plaintiff out of the room, so that he could not come in to vote, &c. Upon demurrer it was insisted that action would not lie; for if he should, then every parishioner kept out might have the like action; therefore to avoid multiplicity of suits, this will not lie, and if it be not lie, the defendant shall not be answerable to him. But per cur: The plaintiff as a parishioner hath a right to be present and vote in the verity, at the election of parish officers, and as to all rates with which the parishioners are charged; so that this action is his proper remedy for the injury done by the defendant by hindering him to come into the verity room; for if it should not lie, he hath no other remedy. 3 Mod. 52. Trin. 7 Geo. 1721. Braden v. Royland.

A verity was called to consider about building a workhouse, where it was agreed to, and to borrow money for that purpose; and that whoever should be bound for it should be authenticated by the parish. This order was confirmed by another, and both signed by the vicar and several of the inhabitants. 300. C. being the sum agreed upon, was borrowed of A. to whom B. gave bond for it. An order of verity was made for raising the money, but upon appeal to the quarter-fees for some new parishioners was quashed. B. was feed on the bond, 2 paid paid the money, and then brought a bill for relief. And the matter of the Rolls decreed him his principal, inter- est, and costs at law, and in this court; and that the defendants the vicar, churchwardens, and overseers of the parish have agreed up for the year last, and if the inhabitants refuse payment, the plaintiff to be at liberty to apply to the court: And said that he did not see why the court might not as well compel those who are not parties to pay the rate, as order tenants though not parties to pay the rents; and because the defendants had put in a fair answer, their costs were declared to be raised by the same rate; but said, that if those who had appealed to the quarter-seizons had been before the court, they should have paid all the costs. 2 Wms. Rep. (32d.) 91.

1. Benefice. A crop of grass or corn; and mention is made in ancient charters of prima voptura, and secunda ve- flura, that is the first and second crop. The word was often used for a velt, veflure, livery, delivery, &c. as an allowance of some portion of the products of the earth, as corn, grass, wood, &c. to be paid for the salary or wagons to some officer, servant or labourer, for their livery or velt. So foresters had a certain allowance of timber and underwood yearly out of the forest for their own use. 1 Russ. Antig. p. 620.

2. Veflure. (Voptura) Signifies a garment; but in the law, it is applied metaphorally to a thing delivered with a trust, or feoff; so it is taken in 1. Wilm. 2. cap. 5. And in this signification it is borrowed from the feodals, with whom in feuity signifies a delivery of pos- session by a spear or flat, and voptura possession itself, Hateman in verb. Feudal. vobc. In feuity.

3. Veffure of an Arre of Lands, is mentioned in 1at. 14. E. 3. 1. 1. is the profit of it. So in Extensa Man- neris, 5 Ed. 1. It is inquirable. How much the velfure of an acre is worth, and how much the land is worth when the wood is felled.

4. Vettium Namium, Namium, Signifies a taking or disfress, and vetium forbidden; as when the bailiff of a lord disfrains his goods, or the lord forbids his bailiff to deliver them when the sheriff comes to replevy them, and to that end drives them to places unknown; or when without any words they are so cloined, that they cannot be repleved. Divers lords of hundreds and courts baron have power to hold plea de vettia namis, in old books, and for that purpose, 2o. Sir Henry 5. Man says it is antiqua juris mihi laicus, & breui Regis novem. See Mann or Mann. Uttingly, The Kings of the English Angles were so-cal- led from king Utfa, who lived in the year 578. Mutt. Wilm. Utta militantis, A highway. 10. Brutt. lib. 4. cap. 16. 2. Ed. 1. 6. cap. 3.

5. Wal nigll, The highway, or common road, called the King's way, because authorized by him, and under his protection. Leg. Hen. 1. c. 80.

6. Vicer, (Vicarius, quasi vix fungens rectoris,) The priest of every parish is called rector, unless the prebendal tithes are appropriated, and then he is called vicar; and when reftures are appropriated, vicars are to supply the rector's place. At first a vicar was a mere curate to the improver of the church, temporary, and removable at pleasure; as those who are now parih priests in ancient times when there were no particular parishes, were only curates of the bishop; but by forgetting the vicar got a settled maintenance of glebe, and some kind of tithes, and now claim their dues either by endowment or by prescription; And where the vicar is endowed, and comes in by institution and induction, he hath curatum an- numorum actualliter; and is not to be removed at the pleasure of the rector, who in that case has no cura- tum actualliter. But where the vicar is not endowed, nor comes in by institution and induction, the rector hath curatum annumorum actualliter, and may remove the vicar. 1. Vint. 15. 3. Salk. 378. In every church ap- propriated one is to be ordained perpetual vicar, and to be canonically instituted and induced, and also endowed at the discretion of the ordinary; which endowment is a part of the rector, set out by the patron, parson, and ordinary, for maintaining the vicar: The institution and induction, &c. of vicars is done in the same manner as that of rector; and over and above they are to take an oath of due and sufficient endowment, but this the bishop may dispense with; the statutes concerning pluralities, dilapidations, &c. relate to them as well as to parsons. 1. H. 4. 2. Rol. Abp. 337. Upon endowment, the vicar hath an equal, though not so great an interest in the church as a rector; the freedom of the church, church-yard and glebe is in him; and as he hath the freedom of the glebe, he may prescribe to have all the tithes in the parish, ex- cept those of corn, &c. Many vicars have a good part of the great tithes; and some benefices, that were for- merly feathered by the church, now are, in the same way belong to the vicar than by gift, composition or prescription, for all tithes due de jure appertain to the parson; and yet generally vicars are en- dowed with glebe and tithes, especially small tithes, &c. If a vicar be endowed with small tithes by prescription, and afterwards lands, which had been arable time out of mind, is alienated, and there are growing small tithes thereon, the vicar shall have them; for his endowment goes to such tithes, in any place within the parish.

7. The King shall have the advowson of vicarages.

8. 1 Ed. c. 4. s. 25.

9. The qualifications requisite for a benefice with cure, of the yearly value of 30l. 13. Eliz. c. 12. f. 6. Where a man may be deprived for holding a doctrine contrary to the Church of England, 15. 25 E. 1. f. 5.

10. What age, and what subsistence; and reading of the articles, requisite, 13 Eliz. cap. 12. f. 3. 23 Gor. cap. 28. f. 2.

12. Reading and absent to the Common Prayer, required for a benefice with curate, 13. 14 Car. 2. c. 4. f. 6. 7. 23. Gor. c. 2. f. 28. f. 1.

14. Owners of impropriations may annex them to the par- fagonage or vicarage, 17 Car. 2. c. 3. f. 7.

15. Incumbrances not 100l. in the year may purchase to themselves and their successors, without licence of mort- main, 17 Car. 2. c. 3. f. 8.

16. Augmentations of small vicarages and curacies by re- servations in leaves of tithes perpetuated, 29 Car. 2. c. 2. f. 10. c. 11.

17. The augmentations of small livings provided for by erecting a corporation to receive a grant of the first fruits and tithings from the crown, and grants from private per- sons, 2 & 3 Ann. c. 11. 1. Gor. f. 1. c. 2. 10.

18. Provises that such grants shall not prejudice former grants of first fruits, 2. 3 & 4 Ann. c. 11. f. 3. 5 Ann. f. 2. 3. Gor. c. 1. 20. f. 5.

19. Rectors, &c. may purchase lands to the yearly value of 100l. 10 Ann. c. 11. f. 10.

20. Bishops enabled to appoint flenps for curates, 12 Ann. f. 2. c. 12.

21. Claritages, (Vicariae,) Of places did originally belong to the parsonage or rector; being derived out of it: The rector the King's, in affairs of the county. Cowell, edit. 1727.
...

Villdrect. A videlicet in a deed may make a separation, as well as an habendum: And if there be a several habend of an annuity of 20l. to one, and so to four others; it will be to the same effect, that it says habend 100l. to them, to be equally divided, (viz.) 20l. to each, with levera reth.

Villatutis profcripfi. The making a solemn proclamation to live a free and chaste widow; of which custom in England, the practice and ceremonies attending it are well delivered by Mr. Dugdale in his Antiquities of Warwichshire, pag. 313 & 654.

Villatutis, cited in flat. 15 Hen. 6. c. 3. See Insubertinnis.

Vill et armis. Are words used in indictions, &c. to express the charge of forcible and violent committing any crime or trespass: But on appeal of death, on a killing with a weapon, the words vi & armis are not necessary, because they are implied; so in an indictment of forcible entry, alleged to have been made manu fortis, &c. 2 Hawk. P. C. 179. 1 Hawk. 150. 120, and where the omission of vi & armis, &c. is helped in indictions, see the flat. 4 & 5 Ann.

Villëam. (Fr. eves., i.e. offis) Is generally where a real action is brought against a person, and the tenant doth not know certainly what it is in demand; in such case he may pray that the jury may view it. Britton cap. 45. F. N. B. 178. This view is for a jury to see the land or thing claimed, and in controversy, &c. and lies in ejectment, waste, affines of novel difference, where at the leaf fix of the recognitores, may be made, flat. 2 12d. App. 655. Stat. 13 Ed. 1. c. 48. 12 Ed. 2. By flat. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. § 8. In an action brought in any of the courts of record at Westminster, where it shall appear to the court that it will be proper and necessary that the jurors should have a view, they may order special works of digging, or burning, as for example, the commandings the sheriff to have fix of the first twelve of the jurors therein named, or some greater number of them at the place in question, &c. And the sheriff shall by a special return, certify 'That a view has been had.' And by flat. 3 Geo. 2. c. 25 (the balloting a§) § 14. It is provided 'That where a view shall be allowed, fix of the jurors named in the panel, or more, shall have the view, and shall be the first sworn, (or such of them as appear,) before any drawing.' But as the having a view was not, by either of these statutes, made a matter of course, though such a practice had prevailed, and had fix of the jurors in the view, the returning of the finding, thought it their duty to take care that their ordering a view should not obstruct justice, and prevent the cause from being tried: And they resolved not to order one any more, without a full examination into the propriety and necessity of it. For they were all clearly of opinion that the rule of parliament meant that a view should not be granted, unless the court was satisfied that it was proper and necessary: And they thought it better that a cause should be tried upon a view had by any fix, or by fewer than fix, or even without any view, than be delayed for a greater length of time: Accordingly they added special words of digging or burning, as for example, that the party praying a view confected 'That in case no view should be had; or if a view should be had by any of the jurors whomsoever, (that not being fix of the first twelve) yet the trial shall proceed, and no objection be made, in a count thereof, or for want of a proper return. Since which, motions for views are become motions of course, with such additional consent annexed to them. Bur. Rep. 256.

VIIL See the form of the usual rule, and also of the modern addition, both in deeds to be tried by fpecial jurors, and those to be tried by common jurors, respectively sects. 3 & 4. Res. Vet. II. n. 132.

Villg a. (Lat. vina flosum pernum regis reginae. &c. as introduced to the face & common utilities. Ind. flat. 5. 3 Ed. 6. cap. 19.) Is used for the eve or next day before any solemn feast; because then christians of old were wont to watch, fast and pray in their churches. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Vill laica removenda. A writ that lies where two persons contented for a church, and one of them enters into it with a great number of laymen, and hold out the other vi & armis; then he that is holden out shall have this writ directed to the sheriff, that he remove the forces of the church, and not to let the sheriff bent out of the church, whether he is there by right or wrong, but only the force. F. N. B. 54. 3 If. 131. and see 5 R. 2. c. 2. And the writ vi laica removenda ought not to be granted, until the bishop of the diocese where such church is, hath certified into the chancery such refilling and force, &c. that it is laid in the New Naturæ brevium, it lieth upon a surmise made by the incumbent, or by him that is grieved, without any such certificate of the bishop. New Nat. brev. 121. A refutation was awarded to one who was put out of possession by the sheriff upon a vi laica removenda. Cro. Eliz. 4 & 5 Ann. 42.

Villëa. (Villa) Is sometimes taken for a manor, and sometimes for a parish, or part of it. Villæ est ex partibus manumans vicinatas, et cellarum ex pluribus vicinis. T. 1. Indl. 115. b. Villi and parish shall be intended all one. Cre. Rep. 3 para. fol. 263. Why's case, yet there may be two duties. See flat. 1 Ed. 1. fol. 104. Mr. Bradton tells us, Sir quis in aegro unius ficut ad eunctum, non visi ibi villæ; sed cum es praefuit templum caperit, videlicet & vicinari adiectum. Lib. 4. cap. 31. And Fortescue in Land. Leg. Anglica. cap. 34. writs that the boundaries of villages is not by houses, streets, or walls, but by a large circuit of ground, within which there may be several hamlets, woods, woods and waste ground. Fleta likewise mentions the difference between a manor and a village, a manor, a village may be of one or more houses, but it must be but one dwelling place, and none near it; for if other houses are contiguous then it is a village; a manor may consist of several villages, or of one alone. Lib. 6. cap. 51. Cowell, edit. 1727.

By intendment of law, every parifh is a vill, unless it be flown to the contrary. G. Lit. 125. b. S. P. ad. judg. 2 Salk. 51. Mich. 67. 3. Wilkin v. Lewis. The possession of a portion of a manor by the other party must hand it. L. Raym. Rep. 22. S. C.

As to vills and parishes, the law originally took notice of a vill only because the divizion of a county into parishes was of ecclesiastical distribution; but now, by a process of time, that distinction is taken notice of in civil affairs; per Car. 2 Med. 238. Titus 29 Car. 2. C. B. in case of Addisoon v. Ottowy.

Tho' a place named shall be intended a vill or town, yet always the date of a deed shall be intended to be a particular place or house; and therefore if an obligation bears date at Aesworp, &c. it shall be intended to be such place or house, and not a place by the name. Arg. and granted per 3 Jult. Lot. 4. 5. in Ward's case. If a place be named generally, that place shall be taken to be, and intended a vill. 2 Salk. 501. Mich. 10 W. 3. B. R. Pinkstone v. King. Every vill shall have confable; otherwise it is but a hamlet, per Holt Chief Justice. 12 Med. 18. in case of The King v. Housen. See Patroh.

Villaga, a title given to those country villages, where the Kings of England had a royal seat or palace, and held the manor in their own demesne, and had there commonly to three chapel, not subject to ecclesiastical ordinary. So Addisoon v. Ottowy. The villaga, commonly to there, was called villaga. So was Hedvingdon, com. Oxen. &c. Paroch. antiqu. pag. 53.

Villain, (Villanae,) Signifies as much as servus among the citizens; a man of servile or base degree, from the French villain, ville, or from the Latin villae, a country farm,
V I L

The lord shall be preferred to any other master in retaining his villain for a servant, provided he does not retain more than is necessary, 25 Ed. 3. c. 1.
The lord may allege vilainage by way of exception, or feize his villain notwithstanding a liberate probanda depending, 25 Ed. 3. st. 5. c. 18.
The court was of the exception of consuance of vilainage, 37 Ed. 3. c. 17.
Commissions to inquire of rebellious villains, 1 R. 2. c. 6.
The lord shall not be barred of his villain by his answer in law, 9 R. 2. c. 2.

V I O

The King's villains in North Wales shall be obliged to do the same services as before, 25 H. 6. Exception of vilainage, 3 Hen. 7. c. 2. f. 4. See Vilainage.

Villain estate or condition, Contradistinguished to free estate. Stat. 8 H. 6. 11. They were called vilains from vilain, because they dwelt in villages; they were also called pageants, whereby they were ranked, and they were dispensable of that servile condition, that they were usually sold with the farm to which they respectively belonged; so that they were slaves and used as such, and kinder usage made them infolent. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Villanaius regis futuritatis redivivus, is a word that lay for the bringing back of the King's bond-men, that had been carried away by others out of his manors whereo they belonged. Orig. flor. 87.

Villanous judgment, (Villanum judicium) is that which calls the reproach of vilany and shame upon him against whom it is given, as a confirimator, &c. And the judgment in such a case shall be like the ancient judgment in utmost, viz, that the offender shall not be of any credit afterwards; nor shall it be lawful for him to approach the King's court; and his lands and goods shall be seized into the King's hands, his trees rooted up, and body imprisoned, tor. Staunfor. P. C. 157. Lamb. Eren. 63. Stat. 4 H. 5. And the punishment at this day appointed for perjury may take partake of the name of villanous judgment; as it hath somewhat more in it than corporal, or pecuniary pain, &c. the differentiating the testimo- ny of the offender for ever. See Perytry.

Villain fleeces, Are fleecer of wool, that are thorn from feabeed sheep. 31 Ed. 3. cap. 8.

Villainage, (Villainum from Villain,) Signifies a servile kind of tenure belonging to land or manors, whereby the tenant was bound to do all such services as the lord commanded, or were fit for a villain to do. Ubi siiri non patet virumerque quae servitum fueri debet manae. For every one that held in villainage was not a villain or bondman: Villainage vel servitum nihil habet; idem liberum, idem legatum, villanae & ten- tures in villano fueri de dominio dominis regis. Brandt, lib. 1. cap. 6. num. 1. The division of villainage was into villainage by blood, and villainage by tenure. Tenure in vil- lainage could make no freeman villain unless it was continued time out of mind, nor even free land make a villain from villainage, Brandt, lib. 3. cap. 8. num. 3, divides it into parcel villainage, a quo pretium servitium incipit et indeterminatis, ubi siiri non patet virumerque quae servitum fueri debet manae, viz. ubi quae faceret tenetur quiexit ei pretium fuerit; the other he calls villanum facipun, and was tied to the performance of certain services agreed upon between the lord and tenant, and was to carry the lord's dung into his fields, to plough his ground at certain days, to reap his corn, plath his hedges, &c. as the inhabitants of Bictum were bound to do for those of Clun-tale in Shropshire, which was afterwards turned into a rent, now called Bictum rent, and the service excused. There were likewise villaini jactantium, which were those who held their land in成份age, and there were villaini ad- vantitii, who were those who held lands by performing certain services expressed in their deeds. Brandt, lib. 2. cap. 8. See Borage tenure.

Villainy, (Villatum a vite) A payment of a certain quantity of wine instead of rent, to the chief lord for a vineyard. Mem. Angli. 2 tom. pag. 690.

Vinegar, vinegar beer, and verjuice, Every ton of vinegar imported for defraying the expenses of coigne pays ten thillings, 18 Car. 2. c. 5. f. 6.

And every ton of vinegar imported, 8, 9, 1 I. 2. c. 9. f. 9. 2.

And if by Englishmen four pounds, 13 & 14 Car. 2. i. f. 25.

And if by strangers, fix pounds, 13 & 14 Car. 2. i. f. 25.

Every barrel of vinegar, or liquor prepared for vinegar, that hath run through rape, &c. eight thillings, 2 W. & M. jff. 2. c. 10. f. 2.

And four thillings, 4 W. & M. c. 3. f. 2. And four thillings, 5 W. & M. c. 7. f. 27.

And four thillings, 5 W. & M. c. 20. f. 10.

And every barrel of vinegar beer made of English materials, expense, 12 Car. 2. c. 23. f. 5. And expenses, 12 Car. 2. c. 24. f. 20. And expenses, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 5. f. 1. And three thillings, 2 W. & M. jff. 2. c. 10. f. 2. And one thilling and sixpence, 5 W. & M. c. 7. f. 27. And one thilling and sixpence, 5 W. & M. c. 20. f. 10.

And every barrel of English or foreign materials, eight thillings, 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 21. f. 9. And two thillings and four pence, 4 Ann. c. 6. f. 9. And ninepence, 8 Ann. c. 7. f. 1.

Drawback on the exportation of vinegar, 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 25.

Penalties on concealing vinegar, from the gauger, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 30. f. 16. &c.

Duties on vinegar by former acts taken off, and a new duty imposed, 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 21. f. 8. &c.

What to be deemed vinegar or liquors preparing for vinegar, 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 21. f. 11.

Thirty-four gallons to be deemed a barrel of vinegar, 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 2. f. 15.

Informations against vinegar makers for a false mis- tery, &c. to be laid within three months, 12 & 13 W. 3. c. 11. f. 17.

Vinegar made for pickles for sale to pay duties, 8 Ann. c. 7. f. 4.

Vinegar made by the manufacturers of white lead exempt from duties, 8 Ann. c. 7. f. 5.

Verjuice bought or made for sale how chargeable with duties, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 30. f. 28.

Every hoghead of verjuice to pay 5 d. 8 Ann. c. 7. f. 5.

Additional duty of 8 d. per ton on French vinegar imported, 3 Geo. 3. c. 12.

And on all other vinegar imported, 4 l. per ton.

Vineyards, The owners of vineyards may make wine of British grapes only growing there, free from any duty. See 12 & 13 Geo. 3. c. 2.

Wine, A kind of flower or border, which printers use, to beautify printed leaves in the beginning of books. See ph. 14 Car. 2. c. 32.

Wine, See Wine.

Violence, (Violentia) All violence is unlawful: If a man affault him, with a view to the intention of bribing him to hold, only, to his damage, it is felony. And where a person knocks another on the head who is breaking his hedges, &c. this will be murder, because it is a violent act beyon the provocation. Kel. Rep. 64, 137. there is a violence in committing riots, &c.
V I V

Glitchy, a clay that sticks in the hands, such as sheriffs, bailiffs, &c. carry as a badge or emblem of their office. Cawell, ed. 1777.

mex ex 24 acres caplt-qutaur virgata bident faciunt, quinguise hide fomedum miles. See Kamens's Glossary. See Yadland.

Viriditas eligendi, It is a writ that lies for the choice of a vesterer in the forest. Reg. Orig. fol. 167.

Viridis Holm. It is a court of many colours, for in the old books viridis is used for varius. Brotten, lib. 3, cap. 16.

Virilia, The privy parts of a man; to cut off which was felony by the Common law, whether the party contended o. n. Brotten, lib. 3, fol. 44.

Vifitation, (Vifitation,) It is that office which is performed by the bishop of every diocese once every three years, or by the archdeacon once a year, by visiting the churches and their rectors throughout the whole diocese; Ut populus liberum cum commiffarii suffitietur a populiordine gubernator: &c. See Reform. Leg. Ecl. p. 124. And when a vifitation is made by the archdeacon, all acts of the bishop are suspended by inhibition, &c. A commissary at his court of vifitation, cannot cite lay parifhioners, unless it be chu-chwardens and sidefemen; and to thowe he may give his oath, and employ by them. No. 123. 3 Saft. 370. Proxies and procurations are paid by the parsons whose churches are vifited, &c. Ibld.

Vifitor, An inspeétor of the government of a corporation, &c. The ordinary is visitor of spiritual corporations; but corporations instituted for private charity, if they are lay, are vifitable by the founder, or whom he shall appoint, and from the sentence of such vifitor there lies no appeal. 3 Saft. 381. By implication of law, the founder and his heirs are vifitors of lay foundations, if no particular person is appointed by him to fee that the charity is not perverted. Ibld. And where founders are vifitors of hospitals, &c. The appointment of a bishop without his charriam name to be a vifitor, extends to his successors. 2 Str. 913. The vifitor in his citation must purge his authority. Ibld. He may punifh one man for acts done by him jointly with others. Ibld. Offences against the statutes of a college are not pardoned by an act of grace. Ibld. 912. See Sat. 39 Libis. 4. 1807.

The King to be vifitor of colleges and other religious foundations, which were exempt from the ordinary's vifita-

Abbey, &c. that were exempt from ordinary vifitation, to be fubjeét to fuch vifitation as the King should appoint, 31 H. 8. c. 12. f. 25.

Queen Mary impowered to make statutes for the college's churches founded by King Henry 8. 1 Mar. 8. f. 8.

The crown to vifit Manchefer college, while the wardenhip is held by the bishop of Chester, 2 Gei. 2. c. 6. &c. See above.

Visiò of Spameus. In ancient time was wont to be the name of the Regardor's office in the forests. Mon-wood, par. 1. pag. 195.

Vilàne, (Vilàne,) Signifies a neighbouring place, or place near at hand. 19 H. 2. c. 6. See Innc. 11. 7. 7. 3. 3. It is to be taken per vifum forisfugi. &c. Hoved. 784.

Vita Julia, 2 Legis. A sheriff of the county is said to be fuch as a law of justice, as fuch begets, and no procès is served but by him; and after fuits are ended, he hath the making execution, which is the life of the law. 2 Lis.

Vitlarp, (Vitlaeum,) Signifies a place of land or water, where living creatures are kept. In law it signifies most commonly a park, warren, fift-road or parkery. Co. 2 Inf. fol. 160.

Wita ward, Is where a witnes is examined per-nally, or by amn. See Depoifition.

Wcirus, A bulk, or chip of burthen. Leg. Ethedredi Regis, cap. 23.

Witnage, The fame with alnage. See Alnage, Alnager.

Wita fectra, Is the standard ell of iron kept in the Exchequer for the rule of measure. Mon. Inf. tom. 2. pag. 383.

Umpire, (Arbitrier,) One chosen by compromise to deliver indifferently between both parties. Litt.

Umpirage, Is where there is but one arbitrator of matters submitted to award; and usufually when the parties refer to the arbitrator of certain persons; and if they cannot agree, they are ordered to deliver their award in writing before such a time, then to the judgment of another as umpire: And this is often the effect of bonds of submission to arbitration. 1 Rol. 481. 262. See Arbitration.

Aus tom ambitus alnus. In the grant of a deed, is a new addition of other estate in the same grant before and hath its own conclusion attending it. Hub. 175.

Uncasferaty: This is an obfolute word, mentioned in Leg. Inf. cap. 37, viz.: He who kills a thief, may make oath that he killed him in faying for the fact, & perambulates the county, the theft must not be execufed, but is, that is, his kindred will not revenge his death: From the Saxon oeis, litus, and un, which is a negative particle, and signifies without, and ait, which is oath, i.e. to swear that there shall be no contention about it. Cmew, ed. 3. 20.

Vacia terrae, Vacia agri. These phrases often occur in the charters of the British Kings, and signify some measure or quantity of land. It was the quantity of 12 modii, and each modius poffibly 100 foot square. Mon. Mgr. tom. 2. p. 198.

Unrage Piffit, Is a plea for the defendant, being fued for damages, due at a day past, to all the property in his bond, faying that he tendered the debt at the time and place, and that there was none to receive, and that he is still ready to pay the fame. 7 E. 6. c. 83 Dyer.

Untruth, Is a Saxon word signifying as much as incognitum, unknown, and is used in the old Saxon laws for him that cometh to an inn guest-fife, and lefs but one night. In fuch cafe his hoft was not bound to answer for any offence that he committed, whereas he was guilt-less himfelf; but if by fee there a second night, then he was called godf, byfer, and then muft the hoft answer for him, even as if it were of his own family. And if he tarried any longer, then he was called agehine, that is, familiaris, whom, if he offend against the King's peace, his hoft was to fee forth-coming; or if he could not bring him out within a month, and a day, he muft satisfy for his offences. Lamb. Archb. fol. 133. num.

7. and Braton, lib. 3. cap. 10. num. 2. writes thus of the fame, Item secundum antiquam confuetudinem dicti pateri de familia alligatus, qui hafpes fuerit cam eis per-tres metes, quia prima parte petiri dictum eccutur; secunda vero, guefta, tertia nulla hoggehine. See Dyer, 6. 58. 139. 4.

Untruth: A is a word of dower, concerning which, See Dote men inft habit.

Under-nacht, Is a word of dower, concerning which, See Dote men inft habit.

Under-Chamberlain of the Exchequer, Is an officer there that cleaves the tallies, written by the clerk of the tallies, and reads the fame, that the clerk of the tallies, and the comptrollers thereof, may fee their entries be true. This is also the name of the officer to the royal treasury, and hath the custody of Domfeay book. There are two officers there of this name. Cawell, edit. 1777.

Under-Efheator. (Sub-Ifheator,) Mentioned in Sat. 5 E. 3. c. 4. See Esheator. 87. 98. 139. 1. 21. 28. See Shrift, and 21. 29. Ione.

Under-takers, Were such as the King's purveyors employed as their deputies. Stat. 2 & 3 Pb. & Mar.
And this, but It not Is cheft, beth's the law, Csivell, y are book by two to certain and UngElD, SShD^CSI, CIIuGILDA paid, tlnioit Clnitp 24. A to unity his of my Ethelred. thinc, induced of compofition a mayfr, repairs, the patent, and the incumbrant: But there are two other sorts of it, as where one church is made subiect to the other, and when one man is made rector of both, and when a conventual is made cathedral, as you may read in the chapter licet de locate & conductus, in Linclowe's provincialis, sect. Et quin. In the first signification by the statute 37 H. 3. By reason of the consecration of two churches in one, whereof the one is not above six pews in the King's book of the first fruits, and not above one mile distant from the other. And by another statute made 17 Car. 2. c. 3. It shall be lawful for the bishop of the diocefe, mayor, or any chief officer of the corporation, or patron or patrons, to unite two churches or chapels in any such city, town, or the liberties thereof: Provided fuch union shall not be good, if the churches so united exceed the sum of one hundred pounds per annum, unless the parishioners defire otherwise, &c. Cavell, edit. 1727. Parochians of the parish united to contribute to the common charges, &c. 4 Will. & M. c. 12. See 21 Vin. Atv. 594—599.

Unity of Poliflion (Unius poliflionis) is called confolidatio faithos & proprietatis in the Civil law, and signifies an union of two rights by several titles. As for example, If I take a leafe of land from one upon a certain rent, and afterwards I buy the fee-simple; this is an unity of fæfion, by which the leafe is extinguished, by reason that I, which before had the occupation only for my rent, am become lord of the whole estate, and am permitted to possess it as my own, but felf. Cavell, edit. 1727. A leafe for years of an advowson, on the church becoming void, was preferred by the leflee, and instituted and induced; and it was held, that this was a surrender of his leffe; for they cannot stand together in one person, and in the persons of dedication one of them is extinguished. Hatt. 105. No unity will extinguish or forfeit pend titles; but notwithstanding any unity they remain &c. 11 Rep. 14. 2 Lill. 658. Unity of poiflion extingueth all privileges not expressly necessary; but not a way to a close, or water to a mill, &c. because they are not fatisfied by the public law, or enjoyed by unity of poiflion; and a rent or efsement, do not exift during the unity, wherefore they are gone. Latch 153. 14. 1 Vent. 85. Trim. 7 W. 7.

Chancellorship, Univerfitis, is most usually taken for those two bodies which are the nurfes of learning and liberal fciences in this kingdom, viz. Oxford and Cambridge; en- dowed with great privileges, as appears not only by Stat. 2 & 3 P. & M. c. 15. 35 El. c. 21. 18 El. 6. but much more by their several charters granted by divers pious and munificent Kings of this land. Cavell, edit. 1727. By universities in general, we understand those fefenaries of learning where youth are sent to finflish their education, and to be instructed in the liberal sciences. With us, by universities, are more particularly denoted those two learned bodies of Oxford and Cambridge which are invested with several peculiar privileges. 3 Bac. Abr. 327. 127.

Each of the universities had several powers and privileges by charters from the Kings of this realm, particularly one in the eighth of Hen. 4, whereby they were authorized to hold plea of all caufes arising within the university according to the course of the civil law: But in the opinion of all the judges, the grant was held not to be good, for that the King could not by his grant alter the law of the land. To remedy this and other defects respecting their powers and privileges, a spec- ial act of parliament was made in the 13 Eliz forming all former letters patent, and all manner of liberties, franchises, or powers which they held, or of right ought to be enjoyed, &c. 4 Hift. 227. Gibb. 212. H. 257. Archibp. of York v. Schoub. By letters (not confirmed by parliament) dated 30 March 11 Car. 1, granted to the university of Ox- ford, their old privileges are explained, and larger granted, 1 Med. 194. Magdalen college cafe. Wood's ill. 54.

Their courts are called the chancellor's courts. The chancellors are usually peers of the realm, and are ap- pointed over the whole university. But the courts are kept by their vice-chancellors their affiliants or deputies; the caufes are managed by advocates or proctors. Id. ibid. By Bat. Abr. 329.

Those courts have jurisdiction in all caufes ecclefia- stical and civil (except mayhem, felony and fireftood) where a scholar, fervant or minister of the university is one of the parties in fuit, Id. ibid. and Cor. Cor. 73. Wiles & v. Bradle. But fee the petition against the grant of Hen. 4, in Young's ante, p. 358, 390.

Their proceedings are in a fimmary way according to the practice of the civil law; and in their sentences they follow the juftice and equity of the civil law, or the laws, statutes, privileges, liberties and customs of the universities, or the laws of the land at the discretion of the chancellor. Cor. Cor. 73. Wiles & v. Bradle. Heulay 25. Thomas Wileck's cafe, Hard. 526. Castle v. Littfield. If there is an erroneous sentence in the chancellor's court of the university of Oxford, on appeal lies to the congregation, thence to the convocation, and from thence to the King in chancery who nominates judges delegates to hear the appeal; the appeal is of the same nature in Cambridge. Wood's Inft. 549. 2 Ld. Raym. 1246. The King v. The chancellor, &c. of Cambridge. As by charter confirmed, as above mentioned, by act of parliament, cognizance is granted to the university by the public law, or equity, to a scholar, fervant or minister of the university, depending before the judges of the King's Bench, Common Pleas and others there mentioned, and before any other judge, tho' the matter concern the King: If an inimicos de- juris is brought by quo warranto in the exchequer against a scholar or other privileged person, the university shall have conscience, for the court of exchequer is included in the general words, Cro. Car. 73. Willock v. Brad-If a debtor and accountant to the King fails a scholar by not paying a certain sum, or an attorney fails a scholar by writ of privy, it is said that the universities shall have no conscience, for a general grant shall not take away the special privilege of any court. Hard. 189.
S. P. 3 Leon. 149. The lerd Anderson's cafe. 2 Dall. 184.

But in the cases where privilege is allowable, a schol-ear, &c., cannot waive his privilege, and have a prohibition in the courts of Wythminger, for the university by right has the converse of the plea, where one is a pri-

There was no such freedom, and a stranger is forced to sue a privileged person in their courts by reason of that right vested in

But a scholar ought to be refident in the university at the time of the suit commenced; and no other ought to be joined in the action with him, for in such cafe, he shall not have privilege. Hall. 28. Thomas Willock's cafe.

Theo is it said that servants of the university are priviledged, yet it has been held, that a bailiff of a college was not capable of privilege. Brown. 74. Carr v. Po gu.

Neither is a townsman entitled to privilege, to exempt him from an office in the town, if he keeps a shop and follows a trade, too he is matriculated as servant to a scholar. 2 Hen. 106. The city of Oxford's cafe.

It is to be observed, that the mayhem, felony and freethold are above, to be the only causes excepted in their charter; yet it has been held that in actions for the recovery of the possession of a term, without claimting title to the freehold, they shall have no privilege, because the freehold may come in question. Cro. Car. 87.
d's cafe.

It hath been disputed how far the words of the grant intitled them to privilege in matters of Equity. And the general principle of construction seems to be, that where chattels only are concerned, or where damages only are to be given, there their privilege is allowable, but where the suit is for the thing itself, there their privilege cannot be allowed. As in the following cases:

A bill was brought setting forth a contract under seal with the defendant, for making a lease of certain lands in Middlesex, and to have execution of the agreement.
The defendant pleaded the privilege of the university, to proceed in their courts, and equity, except concerning freehold, and concluded to the jurisdiction of the court. But Lord Keeper Guilford overruled the plea, because in this case they can only excommunicate or impair, but cannot sequestrate lands in Middlesex, and to can give no remedy; and because the charter of the university of Oxford, empowering them to proceed in all pleas and quarrels in law and equity, &c., ought properly to be extended to matters at Common law only, or to proceedings in equity that might arise in such cafes, and not to mere matters of equity, which are originally such, as to contract agreements in spec. 2 Hen. 362. Drap.

per. Creaster.

What clerks refting there shall be dispensed with from residence; purveyors not to take viuallas within five miles of the universities, 2 & 3 Ph. & Mar. c. 15. 13 El.
44.

Counts to the universities, &c., in discharge of the payment of first fruits and tenth, confirmed, 1 El. c.
4. § 4.

The franchises of the universities confirmed, 13 El.
8. § 29.

On college leases a third part of the rent shall be refitted in corn, 18 El. c 6. 11.

The penalty for taking reward for a vote for a scholarship, &c., in any church collegiate, college, &c. 31
El. c. 6. 12.

Vol. II. N°. 133.
the reason why it is void, if with a penalty, seems to be that the law gives validity to every act of the infant's which may be for his benefit; but it cannot be presum-ted to be for his benefit to enter into a penalty. Noy 85.
Lec. 87. Rigg v. Wref.

So likewise the bonds of perfons non compe mens, after of-lace found, are absolutely void. 4 Rep. 178. Beverly's cafe.
It is said the reason why the bond of an infant or person non compe is void, is because the law has appointed no act to be done to avoid it; and the only reason why the bond of a man which is void, is that the cause of nullity is extrinsic, and does not appear on the face of the deed. 2 Salt. 675. Thompson v. Leech.

And in general all bonds which are given for a purpose molain in se, as to kill or rob another, are void: Likewise bonds given for the performance of a melain prohi-bitum as for maintenance. And bonds to oblige perfons to neglect their duty to the King and kingdom, are absolutely void. 5 Dic. Abr. 358.

If a future lease be made to commence after the death of tenant in tail, it is merely void in its creation; for it is not to commence till the title of the issue com-ences, and that is an elder title concurring with it; and if the law should make it otherwise than void, the word void would make him a trespasser. 2 Salt. 650.

If a bishop grants administration, and there are bona notabiles, such administration is absolutely void, as well as to the goods within his own diocece as elsewhere, because he hath in such cafe no jurisdiction whatever. 5

So likewise a judgment, given by perfons who have no good commission for that purpose, is void. 3 Leef. 239.
Void things are good to some purposes. As if for lei 20 years a lease takes a lease for 10 years, to begin presently, upon condition that if a certain thing be not done the lease shall be void; in that cafe, though the second lease be void on the breach of the condition, yet the furrender remains good. Finch's Laws 62.

So likewise if a feoffment be made, to be void on the non-performance of a certain condition, yet after the feoff-ment's entry for the condition broken, the feoffee shall have an action for a trespass done by the feoffor before. Id.
ibid.

Alfo if tenant at will grants over his estate, though the grant be void, yet it determines his will. Arg. Hard, 47. Jones v. Clark.

A fraudulent gift of goods is not void against all, for it remains good against the donor, and is only void against his creditors. Per Anderfen, Cro. Eliz. 445. Upton v. Baffet.

So likewise a feoffment upon maintenance or champer-nty is not void against the feoffor but against him that hath Alfo where a feme covert or infant are bound in an obligation with others, though the bond is void as to the feme covert or infant, yet it is good as to the other, who shall be sued alone, and the writ shall not abate.

Pigott.

In equity the content of the heir makes good a void devise. Chape. Cafes 209. Id. Cornbury v. Middleton.

So likewise a devise void by misnomer of the corporation was decreed to be a good appointment of a chari-

If a leaf be made by the husband of the wife's land, and the husband dies, the leaf is not void, but voidable

Likewise if tenant in tail make a future lease for years, which by possibility may be to commence during the life of tenant in tail, it is not void, but voidable as to the issue. 2 Salt. 620. Mathil v. Clarke.

So if an infant makes a feoffment or a leaf, and delevers it with his hand, it is voidable only. 2 Brumw. 248.
Plumer v. Hacket.

It is said likewise, that a deed of Exchange entered into by an infant, or one non jure memoriae, is not void, but may be avoided by the infant when arriv'd at age, or the heir of him who is non jure memoriae. Urt. 281.

Alfo an infant's bond of submission to an arbitration

An infant's contract of marriage likewise is void only.

Voir dire, (Ferlaton dicta.) When it is prayed upon a trial at law, that a witness may be sworn upon a voire dire; the meaning is, he shall, upon his oath speak or declare the truth, whether he shall get or lose by the matter in controversy; or if he be unconcerned his testimony is allowed, otherwise not. Cowell, edit.

Volumus, Is the first word of a clause in the King's 8. and 13 Rich. 2. cap. 16. Of protections fome are cum clando vables, and of thefe there are feven kinds, viz. 1. Quia prifonarum. 2. Quia meretricium. 3. Quia inincidentes non exiit. 4. When any one fects into the King's service beyond fea in war, is imprisonment.
Ca. an Lit. fed. 199.

Voluntarit, As applied to a deed, is where any convenance is made without a confideration, either of money or employment. Thus a remainder given in settle-m ents, to a man's right heirs, are deemed voluntary in equity, and the perfons claiming under them called volunteers. Abr. Ca. Eq. 385. 3 Salt. 174. See Fraud.

Voutuats, Is, when the tenant holds at the will of the lefser, or lord, that is in two manners; one is, when I make I a leafe to a man of lands, to hold by my will, then I may put him out at my pleasure; but if he fire the ground, and I put him out, then he shall have his corn with egrets and regrets till it be ripe to cut, and carry it out of the ground. And fuch tenant at will is not bound to fustain and repair the house, as tenant for years is. But if he make wilful waffers, the lefser shall have against him an action of trefpafs. The other tenant at will of the lord is, by copy of court-roll, according to the cuntrim of the manor; and fuch a tenant may furrender the land into the hands of the lord, according to the cuntrim, to the wife of another for life, in fee, or in fee tail; and he shall take the land of the lord, or his feward, by copy, and shall make fine to the lord.
Cowell, edit. 1777.

Vouuum, A vow or promise, used by Flea, for supplie; to dies voutum is the wedding-day. Fleta, lib. 4.
cap. 2. par. 16. Si donaturius ad ali a vota concoverti-rar.

Vooucher, (Voucher,.) Signifies when the tenant calls another into the court, that is bound to him to warranty.
New Book of Entries, verb. Voucher; Voucher de Gar-raunf. Brit. cap. 75. And that is either to defend the right against the demandant, or to yield him other lands.

Ac this also he must deliver at his own charge the book, the leaf, and the deed, which the Common law doth not, except it be specially covenanted. The places whereby the voucher is called, is a summanatus ad warrantandum.
And if the sheriff return upon that writ, that the party hath nothing, whereby he may be summoned, then goes out another writ called Sequitur sub fac period.
Lamb. Explic of Saxon words, "Advocate. A rec

onstry with a 2d tenancy, is, when there is but one vouche

: And with a double voucher, is, when the vouche

other voucher, when the tenant being implicated in a partic in London, or the like, vouche

one to warranty, and prays, that he may be su

mum, and give the substantiates or warranties for the accoun tant's discharge. Cowell, edit. 1727.

The vouche before justice in Eyre shall be summoned for the third or fourth, St. Mariab, 52. 3. 36.

Counter-plea given in mortdancello, that the tenant was the first that entered, St. Wyclif. 1. 3 Ed. 1. cap. 40.

Not to be out of the line, Ibid.

In a writ of right, that the vouchee, &c. had no se

, since the time of whole sefin the demandant counts, Ibid.

Proceedings in foreign voucher in London, 6 Ed. 1. c. 12. 9 Ed. 1.

The counter-plea given by flat, Wyclif. 1. cap. 40. shall be received though the vouche be pretent, St. de Voe. 20 Ed. 1. fl. 1.

Averment that the vouche is dead, or that there is no such person, shall be received, 14 Ed. 3. fl. 1. c. 18. See Rule 45.

Utopian, Shall not make beds and other wares de

, 11 Hen. 7. c. 19. 5 & 6 Ed. 7. cap. 23.

 Beds filled with blocks may be carried on board ships for necessary use, 12 Car. 2. c. 32. sect. 11.

Upland, (Uplandis,) High ground, or as some call it seuera forma, contrary to moorish, marth or low ground, Lugubris.

Ufa, Is the river Ufa. Tune in retum ad Undorf

, tune sursum in Ufa ad Walking street. Du Cange.

This river was called Ufa from the goddes of that name: For it was customary amongst the pagans to dedicate hills, woods, and rivers to the goddes, and to call them after that name. And the Britains having the great left reverence for Geras and Prosperina, who was also called Ufa, did for that reason name this river Ufa: and the being the goddes of the night, from thence they compeact days by nights, and years by months:

Of which we have full former remains, as feam night, fortunis, &c. Cowell, edit. 1757.

Vulg. See Mschriftrum.

Ufis. (Ufis,) In the original signification is evident enough, but it hath also a proper application in law, and that is the profit or benefit of lands or tenements, Wyclif. Symbol, lib. 1st. feb. 49, 49, 50, 54, 52. Every deed consists of two principal parts, namely, the pre mises, and the consequents; the premises is the former part thereof, being all that which precloked the babendum or limitation of the estate, which are the persons con tracting, and the things contracted. The consequent is that which follows the premisses, and that is the baben sum, in which are two limitations: The one of the estate or property, which the party passive shall receive by the deed: The other of the ufe, which is expressed in the said babendum to or for what ufe and benefit he shall have the same estate: and of the limitation of such ufe, many particulars are fet down in the same, Wyclif. Symbol, part 1. lib. 1st. sect. 308 & 327. These ufe were invented upon the flatute of Wyclif. 3. Quia emisere terramum, before which flatute no such ufe were known. Perkin's De uves 528. And because in time many decrees were in vent, by setting the possessio in one man, and the ufe in another: to avoid which, and divers other mischif and inconveniences, was the flatute 27 H. 8. cap. 10. provided, which it mete the ufe and possessio together. So Co. lib. 3. Chudley's cafe, fol. 121. Cowell, edit. 1727.

An ufe at Common law was an equitable right which he referred, who conveyed a legal estate to another, up on truth and confidence that the person to whom he so conveyed it, should never and at any time part with the rents and profits of the land, and that he would execute estates according to his direction. Gil. Law of Ufes 175. 1 Rep. 121. Chudleigh's cafe.

The feoffee therefore, or terrenant, (that is, the per son to whom the legal estate was conveyed,) had the free hold or floods possession in him, and the ufe; he had conveyed the legal estate to him (that is, the c Kyfug Go ufe) had neither in re, nor ad rem, for if he had enter

ted upon the land without the content of the feoffee, he had been a trespasser; so that nothing remained in him but a bare confidence or trust, for which, if it was bro ken, he had no remedy, but by subpensa in chancery. 5 Bac. Ab. 342.

But this equitable right extended to all persons who claimed in privy under the feoffee, that is, who came into the same estate which the feoffee had to the ufe, and by contract, or by the right of a dower or common, not by a legal estate, but not by contract or agreement, and therefore claiming not by or from the feoffee, he consequently did not claim the estate as it subjunct to the ufe, but he claimed an estate above that free from and discharged of the ufe; and it would in a manner have destroyed his title, because he had no interest in it. So in this same ufe, when he did not claim the estate which was charged with the ufe: For confidence in the prim. was requi site, as well as privy of estate. 5 Bac. Ab. 342.

Confidence in the peron, was either express or implied; as if a feoffee to an ufe had, for good consideration, enfeoffed the ufe, and the two persons had no other estate, but the ufe, the feoffee being destroyed; for the person enfeoffed not knowing that there was any ufe, no truff could be reposed in him to let the c Kyfug Go ufe take the profits; but if he had not notice, a trust might well be faid to be reposed in him, since he took the land, knowingly, charged with the ufe. So also, if the feoffeman had been made without confi deration, tho' the person enfeoffed had no notice of the ufe, yet he would necessarily have lived to the ufe, for the law in that case would have implied notice of the ufe, and consequently the trust would have re mained. 5 Bac. Ab. 342.

From hence it may be collected, that to every ufe at Common law there were two inseparable incidents: a privy in estate, and a confidence in the peron; and where either of these failed, the ufe was unfounded or de stroyed. 5 Bac. Ab. 342.

The original sufes were from a title under the Civil law, which allowed of an usufructuary possessio, differing from the substance of the thing itself; and it was brought over to us from thence by the clergy, who were masters of the Civil law; for when they were prohibited from taking any thing in mortmain, and after several evasions by purchasing lands of their own ufe, the ufe was destroyed; and for the person enfeoffed not knowing that there was any ufe, no truss could be reposed in him, from the took the land, knowingly, charged with the ufe. So also, if the seoffeman had been made without con

"eration, tho' the person enfeoffed had no notice of the ufe, yet he would necessarily have lived to the ufe, for the law in that case would have implied notice of the ufe, and consequently the trust would have re mained. 5 Bac. Ab. 342.

USE

1. Of the power of esjoy ufe at Common law, and by the Stat. 1 Rich. 3. c. 1.

It has been said in the definition of an ufe, that esjoy ufe had neither jn re, nor ad rem; for if the feeoffee broke his trufh, he had no remedy againft him but by fulpana in chancery. The feeoffees commenced in the time of Ed. 3, but it was always againft the feeoffee in trufh himfelf, and was never allowed againft his heir till H. 6. And in this point was the law changed by the Fortifying Chief Justice. Kelso. 42. b. 5 Bay. Abr. 345.

So that if the feeoffee had died, his heir was feized to hold upon his fees, and the feoffees, but as the law was taken to the time of H. 4, till at length the fulpana was granted both againft the heir, and the feeoffees of the feeoffee, about the time above mentioned, or according to some later. Id. ibid, and 46 b.

But tho' at Common law esjoy ufe had no power over the land, yet he might alien the ufe, because every one might dispose of the rights that were in him; or he might prefer a bill in chancery to make the terre tenant execute the ufe in himfelf. Gil. Law of ufe 26.

But at Common law, it esjoy ufe had entered and made no part of the fee in fee, and therefore no fees in fee of the lands, this had not been good to pass the estate to the feeoffee; because esjoy ufe ufe had not the freehold in him, and so could not pass it to another; but by his entry he was a diffeffor: yet in this cafe, if the feeoffee of the esjoy ufe had re-entered upon the purchafe, the feeoffees would not have had the lands to their own ufe; and they would not have had good to pass the ufe to the feeoffee, because he had transferred the ufe to another. Plowd. 352. b.

If esjoy ufe makes a leafe for years, rendering rent, the reversion is void, unless it be by deed, for the rendering rent to a man is an acknowledgment of the holding lands from him; but here the lands are not held by esjoy ufe ufe, but by the feeoffees who have the reversion.

But if the reversion be by deed, the feeoffees shall not have the rent reverfed, but esjoy ufe ufe shall have it. Brs. F. to ufe 338. f. 23. 339. f. 26.

If esjoy ufe makes feeoffitement, with a letter of attorney, the goings are called the letter given, and the attorney gives every according to law. Whether a feeoffitement was good, or whether it was not a diffeffor. Brs. F. to ufe 339. f. 28.

But by the flutute of r Rich. 3. c. 1. a power was annexed to an ufe, that esjoy ufe ufe should alien the lands.

The reafon of that flutute was, because esjoy ufe ufe in poiffelion often aliened the lands, and then the feeoffees entered, which caufed a great deal of vexation and chan- cery fuits; and therefore the flutute gave esjoy ufe ufe an immediate power of alienation, without the concern- inment of the feeoffees; which leads us more particularly to examine the power of esjoy ufe ufe. Gil. Law of ufe 37.

The flutute of r Rich. 3. cap. 1. enacts that, "Every ef- late, feeoffitement, gift, relaee, grant, leaves, and con- firnation of lands, tenements, rents, services, or here- ditaments, made or had, or hereafter to be made or had by any person or perfon, being of full age, or whole mind, at large, and not in due ture by any person or per- sons; and all recoveries and executions had or made, shall be good and effective to him to whom it is fio made, had or given, and to all other to his ufe, againft the feller, feeoffor, donor, or grantor thereof, and againft the fellers feeoffees, feeoffees, or feeoffees; and to be charg'd to the fame only as heir or heirs to the fame feller, feeoffor, donors, or grantors, and every of them, and againft all others having or claiming any title or intereft in the fame, only to the ufe of the fame feller, feeoffor, donor, or grantor thereof; all rights to the bargain, fale, chen- vant, gift, or grant made: Saving to every perfon or perfon's right, title, action, or intereft, by reason of any gift in tail thereof made, as they ought to have had, if this flutute had not been made." And all recoveries. By this flutute all flutute recoveries, as well as recoveries upon good title, are comprehended. But they are good only againft the grantors, Gr. and their heirs claiming only as heirs to the grantor, and not that they are not againft him that claims as heir to the grantor and his feme in tail per fannum dom. Arg. Pl. c. 4. a. 6. Eliza. in Manwells cafe.

Recovers. If a man recovers by erroneous judgment, and makes feeoffitement to his ufe, and the other being writ of error, and reverses the judgment, he may enter without fure facius againft the feeoffees; for it is a reco- verse in chancery that shall bind him and his heirs and feeoffees, by the flutute of r Rich. 3. Brs. Feeoffitement to ufe 337. fett. 3.

Feeoffees, donors, or grantors. Yet if esjoy ufe ufe grants a rent-charge, and the feeoffees are diffeffed, the grant shall be good againft the diffeffor; and yet he does not claim only by the esjoy ufe ufe. Arg. 2 Lor. 153. pl. 183. In cafe of Cobb's executors v. Cifnon.

Only to the ufe. This flutute did not take away the power of feeoffitements; for they may yet make feeoffitements but in cafe of the ufe ufe, he may not make feeoffitements likewise. Godd. 393. in cafe of Lord Sheffield v. Ratsell.

Saving to every person, &c. It was agreed per Cor. that thefe words are taken for tenant in tail in poiffelion, and tenant in tail in ufe; for esjoy ufe ufe in tail has no right or intereft. Brs. Feeoffitement ufe 359. f. 40.

Here it is obfervable, that there is a difference between a feeoffitement according to this flutute and a feeoffitement at Common law; in cafe of feeoffitement at Common law, the feeoffor ought to be feized of the lands at the time of the feeoffitement; but if a feeoffitement be according to the flutute of r Rich. 3, in fuch cafe the feeoffor did not need to be in poiffelion: Feeoffitement at Common law give away both efates and rights; but feeoffitements by the flutute of r Rich. 3, give the efates, but not the rights. In cafe of feeoffitement at Common law, the feeoffe is in the per, viz. by the feeoffor; but in cafe of feeoffitements by the flutute of r Rich. 3, the feeoffees are in the poiffelion, viz. by the firft feeoffees. Godd. 318. Lord Shof- feld's feeoffitement.

Another difference likeneffe is taken in Plowden between the feeoffitement of the feeoffees and of esjoy ufe ufe; for if the esjoy ufe ufe for life in tail makes a feeoffitement in fee, either with or without confideration, all the old ufees were difcontinued, and the ancient efate which the feeoffor had, is gone, and a new efate created, and thefe new ufees raised by the feeoffitement; for when esjoy ufe ufe makes a feeoffitement in fee, by this flutute he might lawfully do, he paifed an ufe in fee simple to the feeoffee; which being a new ufe to the feeoffor, all the old ufees were difcontinued, and confiderably the efate of the feeoffor must be altered; and were in the ancient efate, they were still subjeft, by the former and elder limi- tation of ufees, to the old ufees; therefore have the feeoffees, by the construction, a new efate to the new ufees; but if the feeoffees themselves had made a feeoffitement without confideration, the feeoffees had found feeoffitement to the old ufees, for here was no ufe or new efate. Gil. Law of ufe 180. cited Pl. C. 350.

By the flutute esjoy ufe ufe has no power of alienation, when he has a naked right to an ufe, and not an ufe in ufe; unlefs it be in order to confider an efate in being; because the intent of the flutute was only to give the feeoffees power to transfer their ufe; and not any other remedy to regain and revolve it; and unlefs he has the ufe he cannot pas the ufe, much lefs poiffelion to another. Gil. Law of ufe 27. Plowd. 351.

But if the feeoffor to the ufe in fee be diffeffed, and esjoy ufe ufe relapses to the diffeffor, this extinguishes the ufe, and by the flutute bars the entry of the feeoffor. Plowd. 351.

4
Also where feoffees to an use are diffident, and after the dissenter enforce cyffy que use, who enforcing a stranger; this is good, and shall bind the feoffees, for the feoffment is good to pass the possession, and right of the use, which he had in him; and the feoffees cannot estop him, or shut his hand, which by his own act has extinguished. Gil. Law of Ufes 29.

The statute likewise is to be understood of cyffy que use that has an use in fee, in opposition to him that has only a reversion or remainder of an use. If a feoffment be made to the use of A. for life, remainder to B. in fee, in any manner whatever, before the feoffees claim the whole estate for the use of A. during his life, and he has the whole advantage of it; and the statute, that gives the present possessor of the use a power of alienation, has provided an immediate remedy for the remainder man. Gil. Law of Ufes 28. Plowd. 330.

But if the tenant for life of an use aliens in fee, and dies, the feoffees may enter on the alience; for by the words of the statute, the alienation is good against cyffy que use and his heirs, and persons claiming only to his use: So when feoffees claim to the use of the remainder man, the feoffment of tenant for life, according to the authority given by the statute, is no longer valid to bar the feoffees of the entry; for their right is by the Common law. Gil. Law of Ufes 25. Plowd. 538. Delanue v. Barnard's cafe, the point refolv'd.

If there be a feoffment in fee to the use of A. for life, the remainder to B. in fee, B. has no power of alienation by statute, and may not enter on the possession of the remainder of the use, because the possession is, as said, to the use of A. only, during his life, and so the remainder man has nothign to do with the possession; and if the remainder man should enter on the feoffees and make a feoffment, either the use of tenant for life would be destroyed, or the feoffment of tenant for life, and the possession of the estate to themselves, without being subject to dower; for by the Common law, every particular estate is derived out of the fee simple by the agreement of the parties in interest; but here are no parties to such agreement, and the statute has not altered the law in this case. Gil. Law of Ufes 29. Plowd. 350. 1 Ca. 152. 8.

But if there be a feoffment for life, remainder in fee, he in remainder may take a lease for years, or grant a rentcharge to begin after the death of tenant for life; for he cannot enter and take the possession out of the feoffees; but it is an excusable contravention on which the statute operates. Gil. Law of Ufes 30. Plowd. 358. b.

So likewise if a lease for life is made to the use of A. and afterwards the reversion is granted to another for life to the use of B. and attainment is had, and afterward the reversion is granted to another in fee to the use of C. in fee. it is not good; for the tenant had the estate long after the death of the tenant, and the rent or plural, but the first estate for life to whomsoever he pleases, and B. may grant the reversion for life to whomsoever he pleases. Plowd. 350.

Where a feme covert was cyffy que use, and the husband gave a feoffment in fee, this was good during the life of the baron only, by equity and reason, though the statute of 1 R. 3. says nothing of a feme covert. Plowd. 350.

It is to be observed farther with regard to the power given over estates in use, that if cyffy que use makes a feoffment to a tenant for life, that condition, and after enters for the condition broken, he shall be freed of the estate in the land; for the whole estate is devolved out of the feoffees by the feoffment, and they cannot enter for the condition broken, because no parties to it. Gil. Law of Ufes 32. 1 Inf. 202. a.

If cyffy que use in tail aliens the land by lease and release, or seoffment, this only binds the feoffees during life, because he has no longer power of alienation; if cyffy que use however aliens by fine, this is good, and bars the entry of the feoffees after his death; for that would dissipate the estate in tail by the statute 4 H. 7. yet if he alienated the estate and left a tenant to the use, he is not tenant to the seoffment; so that would be no bar at Common law, and this is not helped by any statute.

Vol. II. No. 133.

For though a recovery here be expressly mentioned, and to bind the party himself, yet the right of the estate in tail is saved. Br. F. at Ufes 337. f. 2. 338. f. 22. id. f. 7. Gil. Law of Ufes 32.

If tenant in tail of a trust levy a fine, or suffer a recovery, this is an equitable bar of the estate, though the trust is not destroyed; but if the recoveror be a legal tenant to the seoffment; for as the fine and recovery, so the entail in a legal estate at Common law, so it follows the entail of a trust in the court of equity. 1 Chan. Cas. 49. 210. 2 Ch. Cas. 03. 64.

But if tenant in tail of a trust makes a mortgage, or acknowledges judgement on a statute, the remainder and fine and fettles a jointure, the jointrefh shall hold it subject to the mortgage or judgment, in the same manner as if the mortgagor or conusor had been tenant in tail of the legal estate, and after the mortgage or judgment had received a fine and made a jointure; because the subsequent declaration of the use of the fine is merely the act of the tenant in tail, and he cannot by any act of his own make a subsequent conveyance take place of one precedent; and the rather because the feme claims under that fee which tenant in tail got by the recovery or fine; and that fee was subject to all the charges he had laid upon it. 1 Ch. Cas. 119. 120.

If cyffy que use makes a lease for years, referring rents, he shall have an action of debt upon the contract, but he shall not aver, because the legal estate of the reversion is still in the feoffees, since he has put the estate out of the husband; but the equitable estate is in him, and he may disafford it, and the rent and seoffees shall pass upon sale willed by donee tenant, and enter for a forfeiture, &c. Br. f. Pris. to Ufes 357. f. 6. 338. f. 18.

Also if cyffy que use makes a lease for years, referring rent, this shall go to his heirs; for since the statute has given him power to make estates at law, they are governed by the rules of Common law. Br. F. at Ufes 332. b. f. 18, 23, 39. Gil. Law of Ufes 54.

So likewise, if cyffy que use makes a lease for years, referring a rent with a clause of re-entry for non-payment of the rent, and the tenant may enter, cyffy que use may enter; for he only can take advantage of his own condition, and since the statute allows the act of re-entry by allowing him power to make leaves, he may ever keep the possession against the seoffees; que reus tamen. Br. F. to Ufes 338. f. 18.

A gift in tail for years, or for a lease for years, to an use, is good, notwithstanding the statute of R. 3. for the statute is intended to avoid gifts of chattels to uses, to defraud creditors only; and so is the preamble and intent of this statute. Br. F. Pris. to Ufes 340. f. 60. For we learning on this subject, see 5 Bac. & 22 Vin. Abs. tit. Ufes.

2. Of the alterations introduced with respect to conveyances to uses by statute 27 Hen. 8. c. 10.

This statute enables that, Where any person or persons fland feized, or at any time hereafter shall happen to be seized of or in any honours, castles, manors, lands, tenements, rents, services, seoffments, remainders, or other hereditaments, to the use, confidence or trust of any other person or persons, or of any body politic, by reason of any bargain, sale, feoffment, fine, recover, covenant, contract, agreement, will or testament, in any manner or means whatsoever it be; in every such case, all and every such person and persons, that have or shall have any such use or trust in fee simple, tail, for life, or years, or otherwise, or any use, confidence, or trust in a source or receiver, shall have from henceforth all and be feised, and be demised and adjudged in lawful fenn, estate and possession of and in the fame honours, &c. to all intents, &c. of and in such like estate as they had or shall have in the use, &c. of and in the same; and the estate, title, right and possession of such person or persons or persons as were or hereafter shall be seised of all lands, tenements, or hereditaments, to the use, confidence, or trust of any such person or persons, or of any body polit.
tie, be from henceforth clearly deemed and adjudged to be in him or them, that have or hereafter shall have any freehold in the same, truth, after such resolution, manner, form, and condition as they had before in or to the use, confidence, or trust that was in them."

Where any perfmy or perfons? The word permy [excludes] all corporations. Lord Bacon's Reading on the Statutes 334. 335.

> S, T, R, V. This word faid excludes chattels and rights. It likewise excludes contingent ufees, because the feifin cannot be put to a fee-fimpie of an ufe; and when that is limited, the feifin of the fetttee is fpent.

Lord Bacon's Reading on the Statutes 335.

> Or other berelations? This word (hereafter Ginz) is to be interpreted in this fome things whereunto inheritance is in effe; for if I grant a rent-charge de nova for life to an ufe, this is good enough; yet there is no inheritance in being of this rent. It likewise excludes annuities and ufees themfelves, fo that an ufe cannot be to an ufe.

Lord Bacon's Reading on the Statutes 335.

> Title in remainder or restorer. The flate having faid spoken before of ufees in fee-fimpie, in tail, for life or years, addeth, or otherwise (in remainder or reverter) whereby it is manifeft, that the fift words are to be understood of ufees in poiffeffion.

Lord Bacon's Reading on the Statutes 337.

In lawfull feifin, estate and poiffeffion The words (lawfull feifin, estate and poiffeffion) intended not a poiffeffion in law only, but a feifin in tail; not a title to enter into the land, but an actual estate.

Lord Bacon's Reading on the Statutes 338.

> S. T. 2. Where divers poffeffors fhall be jointly feied to the ufe or truft of any of them, thofe which have fuch ufe or truft, fhall be adjudged to have only fuch poiffeffion, poiffeffion, and feifin of lands, &c. as they had in the ufe or truft, faving to all poffeffors other than thofe which be feied to any ufe or truft, all ufe."

Syll. 3. "Alfo faid to all thofe poffeffors which fhall have no constitutive rights as they might have had to their own proper ufe."

Upon this faving claufe the following cafe has been determined. The husband being feied in fee made a leafe to O. and S. but it was in fecret confidere for the preferment of his wife; and afterwards be made a feoffment to O, and others of the fame land to other ufees. It was faid by the advice of Way, Anderson and Mac- bowd, that the term was not extinguifhed by feoffment, by reafon of the provif. and because O. had this leafe to his own ufe, it is not extinguifhed by the feoffment which he took to the ufe of another. Med. 196. pl. 420. Cheneys cafe. Consequently the lands were feasually in truft to the ufe of the wife, and education of their fons and daughters, notwithstanding that divers covenants were therein contained, and a rent was reserved; and fays that the feoffment made afterwards was to the ufe of the husband himfelf, and his faid wife for their lives, with remainder over; and that the fame was held accordingly before. before.

Syll. 4. 5. "Where any be faied to any ufe or intent that another fhall have a yearly rent out of the fame lands, cada my guf ufe of the rent fhall be deemed in the poiffeffion thereof of like efate as he or fie had that ufe."

A man, in confideration of natural love and affection, covenanted to stand feied to the ufe of himfelf for life, the remainder to B. his fon in tail, and to the intent that B. fhould have a rent illufing out of the lands, during the life of A. the fon dies and his executors brought death for the arrears which was to the ufe of the remainder. It was faid by the words of the flate B. in this cafe had a good rent, as well upon covenant as by a feoffment, or bargain and fale.

The defign of this law was utterly to abolifh and de- fine the ufees in reft of conveyance ufees; and the meanes they took to do it was to make the poiffeffion fall in with the ufe in the fame manner as the ufe was limited; and where they were all freedhols, it was thought they would be then subject to the rules of Common law; but the method has not anwefed the legiflators defign; for it has introduced fome few forts of conveyances quite oppofite to the rules of Common law; for now where-ever any ufe is raifed, the flate gives fhippe ufe of the poiffeffion; fo that it is only neceffary to form an ufe, and the poiffeffion Polaffes without any livery or record, and might be with in the hands of public tenants, and now the ufe (by the name of trust, which were the fame before the flate) remains feparately in fome perfons, and the poiffeffion separately in others, as it did before the flate, and are not brought together but by a decree in Chancery, or the voluntary conveyance of the poiffeffion to the ufe. So that the principal ufe of the flat. of 27. H. 8. is effentially upon persons and the poiffeffion, and not to bring together a poiffeffion and ufe, but to introduce a general form of conveyance, by which the conufors of the fine, who are as donors in the cafe, may execute their intents and pur- pose at pleafure, either by transferring their efates to flangers, by enlarging, diminishing, or altering them, to and amongst themfelves, at their pleafure, without obferving that rigid and strictnefs of law for the poiffeffion of the conufors, as was required before the flate.

Vanh. 50. Dixon v. Harrifon.

In this cafe, there are, three ways of creating an ufe or a truft which till remains as at Common law, and is a creature of the courts of Equity, and subject only to their controul and direction. To, where a man faid in fee raifes a term for years, and limits it in truft for A. For this the flate cannot execute, the termor not being faied. To. Where lands are limited to the ufe of A. in truft, to permit B. to receive the rents and profits; for the flate can only execute the fift ufe. 3dly, Where lands are limited to ufees in fee, but not fuch lands to fuchs and per- fons; for here the lands muft remain in them to answer their part- pofees; and thofe points were agreed to. 1 Mor. Equ. Co. 7. 8, 9. To.

But before we confider the particular alterations in- troduced in the mode of conveying property by the 27. H. 8. it may be neceffary to premise in general, that, since the flate, the limitation of ufe is in many cafes governed by the rules of law. As if a feoffment is made to the ufe of J. S. and his heirs male lawfully be- gotten, with remainder over; this does not pafs an ef- tate-tail, but a fee-fimpie, fince the flate; for fince the flate has brought ufees into poiffeffion, they ought to be governed by the rules of efates in poiffeffion, as to the words that are effential to creating fuch ufees. Now, if the limitation of the land to the ufe of an efate, there is no fuch efate at Common law to far as to allow an efate in being, without words neceffary to create it; and here nobody islimited from whence the heirs of the tale may proceed. Alfo no fee-fimpie can be created in ufees, without the word heir, fince the flate, for the fame reafon. Gil. Laws of 75. 1 Rep. 87. 6.

So if a man makes a feoffment to the ufe of himfelf for years, the remainder to B. in tail, remainder to his own right heirs, and after B. dies without issue, leaving the fecoror, the remainder to his right heirs is void, be- cause it being confumptive, there is no efate of freedom to support it, for there is no tenant to the prætsis, and the other having a perpetual tenant to the praetice was an inconvenience the flate expressly defign'd to redrefs, and consequently to this rule the flate has submitted all ufees. 2 Real. Mor. 791. Gil. Laws of 76.

To a man who makes a leafe to the ufe of A. for life, the remainder to his fifth fon in tail, the remainder to B. in fee; if A.'s, his wife being prime- ment enfent, and a fon is afterwards born, he fhall take nothing; for if the remainder does not vell at the deter- mination of the particular efate, ithall never vell; for in the power of the lands to the growing of an efate, and nature and being of efates that were forfeited at Common law, and a remainder ex vi termini supposes a particular estate, of which it doth remain. Gil. Law of Uss. 177. But fee to 10 11 12 3. r. 16, for preferring consenting remainders to after-born children.

So if a man makes a feoffment in fee to the use of A., his fon for life, and afterwards to the use of every person that shall be heir to life, it is not good to the heir; for it is against the rules of Common law, that a perpetual freehold for life only should descend, because it creates a perpetuity, and it feems in this case, as if Chancery (since there is supposed a good consideration) would be bound to execute a fee in A. according to the interest of the parties. *1 Rep. 136. 2. Chid. 3. c. 74.

Gil. Law of Uss. 77. In some cases however, the statute operates against the rules of law. As if a man makes a feoffment in fee, to the use of A. in fee; but upon payment of 100l. or any other sum to the use of B., in fee, if the contingency happens, the fee shall be executed in B., for though, according to the rules of Common law, a fee cannot be limited on a fee, because a fee-fimple is the largest estate that can be limited; and therefore will not bear a remainder over, by way of limitation; and tho' this cannot be confined a conditional estate; because to avoid maintenance, the Common law allows no stranger to take advantage of a condition: Yet the necessities of commerce and family settlements induced the Chancery to pass by this rule, and the statute has executed the possession in the same manner and form as the party had the use of before, and have a use now to the same use before the statute, he cannot have an absolute and unconditional estate, since the statute; for that is to fet up an estate directly contrary to the express words of the statute. Gil. Law of Uss. 73. See 5 Bar. & Ab. and 22 Vin. Abr. tit. Uss.

After action, is the purifying or bringing an action, which in what place and county it ought to be, See Br. & 5. 64.

Uffet, (Offiarius), from the French Hasquier, A door-keeper of a court, is an officer in the Exchequer, of which sort there are four that attend the chief officers and barons at the court at Westminster, the justices, exchequers, and all other accountants, at the pleasurable of the court. There are also officers in the King's house, as of the privy chamber. See Bankrot.

Ufufciption, (Ufucapit). The enjoying a thing by continuance of time, or receiving the profits, long possession, or enjoyment, Cowell, edit. 1727.

Usurious contract, is any bargain or contract, whereby any man is obliged to pay more interest for money than the law allows. See Fov.

Usurpation, (Ufurpati). Is the using that which is another's; an interception, or disputing a man in his right and possession, &c. And usurpations in the civil and canon law are called intrusions; and such intruders having not any right shall subnit, or be communicated and deprived, &c. See Benfoc's Contempl. Gibb. Codex 817. The usurpation of a church befpre is, when one that hath no right, pretences to the church, and his clerk is admitted and inftitted into it, and hath quiet possession six months after institution, before a quare impedit brought: It must commence upon a praecoxation, not collision; because by a collation the church is not full, but the right patron may bring his writ at any time, to remove the usurper. *1 Inst. 222. 6 Rep. 30. And by usurpation, the fee of an advowson may be gained, as well as the avavasance upon which the usurpation is made: And the true patron cannot remove the interception, though he brings his writ against the right of advowson, which he is driven to for recovery of the inheritance. 6 Rep. 49. It has been formerly held, that upon an usurpation the usurper gains a fee-fimple in the advowson; in like manner as he who enters into land during a vacation, and claims the same as his inheritance, by warranty and without title or act of law. The statute will not take away the entry of the successor; nor more than the usurpation on a vacancy take away his right of presentation when the church becomes void. 2 Ca. Ind. 360. 17 Ed. 3. p. 37.

At Common law the patron in fee was put out of possession by an usurpation, and to recover the advowson it fell by a writ of right; but he hath no remedy for the preceding possession or for the right of possession, unless he brings his writ of right of advowson, and re-continue the advowson: If the patron had the advowson in tail, or for life, this turn and also his whole advowson went. 2 Salt. 383. An usurpation upon a leafe for years, gains the fee-simple, and puts the true patron upon the same footing as the true patron in fee, if he in reversion after the determination of the lease for years, may have a quare impedit when the church is void, or may present; and if his clerk is instituted and indicted, then he is remitted to his former title; yet till that is done, the usurper hath the fee, and the writ of right of advowson lies against him. Hutt. 3 All. 2 389. Upon the statute, 1 Eliz. If an usurpation be on a bishop, it shall bind him; but his succeflor may present to the next avoidance, or bring a quare impedit, although he is out of possession: All usurpations shall bind the bishop who suffereth them, not their successors. 1 Leon. 20. 2 Cro. 673. No one can usurp but the king; so as he shall be obliged to bring a quare impedit: tho' it will not do to defeat his estate in an advowson, as to bind his inheritance, and put him to a writ of right. 3 Salt. 389. One co-partner or jointant, &c. cannot usurp upon the same advowson, nor take the same patron; there are two patrons of churches united, if one prevails in the other; they are an usurpation; for they are not as co-partners, who are privy in blood. Dyer 259. 17 Ed. 3. If one presents to a church in time of war, the precentor shall not put the rightful patron out of possession: And a precentor, which is void in law, as in case of simony, or in a church that is full, See 3 W. & M. 105.

Usurpation of franchises, is when a subject unjustly uses any royal franchises, &c. And it is laid to be an usurpation upon the king; who shall have the writ of quo warranto against the usurpers. Jac. See 2nd Ura sip.

Usury, in a strict sense, is a contract upon the loan of money, to give the lender a certain profit for the use of it, upon all events, whether the borrower made any advantage of it, or the lender suffered any prejudice for the want of it, or whether it be repaid on the appointed time or not: Yet, as to a merchantman, to demand a certain interest for the use taken by a lender against a borrower, came under the notion of usury, whether there were any contract in relation thereto, or not; as where one in possession of land, made over to him for the security of a certain debt, retains his possession after he hath received all that is due, from the profits of the land. Hawk. P. C. 245.

Antiently it was held to be absolutely unlawful for a Christian to take any kind of usury; and that whatsoever was guilty of it, was liable to be punished by the confefsion of the law, and the civil laws, and that if after death any one was found to have been an usurer while living, all his chancellies were forfeited to the King, and his lands escheated to the lord of the fee. Hawk. Pl. Crem. 245. But per Hole Chief Justice, Jewish usury, being 40 per Cent. and more, was prohibited at Common law, but not under the Statute of 21 Hen. 8. 420.

Alfo it feemeth to have been the opinion of the makers of some acts of parliament, as 5 Ed. 6. cap. 20. 13 Eliz. cap. 8. j. 5. and 21 Jac. 1. cap. 17. j. 5. that all kinds of usury are contrary to a good conscience. Hawk. P. C. 245.

And therefore it feemeth formerly to have been the general opinion, that no action could be maintained on any promise to pay any kind of use for the forbearance of of money, because that all such contracts were thought to be unlawful, and consequently void. 1, ibid.

But it is feemeth to be generally agreed at this day, that the taking of reasonable interest for the use of money is in itself lawful, and consequently t'at a covenant or promis to pay it, in consideration of the forbearance of a debt, will maintain an acton; for why should not one who has an estate in money, be as well allowed to make a fair profit of it, as another who has an estate in land? And what reason can there be, that the lender of money, shall not as well make an advantage of it as the borrower? Neither do the paffages in the Mofcal law, which are generally urged against the lawfulness of all usury, if fully confidered, fully prove the unlawfulness of it; for if all usury were against the moral law, why should it not be as much fo in repect of foreigners of whom the Jews were expressly allowed to take it, as in repect of thefie of the fame nation, of whom alone they were for- bidden to receive it? From whence it seems feorly to follow, that the prohibition of it to that nation was merely political, and confefionally doth not extend to any other nation. Hawk. P. C. 245.

By the 37 H. 8. c. 9, and the 13 Elze. c. 8. The rate of interest is not to exceed 10l. in the 100l.

By that. 21 Jac. 1. c. 17. f. 2. None shall upon any contract, or obligation, indur any further rate of time, or other commodities, above the rate of 8l. for 100l. for one whole year; on pain to forfeit the treble value of the money, or other things fent. Snlt. 5. This law fhall not be continued to allow the practice of usury in point of religion or confcience.

By that 12 Cor. 15. 67. 2. None shall take directly or indirectly, for the loan of money, or other commodities, above the value of 6l. for the forbearance of 100l. for one year, and fo after that rate, and all bonds, contracts, &c. whereupon more shall be referred, shall be void. They that receive more, shall forfeit the treble value of the money or other things lent. 6. 109. c. 6. 20. Eliz. Act. 64. That no pefon upon any contract, which shall be made after the 29th of September 1714, fhall take for loan of any money, wares, &c. above the value of 5l. for the forbearance of 100l. for a year; and all bonds and aurance for payment of any money to be lent upon usury, whereupon or whereby there shall be referred or taken above five pounds in the hundred, shall be void; and every pefon which shall receive, by means of any corrupt bargain, loan, ex- change, cheviance, shift, or interest of any wares, or other things, or by any deceitful way, for forbearing or giving day of payment for one year, for their money or other things, other than 5l. for 100l. for a year, he shall forfeit the treble value of the monies or other things lent.

It seems to be now fettled, that the statute of 12 Ann. cap. 16, which reduces the interest of money to 5l. per Cent. has not a retrospect to any debts contracted before; but that they fhall carry interest according to the inter- est allowed, or agreement made at the time of the debt contracted. And ferjeant Hawkin, from the ftructure made of former statutes, fays, that a contract made before the statute is no way within the meaning of it, and therefore it is lawful to receive 6l. per Cent. in repect of any fuch contract. Hawk. P. C. 246.

The expofitions which have been made of the former statutes being very applicable to the law, which is alfo in the fame words, the proper construction of it will be well collected by a due attention, to the following heads.

5 Bab. Abr. 411.

1. What kinds of agreements or contracts shall be deemed usurious, and what not.

2. What kind of hazard or cautéty will bring an agreement or contract out of the statute of usury.

3. In what cases securities fhall be forfeited or avoided on account of interest.

4. In what cases forfeiture of treble value shaft be incurred on account of interest.

5. What kind of agreements or contracts shall be deemed usurious, and what not.

It hath been resolved, that an agreement to pay double the fund borrowed, or other penal on the non-payment of the fund borrowed, on any day, is usurious, be- cause it is in the power of the borrower totally to discharge himself, by repaying the principal according to the bai- gain. Hawk. P. C. 245.

But if it were originally agreed, that the principal money should not be paid at the time appointed, and that such clause was inferred only to evade the statute, the whole contract is void, for the construction of cases of this nature must be governed by the circumstances of the whole matter, from which the intention of the parties will appear in the making of the bargain, which, if it was in truth usurious, is void, however it may be dif- guided by a specious allowance. Hawk. P. C. 248.

So if both principal and interest be fecured, yet if it be at the will of the party who is to pay it, it is no usury; Per Duddridge J. As if I lend to one 10l. for two years, to pay for the loan thereof 30l. and if he pay the principal at the year's end, he shall pay nothing for interest, the principal fiay the party has his election, and may discharge himself by paying it at the fifth year's end. Cris. Jac. 609. pl. 20. Roberts v. Trennary.

But if a man contracts to pay more interefl than the statute allows, if the plaintiff requires it; though the plaintiff never does require it, yet it is within the statute of usury. Hedgeborough v. Rojas.

Nevertheless it has been held, that if one contract to have more than the statute allows, but he takes nothing of the interest contracted, he is not punishable by the statute; but if he takes any thing, if it be but a billiog, it is an affurance of the statute, and he shall render for the whole contract. Cries. Eliz. 20. pl. 5. Pollard v. Self.

So if I lend 100l. without any contract for interest, and afterwards at the end of the year the borrower gives me 20l. for the loan thereof, the same is within the statute; for my acceptance makes the offence without any contract or bargain, Per Cen. J. Le. 66. pl. 125. in Six Wed- afton Day's cafe.

Where a man for 100l. fells his land, upon condition that if the vendor or his heirs repay the fund before the fall of Effer, or fuch like, then next following, that then he may re-enter, this is no usury; for he may repay the next day, or any time before Effer, and therefore he has no gain certain to receive any profits of the land. Brad. 158. pl. 147. 158. 158.

But where B. delivered wares of the value of 100l. and no more, and took a bond, with a condition to re- deliver the wares to B. within a month, or to pay 120l. at the end of the year; the obligation was adjudged void by the statute of usury. Ms. 397. pl. 520. Rid- dards v. Clapton cited it as adjudged in B. of K. tischer's cafe.

If so A. comes to borrow money, and B. lays he will not lend money, but he will tell corn, &c. and give day for payment at fuch a rate, which rate exceeds ten pounds in the hundred, it is usury. Ms. 398. pl. 520. cites it as B. of K. tischer's cafe.

If one gives the profits of his lands, worth 10l. for interest for a year of 100l. though he receives part of the profit daily, this is not usury above 10l. for the 100l. Per Popham, Gawdy, and Yelverton, but Fenner v. contra. Ms. 644. pl. 850. Wesley's cafe.

So where one mortgaged land for 100l. and took bond for the interest of 8l. a year, payable half-yearly. The question was whether that makes the bargain usurious against the statute, because, as it was infulfed, the use ought not to be paid until the end of the year, and con- tracting to have half of it half-yearly is not warrantable by the statute; but the court hold that it is not any usu- rious contract, contrary to the statute, because the 100l. is lent for a year, and the reservation is not of more than what is permitted by the statutes; and the referring it half-yearly is allowable; for he does not receive any interest for more or less time than his money is forborn.
It was adjudged for the plaintiff, and affirmed in error, Cra. C. 283. Gryffith v. Whitehead. It is to be observed, that the loan of money for lawful interest allowed by the statute, shall not be construed to be within the purview of it, in respect of any expectations which the lender may have of a voluntary gratuity to be given him for his trouble, and he be no kind of agreement relating to it. Hawk. P. C. 240. s. 18.

But a contract referring to the lender a greater advantage than is allowed by the statute, is equally within the meaning of it, whether the whole be referred by way of interest, or in part only under that name, and in part by way of a more usual interest, at a rate plainly exceeding the known value. Id. ibid.

A bankrupt having borrowed a great sum of money of the defendant for one quarter of a year, he was to give the defendant 5 l. for every 100 l. that he borrowed; and some folk being the security, he was to give him one pound more for every 100 l. for that quarter, for the use of his warehouse. The question upon the trial was, whether this contract made between the bankrupt and the defendant was a usurious contract? and the jury having found a verdict for the defendant, Germaine Chofaro moved for a new trial; for he said the verdict was against law. Holt Chief Justice said he thought it was a wrong verdict, and it was thereupon ordered to be moved again. *Holt's Rep. 706.

Lee and Blance v. all v. Harrison. If a sum of money is given in consideration of an annuity, though the yearly payment exceeds the rate of interest, yet it is not usurious. Thus, where A. aks to borrow of B. upon interest, and B. refused to lend him the money; but said that for an annuity or rent he would; and so it was agreed, and a rent granted for twenty-three years, amounting to more than the statute allows for interest, &c. it seems this is not usury within the statute. *Add. 121. pl. 159. Finch's cafe.

If A. gives 300 l. to have an annuity of 5 l. affurred to him for 100 years, if A. and his wife and four of his children shall live; and also, that it is not within the statute of usury. So if there had not been any condition. But care is taken, that there be no communication of borrowing of any money before. Held per tattur. *4 Le. 208. pl. 334. Fuller's cafe.

So where A. on the 17th of July 1759 lent 100 l. to B. and engaged with him by the statute, if A. and his heirs be an annuity of 20 l. a year, on condition that if the said B. the grantor paid to A. at Christmas 1580 the said 100 l. that then the annuity should cease. Adjudged this is not within the statute; for nothing was to be paid for interest within a year and a quarter after the grant; and if the 100 l. were not paid by the said B. the annuity was to continue without paying anything; & so that it is only a plain bargain, and a conditional purchase of an annuity. *5 Rep. 69. Barton's cafe.

But if it had been agreed between A. and B. that notwithstanding such power of redemption, the 100 l. should not be paid at the day, and so that the clause of redemption was inferred to make the statute, then this had been an usurious contract and bargain within the statute; for in truth the contract be usurious against the statute, no colours or shews of words will serve, but the party may fliew it, and he shall not be concluded or estopped by any deed in any other matter whatsoever; for the statute gives advantage in such cases. *5 Rep. 69. Barton's cafe.

Where A. for 100 l. granted a rent of 20 l. for eight years, another of 20 l. a year for two years, if B. C. and D. should live long in. Replevin the defendant avowed for the rent, and the plaintiff pleaded the statute of usury, and set forth the statute and a special usurious contract, as it was; and it was laid to be upon a loan of money. then it was usury; but if it be a bargain for an annuity, it is no usury; but that this was alleged to be upon a lending. *Brew. 180. Cotterell v. Harrington.

So where in debt upon bond, the defendant pleaded the statute of usury, and that he came to the plaintiff to borrow of him 120 l. to the rate of 10 l. per Cent. who refused to lend the same, but corruptly offered to deliver 120 l. to him, if he would be bound to pay him 20 l. per Annum during the plaintiff's wife's and his fon's lives: whereupon he entered into the bond. Resolved that this, being an absolute bargain, in consideration of the payment of 20 l. per annum during two lives and no longer, and no agreement to have the principal money, was out of the statute of usury; but if there had been any pretence of the re-payment of the principal, either not expressed within the bond, it had been an usurious agreement within the statute; and judgment for the plaintiff. *Cra. J. 252. pl. 7. Fountain v. Grymes.

A. after the statute 12 Car. 2. s. 2. 3 June 13 Car. 2. agreed to lend B. 100 l. and that for the forbearance thereof, B. the defendant should pay to A. the plaintiff 210 l. 20s. 6d. upon the 20th day of January and 20th of July by equal portions annually, next after the 20th day of the then inchoate month of July, till the 120 l. be paid; which exceeded the rate of 6 l. per Cent. And for the further security B. gave a bond of 200 l. and conciliated a judgment. *Tyig- den J. said, that the contract here was not usurious; it being a purchase of an annuity for three years. *Sid. 182. pl. 1. Rowe v. Belfays. It is to be observed, that if the agreement of the parties be honest, it is made otherwise by the mistake of a scrivener, yet it is not usury. *2 Med. 307. Ballard v. Odby.

2. What kind of hazard or crazy will bring an agreement or contract out of the statute of usury. It has been held, that if principal and interest be in hazard upon a contingency, it is no usury, though the interest do exceed the allowed rates per Cent. And when there is an hazard that the plaintiff may have less than his principal, it is no usury. Thus, if S. lend 100 l. to have 120 l. at the year's end upon certain, if the casualty goes to the interest only, and not to the principal, it is usury; for the party is for to have the principal, and to have come what will; but if the interest and principal are both in hazard, it is not then usury. *Per Duddridge J. Stow, 8. Martin v. Adris. *Cra. 765. 508. pl. 20. Roberts v. Trowneay.

Debt upon obligation of fifty pounds; the defendant pleaded the statute, and showed that it was agreed between the plaintiff and defendant, the 14th December, that the plaintiff should lend the defendant 30 l. to be repaid the first of Jult following, and that the plaintiff should have three pounds for the forbearance, if the plaintiff's son be then living; and if he died, then to pay but 20 l. of the principal money. The court intiimated that the plaintiff should not have this usury; wherefore the plaintiff who had demurred, became non sui. *Mar. 397. pl. 528. Reynolds v. Clayton.

So where A. agreed with I. S. to give him 10 l. for the forbearance of 20 l. for a year, if B. his son was then alive. It was held by three justices (Glynais abjente) to be usurious, by reason of the covenant, and agreement, and it is the intent makes it fo or not. *Cra. E. 645. pl. 13. G. B. Button v. Devonham.

Likewise where the obligor was bound in a bond of 300 l. conditioned to pay 22 l. 10s. pr. annum, at the end of the first three months after the date, &c. and 6 l. in the pound at the end of the first six months, at the end of pr. annum, together with the principal itself, in case the obligor be then living; but if he dies within that time, then the principal to be lost: This was adjudged an usurious contract, because there was a possibility that the obligor might live so long; and there is an express provision to have the principal again. *3 Saik. 390. pl. 3. Mayen v. Adderton's wife.

But where the bargain is merely casual, and the whole depends on a contingency, there the contract is not usurious. Thus, Mr. Spencer being in possession of an estate of 7000 l. a year, and of a personal estate in goods and plate, &c. worth 20,000 l. and owing about 20,000 l. to tradesmen being about 30 years of age, of a hale constitution, but impared by irregularity, and the Dutches of Marlborough his grandmother, being then 78 and of a good constitution, made the defendant a proposal, that for 5000 l. paid paid down he would engage to pay 10,000l. if the survi\nval the Dutchess, which after some deliberation was ac\ncepted by the defendant; and Mr. Speaker gave him a bond for the payment of 10,000l. in six months after the death of the Dutchess, in case he should be then living; the Dutch-ness lived six years after and then died, giving Mr. Spe\ncer, or the Court, a valid bond for the money.

3. In what cases securities shall be forfeited or avoided on account of usury.

Here it is to be premised that it is not material, whe\nther the payment both of the principal, and also of the ufurious interest be secured by the fame or by different conveyances, but all writings whatsoever, for the strengthening such a contract, are void. Hawk. P. C. 246. f. 11.

Where a bond was made for more than legal interest, at the payment the obligor takes only legal interest;
he shall not be punished for the contract; but perhaps the bond shall be void. 2 Le. 39. Arg. in Van Hen\nbeck's cafe.

Where A. borrowed of B. 80l. and was bound in a bond to pay him 90l. at the end of the year; per Cur:

Tho' the 90l. was tendered, and B. did tell the fame, yet if B. takes but 80l. it is not usury, within 5 Eig.
to make a treble forfeiture; but yet in that case the obligation itself is void. The bond is void presently, and if he receives excessive interest, he shall forfeit the treble

Where the first contract is not usurious, it shall never be made fo by matter ex post facto. Per Williams J. Bullrt. 17. Thus,

In debt upon an obligation, where the statute of usury was pleaded, it was laid by Pipham, upon the evidence, that if a man lends upon a bond, within the space of 20 years, for the use of it, if the obligor pays the 10l. twenty days before it be due, that does not make the obligation void, because it was not corrupt. But if upon making the obligation it had been agreed, that the 10l. should have been paid within the time, that would have been usurious for the 10l. for the whole year, when the 10l. was to be paid within the year, and verdict was given accordingly. Noy 171. Dalton's cafe.
S. P.

Likewise if a man makes an usurious contract with another, and gives him unlawful interest, and agrees to give him the bond for the principal, and after, by a subsequent agreement, gives it him for one sum, to whom the lender owes so much, in satisfaction of his debt; this bond is not void by the statute; per Holt Chief Justice, 7 Mol. 119. The Queen v. Sewel, alias Beau.

So if a man lend money on a legal interest, and after a subsequent agreement is made for more interest, which is usury; that will not avoid the first contract, per

But if a second bond be made after the forfeiture of a former, and conditioned for the receipt of interest according to the penalty of the forfeited bond, this is as much within the statute as if it had been made before the forfeiture; for if such a practive should be allowed, nothing could be more easy than to elude the statute; and tho' the whole penalty be due in strictness to the obligee, yet the true principal debt is in confidence no greater after the forfeiture of the bond, than it was before. Hawk. P. C. 246. 2.

A bond made, to secure a jufir debt payable with interest, shall not be avoided by reason of a corrupt agreement between the obligors, to which the obligee was no way privy: As where A. being indebted to B. in 100l.
agrees to give him 30l. for the forfeiture of that 100l.
for a year, and gives him the bond for 60l. for payment of the interest; and for the payment of the bond enters in a bond of 200l. together with B. for the payment of a treble debt of 100l. due from 'B. to C. Hawk. P. C. 246. f. 11.

So where W. was indebted in 100l. to A. upon an usurious contract on a bond, and A. being indebted to E. transferred the debt to E. and W. became bound for the fame usurious debt to E. whose debt was just, and he ignorant of the usury. It was adjudged upon great deliberation, that the obligation by W. to E. was not avoidable for the usurious contract made between W. and A. because it was given to E. for a true debt, and he knew nothing of the usury, tho' the ground between A. and W. was usurious. Mon 752. pl. 1035. Ellis v. Warren.

Likewise an allurance made in pursuance of a fair agreement for such interefl as is allowed by the statute, shall not be avoided by the fault of the scrivener who draws it up in such a manner as to bring it within the exceptions of the statute; As where the parties agree that 5l. shall be paid for the loan of 100l. for one years and the scrivener in drawing the bond for it, doth, without the knowledge of the parties, who are illiterate per-2 sons, make the 5l. payable at the end of half a year; or where on a loan of 100l. agreed to be paid with common interest, a mortgage is made for the 100l. with a proviso, that it shall be void on payment of 105l. at the end of one year, without any covenant for the mortgagor to take the profits, till default be made of payment, to that in the mortgage the mortgagee is invested both to interest and profits. Haweck P. C. 247, f. 17.

It is to be observed, that a fine levied, or judgment suffered, in pursuance of an onerous contract, may be avoided by an averment of the corrupt agreement, as well as any common specialty, or parcel contract. And in an affidavit if it appear, either upon evidence, or from the plaintiff's own express showing in his declaration, that the contract was usurious, he cannot recover. But a specialty cannot be avoided by usury appearing on evidence, or on the face of the condition, but it must be pleaded. Haweck P. C. 248, f. 20.

So if a judgment be given upon an onerous contract, and it is a part of the agreement to have a judgment, yet the defendant may avoid such judgment, by a special averment, or by his de facto brought on the same. Vin. Ab. tit. Usury 304.

Where A. mortgaged to B. on an onerous contract for 200, and before the day of payment B. is ousted by C. and B. brings action against C. C. cannot plead the statute of usury, for he has no title; the estate being void against the mortgagee. Per Ripam. Le 307, p. 427, Carter v. Claypole.

But where A. lent B. 45l. on a pledge of jewels, and it was agreed to pay 9l. for it for 3 years; afterwards B. gave a bond for the same money; per Holt at nisi prius, it is not in the power of the bond or not. Far. 119, The Queen v. Sewell alias Bevan.

4. In what cases forfeiture of treble value shall be incurred on account of usury.

Though the receipt of higher interest than is allowed by the statute, by virtue of an agreement subsequent to the first contract, does not void a discharge fairly made and agreeable to the statute, yet it subjects the party to the forfeiture of treble value. Haweck P. C. 247, f. 12.

But the receipt of interest before the time when it is in statute due, being voluntarily paid by the debtor for the greater convenience of the creditor, or for any other such like consideration, without any manner of corrupt practice, or any previous agreement of this kind at the making of the first contract, does not make the party liable to the forfeiture of the treble value. Haweck P. C. 247, f. 12.

An information upon the statute 12 Car. 2. c. 13. set forth, that the defendant, 16 November 20 Car. 2. lent I. S. 20l. till June next following, and that afterwards (viz.) ad finem termini prædicti he took of the said I. S. 29l. in a year thereof, which is more than the statute allows. The defendant took the bond from the defendant. And it was moved, that this corrupt agreement ought to be within the statute at the making the contract, and not at the end of the term, as laid in the information. Tewfalen took a difference upon the two clauses in the statute, that if the lender contracts for more, so that the agreement is corrupt at the time of the loan, all the assurance is void; but if he contracts for no more than the statute allows, but will afterwards take more, the assurance shall not be avoided, but the party shall forfeit the treble value. But judgment was stayed till the other side moved, because the court would not drill the case. The King v. Allen.

In debt upon bond the defendant pleaded, that after the making the bond the defendant corruptive receipt so much, viz. more than the statute allows, and that therefore the bond was void. But adjudged upon demurrer, that the plea is not good; for the bond here was not for the payment of the money (upon or for usury) as the words of the statute arc; but for any thing appearing to the contrary, it was for payment of a just debt, and fo the bond was good when made, and therefore an usurious contract after cannot make it void; but it is a forfeiture of the treble value by the latter clause of the statute. Sound, 134. Ferri v. Shinn. 3 Ed 350. pl. 4. S. P. accordingly.

A. (when money was at 8l. per Cent.) lends money and takes bond for the same, and then the statute 12 Car. 2. is made, and he will continue the interest on that bond, the bond shall not be avoided by such acceptance of interest, but the party shall forfeit the treble value by the statute; per Tewfalen Justice. Raym. 197.

So in debt on an obligation conditioned to pay on a certain day; the defendant pleaded the statute 12 Car. 2. c. 13. and said that the contract was usurious; but per Car. the contract being made after the bond forfeited to receive interest according to the penalty, which was double the principal, it doth not void the obligation that was good at first, but only subjects the taker to other penalties; and judgment for the plaintiff, nifi. 3 Ed 142, pl. 13. Radish v. Manning. For more learning on this subject, see 31 Edw. 1, W. 11, 1 & 2. Vin. Ab. tit. Usury.

W. Hat, Othello, is the eighth day following any case of theft, as the usats of St. Michael, the usats of St. Hilary, the usats of St. John Baptist, &c. as you may read 51 Hen. 3. concerning general days in the bench; and any day between the theft and thegetParameter, is said to be within the statute. The use of this is in the return of writs, as appears by that statute. At the usats of the Holy Trinity, Prævale to the statute 43 E. 3. 124.

Utenhill, (Fr. Utenfli,) Any thing necessary for our work and occupation; houhold stuff. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Utenhulgh, (For extra captas, filieta, extra dominium, vel jurisdictionem,) An ancient privilege or royalty granted to a lord of a manor, by the King, which gives him power to punish a thief dwelling out of his liberty, and committing theft without the same, if he be taken within his fees. Bristain, lib. 2. trad. 2. cap. 35. says thus, utenigeb dictum extraurum locorum, visum adinde de terres alienarum & qui captus fuerit in terra infat qui atque talibus Herbertoterat. See Dittonhulgh.

Uletagato caiendno when utletagat in uno comice catu & poleta fugit in aliis, is a writ, the nature whereof is sufficiently expressed by the name. See Leg. Ord. 1373. 124.

Uletagh, (Uletagius,) An outlaw, signifies Benedict extra legum. Fleta, lib. 1. cap. 47. See Dullatag.

Ulatar or Ulatawp (Uletaria vel utlatagia,) See Ulatiawp.

Ulatyep, (Sexx,) Signifies an escape of a felon out of prison. Fleta, lib. 1. c. 47.

Ulatum, see Miftie de utram.

Utter-brothers, (Fratres confili,) Are such, who for their long study, and great industry bestowed upon the knowledge of the Common law, are called from their contemplation to practice, and in the face of the world to take upon them the protection and defence of clients. These in other countries are called licentiiarii in jure. Cowel edit. 1727. See Barrister.

Ulfitub, A wound in the face. Id. lib.

Ultius de Luca, The image of our crucified favour kept at Lucca in the church of Holy Crofs. Eadmerus, lib. 1 & 2. tells us, That William the conqueror often wrote per factionem vultum de Luca, visu. pag. 16, 19, 47, 51, 54. And Austinbury writes the same thing, lib. 4. p. 121, & 124, and lib. 1 & 2. Dugdii Post, Actis, reg. 1727, 277.

W. W. W.
We will retain the word to save, ever, that is, to conduct or convey over sea. Civil edit. 1727.

Wage, (Vadare, from the French gager, dare pignor,) signifies security for the performance of any thing; as wage delinquents, which for in gage, to wage into Co. Lit. 294.

Wager of law, is a particular mode of proceeding, whereby in an action of debt brought upon a simple contract between the parties, without deed or record, the defendant may discharge himself by swearing in court in the presence of commissary and jury, and this being his word is not to be questioned in manner and form as he hath declared. And this his wager, his word, is sometimes called making his law. 5 Batt. Abr. 428.

The reason, wherefore in an action of debt upon a simple contract the defendant may wage his law, is for the reason that his word is his bond. He is not to be questioned before witnesses, and all the witnesses may die, so the law doth allow him to wage his law for his discharge; and this is peculiar to the law of England, and no mischief followeth hereupon; for the plaintiff may take a bill or bond for his money; or if it be a simple contract, he may bring his action upon his own accord and without the consent of the defendant. And when the law was passed and the defendant cannot wage his law. 2 T. L. 45.

It hath been said however, that the only true reason of wager of law, is the incommodeliness of the ground of the plaintiff's demand, and it sufficeth that the nature of the defendant's discharge be of equal validity with the ground of the plaintiff's demand, he being an officer of the law. Per Ruffell Jus. 12 Mad. 570. The city of London v. Wood.

Originally it was not only a privilege of the defendant to discharge himself, but one which the plaintiff had when he had no witness of his debt, or, to put the defendant under a necessity of giving him his oath to discharge himself; so it was a kind of equity in law, that the plaintiff might put him to his oath that he owed nothing to him, or confess the debt, rather than the plaintiff should lose his debt, in cases where he had no witness of it at all, or had some who were then dead. Per Holt, Chief Jus. 12 Mad. 578. The city of London v. Wood.

The plaintiff's bare assurance was formerly sufficient to put the defendant to wage his law; but it is provided by Magna Charta, that 'No bailli shall put any man to his law, nor to an oath, upon bare saying without witness, brought in.' Before this, as has been premised, the plaintiff, on his declaration upon bare assurance, might make the defendant swear there was nothing due. At this day, if the defendant produce witnesses to prove his demand, the court may put the defendant to wage his law; and in such case the defendant is not at liberty to cross examineth, no more than where the plaintiff in a prohibition produces witnesses to prove his fuggellion. 2 Saull. 683. Mud v. The Mayor of London.

The manner of wagering of law is thus: He that is to do it, must bring six compurgators with him into court, and stand at the end of the bar towards the right hand of the Chief Justice; and the Second affi his, whether he will wage his law. If he answers that he will, he lays his right hand on the book, then the Judges admonish him and his compurgators to be advised, and tell them the defendant may present a falk oath, and if they will per- sist, the Secondary says, and he that wageth his law repeats after him: Hear this ye Justices, That I A. B. do not owe to C. D. the sum, &c. nor any penny thereof in manner and form as the said C. D. hath declared against me: So help me God. The compurgators then swear not to believe that they believe, whether he will or not persist, the Secondary says, and he that wageth his law repeats after him.

But if the defendant takes the oath the plaintiff is called by the cryer thrice; and if he do not appear he becomes nonsuit, and then the defendant goes out without taking his oath; and if he appear, and the defendant swears that he owes the plaintiff nothing, and the compurgators do give it upon oath that they believe he swears true, the plaintiff is barred for ever; for when a person has waged his law, it is as much as if a verdict had passed against the plaintiff: If the plaintiff do not appear to hear the defendant perform his law, so he is in non-

Wages of law shall not be required without witnesses, M. C. H. 3. c. 28.

For the plaintiff fe nihil receptis, &c. St. Will. 12.

Granted in treason committed by compulsion in an insurrection, 6 R. 2. 2. c. 5.

Where the plaintiff fuggets an account taken, the Justices may take him or her to a oath, and admit the defendant to his law, 5 H. 4. c. 8.

Trials in Wales to be by wager of law or verdict of five men, 24 & 25 H. 8. c. 26. 74. See 5 Batt. Abr. tit. Wager of law, and 15 Vin. Abr. c. 58.

Wagers. By statute 7 Ann. c. 17. All wagers laid upon a contingency relating to the late war with France, and all securitis, &c. therefore were declared to be void; and perons concerned to forfeit double the sum laid.

Wagges, Is what is agreed upon by a master to be paid to a servant, or any other person which he hires to do business for him. 2 Litt. Abr. 677. The wages of servants, labourers, &c. is to be ascertained by justices. 5 El. c. 4. 1 Jac. 1. cap. 6. And justices of peace may order payment of wages for his master, &c. but not in other cases. Mad. C. 204, 205. The statute of labors extends to covenant wagers in husbandry; that is, an order of justices was quashed in B. R. because made upon the servant's oath, without other evidence. 2 Lev. Ram. 1305. See servants. Wages of seamen, vide pl. 4 & 5 Ann. I. Tit. 1. cap. 25. For the better adjudging and more easy recovery of the wages of certain servants, vide pl. 20 Geo. 2. c. 19. 27 Geo. 2. cap. 2. 7. See Law boilours, Manufacturors, Servants, and 22 Vin. Abr. 456.

Waggoners and Wagggoners. See Carts, Highways.

Wails, (from the Sax. Wafian, Fr. Chois guier, Lat. Bona Voia) Are goods which are stolen and warfare for them, the goods being put out of the way, for fear of being apprehended; which are forfeited to the King or lord of the manor. King. 81. If a felon in pursit waves the goods, or having them in his custody, and thinking that pursit was made, for his own ease and more speedy flight, flies away and leaves the goods behind, many of them hold the King's servant in the same case, who, being the lord of the manor, within whose jurisdiction they are left, who hath the chassis of the case, may seize the goods to the King's or lord's use and keep them; except the owner makes fresh pursit after the felon, and sue an appeal of robbery within a year and a day, or give evidence against him whereby he is attainted. &c. In which case, the owner shall have restitution of his goods so stolen and waved, 21 H. 8. cap. 13. 5 Rep. 109. Goods waved by a felon, in his flight from those who pursue him, shall be forfeited: And though wails is generally spoken of goods goods stolen; yet if a man be pursu'd with hooe and cry as a felon, and he flies and leaves his own goods, there will be forfeited in goods stolen; but they are properly fugitive's goods, and not forfeited till it be found before the coroner, or other wife of record, that he fled for the felony. 2 Hawk. 450. 5 Rep. The law makes a forfeiture of goods waved as a punishment to the owner of the goods, for not bringing the felon to justice: But if the goods be not properly fugitive's goods, there is no forfeiture: If a felon steals goods and hides them, and afterwards flies, these goods are not forfeited; so where he leaves stolen goods any where, with an intent to fetch them at another time, they are not waved; and in these cases the owner may take his goods where he finds it so, without felony, for his own use. But, in 5 Rep. 109. Mar 785. Waifs and frays are said to be nullis in bonus; and therefore they belong to the lord of the franche where found. Britton, cap. 17. We read of plaita corona and wail in the manor of Upton, &c. in Com. Sala. See 22 Fin. Atr. 408—410.

Wain (plantanum). A cart, waggon, or plough to till land.

Wainable, i. e. That may be ploughed, or manured, land tillable. Chart. fam. dat.

Wainage, (towainage) according to Sir Edw. Coke, signifies the contentment of a villan; or the furniture of his whole estate. And the villan of any other, if he fall into our mercy, shall be amerced for his wainage. Magna Charta, cap. 14. Wainage has also been used for tillage. Mon. Ang. temp. 2. p. 612. See Cuttage.

Walter, (soulorum) In the general signification, is to forfake, but is specially applied to a woman, who for any crime, for which a man may be outlawed, is termed waived. Reg. Orig. 132.

Walter, signifies the passing by of a thing, or a refu- fal to accept it; sometimes it is applied to an effate, or something conveyed to a man, and sometimes to a plea, &c. And a waiver or disaffrage as to goods and chattels, in the face of a goods, will be difficult. Lit. lett. 710. If a jointure of lands be made to a woman after marriage, the may waive this after her husband's death. 3 Rep. 27. And an infant, or if he die, his heir may by waiver avoid an effate made to him during his minority. 4 Inst. 23. 348. But where a particular effate is given with a remainder over, where regularly he be that hath it may not waive it, to the damage of him in remainder: Though it is otherwise where one hath a reversion for; that shall not be hurt by such waiver, 4 Steph. Atr. 197. After special issue joined in an action, the parties cannot waive it, without motion of court. 1 Ke. 225. Aijatement on a will, for payment of duty, to be waived, and the party to aijin in perfect, after demurrer for this cause. See 2 Ke. 135.

Wale, The eve feast of the dedication of churches; which in many country places, is observed with fealing and rural diversions. St. Pardub. Antiq. 669.

Waltman, (Shafk watchman) the chief magistrate of the town of Rippen in Yorkshire, is so called. Cami.

Wals, (Walla) is part of England on the west side, formerly divided into three provinces, north Wales, south Wales, and west Wales, and inhabited by the offspring of the ancient Britons chafed thither by the Saxons, called in to affi them against the Picts and Scott, Lamb Stati. Wallæs, 12 Ed. 1. England and Wales were originally but one nation, and fo they continued till the time of the Roman conquest: But when the Romans came, thofe Britons who would not submit to their yoke, betook them- selves to the mountains of Wales, from whence they came ago. The Saxons made inroads against them in divers feizions here: After this came the Saxons and gave them another disturbing, and then the kingdom was divided into an heptarchy; and then also began the Welsh to be dillinguished from the Englifh: Yet 'tis observable, that though Wales had prises of their own, the King of England was over them; for to him they paid homage. Camd. 67. 2 Med. II.

Vol. II. No. 134.

The King is sovereign lord, and shall do right in default of the lords, St. Hiftm. 1. 3 Ed. c. 17. United to England, St. Wallæs, 12 Ed. 1.

Direction for execution of the office of sheriff, coroner, &c. in Wales, St. Wallæs, 12 Ed. 1.

They shall be intendent to the judges of Cheffers, and anwer in the exchequer there, 12 Ed. 1.

The lords of the marches shall be attendant to the crown of England, 28 Ed. 9. 2 Wallæs, 12 Ed. 4.

Wolves disabled from purchasing lands in the next English counties, 2 H. 4. c. 12. and to find surety for their good behaviour, ibid.

If the Wefh do not restore difficiles taken in England upon requets, repfals to be made, 2 H. 4. c. 16.

If Wolvesman to be convicted at the fuit of a Wulfman in Wales but by an English jury, 2 H. 4. c. 19. 4 H. 4. c. 26.

Minifters and vagabonds in Wales, 4 H. 4. c. 27. Wolves not to go armed, 4 H. 4. c. 29. 26 H. 8. c. 6. f. 4.

Vestil and armour shall not be carried into Wales, 4 H. 4. c. 80.

Wolvesmen not to be officers in Wales, 4 H. 4. c. 32.

For felonies in South Wales, the countries where the felons were born shall make satisfaction, unless they apprehend them, 9 H. 4. c. 7.

In Wolvesmen shall sufFeftual answer to indictions where they are taken, and not dilclaim the feignory, 9 H. 4. c. 4.

The lords in Wales shall be commanded to take and execute thofe that are outlawed for felonies in England, 2 H. 5. f. 2. c. 5.

Taking Englishmen or their goods and carrying them into Wales made treafon, 2 H. 6. f. 3. 27 H. 6. c. 4. Extended to the delivery of Langefly, 28 H. 6. c. 4.

Penalty of importing goods into Wales, and then into England, without paying fuffum, 20 H. 6. c. 7.

Wolvesmen outlawed for felony or treafon, and flying to Herefjordshire, shall be pursu'd with hooe and cry, 23 H. 6. c. 4.

Grants of fairs, and licences to bake and brew in north Wales, repealed, 25 H. 6.

For the strict cufody of jurats in Wales, 26 H. 8. c. 4.

The penalty of ferrymen transporting offenders over the Severn, 26 H. 8. c. 5.

Penalties committed in Wales shall be tried in the next English county, 26 H. 8. c. 6. 34. & 35 H. 8. c. 26. f. 85.

Reftrictions of the government of the lords marches, 26 H. 8. c. 6. f. 2.

Wolvesmen not to bring arms to court, 26 H. 8. c. 6. f. 3.

Batteries committed by Wolvesmen in Gloucefjordshire, Herefjordshire, and Salop, punifh'd by a year's imprifon- ment, 26 H. 8. c. 12.

Directions for the ordering of clerks conivit in Wales, 26 H. 8. c. 12.

For the appointing of juflices of peace in Wales and Cheffers, 27 H. 8. c. 4.

Appointment of juflices of peace in Wales and Cheffers, 27 H. 8. c. 5.

Wolvesmen might enjoy effates transferred to them by the fixture of ufe, 25 H. 8. c. 10. f. 18.

The lordshipp marches divided into counties, 27 H. 8. c. 26. f. 3. &c. 28 H. 8. c. 3. 33 H. 8. c. 13.

The county of Monmouth dijolved from Wales, 27 H. 8. c. 12. f. 4.

A preffent and council established in Wales like those in the North, 32 H. 8. c. 50. 34. & 35 H. 8. c. 26. f. 4. taken away, 1 W. & M. c. 27. 9 to 10 W. 3. c. 16.

Grants of fees over the counties of Wales afoartened, 34 & 35 H. 8. c. 26. 21 Jac. 1. c. 10. 9 F.
W A L

What members of parliament shall be sent for the shires and boroughs in Wales, 34 & 35 H. 8. c. 26. f. 110.
Execution of judgment in inferior courts shall not be stayed by writ of false judgment, 34 & 35 H. 8. c. 26. f. 114.
Their election and the payment of their wages, 35 H. 8. c. 11.
The courts of Welfington, may award process of outlawry into Wales and Chester, 1 Ed. 6. c. 10.
The Sheriff of Wales and Chester shall appoint deputies in the King's Bench and Common Peace, 1 Ed. 6. c. 10. f. 3.
Title of marriage goods in Wales taken away, 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 13. f. 16.
The liberties of the Lords marchers confirmed, 1 & 2 P. 3. M. c. 15.
The statutes of tales de circumstantibus extended to Wales and the counties palatine, 5 Ed. c. 25. directions for returning issuable upon jurors in Wales, 5 Ed. c. 25. f. 3.
The bible and common prayer to be translated into Welsh, 5 Ed. c. 26.
Offences committed in Merionethshire not to be tried in Anglesea, 8 Ed. c. 20.
The Crown authorized to appoint two or more justices of assize in the several counties in Wales, 18 Ed. c. 5.
For the inflamation of fines and recoveries in Wales, 27 Ed. c. 9.
The King's power of changing the laws in Wales repealed, 21 Jac. 1. c. 10.
The common prayer in Welsh and in English to be kept in the churches in Wales, 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 4. f. 27.
Court of presidient and council in the marches of Wales taken away, 1 W. & M. p. 1. c. 27. f. 2.
The manner of appointing sheriffs in Wales, 1 W. & M. c. 27. f. 3. 3 Geo. 1. c. 15. f. 20 & 22.
Errors in pleas personal to be redressed in the same manner as in pleas real, 1 W. & M. c. 27. f. 4.
The King may appoint any number of justices of peace in Wales, 5 W. & M. c. 4.
The inhabitants of Welfington empowered to bequests their personal effects, 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 38.
The statute 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 9. f. 126. Extended to Wales, and the counties palatine, 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 9.
Sheriffs in Wales and the counties palatine shall not hold to bail on process from Welfington unless the debt be sworn to be 20l. 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 9. f. 2.
Judgment signified in the courts of great felons to be docketed, 8 Geo. 1. c. 25. f. 6.
And to be good against purchasers only from the time they are signified, ibid.
In personal actions under 10l. in the courts of great felons, the defendant to be served with the copy of the writ, and if he do not appear, the plaintiff may enter his appearance, 6 Geo. 2. c. 14.
Wales and Berwick included in England in acts of parliament, 20 Geo. 2. c. 42. f. 3.
Murders and felonies in any part of Wales may be tried in the next English county, Stram. 553.
Curtailor lies to Wales on inducements for misdemeanors, Stram. 704.
Habest Corpus granted of course, to a prisoner from Wales to an English county, Stram. 945.
Prohibition to the great felons, to stay a suit on a subject carried out of the jurisdiction, Stram. 630. See 22 Vin. Att. 412. 416.
Wales territor, The learned Spelman says, signifies Wales parts: But by others it is interpreted parentela hominis inter se; the same with Wales territor.
Watlinns, (t. c. ferrow) A servant, or any ministerial officer. Log. Inst. c. 34.
W A R

Walkers, Are forcers within a certain space of ground, assigned to their care in forests, &c. Crimes, jurispr. 145.
Wall, sea-Wall, A bank of earth. See Water's gate.
Wallingham, The demeine lands in Wallingham may be let by copy, and shall be copyholds. 35 H. 8. c. 13.
Waltham blacks. In the reign of Geo. 1., there sprung up a set of desperate villains called Waltham blacks, headed by one whom they called K. John; who blacking their faces, and using other disguises, robbed forests, parks, and warrens, destroyed cattle, levied money on their neighbours, by threats and menaces to fire their houses, and kill their persons and directed divers other violence; but they were suppressed, and declared felonies, by stat. 9 Geo. 1. cap. 22. See Black art.
Wang, (Sx.) We use for the cheek, or jaw wherein the teeth are set: Hence Chaucer called the cheek teeth or grinders, wangs or wng-teeth, which is recorded in this old way of feeling writings:
And in wittnes that this is sooth, I bite the wax with my wng-taung.
Wanlass, or driving the wanlass, is to drive deer to a stand, that the lord may have a shoot; which is one of our ancient customary tenures of lands. Blount's Ten. 140.
Wapentake, (from the Sax. wepen, i. e. armatura, and ta£, thing) Is all one with what we call a hundred; specially used in the north countries beyond the river Trent, Bradt, lib. 3. Lamb. The words seem to be of Danish original, and to be so called for this reason; when first the kingdom, or part thereof, was divided into wapentakes, he who was the chief of the wapentake or hundred, and whom we now call a high confable, as soon as he entered upon his office, appeared in the field on a certain day on horse-back, with a pike in his hand, and all the chief men of the hundred met him there with their lances, and touched his pike; which was a sign that they were firmly united to each other, by the touching their weapons. Hveden. Bita. 2. But Sir Thomas Smi® says, that antiently mutlers were made of the towers of the several inhabitants of every wapentake; and from those that could not find sufficient pledges for their good abearing, their weapons were taken away, and given to others; from whence he derives this word. Rep. Angl. lib. 2. cap. 16. Camb. Brift. 159. 2 Inft. 90. Stat. 3. H. 5. cap. 7. H. 6. cap. 10. 15 H. 6. cap. 7. Wapentake haec ille quindecim de feptembus good quindecim Wapentakes. Ms. in Biah. Cotton.
Wapping, An act was made for the partition of Wapping Marsh. Stat. 25 H. 8. cap. 9. And perfons flaying themselves from debts, and obstructing the execution of writs in Wapping, Stepsy, &c. to be guilty of felony by 7 Geo. 1. cap. 23.
Walk, (Bellum) A fighting between two Kings, Princes or parties, in vindication of their just rights; alse the state of war, or all the time it lasteth. By our law, when the courts of justice are open, so that the King's Judges distribute justice to all, and protect men from wrong and violence, it is said to be a time of peace; But when by invasion, rebellion, &c. the peaceable course of justice is ftopt, then it is adjudged to be a time of war: And this shall be tried by records and judges, whether justice at such a time had her equal course of proceeding or no; for time of war gives privilege to them that are in war, and all others within the kingdom. 1 Lev. 11. 33.
Wages

Merchants in time of war shall be free, if ours are free in the enemies county, M. C. 9 H. 3. c. 30.
None shall be charged to arm themselves, otherwise than as usual; nor to go out of our country, except in cases of hidden necessity, 1 Ed. 3. 2. c. 5. 4.
H. 4. c. 13.
WAR

Wages shall be allowed to the conductors of soldiers, 1 Ed. 3. 3. 6. 2. 7.

None shall be bound by writing to come to the King with a bill of sale, 1 Ed. 3. 6. 2. 7.

Soldiers shall have wages from the day that they go out of their counties, 18 Ed. 3. 3. 7. 4. 6. 2. 11.

Covenants of persons retained in the King's service to be exacted by the Exchequer, 5 R. 2. 2. 1. 11.

The duty of those who have lands or pensions for maintaining the King's service, 4 H. 3. 12. and officers, 11 H. 3. 7.

The custody of castles, &c., taken from those who had them by patent, 2 3 Ed. 3. 6. 5. 16.

The French ordered to depart the realm, and the Queen implored to revive their patent of denization, 4 3 Ed. 3. 6. 10.

War, A certain quantity or measure of ground, Mon. Angl. tom. 1. p. 172.

War, (Belligium) Is variously used in our old books:
A ward in London is a district or division of the city committed to the special charge of one of the Aldermen; and in London there are twenty-six wards according to the number of the Mayor and Aldermen, of which every one has his ward for his proper guard and jurisdiction.

War, The custody of a town or castle, which the inhabitants were bound to keep at their own charge.

Wardage, (Wardegium) Seems to be the same with wardship.

Warden, (Gardinianus, Fr. Gardien) Is he that hath the keeping or charge of any persons or things by office; as the wardens of the fellowships or companies in London.

Warden, (Warde) is a ward in the marches of Wales, &c.

Warden, (Wardens) 14 H. 8. cap. 2. Wardens of the marches of Wales, &c.

Warden of the peace, 2 Ed. 3. 3. cap. 3. Wardens are officers charged with the King's exchange.

Warden of the peace, 2 Ed. 3. 6. 1.

Warden, (Wardens of the King's writs and records of his court of Common Bench) Is, Wardens of the lands for repairing Rokeyber bridge, 18 Eliz. cap. 7.

Warden of the manors and lands, 14 Car. 2. 3. cap. 3. Warden and Minor Canons of St. Paul's church, 2 Ed. 3. 1. 25 Car. 2.

Warden, (Warden of the Fleet prison) 28 Eng. 9. 5. 3. See Guardian.

Wardmote, (Wardmout) Is a court kept in every ward in London, ordinarily called the Wardmote court; and the wardmote inquest hath power every year to inquire into, and present all defaults concerning the watch, and require of the watch and their officers, etc., to that end; and for providing against fire; persons selling ale and beer be honest, and suffer no disorders, nor permit gaining, &c., that they sell in lawful measures; and search for be made for vagrants, beggars, and idle persons, &c., who shall be punished.

Warrant, (Warrantis, &c.) Is a writ or order in writing, commanding or requiring the execution of a thing.

Warrant of arrest, (Warrantia, &c.) Is a writ or order in writing, commanding or requiring the execution of a thing, and may be used for the arrest of persons.

Warrant of execution, (Warrantia, &c.) Is a writ or order in writing, commanding or requiring the execution of a thing.

Warrant of peremptory, (Warrantia, &c.) Is a writ or order in writing, commanding or requiring the execution of a thing.

Warrant of recovery, (Warrantia, &c.) Is a writ or order in writing, commanding or requiring the execution of a thing.

Warrant of seizure, (Warrantia, &c.) Is a writ or order in writing, commanding or requiring the execution of a thing.

Warrant of suit, (Warrantia, &c.) Is a writ or order in writing, commanding or requiring the execution of a thing.

Warrant, (Warrantis, &c.) Is a writ or order in writing, commanding or requiring the execution of a thing.
left his advantage, F. N. B. 134. Term. de Leg. 372, 588. And if a person do infue another of lands by deed with warranty, and the feoffee make a feofment over, and taketh back an estate in fee, the warranty is determined; and he shall not have the writ warrantia charte, because he is in of another estate. And thereupon one makes a feofment against him in the orfe, the seffor, the sefso, the feoffee shall not have a warrantia charte upon this warranty against the feoffor or his heirs, if he be implieded by them, but the nature of it is to rebut against the seffor and his heirs. Dal. 48. 2 Litt. Acr. 684. This writ may be sued forth herefor, to have it implied, that he is implieded by him. See 201. Writ doth suppose that he is implieded; and if the defendant appear and say, that he is not implieded, by that plea he confesseth the warranty, and the plaintiff shall have judgment, &c. and the party shall recover in value of the lands against the voucheer, which he had at the time of the purchase of his warrantia charte; and therefore it may be good policy to bring it against him before he is sued, to bind the lands which he had at that time; for if he have aliened his lands before the voucher, he shall render nothing in value. N.ow. Nat. 298, 299. If a man recover his warranty in warrantia charte, and after he is implieded; he ought to give notice to him against whom he shall sue; and if the defendant, or any person for him, doth flate what plea he will plead, to defend the lands, &c. And where one upon a warranty doth vouch and recover in value, if he is then implieded of the land recovered, he may not vouch again, for the warranty was once executed, 23 Ed. 3. 12. In a warranty to the seffor in land, made by the feoffees upon voucheer, if special matter be dethewed by the voucher, when he entered into the warranty, viz. That the land at the time of the feofment was worth only 10l. and now at the time of the voucher it is worth 200l. by the industry of the seffor; the plaintiff in a warrantia charte, &c. shall recover only the value as it was at the time of the sale. 7th. Cas. 701. Sec. 28, 5 F. Fin. 428.

Warrantia dicti is a writ judicial, and lay for him who was challenged to be a ward to another, in respect of land said to be holden in knight's service, which when it was brought by the ancesfers of the ward, was warranted to be free from such thraldom, and it lay against the warrantor and his heirs. Reg. Judic. fol. 26. But new warrants, made 12 Car. 2, cap. 24, it is become altogether out of use.

WARRANTIA BICI, is a writ lying in a cause where a man having a day assigned personally to appear in court to any action wherein he is sued, is in the mean time, by commandment, employed in the Kine's service, for that he cannot be there to give his day. The writ is directed to the justices to this end, that they neither take nor record him in default for that day. Reg. Orig. f. 18. Of this read more, F. N. B. fol. 17. and Glanvill, lib. 1. c. 8.

Warranty (warrantia) is a premise or covenant by deed made by the bargainer, for himself and his heirs, to warrant or secure the bargains and his heirs against all men for the enjoying any thing agreed on between them. And be that makes this warranty is called warrantor, by Boston, lib. 2. cap. 19, and 37; and this warranty paffeth from the ferry to the buyer, from the seffor to the seffor, from him that relateth, to him that relieves from an alienation of the lands, and from him to Wh. Sym. part 1. th. F. Footnotes, f. 267, 268. See Glanvill, lib. 3. par tatum. Boston, lib. 5. tract. 4. Britton, cap. 105. and Co. 4. Rep. fol. 11. Note's cafe. Warranty is either real or personal's real, when it is annexed to lands or tenements granted for life, &c. And this is either in deed, as by the word securit, or by the word feud, or by some other amplifications personal, which either reposes the property of the thing told, or the quality of it. Real warranty, in respect of the estate, is either lineal, collateral, or commingling by diffusion, for which see Easom in the first chapter of his Tenures, and Co. lib. 3. Firmae's cafe, fol. 78, Canby, edit. 1747.

A warranty (concerning freeholds and inheritances) is a covenant real annexed to lands or tenements, whereby a man and his heirs are bound to warrant the same, and either upon voucher, or by judgment in a writ of warvanitia charte, to yield other lands and tenements to the value of thefe that shall be evidenced by a former title, or else it may be used by way of rebutter. 1 Inst. 365. 4.

Warranties in their more general divisions are of two kinds, first, a warranty in deed, or an express warranty, which is of a nature, that a man's life is made by deed, which has an express clause of warranty contained in it, as when a coufors, feoffor or lessor, coventies to warrant the land to the coufors, feoffor or leefee. Secondly, a warranty in law, or an implied warranty, which is when it is not expressed by the party, but tacitly made and implied by the law. 1 Inst. 365.

A warranty in deed is either lineal or collateral. A lineal warranty is a covenant real, annexed to the land by him who either was owner of or might have inherited the land, and from whom his heir lineal or collateral might by possibility have claimed the land as heir from him. 1 Inst. 370.

A warranty in law may not only be annexed to freeholds, or inheritances corporeal, which pass by livery, as houses and lands, but also to freeholds or inheritances incorporeal, which lie in grant, as advowsons; and to rents, commons, eftovers and the like, which issue out of lands or tenements: And it may not only be annexed to inheritances in effe, but also to rents, commons, eftovers, &c. newly created. As a man (some fame) may grant a rent, &c. our land for life, in tail, or in fee with warranty, for though there can be no title precedent to the rent, yet there may be a title precedent to the land out of which it issues before the grant of the rent, which rent may be avoided by the recovery of the land, in which case the grantee may help himself by a warrantia charte upon the especial matter. And to a warranty in law may extend to a rent, &c. newly created; and therefore if a rent newly created be granted in exchange for another, the exchange is good, and every exchange implied a warranty in law. And so a rent newly created may be granted for owely of partition. 1 Inst. 360.

If a man sold of rent-fee, illusing out of the manor of Dale, took a wife, and the husband reliefseth to the tenant, and warranteth tenantment per primam. In like wise the wife brings a writ of power of the rent, the tenant shall vouch, for that albeit the release enured by way of extinguishment, yet the warranty extended to it, and by the warranty of the land, all rents, &c. illusing out of the land, that are suspended or discharged at the time of the warranty created, are warranted alfo. 1 Inst. 360.

But a warranty doth not extend to any lease, though it be for many thousand years, or to eftates of tenant by statute flable, or merchant or eftate, or any other chattel, but only to freeholds or inheritances. And this is the reason, that in actions which lice for years may have, a warranty cannot be pleaded in bar as an action of the same nature; 3. 1. 2. or upon the statute of 5 R. 2. and the like. But in such actions, which none but a tenant of the freehold can have, as upon the statute 8 H. 6. 6., or the like, there a warranty may be pleaded in bar. 1 Inst. 389. 4.

A war-
WAR

A warranty may be made upon any kind of conveyance, as upon fines, feoffments, gifts, &c. Also a warranty may be made by a feoffment or reversion made to the tenant of the land, although he who makes the release or confirmation has no right to the land, &c. And yet some have holden, that no warranty can be railed upon a bare release or confirmation, without the presence of the land itself, or transmission of the possession. But the law is otherwise, and a feoffee may be freed of lands in fee, and B. releaseth to him, or confirms his estate in fee with warranty to him, his heirs and assigns, this warranty is good, and both the party and his assignee shall vouch. 1 Inst. 385. a.

The word warranty, or warrant, is the only apt and effectual word to make an express warranty, or a warranty in deed, and therefore this word is used in fines. 1 Inst. 384.

The words defends, or acquits, although they are commonly used in deeds, yet of themselves without the other will not make a warranty. Id. Ibid. Lit. f. 730. 5 Rep. 17. 18. Spencer's cafe.

The words dedi & confeii, or dedi only, in a feoffment make a warranty, when an estate in fee or inheritance paffes by the deed. 1 Inst. 384.

But the word confeii only, or demif & confeii, do not make such a warranty, in the case of a freehold or inheritance. 5 Rep. 18. Spencer's cafe.

And by force of the statute of Bigamia, cap. 6. Dedi is made an express warranty during the life of the feoffor. 1 Inst. 384. 4 Rep. 61. Nisbe's cafe.

If a man by deed warrants land to J. S. and his heirs, and the warrantor does not bind his heirs to the warranties; or does not warrant to J. & S. his heirs, but to J. S. and his assigns, these are good warranties. Dyre 42. 1 Inst. 383.

But if a man makes a feoffment in fee, and warranty to the feoffee only, without naming his heirs, there the warranty is good only for life, because it is taken directly. And yet if the feoffee recovers in value, he shall recover fee-simple, because he loses fee-simple. Dyre 47.

If a man makes a feoffment to one and his heirs, and binds himself and his heirs to warranty against all people, and does not lay with certainty to whom, nor for how long he will warrant, yet the feoffee will have a fee simple in the warranty, as he had in the land: But if the intent of the warranty appears plainly by express words, the warranty shall extend no farther. Id. Ibid.

2. What shall be deemed a good warranty in deed.

A warranty in deed, or an express warranty, as has been said, is created only by the world warrant. And it is to be premised, that to every good warranty in deed, in order that it may bar and bind, the following circumstances are requisite. First, that the person that warrants, be a person able; for if an infant makes a feoffment in fee of land, and thereby binds him and his heirs to warrant the land, in this case although the feoffment be only voidable, yet the warranty is void. 1 Inst. 367. 6.

But if a man of full age and an infant make a feoffment in fee with warranty, this warranty is not void in part, and for that reason, if the feoffee for the whole against the man of full age, and void as to the infant. Id. Ibid.

Secondly, that the warranty be made by deed in writing; for if a man makes a feoffment by word, and by word binds him and his heirs to warrant the land; this is not a good warranty. So if a man gives lands to another, or agrees to be bound for him and his heirs to warrant it; this warranty, although the will be in writing, is void, because a will in writing is no deed. 1 Inst. 386.

Thirdly, That there be some eflate to which the warranty is annexed, that may support it; for if one covenants to warrant another, and makes him no e£late, or makes him an eflate that is not good, and coe

WAR

Likewise, if the eflate to which the warranty is annexed is determined, the warranty dependant on it is determined. For if a man make a gift in tail, and warranteth the land to him and his heirs; and afterwards tenant in tail make a feoffment, and death without issue, he shall not rebut the donor in a formond in reverter, because that the eflate to which the warranty is annexed is determined. Id. Ibid.

Fourthly, that the eflate to which the warranty is annexed, is such an estate as the grantor is able to support it, and therefore that it be a lease for life at the least: for if one makes a lease for years of land, and binds himself and his heirs to warrant the land; this is no good warranty, neither will it have the effect of a warranty; but this may amount to a covenant, on which an action of covenant may be brought. 1 Inst. 378. 5 Rep. 17. Spencer's cafe.

Fifthly, that the warranty depends upon him that is heir of the whole body by the common law to him that made the warranty, and not upon another; for if tenant in tail in borough-english discontinues the tail, and has issue two sons, and the uncle relieves to the discontinue with warranty, and dies; this is no good warranty to bind the younger fon. 1 Inst. 12. Lit. fett. 735.

So if in this cafe tenant in tail discontinues the tail with man and wife, &c. having two sons, and dies feoffed of other lands in the tail, and through fee simple, the value of the land in tail; the younger son is not barred by this warranty. 1 Inst. 12. Lit. fett. 735.

So if one gives his land to the eldest son and the heirs male of his body, the remainder to the second son, &c. and the eldest aliens with warranty, having issue a daughter and dies; this is not a good warranty to bar the second son. Lit. fett. 178.

So if tenant in tail has issue two daughters by divers venters, and dies, and they enter, and a stranger diffiues them, and one of them relieves all her right, and binds her and her heirs to warrant it; in this case the warranty is not good to bar the other, because they are of half blood only, and the one cannot be heir to the other according to the course of the common law. Lit. 737.

So if two brothers be by demi-venters, and the eldest relieves with warranty to the difflcer of the uncle, and dies without issue; this is no good warranty to bar the younger brothers; for a warranty, it has been said, must depend upon him that is heir at the common law to him that made it. 1 Inst. 387.

Sixthly, it is necessary that he that is heir do continue to be so, and that neither the defcent of the title nor the warranty be interrruped, for if one binds him and his heirs to the warranty, and after is attainted of treason or felony, and dies; this warranty does not bind his heir. Lit. fett. 745.

Seventhly, that the eflate of freehold that is to be barred be put to a right before or at the time of the warranty made, and that he to whom the warranty does defend have then but a right to the land; for a warranty will not bar an eflate of freehold or inheritance in aff, in inquisition, in reversion or remainder, that is not displaced and put to a right before or at the time of the warranty made, though after at the time of the descent of the warranty, the eflate of freehold or inheritance be displaced and devolved. 10 Rep. 96. Seymour's cafe.

And therefore, if there be a father and son, and the son be the eldest, and the father, has a right of inheritance, is a tenant in tail, and makes the father the eldest, for the remainder of the land of the father, and the father makes a feoffment in fee with warranty, and dies; this shall not bar the fon of the rent, common, &c. Ibid.

And although the son, after the feoffment with warranty, and the death of the father, had been dissifed, and so being out of possession, the warranty had defended upon him, yet this warranty shall not bind him. Id. Ibid.
WAR

Sir, if my collateral ancestor relieves my tenant for life with warranty, and dies, and this warranty descends upon me, this shall not bind my reverion or remainder. Id. ibid.

But if in the case before the fon be delivered of the rent, &c., and affirms himself to be delivered by the bringing in of his affize, (for otherwise he shall not be rated to be out of possession of a rent, or the like) and after the father relieves with warranty and dies, in this case the collateral warranty shall bar and bind the fon of his rent, &c. Id. ibid.

And if the left cafe my tenant for life be delivered, and my ancestor related to the defeer with warranty, and dies; this is a good warranty to bind and bar me. Id. ibid.

Eighthly, that the warranty does not take effect in the life-time of the ancestor, and that he is bound by it; for the heir shall never be bound by an express warranty, but where the ancestor was bound by the fame warranty, and therefore a warranty made by will is void. Lit. 734.

Ninthly, that the heir claim in the same right that the ancestor does; for if one be a successor only in case of a corporation, he shall not be bound by the warranty of his ancestor. Hence it is ag'in v. Newbery Wha Mr, etc., 27 R. 323.

Tenthly, that the heir that is to be barred by the warranty be of full age at the fall of the warranty; for if the ancestor makes a feoffment, or a release with warranty, and the heir at this time be within age, and after he dies, and the warranty defends upon him within age, this warranty shall not bind him: But if he become of age after the warranty of the ancestor, and before his death; in this case the warranty may bar him; therefore he must take care not to suffer a defcent, after his full age, before his entry. 1 Rep. 140. & Chubb's cafe.

3. What shall be deemed a good warranty in law.

Warranties in law are so called, because in judgment of law, they amount to a warranty without the use of the word warrant. Thus the words deal & censess, or deal only in a feoffment, make a good warranty in law, to the feoffee and his heirs during the life of the sefessor. 1 Inf. 384.

But the word censess only in a fine or feoffment, does not make a warranty in law. A warranty in law may be good in its creation, albeit it be without deed; for if a man by his own will and testament devises lands to another man for life, or in tail, rendering rent; to this estate there is a warranty in law annexed. 1 Inf. 386.

And albeit there be an express warranty in the deed, yet this does not take away the implied warranty of the law. 1 Inf. 385.

Every partition and exchange implies it, in a special warranty in law. 1 Inf. 102. 384.

If one makes a gift in tail, or lease for life of land, by deed or without deed, referring a rent, or of a rent-service by deed; in these cases there is annexed an implied warranty against the donor or lessor, his heirs and assigns. 1 Inf. 334.

So when donor is allsigned to a woman, there is a warranty in law included, which is that the tenant in dower being impeached, shall vouch and recover in value a third part thereof she is dowerable. 1 Inf. 384.

And this warranty in law is of the nature of a lineal warranty, and shall bind as a lineal warranty only, for such a term as is annexed to the collateral title. 1 Inf. 384.

And hence it is, that this warranty and affists in some cafes is a good bar; as if a tenant in tail exchanges for other lands which are descended to the ifuue, and he has accepted of them, or if not, that other lands are defended to him. Id. ibid.

But if tenant in tail of lands make a gift in tail, or lease for life, rendering rent, and dies; this is no bar. And yet if other affists in fee-simple defends, this warranty in law and affists is a good bar. Id. ibid. See 5 Brev. Abr. tis. Warrant.
The statute of Marlebridge, 52 H. 8. c. 1., inserted in 1.2. 2.3. 2.4. 2.5., states that farmers, during their term, shall not make waste, fale, nor exiue, of house, woods and men, nor of any thing belonging to the tenants that they have to farm, without special licence had by writing of covenant, making mention that they may do it; which thing if they do, and thereof be convicted, they shall fulle fall damage, and shall be punished by amerciament grievously.

This act provided remedy for waste done by leasee for life, or leyse for years, and it is the first statute that gave remedy in such cases: for the rule of the Register is that there are five manner of writes for waste, viz.: two at the common law, as for waste done by tenant by tenement his bane or by tenant by statute, or by tenant by statute or special, as against tenant for life, tenant for years, and tenant by the curtesy.

This statute is a penal law, and yet because it is a remedial law, it has been interpreted by equity. Arg. 10 M. de Bed. 281. In case of Hammond v. Webb.

Farmers] Here farmers do comprehend all such as hold by lease for life or lives, or for years, by deed or without deed. 3 P. 5. and it has been resolved as a point that it should extend to strangers, Arg. 10 M. de Bed. 281. In case of Hammond v. Webb.

Altho’ the Register says sient that per statuum de Marlebridge, cap. 23. data factum autem prohibito vestri vestri tenantem annullat, which is true; yet the flat extends to farmers for life also, but this act extended not to tenant by the curtesy, for he is not a farmer, but if a lease be made for life or years, he is a farmer tho’ no rent be reserved. 2 Iyi. 145.

Shall not make waste] By these words they are prohibited to suffer waste, for it has been resolved that this act extends to waste emitting, tho’ the word is fictitious, which literally imports actio waste. Arg. 10 M. de Bed. 281. In case of Hammond v. Webb.

Nor of any thing] Houset, woods, and men were before particularly named, and their words do comprehend lands and tenant to farm. 2 Iyi. 145.

Also these general words have a further signification, and therefore, if there had been a farmer for life, or years, of a manor, and a tenancy had echeated, this tenancy fo echeated did belong to the tenements, that he held in farm, and therefore this extended to it, and the leffer shall have a writ generally, and apposse a leaf made of the lands echeated by the leffer, and maintain it by the special matter. 2 Iyi. 145.

Special licence by vertue] This grant ought to be by deed, for all waste tends to the disfigurement of the leffer, and therefore no man can claim to be dispunishable of wafes without deed. 2 Iyi. 146.

Likewise this special grant is intended to be obique immission vestri; without impeachment of waste. 2 Iyi. 146.

Told full damage] And this must be understood in such a probation of waste upon this statute as lay upon a tenant in dower at the common law, and single damages were given by this statute against leffe for life, and leffe for years. 2 Iyi. 146.

But waste may be committed not only in houses and lands, but in gardens, orchards, timber-trees, dovecoues, barns, mangers, or other subjets of property, as will be shewn. 1 Iyi. 53. a.
W A S

Weals in trees and woods.

Trees are parcel of the inheritance, and therefore, if a lease stiffeneth his term, and except the trees-terms, it is void; for he cannot except what doth not belong to him by law. 5 Rep. 12. Sanders's cafe.

The leflee, after he has made a lease for life or years, may have the trees, or reasonable coverors out of them, so another and his heirs; and the same shall take effect after the death of the leflee. But such a gift to a stranger is void during the estate for life, because of the particular prejudice which might be done to the leflee. 11 Rep. 48. Lifer's cafe.

If the leflee shall have a particular interest in the trees, but the general interest of the trees doth remain in the leflee: for the leflee shall have the waffe and fruit of the trees, and the shadow for his cattle, &c. But the interest of the body of the tree is in the leflee, as parcel of his inheritance. Therefore if trees are overthrown, by the leflee or any other, or by wind or tempest, or by any other means disjoined from the inheritance, the leflee shall have them in respect of his general ownership.

With respect to timber-terms, such as oak, ash, elm, (which are timber-trees in all places) waffe may be committed in them with the cutting them down, or lopping of them, or doing any act whereby the timber may be destroyed, or whereby the waffe may be taken away. Also in countries where timber is scant, and heches or the like are converted to building for the habitation of man, they are also accounted timber. 1 Iftl. 53. a. 54. a. Thus, waffe may be committed in cutting of heches in Buckinghamshire, because there by the custom of the country it is the left timber.

2 Rolls. Abr. 814.

So waffe may be committed in cutting of birches in Berkshire, because they are the principal trees there for most part. Ibid.

If the tenant cut down timber trees, or such as are accounted timber, as is aforesaid, this is waffe; and if he suffer the young germis to be destroyed, this is a destruction. So it is, if the tenant cut down underwood (as he may by law), yet if he suffer the young germis to be destroyed, or if he flut up the same, this is destruction. 1 Iftl. 53. a.

If leflee or his servants waffe a wood to be open, by which beasts enter and eat the germis, tho' they grow again, yet it is waffe; for after such eating they never will be great trees, but shrubs. 2 Rolls. Abr. 815.

If a termo: cuts down underwood of hazel, Willows, maple, or oak, which is fesonneable, it is not waffe. 2 Rolls. Abr. 817.

If trees are seelisable wood to cut from ten years, it is waffe to cut them down for houfe-boot. Ibid.

But if the ashes are Gros of the age of nine years, and able for great timber, it is waffe to cut them down. Id. ibid.

If oaks are seelisable, and have been used to be cut always at the age of twenty years, it is not waffe to cut them at such age, or under, for in some countries, where there is a great plenty, oaks of such age are but seelisable wood. Id. ibid.

But after the age of twenty-one years, oaks cannot be said to be wood seelisable, and therefore it shall be waffe to cut them down. Id. Ibid.

The cutting down of willows, beech, birch, afo, maple, or the like, flanding in the defence and safeguard of the houfe, is destruction. If there be a quicker fence of white thorn, if the tenant flut it up, or suffer it to be destroyed, this is also destruction: And for all thefe and the like destructions, an afection of waffe lieh. 1 Iftl. 53. a.

The cutting of horn-beans, hazels, willows, fallow, tho' of forty years growth, is no waffe, because these trees would never be timber. Per Meade Jultt. God's 4. pl. 6.

But the leflee covenant, that he will leave the wood at the end of the term as he found it; if the leflee cut down the trees, the leflee shall presently have an afection of covenant: For it is not possible for him to leave the trees at the end of the term. So that the impossibility of refraining the covenant shall give a present afection on a future covenant. But it is otherwise in the case of a houfe; for those, tho' the leflee commit waffe, yet he may repair the waffe done, before the term expires. 5 Rep. 21. Myne's cafe.

The cutting down of trees is justifiable for houfe-boot, hay, broad-hoaves, hedges, &c. &c. 1 Iftl. 53. b. Rep. c. 206. Br. Waffe, 130. By the Common law leflee shall have them, tho' the deed does not express it; but if he takes more than is necessary he shall be punished in waffe. Br. Waffe, pl. 130.

The tenant may take sufficient wood to repair the houfe, the fences, hedges and ditches as he found them, but he cannot make new. 1 Iftl. 53. b.

Cutting of dead wood is no waffe. 1 Iftl. 53.

But converting trees into coals for fuel, where there is sufficient dead wood, is waffe. Id. ibid.

Waffe in digging for gravel, mines, &c. If the tenant digs for gravel, lime, clay, brick, earth or flone, hid in the ground, or for mines of metal or coal, or the like, not being open at the time of the leflee, it is waffe. 1 Iftl. 53. b.

If a man hath land in which there is a mine of coals, or the like, and maketh a leflee of the land, (without mentioning and ordering for the waffe of the mine) for years, the leflee for so many mines as were open at the time of the lease made, may dig and take the profits thereof. But he cannot dig for any new mine that was not open at the time of the lease made, for that would be adjudged waffe. 1 Iftl. 54. b.

Likewife, if there be open mines in the land, and the owner leaves it to another, with the mines in it, he may dig in the open mines, but not in the close mines; but otherwise it would be if there was not any open mine there; for then the leflee might dig for mines, otherwise the grant would take no effect. Id. ibid.

If a leflee dig flate-flone out of the land, it is waffe. And, digging for stone's whiles in a quantum, is waffe, tho' the leflee fill it up again. 2 Rolls. Abr. 816. 66. Molle v. Molle.

Likewise, if he have a leflee of land, in which there was a coal mine, but not open at the time of the leflee; if the leflee open it, and assigns his interef, it is still waffe in the assigner: but where the leflee is of lands; and all mines in it, there he may dig in it. 5 Rep. 12. b. Sanders's cafe.

But if leflee of land, with mines of coals, iron, and flone, digs the coals, iron, and flones, so much as is necessary for him to use without selling, it is not waffe. 2 Rolls. Abr. 817.

If a leflee digs earth, and carries it out of the land, afection of waffe lies. Id. ibid.

If a leflee digs for gravel or clay, for reparation of the houfe, not being open at the time of the leflee, it is not waffe, any more than the cutting of trees for reparation. 1 Iftl. 53. b.

Waffe in gardens, orchards, fifth-pounds, dove-houses, parks, &c. If the tenant cut down or destroy any fruit-trees growing in the garden or orchard, it is waffe: But if such trees grow upon any of the ground, which the tenant holdeth out of the garden or orchard, it is no waffe. 1 Iftl. 53. a.

A hedge also is no waffe. Id. ibid.

Likewise, destruction of saffron heads in a garden, is not waffe. Br. Waffe, pl. 143. cites 10 H. 7. c. 2.

If the tenant of a dove-house, warren, park, vivary, etangues, or such like, takes so many that to much flore is not left as he found it at the time of the demief, it is waffe. 1 Iftl. 53. c. 2. Rep. c. 206.

Likewise if the leflee of a pigeon-house stops the holes, that the pigeons cannot build, it is waffe. 1 Iftl. 53. a.

So likewise, sufferings the pales of a park to decay, whereby the deer are dispersed is waffe, Id. ibid.

Likewise the cloathing the box-root of a box or other, plant in the same, and plant in low ground there, it is waffe. 66. Molle v. Molle.

The breaking a weare is waffe, and fo of the banks of a fifth-pond, so that the water and flill run out. 66. Molle v. Molle.
W A S

Wafle with respect to houses. Wafle may be done in houses, by pulling them down or proflrating them, or by burning them unlawful, but by the fplinters, slates, or other timber of the house are rotten.

1 Isl. 53. a. Default of coverre of an house is wafle, though the timber be flanding. 2 Roll. Abr. 815.

But if the house be uncovered, when the tenant cometh in, it is no wafle in the tenant to pull the fame to fall down. 1 Isl. 53. a.

Though there be no timber growing upon the ground, yet the tenant at his peril must keep the houses from wafte. 1 Isl. 53. a.

If a fellefe raifeth the house, and builds a new house, if it be as long and wide as the other, it is wafle. 2 Roll. Abr. 815.

So if he rebuilds it more large than it was before, it is wafle; for it will be more charge for the leffor to repair it. 1 Isl. 53. a.

But if a fellefe of land makes a new house upon the land where there was not any before, this is not wafle; for it is for the benefit of the leffor. 2 Roll. Abr. 815. But according to lord Coke, if the tenant build a new house, it is wafle; and if he fuffer it to be wafle, it is a new wafle. Yet if the house be proflrated by enemies or the like, without default of the tenant, or was ruined at his coming in, and fall down, the tenant may build the fame again with fuch materials as remain, and with the other timber, which he may take growing on the ground, for his habitation; but he muft not make the house larger than it was. 2 Roll. Abr. 815. 1 Isl. 53. a.

If the house be uncovered by tempeft, the tenant muft in convenient time repair it. 1 Isl. 53. a.

If a fellefe flings down a wall between a parlour and a chamber, by which he makes a parlour more large, it is wafle; it cannot be intended for the benefit of the leffor, nor is it in the power of the fellefe to tranfufe the house.

2 Roll. Abr. 815.

So if a fellefe pulls down a partition between chamber and chamber, it is wafle. Bro. Waflte, 143.

Or if a fellefe pulls down a hall or parlour, and makes a fable of it, it is wafle. 2 Roll. Abr. 815.

If a fellefe pulls down a garret over head, and makes it all one and the fame thing, it is wafle. Id. Ibid.

If a fellefe permits a chamber ftrene in defpite pro defftitu playfratium, per quod prafum maherum deuentium patriminium, & camera illa turpijhima & fadljfima deuentim, aotion of wafle lies for it. Id. Ibid.

So if a fellefe permits the wall to be in decay for default of daubing, per quod maherum deuentium patriminium, aotion of wafle lies for it. Id. Ibid.

Breaking of a pale or of a wall uncovered, is not wafle.

Bro. Waflte, pl. 94.

But breaking of a wall covered with thatch, and of a pale of timber covered, is wafle. Id. Ibid.

Burning the house by negligence or miscarnce, is wafle. 1 Isl. 53. a.

But by the 6 Ann. c. 31. No aotion is to be perfecuted againft any perfon in whose house or chamber, any fire accidentally begins.

If the tenant do or fuffer wafle to be done in his houses, yet if he repair them before any aotion brought, there lieth it only at the hazard against the fellefe, who cannot plead quod non facit volunt, but the special matter. 1 Isl. 53. a.

Wafle in things annexed to the freehold. The removing a poft in a house is wafle. 42 Ed. 3. 6.

So the removing of a door. Id. Ibid. 1 Isl. 53. a.

The breaking of a wall is wafle. Id. Ibid. 42 Ed. 3. 6.

The digging up a furnace annexed to the fractured tenement, and felling it, is wafle. Bro. Waflte, pl. 143.

The removing of a bench is wafle, though annexed by the tenant himself. Bro. Waflte, pl. 143. 1 Isl. 53. a.

If waflenot annexed to the house be taken away, it is wafle. Id. Ibid.

Of tables dormant and fixed in the land, and not to the walls by tenant, and taken off within his term, wafle does not lie; for the house is not impaired by it. Per Kingsmill J. and Grevil Serj. Bro. Waflte, pl. 104.

W A S

Beating down a wooden wall, or fuffering a brick wall to fall, is no wafle, unlefs it be expressly allledged, that the walls were exped or covered. 1 Dyer 198. b. pl. 31. Earl of Bedford v. Smith.

If wafle be affigned in pulling up a plank door and margers of a fable, plaintiff muft fhow that the fame were fixed. Id. Ibid.

If leffes ereeds a partition, he cannot break it down without being liable to the action of wafle for he has joined it to the tenant tenement. 4o. 178. Coxe's cafe.

Shelves are parcel of the house, and not to be taken away; and though it is not fhewed that the shelves were fixed, it ought to be intended that they were fixed. Per Coe. Chief Justice. 2 Biff. 113. Lady St. John v. Piatt.

Pavement is a ftucture, for they use lime to finifh it.

Id. Ibid.

If the tenant fuffers the groundles to wafle, in his default of defence or removing the water from off them, or of dirt or dung or other wafles which lies or hangs upon it, the tenant fhall be charged, for he is bound to keep it in as good cafe as he took it. Ow. 43. Sirchiofcorne v. Hatchman.

2. What wafle shall be deemed execufable, and juftifiable.

It may be observed in general, that wafle which ensues from the act of God is execufable: Thus if a house falls by tempeft, the tenant fhall be execufed in aition of wafle; but if it be uncovered by tempeft, and stands, there, if the tenant has fufficient timber to repair it, and does not, the leffor, if the leafe be made on condition of re-entry for wafle, may re-enter, but not immediately upon the tempeft, for it is no wafle till the tenant fuffers it to be fo long unperpared, that the timber be rotted, and then it is wafle. Per Hell. Br. Cond. pl. 40.

Likewise, if a house be abated by lightning, or thrown down by a great wind, or by fall of wafle, 1 Isl. 53. a.

So if apple-trees are torn up by a great wind, if leffee afterwards cuts them, it is not wafle. Bro. Waflte, pl. 39.

If the banks are well repaired by the leffor, and the water notwithftanding subverts them, and surrounds his meadow, by which it is become rough, it is not wafle. 2 Roll. Abr. 820. Contra. 20 H. 6. c. 1. k.

The leffor cannot give trees during the tenant's leafe. But if he grants them to a stranger, and commands the tenant to cut and deliver them, who does it, this fhall excufe him in an aition of wafle. And yet the tenant was not committed to obey and execute this command. Per Dole, 828. 13.

Tenant in tail may commit wafle in houses as well as in all other parts of the eftate, notwithstanding any re-ftraint to the contrary, and no inflance can be fhewn, where a tenant in tail has been refrained from committing wafle by injunction of the court of chancery. Coel. Temp. Id. Tab. 16. Glemerey v. Bifuller.

If tenant in tail grants all his eftate, his grantee is diufpofable of wafle; fo fuch grantee's grantee is also diufpofable; Per Clerk J. 3 Le. 121. pl. 172. Aione.

If a man devife land to two in tail, and after the one devifee dies without issue, by which the reversion in fee of one moiety reverts to the heir of the donor; but the other devifee is tenant for life of the whole, and after he commits wafle, action of wafle lies againft him by the heir of the donor for the one moiety. 5 Bro. Abru. 849.

But he cannot plead, of wafle does not lie againft tenant in tail after poftibility, for the greatness of the eftate of inheritance which was once in him; and also, at fome fay, be- cause the eftate was not within the flature by the creation.

If lands are given to the husband and wife, and to the heirs of his body, the marriage with the wife, the remainder to the husband and wife, and to the heirs of their two bodies begotten, and the husband dies without issue; the wife fhall not be tenant in tail after poftibility; for the remainder in special tail was utterly void, for that it could 9 11 never never take effect. For so long as the husband should have iuife, it should inherit by force of the general tail; and if the husband die without issue, then the special cannot take effect, inasmuch as the issue which should inherit in the husband, if he should die, shall be begotten by the husband, and to the general, which is larger and greater, hath frustrated the special, which is lefser; and the wife, in that cafe, shall be punished for waffe. 1 Jef. 28. b.

It has been agreed, that tenant for years may cut wood; but it has been doubted, if tenant at will may; but it seems, that as long as tenant at will is not countermanded he may cut feamons wood, &c. Brs. Woffle, pl. 114.

Where a man leaves a wood which confists only of great trees, the leflee cannot cut them. Hibard's Rep. cafe 296.

Nevertheless, if the leflee cuts trees for reparation, and sells them, and after buys them again, and employs them in reparation, yet it is waffe by the cafe. 1 Jef. 53. b.

So if leflee cuts trees, and sells them for money, tho' with the money he repairs the house, yet it is waffe. Id. ibid.

As the cutting of timber-trees for reparation by lefsee, there is no difference whether the lefsee or leflee covenants to repair the houses; for in either cafe it is not waffe, if leflee cuts them. 8o. 3d. pl. 89. Answ.

If a house be proflrated by enemies of the King, or fuch like, without default of the leflee, the leflee may rebuild it again with the fame materials that remain, and may keep it, if, after the time appointed for the lefsee to rebuild it, he mufi not make the house larger than it was. 1 Jef. 53. a.

So if the house was ruinous at the time of the lefsee, and fell within the term, this is not waffe in the tenant. 1 Jef. 53. a. Brs. Woffle, pl. 130.

But the leflee shall not cut trees to make a new house where there was not any at the time of the lefsee. Hb-bart's Rep. cafe 296. So if a lefsee suffers a house to fall for default of coverying, which is waffe, he cannot cut trees to repair the house. Brs. Woffle, pl. 59.

And in general, if the tenant suffer the house to be waffe, he cannot justify the felling of timber to repair it. 1 Jef. 53. b.

If a house be ruinous at the time of the leflee, tho' the leflee is not bound to repair it, yet he may cut trees to repair it. 1 Jef. 54. b.

The tenant may likewife dig for gravel or clay for reparation of the house, tho' the foil was not open when the tenant came; and this is juftifiable as well as cutting of the trees. 1 Jef. 53. b.

So with regard to a flable, if it fall without default of the leflee in the time of the lefsee, the lefsee may take trees of the heir to make a new flable, if it be of necessity. Brs. Woffle, pl. 69.

But if the flable flall in default of the lefsee, in time of the lefsee, he cannot in time of the heir cut trees to make a new flable. Brs. Woffle, pl. 67.

Cutting wood to burn, where the tenant has fufficient hedge wood is waffe. F. N. B. 59. (M.)

Where leflee for years has power to take hedge-boot by affignment, yet he may take it without affignment; for the Surgeon does not take away the power which the law gives him. Dy. 19. pl. 115.

If lefsee accepts his trees in his lefsee, the lefsee flall not have fire-boot, hay-boot, &c. which he should have otherwise; and the property of the trees is in the lefsee himself. 4 Ler. 162. pl. 269. Sir Richard Lebowne's cafe.

Yet it has been faid, that lefsee for years, the trees being excufed, has liberty to take the fhrowds and lop-pings for fire-boot; but if he cuts any tree, it fhall be waffe, as well for the lopping as for the body of the tree. Np. 29. Rich v. Makepeace.

A leflee that has fire-boot to his house in another man's land, cuts wood for that intent to make his bootwood, and the owner of the land takes it away, an action of trover and conversion lies againft him by the te-

If the leflee is bound in a bond of 100 l. and the lef-fee cuts twenty oaks, and sells them, and pays the obliges for his lefsee, yet waffe lies againft him for cutting them down, tho' the money was applied to the ufe and profit of the lefsee. Dyer 36. pl. 38. Melonver v. Spink.

If A. hath common of eftovers in the wood of B. for house-boot, and he cuts down four trees for that purpose, and in the working they prove unfit for the ufe, as for poles of a house, &c. It was held, that A. cannot convert this timber to any other ufe, &c. neither can be fell, but he other fit wood with the money; and he cana bishop, master of an hospital, parish, &c. have an action of wafe done in the time of their predecessors. 1 Inst. 341. a. 1 Inst. 53. b. 356. a.

If a lease be made to A. for life, the remainder to B. for life, remainder to C. in fee; no action of wafe lieth against the first lessor during the estate in the mean remainder, and the second lessor during the estate in the remainder. Other wise if B. had a mean remainder for years, for that would be no impediment, the recovery not destroying the term of years. 5 Rep. 76. 77. 1 Inst. 54. a.

If feeble for years commit wafe, and the years do expire, yet the lessee shall have an action of wafe for treble, and the estate lying vacant within, but if the lessor accepteth of a surrender of a lease after the wafe done, he shall not have his action of wafe. It is said that if a tenant repairs before action brought, he in reversion cannot have an action of wafe; but he cannot plead that he did no wafe, therefore he must plead the special matter. 1 Inst. 285. a. 283. a. 1 Inst. 306. 35. 5 Rep. 119. 2 Cr. 638.

Likewise, by 11 H. 6. c. 5, where tenants for life, or for another's life, or for years, grant over their eftates, and take the profits to their own use, and commit wafe, they in reversion may have an action of wafe against them. 2 Inst. 769.

He in the remainder as well as the reversioner may bring this action, and every privilege of the first lease, mediate or immediate, is within this act. 5 Rep. 77. Pegler's case. 2 Inst. 302.

It has been said, that there are five writs of wafe, to wit, a common law, an act for wafe done by tenant in dower, or by guardian; three by statute, as against tenant for life, tenant for years, and tenant by the curtesy. It has been said, however, that tenant by the curtesy was punishable for wafe by the Common law, for that the law created his eftate as well as that of the tenant in dower; and the law gives this upon the clause to the contrary, viz. 1 Inst. 54. a. 2 Inst. 145. 299. 301. 305.

But on this subject the authorities in the books are very contradictory, as the reader will perceive by attending to the note subjoining to the following clause of the statute of Gloucester, 6 Ed. 1. cap. 5, which enacts, that "A man from henceforth shall have a writ of wafe in the chancery against him that holdeth by law of England, or otherwise for term of life, or for term of years, or a woman in dower."

No action of wafe lay before the statute of Gloucester, but against tenant in dower and guardian, and by the statute of Henry the fifth it is given against tenant by the curtesy, tenant for term of life, and tenant for term of years. Br. Wafes, pl. 88. Lord Coke says, a reason is required, (that seeing as well the eftate of the tenant by the curtesy, as the tenant in dower are created by act in law,) wherefore the prohibition of wafe did not lie as well against tenant by the curtesy as the tenant in dower, at the Common law; and the reason he assigns is this, for that by having fife the flate of the tenant by the curtesy, is originally created; and yet after that he shall do homage alone in the life of his wife, which proves a larger eftate; and seeing that at the creation of his eftate the person who does the wafe lay not against him after his wife's decease; but in the case of tenant in dower, the person is punishable at the first creation of her eftate, 2 Inst. 145. But 2 Inst. 299. says, that at the Common law, wafe was punishable in three perfons, (viz.) tenant in dower, tenant by the curtesy, and the guardian, but not against tenant for life or tenant for years; and the reason of the diversity was, for that the law created their eftates and interests; and therefore the law gave remedy against them; but tenant for life and years came in by demife and lease of the owner of the land, and therefore he might in his demife provide against the doing of wafe by his lease; and he might institute his lessee, was his negligence and default.

Shall have a writ of wafe? Neither this act, nor the statute of Mesherbidge, doth create new kind of wase, but gives new remedies for old wase, and what is wafe, and what is not, must be determined by the Common law. 2 Inst. 303. 301.

Against him? If two are joint tenants for years or for life, and one of them does wafe, this is the wafe of them both as to the place wase done, notwithstanding the words of the act are, (him that holds), a 2 Inst. 302.

Holds by the law of England? Here tenant by the curtesy is named for two caufes. ib. For that albeit the common opinion was, that an action of wafe did lie against him, yet some doubted of the same in respect to this word, (tenant) in the writ, for that the tenant by the curtesy did not hold of the heir, but of the lord Paramount, before this act, the wafe of ground was thereupon doth recite this statute; 2dly, for that greater penalties were inflicted by this act than were at the Common law. 2 Inst. 301.

Or otherwise for term of life, or for term of years? A lefsee for his own life, or for another man's life, is within the words and meaning of this law, and in this point this act introduces that which was not at the Common law. 2 Inst. 301.

If tenant for life takes husband, the husband does wafe, the wife dies, the husband shall not be punished by this law; for the words of this act be (a man that holds, &c. for life) and the husband held not for life; for he was feigned but in right of his wife, and the eftate was in his wife. 2 Inst. 301.

He in the remainder as well as the reversioner may bring this action, and every privilege of the first lease, mediate or immediate, is within this act. 2 Inst. 302.

Tenant for years of a moieties, 3d or 4th part, pro indivis, is within this act; and so it is of a tenant by the curtesy, or other tenant for life of a moieties, &c. 2 Inst. 302.

Or a woman in dower? This is to be understood of all the five kinds of dowers whereas Littleton speaks, viz. dower at common law, dower by the custum, dower ad usu et occision, dower ad officium patri, dower de la plus rele. and against all these the action of wafe did lie at the Common law. 2 Inst. 303.

If tenant in dower be of a manor, and a copyholder thereof commits wafe, an action of wafe lies against tenant in dower. 2 Inst. 303.

After a man's decease, an occupant for life, because he has the eftate of the lefsee for life, and holds for life, as the statute mentions. 6 Rep. 37. 6. Dean and chapter of Worcester.

If lefsee for life be attainted of treason, by which the lefsee is forfeited to the King, who grants it over to I. S. and he afterwards does commit wafe, he comes in the lefsee, yet action of wafe lies against him. 2 Roll. Ab. 526.

So if a man defiles the tenant for life, and does wafe, yet action of wafe lies against the tenant for term of life; for he may have his remedy over against the defi- lefsee. Br. Wafes, pl. 88.

Likewise, if an eftate be made to A. and his heirs, during the life of B, A. dies, the heir of A. shall be punished in an action of wafe. 1 Inst. 54. a. f(1)

But an action of wafe does not lie against tenant by statute merchant, elegit or rapiile, because it is not an eftate for one years, and the statute mentions those who hold in any manner for life or years. Contra, Fitz. Nar. 58. H. and there said, that in the Register is a writ a gainst him. 6 Rep. 37.

Some books give the reason of it to be, because the courier, if he commits wafe, may have a venire facias of common law, shall be recovered in the debt. Fiz. Nar. 58. b. (K.)

If a man makes a lefsee for years, and puts out the lefsee, and makes a lefsee for life, and the lefsee for years enters upon the lefsee for life, and does wafe, the lefsee for life shall not be punished for it. 2 Inst. 303.

If lefsee for years makes a lefsee of one moiety to A, and of the other moiety to B. and A. does wafe, the actio action shall be against both; for the waste of the one is the waste of the other. Broom, 236. Anq. 2.
An action of waste lies against a devisee, and the writ may not issue at law from the devisor, for it is within equity of the statute. Br. Waife, pl. 132.
No action of waste lies against a guardian in loco parentis, but an account or trespass. 1 Inst. 54. S. P. contra,
F. N. B. 59. (E)
If an eate of lands be made to baron and feme, to have them during the coverture, &c, if they waste, the feoffor shall have writ of waste against them. Lit.
fl. 381.
If feme liffes for life marriages, and the husband does waste, action lies against both. 2 Roll. Abr. 827.
And, if in the above case, the husband dies, action of waste lies against the feme for the waste he committed.
Id. Ibid.
But if tenant in dower marriages, and the husband does waste and dies, the feme shall not be punished for this.
Id. Ibid.
Likewise, if baron and feme are leptees for life, and baron does waste, and dies, the feme shall be punished in waste, if the agrees to the eate. Id. Ibid. 1 Inst. 54.
Kcl. 113.
But if the waves the eate, the shall not be charged.
2 Roll. Abr. 827.
So upon lease for years made to the baron and feme, waifte lies against both. Id. Ibid.
And if baron and feme are joint-lettees for years, and baron does waste, and dies, action of waste lies for this againft the feme. Id. Ibid.
Upon lease for life, to baron and feme, waste lies against both. Id. Ibid.
Likewise, if feme commits waste, and then marries, the action shall be brought against both. Id. Ibid. And the writ may be Quad fierunt wastam, or Quad uer, If baron, feized for life of his wife in right of his wife, does waste, and after the feme dies, no action of waste against the baron in the tenequies, because he was seized only in right of his wife, and the frank-tenement was in the feme. 1 Inst. 54. 5 Rep. 75. b.
But if the baron, poifomed for years in right of the feme, does waste, and after the feme dies, action of waste lies against the baron, because the law gives the term to him. 1 Inst. 54.
In such a fee simple, or fo feoffment in fee to the use of himself and his wife, and to his heirs; there were underwoods on the lands, which were usually cut at 21 years growth;
A. suffered them to grow 25 years, and then died; per tot cur; This shall bind the wife; for where the law limits a time for a tenant for life to fell underwood, if it be not mortified at that time, it shall not be felled by a tenant for life afterwards, but it shall be waife. Godh. 445.
lb. 6. Anon.
Leffe for years of lands bought trees with liberty to cut them down within 80 years. Afterwards the leffe bought the inheritance, and devised to his wife for life, remainder to the plaintiff in fee, and made his wife executioner, and died; the cut down the trees; adjudged that, an action was maintainable; for though the trees were once challets in the leffe, yet by purchasing the inheritance they are again united unto the land. Ow. 49.
Anon.
4. In what cases in general, waste may be restrained by injunction in equity.
If a tenant for life plant wood on the land, which is of so poifous a quality that it destroys the principles of vegetation, without an express power in his lease, where it is usual to have such powers, it may be considered as waste, and the court of chancery may grant an injunction. 5 Barr. Abr. 493. MISS. Rep. Marquis of Pears v. Darrell, Canr.
If there be leffe for life, remainder for life, the reve-raison or remainder in fee, and the leffe in possession waste the lands, though he is not punishable for waste by the Common law, by reason of the mean remainder for life, yet he shall be restrained in chancery, for this is a particular mischief. 3 H. 5. 180. S. P. contra But if such leffe in his lease an express clause of without imposition of waste, he shall not be injoined in equity. 1 Vern. 23.
If A. is tenant for life, remainder to B. for life, remainder to and other fons of B. in tail male, remainder to and other. 1 Inst. 545. S. P. contra
And if any fort brings a bill against A. to stay waste, or A. demurs to this bill, because the plaintiff had no right to the trees, and no one that had the inheritance was party; but the demurrer will be over-ruled, because waste is to the damage of the public, and B. is to take care of the inheritance, and though he be a jointinterf, if he has a particular interef himself, in cafe he comes to the eate.
Dorpe v. Champneys, 1 EG. Coyo. Abr. 450.
On a motion for an injunction to stay a jointreus, who was tenant in tail after possibility, &c. from committing waste, it was urged, that the being jointreus within the 11 H. 7, ought in equity to be restrained from cutting timber, that being part of the inheritance, which, by the statute, he is restrained from aliening; and the court granted an injunction against willful waste in the use of the house, and pulling down houses. Id. Ibid. Cook
v. Whitley.
But where a jointreus, who had a covenant that her jointure should be of such a yearly value, which fell short, though her estate was not without imposition of waste;
but the court would not prohibit her committing waste, so far as to make up the defect of her jointure. But quere, if an action of waste be brought against her, if chancery will injin the action. Id. Ibid. Carew v. Car-creu.
It seems to be a general principle however, that tenant in tail, after possibility, shall be restrained in equity from doing waste by injunction, &c. because the court will not give any man a disparition; & per chan. Finch.
And he took a diversity where a man is not punishable for waste, for the estate of the heir at law, right of the wife in Undeloue's cafe, 24 Car. 1. Ruled by lord Roll, to warrant that disposition, 2 Shaw 69, pl. 53. Abrabai v. Bubb.
A. devised lands, on which timber was growing, to his wife for life, remainder to B. in fee, paying several legacies within a limited time, and in default of payment the remainder to C. he paying the legacies; and on the death of B. by the court gave him leave to cut timber for the payment of the legacies, though it was opposed by the tenant for life and the devisee, he making satisfaction to the widow for breaking the ground by carriage, waste, &c.
So there has been created a term for 500 years, in trust for himself and his wife for life, remainder to trustees for paying of debts and annuities; and by will devolved the reversion thereof to A. for life, without imposition of waste, remainder to his frith and other sons in tail male, with remainder over; and A. being in want, the court gave him leave to cut down timber to the value of 500/;
though the debts and annuities were not paid; the true trees having no power to fell the timber, they being like to have a long continuance, and there being a great deal of decaying timber on the eate. 2 Vern. 218. Affinton v. Leigh & al.
If a tenant for life lease without imposition of waste takes off all restraint from the tenant of doing it; and he may in such cafe pull up, or cut down wood or timber, or dig mines, &c. at his pleasure, and not be liable to any action. Plaxad. 135.
But though the tenant may let the houses be out of repair, and cut down trees, and convert them to his own use, yet where a tenant in feeimple made a lease for years without imposition of waste, it was adjudged that the lessor had still such property, that if he cut and carry away the trees, the lessee could only recover damage in action for the trespass, and not for the trees:
Alfo it hath been held, that tenant for life, without imposition of waste, if he cuts down trees, is only exempt from an action of waste, &c. 11 Rep. 82. 1 Inst.
220. 2 Inst. 146. 6 Rep. 63. Dryr. 184.
And
Bishop of London. In Edward the fifth's time, made a long lease of some woods, which yearly rents he made, if the leafe cut them down, or bring trover for them. Wood's Litt. 574.

In many cases, likewise, the court of chancery will refrain waste though the lease, &r. be made without impeachment of waste. For the court will allow an impeachment of waste, never so intended to allow the destruction of the estate itself, but only to excuse for permissive waste, and therefore such a clause would not give leave to fell or cut down trees ornamental or sheltering of a houfe, much lefs to defroy or demolifh a houfe itself. Thus, a bill was brought by remainder-man to refrain tenant for life, without impeachment of waste, from cutting timber in Weftwood park improper to be felled; and Lord Chancellor granted the injunction to refrain the defendant from cutting timber, which ferved for shelter or ornament to the houfe, or which grew in lines, avenues, or rigging for ornament, and also any other timber in the park, which was not of proper growth to be felled. And his lordship in this cafe declared, that courts of equity in this respect established rules more re- tire than thofe of the Common law; which gave tenant for life, without impeachment of waste, as large a power over the timber, as tenant in fee-fipme, that timber should not be served. And Mr. Justice Chancel- ler was of opinion, that if the tenant for life, having a curiosity in the houfe, to fell and cut down timber, ferved for shelter or ornament to the houfe, and perhaps the only fruit that can rife from the land. They do not carry away the foil, for they dig off the turf, then take away the pet, and lay turf down again: And the tenant for life can no more dig pet to fell, than cut down timber to fell it; and if Lord Chancellor was of opinion, that if he was to give any relief, he must direct an iffee. But the caufe was of too frivolous a nature to maintain the ex- pence. 5 Bro. Abr. 496. MSS Rep. Wilton v. Bagg. 3d March 1742. A bill being brought to redeem a mortgage, on the hearing, an account was decreed, and 240l. reported due; to which report the plaintiff had taken exceptions. The caufe thus standing in court, the Lord Keeper, on a motion, and reading affidavits, that the defendant had burnt fome of the wainscot and committed waste, ordered the defendant to deliver up the property to the plaintiff, who was a pauper, giving security to abide the event of the action. 11 V. 345. 352. Hayton v. Derby. A. tenant for life, remainder to truftees to preserve, &r. remainder to C. the plaintiff in tail, remainder over, with power to A. with consent of truftees, to fell timber, and the money arising to be vefted in lands, &r. to the fame ufe, &r. A. felled timber to the value of 3000l. of which, who never intermedded; and A. had fuffered fome of the tenants hazard. C. by bill prayed an account and injunction. The matter of the rolls faid, that the timber might be confidered under two denominations, to wit, fuch as was thriving and not fit to be felled; and fuch as was unthriving, and what a prudent man and good husband would fell. G. and ordered the biller to take an account, &c. and the value of the former, which was waste, and therefore be- longs to the plaintiff, who is next in remainder of the inheritance, is to go to the plaintiff, and the value of the other is to be laid out according to the fettlement, &r. but as to repairs, the court never interposes in cafe of permissive waste, either to prohibit or give fatisfaction, as it does in cafe of willful waste; and where the court have jurisdiction of the principal, viz. the prohibiting, it does in confequence give relief for waste done, either by way of account, as for timber felled, or by obliging the party to rebuild, &c. as in cafe of houses, &c. and mention Lord Bernard's cafe as to Ruby Caffe. 2 Fern. But as to repairs, it was objectted, that the plaintiff here had no remedy at law by reafon of the mean effate for life to the truftees, between plaintiff's remainder in tail, and the defendant's effate for life, and that therefore equity ought to interpose, &r. and that it was a point of conficnece. 30th of Jan. 1726. 5 MSS. Rep. Mich. vac. 1733. Coventllen v. Lord Grenen. A lord of a manor may bring a bill for an account of our dag, or timber cut by the defendant's tenant. Thus, A customary tenant of lands, in which was a copper mine, that never had been opened, opened the fame, and dug out and sold great quantities of oar, and died; and his heir continued digging and disposing of great quantities out of the fame mine. The lord of the manor brought a bill

Vol. II. No. 135.

5. What relief may be given in equity, in cases of waste. A bill was brought to refrain tenant in dower from getting peat; Lord Chancellor dismissed it with costs, as it appeared to be vexatious, the pet the fold not being above the value of 10d. But herein it was faid, that digging pet is in many places the ordinary bot, and perhaps the only fruit that can rife from the land. They do not carry away the foil, for they dig off the turf, then take away the pet, and lay turf down again: And the tenant for life can no more dig pet to fell, than cut down timber to fell it; and if Lord Chancellor was of opinion, that if he was to give any relief, he must direct an iffee. But the caufe was of too frivolous a nature to maintain the ex- pence. 5 Bro. Abr. 496. MSS Rep. Wilton v. Bagg. 3d March 1742. A bill being brought to redeem a mortgage, on the hearing, an account was decreed, and 240l. reported due; to which report the plaintiff had taken exceptions. The caufe thus standing in court, the Lord Keeper, on a motion, and reading affidavits, that the defendant had burnt fome of the wainscot and committed waste, ordered the defendant to deliver up the property to the plaintiff, who was a pauper, giving security to abide the event of the action. 11 V. 345. 352. Hayton v. Derby. A. tenant for life, remainder to truftees to preserve, &r. remainder to C. the plaintiff in tail, remainder over, with power to A. with consent of truftees, to fell timber, and the money arising to be vefted in lands, &r. to the fame ufe, &r. A. felled timber to the value of 3000l. of which, who never intermedded; and A. had fuffered fome of the tenants hazard. C. by bill prayed an account and injunction. The matter of the rolls faid, that the timber might be confidered under two denominations, to wit, fuch as was thriving and not fit to be felled; and fuch as was unthriving, and what a prudent man and good husband would fell. G. and ordered the biller to take an account, &c. and the value of the former, which was waste, and therefore be- longs to the plaintiff, who is next in remainder of the inheritance, is to go to the plaintiff, and the value of the other is to be laid out according to the fettlement, &r. but as to repairs, the court never interposes in cafe of permissive waste, either to prohibit or give fatisfaction, as it does in cafe of willful waste; and where the court have jurisdiction of the principal, viz. the prohibiting, it does in confequence give relief for waste done, either by way of account, as for timber felled, or by obliging the party to rebuild, &c. as in cafe of houses, &c. and mention Lord Bernard's cafe as to Ruby Caffe. 2 Fern. But as to repairs, it was objectted, that the plaintiff here had no remedy at law by reafon of the mean effate for life to the truftees, between plaintiff's remainder in tail, and the defendant's effate for life, and that therefore equity ought to interpose, &r. and that it was a point of conficnece. 30th of Jan. 1726. 5 MSS. Rep. Mich. vac. 1733. Coventllen v. Lord Grenen. A lord of a manor may bring a bill for an account of our dag, or timber cut by the defendant's tenant. Thus, A customary tenant of lands, in which was a copper mine, that never had been opened, opened the fame, and dug out and sold great quantities of oar, and died; and his heir continued digging and disposing of great quantities out of the fame mine. The lord of the manor brought a bill bill in equity against the executor and heir, praying an account of the said oar; and alleged that their common and that the freehold was in the plaintiff as lord of the manor and owner of the foil; and that the manner of pulling the premises, was by surrender into the hands of the lord, to the use of the surrenderee. It was infifted for the defendants, that it did not appear, that the claim of title was to be held "domini fecondum communem focietatem", &c, without which words, it was infifted, that there could be no copious, as had been adjudged in Lord Ch. J. Hol's time. And Lord Chan. Cooper faid it would be a reproach to equity to fay, that where a man has tak en another's property, as oar, or timber, and dispifed of it after his life-time, and dies, there should be no remedy for Converting a boughwood into tenements of a greater value, is waft, notwithstanding the melhoration, by rea-of the alteration of the nature of the thing and of the evidence; and fo refolved on a trial before Hale, Ch.

J. and the jury gave the verdict accordingly, and 100 marks fingle damages, which being trebled, amounted to 200l. which the Chancellor compelled Coke to take.

Leflie for 500 years, of land of about 200 l a year, built feverall houses, and thereby improved it to the value of 200l. a year, and quietly enjoyed the fame for 20 years and more, and then an action of waft was brought for pulling down a brick wall, and cutting down fruit trees, and digging gravel for laying the foundation of the houses built on the faid ground. He brought a bill fettling out, that fuch building could not be accounted any waft, but rather a melhoration and improvement of the land. The defendant pleaded the ftrate by which provifion is made for bringing actions of waft. But the court over-ruled the plea, and ordered the defendant to anfwer and to fee the caufe.

An under-tenant of a jointreft commits waft, after carri es, fo as at law the caufe was forfeited, but infifted that he had been forfeited from the flate of 80 l to 60 l per annum, and offered to take a lease of it at that rent for 60 years, and to anfwer the value of the timber on a quantum dan

One fettled in fea of lands in which there were mines, all which were approv'd, by a deed conveyed those lands, and all mines, waters, trees, &c, to trustees and their heirs, to the ufe of the grantor for life, (who foon after died) remainder to the ufe of A, for life, remainder to his firft, &c. that in tall male feuually, remainder to B. for life, remainder to his firft, &c, for 35 years, after his death, commence feuually, remainder to his two fitters C. and D. and the heirs of their bodies, remainder to the grantor in fee. A. and B. had no fons, and C. one of the fitters died without issue, by which the heir of the grantor as to one moiety of the premis, had the firft etate of inheritance: A. having cut down timber and fold it, and threatened to open the mines, the heir of the grantor, being fecked of one moiety, right after the death of one of the fitters without issue, brought his bill for an account of the moiety of the timber, and to fay A.'s opening of any mine: And it was adjudged the right to this timber belongs to thojes, who at the time of its being fevered from the treehold, were fecked of the firft etate of inheritance, and the property becomes veckd in their a. P. Will. 249. pl. 124. Wild v. Benv.

A bill was brought againft the executors of a jointreft, to have a fatisfied out of fefts for permissive waft upon the jointure of the fettaint, &c. But by Cooper J. the bill mall be dismissed, for here is no covenant that the jointreft shall keep off the waft, when they are not in their entrenchments, drank a health to one another, in the phrase of was-heal: And this waftel or washeal-bowl, was fet at the upper end of the table in religious houes for the ufe of the abbot, who began the health or poemen chartulari to strangers, or to his fraternity. Hence cakes and fine white bread, which they in their waftel-bowl, were called waftel-bread. Matt. Par. 141.

From this was the waftel-bowl, &c. It has been said in equity, that remainder-man for life

(hall), in waft, recover damages in proportion to the first wrong done to the inheritance, and not in proportion only to his own eflate for life. 1 Vern. 138. Brown v. Brown.

A, being tenant for ninety-nine years, if he should fo long live, with trustees to preferve remainder to his firft and other beneficaries, to A. and B, before be killed. The election of A. afterwards brings his bill, for an account and fatisfaction of the timber against B. Per Lord Chan. Plaintiff has no remedy to law either in his own name, or in the name of his trustees. A, if he had not confented to it, should have brought treffps; for tenant for years is confidered as a necessary tenant and remainder for life.

If A, had had an eflate for life, and no limitation to trustees, the plaintiff could have had no remedy; because tenant for life might have barred, or surrendered the whole eflate to the remainder-man: But here the freehold was in the trustees; and the poiffiffion of leiff for years is in law the poiffiffion of the owner of the freehold. The trustees however would not here have maintained waft, because the Common law gave no action of waft, but to the owner of the inheritance; and the fature of Gloucefter gives the right to the fame persons; but the trustees are in no other condition than remainder-man for life. Trustees may bring a bill in equity to fay waft, before the contingent remainder comes in. The caufe of waft, is brought in his bill; the caufe, as to trees actually cut, would have obliged them to have maffenfeit in money, to have been fecured to attend the contingent ufe. Where there is tenant for life or years subject to waft, and timber is blown down, the owner of the firft remainder in tail walled, shall have it; for the Common law considers an eflate in contingence as no caufe: and when the tree is favored the property vefts in somebody. If there be tenant for life, remainder for life, remainder in fee, remainder-man can have no action for waft, because plaintiff must recover the place wafted, which would be in justice to the reminder over; but such a remainder-man of the inheritance after the intervening eflate may have trover for the trees, and if remainder-man for life dies in the life of remainder-man in fee, he may bring waft. 5 Bac. Abr. 498. M.S.S. Rep. Gorib v. Swenn, 26 Geo. 2.

Tho' an injonction is a proper remedy, yet it has never been held that a bill for waft would give no action; it cannot be maintained afterwards: And tho' a recovery was foftered waft then, it was to the ufe of plaintiff and his heirs, which is no new ufe, and ought not to bar waft in equity. It is true,.action of waft in life dies with the person, but the waft will not lie at law, as the perfon committed to the bar is dead, yet he may have recovery at the court. It has been held in all eales of fraud, the same day never dies with the perfon, but relief may be had against the executor out of fefts; and this court will follow the fefts of the party liable to the demands; and collusion in this court is the fame as fraud. Decreed a fatisfaction to be made to the plaintiff for the value of the timber, but no further remand to fee of the eftate; and would not give any inferest, as that would be carrying it too far. 5 Bac. Abr. 499. For more learning on this subjett, fee 5 Bac. Abr. and 22 Vin. Abr. tit. Wafle.

Wafle-bowl. (from) the Six Wafle-heal, &c. i. health be to you) A large cup or bowl, wherein the Saxons, at their entertainments, drank a health to one another, in the phrase of was-heal: And this waftel or washeal-bowl, was set at the upper end of the table in religious houes for the ufe of the abbot, who began the health or poemen chartulari to strangers, or to his fraternity. Hence cakes and fine white bread, which they in their waftel-bowl, were called waftel-bread. Matt. Par. 141.
Persons aggrieved by affidavits for watch and ward may appeal to the Mayor, &c. 11 Geo. 1, c. 158, s. 12.

Watches, made by artificers, are to have the makers names, &c. under the penalty of 201. Stat. 3d & 4th W. 3, c. 28. See Clocks and Watches.

Watches, In which are included navigable rivers and streams; for the statutes relating thereto, see His Maj.

Water-bailiff. An officer in port-towns, for searching of ships. Alfo in London, there is a water-bailiff who hath the supervising and searching of fish brought thither; and the gathering of the toll arising from the Thames; and he attends on the Lord Mayor, having the principal inquiring the gullets at his table, and arraigns men for debt, or other breaches of criminal matters upon the river Thames. 28 H. 6, c. 5.

Water-courts. A water-courts does not begin by prefirmation, nor yet by affim, but begins ex jure naturæ having taken this course naturally, and cannot be arrested. Per Whitch. 3 B. Jefr. 340, in cafe of Sury v. Pigott.

If one had ancient ponds, which were replenished by channels out of a river, he cannot change the channels, if any prejudice accrue by it to another. Per Car. Hæ. 52. Mich. 3 Car. B. R. Duncom v. Randall. 33 Ed. 3, 467, that the 15th of May of W. 4, & M. he was poiffessed of a little from which a course of water per e grunt the garden of the defendant curvve deebt & debt, &c. The court gave judgment for the plaintiff; but an exception being taken because he does not say that the water ever ran from the house, or that he was poiffessed of it, but only that he was debited for it, the court ordered it to be put into the paper again; & after this being a poiffessory action it was held to be well enough. Slin. 316. Poil. 4 W. & M. in B. R. Jacobin v. Savage.

In cafe the plaintiff declared, that he was poiffessed of an ancient poiffessory in Com. 3, and that a certain water-course at D. courrue was suxue debt in jubinum tem, and as often as the well overflowed ran into the plaintiffs house for his necessary use, and that the defendant dug the ground so near the well and placed a cifer there, fo that the water was diverted and did not over-foem from such a day, whereby the plaintiff lost his necefary water. After verdict for the plaintiff it was moved, 1st. That there was no terminus a quo; 2dly. That that is not averred that it used to overflow. 3dly. Neither is there a sufficient diversion alleged; but refolved that it is not necessary to allege a terminus a quo, and that the other informalities are cured by verdict; and judgment for the defendant. Cline. 31. Mich. 3d & 4th W. & M. in B. R. Pickman v. Tripl. Slin. 380. 3d Ed. 3. C. accordingly; and as to the first objection of the want of a terminus a quo it is not necessary in this cafe, he having flown, that the stream was used to run to the well, and he having diverted it when it was at the well, this is a tort, and it is not material from whence it comes; to which it was said at the bar, that the terminus was neccessary, otherwise the jury could not know that there was such a current, if it be not flown; but per Car. This ought to have been in proof, but it is not material after a verdict. And as to the 2d it was held, that a terminus a quo is sufficient; and as to the 3d, that no act of diversion is alleged, for it is not sufficient to say that he had diverted the current, but he ought to have flown an act which was the caufe of the diversion, which the court might adjudge a sufficient caufe; fed non allocatus; and after it was adjudge for the plaintiff, and that the court might adjudge after a verdict, tho' it might have been in a better manner for it was not alleged that the water had used to run from the well to his house to certainly as it might have been; but all these things shall be intended to be proved upon evidence, and told by the verdict. Slin. 380. 3d Ed. 3. Mich. 4 W. & M. in B. R. Pickman v. Tripl.

In case for diverting a water-course which the plaintiff had to a mill, he counted that the defendant intending to deprive him of the profit of the fald mill did divert the water ab antiquo curiu fis, per good he could not male pro fis, &c. after verdit it was moved, that he dived the water from the mill, but from its ancient, as, for good, &c. and that male pro fis; but the plaintiff had his judgment; and they held, that the word (mole) being inefible, no damages could be given for it, and that the declaration had been good if that part had been left out. 5 Mal. 226, Puff. &b. 11. &c. 9.
B. R. Richards. husband, a wedded bondslave, &c.) and Eddian to pray or defere, and rippa to repent or now. As if a covenant of the rentant to repay for the lord at the time of his bidding or commanding. Paroch. Antiq. 401. Covell, edd. 17.

Wedge, or Effex, (nidos) is a weight of cheese or wool, containing two hundred fifty-five pounds of avoirdupois. A weigb of barley or malt is forty six quarters or forty-eight bushels. A weight of cheese in Effex is three hundred pounds. Et dictam cafe ful de Herting, printer namem peperunt ad ecclesiam de A. Mon. Angl. 3 Par. f. 80 b. Where Pefo seems to be used for a weighth. Coke's 12 Rep. fol. 17. mentions eighty weights of bay-felt. Covell, edd. 1772.

Weights, pondera. There are two sorts of them in use with us; the one called Troy-weigh, having twelve ounces in the pound, by which all other things are weighed that pay by weight. Geo. Agricola in his learned treatise De Ponderibus & mensuris, p. 399. terms the pound of twelve ounces Libram medicum, and the ounce of sixier ounces Libram cortex, saying thus of them both, Medicis et civilibs habent numeric et praedictum unitatum different. The second seems to be termed, by reason of the more full weight of the penny-ferling, which ought to weigh thirty-two wheat corns of a middle foot; twenty of which pence make an ounce, and twelve such ounces a pound; but fifteen ounces make the merchant's pound. Fleta, lib. 2, cap. 1., 12. To which an ounce left should probably be all one in signification with averdupois, and the other pound called by Fleta trine-weigh, plainly appears to be the same with that we now call Troy weight. Covell, edd. 1757.

There shall be but one measure and weight throughout the realm, M. C. 9 H. 3. c. 35. 14 Ed. 3. f. 1. c. 12. 25 Ed. 3. f. 5. c. 10. 27 Ed. 3. f. 6. c. 10. 12 H. 2. b. 1. c. 15. R. 2. 4. 1. H. 5. c. 10. 8 H. 6. c. 5. 11 H. 7. c. 14. 16 Car. 1. c. 19. 22 Car. 2. c. 8.

Standards of measures shall be sent in bills to the counties, Ed. 14. Ed. 3. b. 1. c. 12. 34 Ed. 3. c. 6. 7 H. 7. c. 4.

A lack of wool to weigh twenty six bome, each bome 14 lb. 14 Ed. 3. b. 1. c. 21. 13 R. 2. b. 1. c. 9.

Commissions for effaying weights and measures prohibited, 18 Ed. 3. b. 2. c. 4. Anofo-wight put out, 25 Ed. 3. b. 5. c. 9. 27 Ed. 3. b. 2. c. 4. 34 Ed. 3. b. 5. 25 Ed. 3. b. 2. c. 12. which though an ounce left should probably be all one in signification with averdupois, and the other pound called by Fleta trine-weigh, plainly appears to be the same with that we now call Troy weight. Covell, edd. 1757.

Every town to have a common balance, 8 H. 6. c. 8. 11 H. 6. c. 8. And to have standards of weights and measures, 7 H. 7. c. 4. 11 H. 7. c. 4. 12 H. 7. c. 4. And weights and measures to be offerd, 11 H. 7. c. 4. Who shall feal measures, where there is no clerk of the market, 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 12. f. 4. Weights and measures to be marked, 31 Geo. 2. c. 17. f. 6. See Measurif, and 22 Vin. Alr. 533.

Weights of Aunfel, mentioned in Stat. 14 Ed. 3. b. 12. f. See also Aunfel-weigh.

Aunfel. (W. & Th. le lacemander, from the Sax. wcotec) Signifies a certain quantity or circuit of ground, Rental. Regal. Mon. der Wy, pag. 31.
...
W I L

A civil suit is also in writing or by word, as a will or testament

The citizens have other divisions of wills and testaments, solemn and solemnly, privileged and unprivileged, whereas the Common law makes no mention, Id. ibid.,

1. Who are capable of making a will or testament?
2. What are the requisites, to constitute a good will?
3. Of wills to pass lands and tenements.
4. In what language a will may be written, and of the circumstances of signing, sealing, attestation and publication.
5. Of republishing of a will, what shall amount to a re-publication, and where a re-publication shall make a de eef good.
6. What shall be a sufficient proof of a will, and in what cases devices, legates and creditors may be admitted to prove a will.
7. Of nuncupative wills.
8. Of the nature and effect of a will or testament and of a codicil; and how wills shall be confirmed.
9. Of recreating a will, and where a will shall be set aside for fraud.

1. Who are capable of making a will or testament.

An infant, until he be of the age of 21 years, can make no will of his lands by virtue of 32 & 33 H. 8. But by special custom in some places, where land is devis able by custom, he may devite it sooner; and of his goods and chattels, if he be a boy, he may make a will at fourteen years of age, and not before; and if a maid, at twelve years of age, and not before: And then they may do it without and against the consent of their tutor, father, or guardian. 32 H. 8. c. 1. 34 H. 8. c. 5. Swink, part 11, sect. 2.

If he or she hath attained to the last day of 14 or 12 years, the testament by him or her in the very last day of their several ages asforesaid, is as good and lawful, as if the same day were already then expired. Ibid.

Likewise, if after they have accomplished these years of 14 or 12, he or she do expressly approve the testament made in their minority, the same by the new will and declaration is made strong and effectual. Swink, part 11, sect. 2.

And yet some say an infant cannot make a will of his goods and chattels until he be of 18 years age. 1 Inst. 89. 6.

It has however been agreed in equity, that a female may make a will at 12 years of age of a personal estate, and a male at 17 years of age or 15, if he be a person of discretion. 2 Vern. 469.

A feme covert cannot make a will of her lands and goods, except it be in some special cases: For of her lands she can make no will with or without her husband's consent, flat 32 & 33 H. 8. C. 4 Rep. 51. Br. Testa ment, 13. But of the goods and chattels she has, as ex cutrix to any other, the may make an executor without her husband's consent; for if she do not so, the administration of them must be granted to the next a-kin to the deceased testatrix, and shall not go to the husband. 12 H. 7. c. 24. Perk. sect. 592. Fitz. Exc. 40.

But even of them she can make no devise with or without her husband's leave, for they are not deviseable; and if she devises them, the devise is void. Plowd. 526.

Various things due to the wife, whereas she was not partecipate during the marriage, as things in action, and the like, she may make her will, at least the may make her husband executor of her paraphernalia, viz, her necessary wearing apparel, being that which is fit for one of her rank. Some say, she may make a will without her husband's leave, others doubt of this; however all agree, that she, and not his executor, shall have this after her husband's death; and that the husband cannot give it away from her, and of the goods and chattels her hus band has either by her or otherwise, she may not make a will without the licence and consent of her husband first had and thereupon made, and is for her own, to make a will of his goods, and make him her executor if she will. And it is said also, that if she does make a will of his goods in truth without his leave and consent, and after her death he suffers the will to be proved, and de livers the goods accordingly, in this case the testament is good; and yet if the husband gives the wife leave to make a will of his goods, and the does so, he may revoke the same at any time in her lifetime, or after her death, before the will is proved. But a woman after a contract with any man, before the marriage, may make a will as well as any other, and is not at all disabled hereby. 12 Ed. 4. 41. Perk. sect. 501. Fitz. Exc. 26. 109. Bras. Tyte. 11.

Likewise, a wife, whose husband is banished by act of parliament for life, may make a will as a feme fol. 2 Vern. 104.

A mad or lunatick person, during the time of his in fancy, may not make a will of lands or goods; but such a one as hath his lucida intervalla, clear or calm intermiffion, may, during the time of such quietness and freedom of mind, make his will, and it will be good; Swink. 11. p. 3.

So also, an idiot, i.e. such as can or cannot number twenty, or tell what age he is, or the like, cannot make a will or dispose of his lands or goods; and altho' he make a wife, reasonable, and fenible will, yet it is void; But such a one as is of a mean understanding only, that has graffum cogniz, and is of the middle sort, between a wise man and a fool, is not prohibited to make a will. Id. part 11. p. 5.

An old man likewise, who, by reason of his great age, is childish again, or so forgetful that he forgets his own name, cannot make a will, for a will made by such an one is void. Id. Bid. part. 11. sect. 1. 6 Rep. 23. Mar quis of Winchester's cafe.

So also it for a drunken man, who is so excessively drunk that he is deprived of the use of his reason and under standing, during that time may not make a will, for it is requisite that when the testator makes his will, that he be of sound and perfect memory, i.e. that he have a competent memory and understanding to dispose of his estate with reason. Swink, part 11. p. 1. and fet. 6.

A person of both sexes and both nature, cannot make a will; but a man who is so by accident, may by writing or signs make a will; and so may a man who is deaf or dumb by nature or accident. Id. part 11. sect. 1. & 10.

And so also may a man that is blind. Id. part 1 sect 1. & 11.

But an alien enemy, persons convicted and attainted, and recusants convicted, cannot make a testament of lands or goods. Wood's 335.

Neither may the head, or any of the members of a corporation, make a will of the lands or goods they have in common, for they shall go in feoffment. Fitz. Adv. Tyte. 1. Perk. 458.

A traitor attainted, from the time of the treason com mitted, can make no will of his lands or goods, for they are forfeited to the King: But after the time he has a pardon from the King for his offence, he may make a will of his lands and goods to another man. Swink. part 11. sect. 12. 5 & Ed. 6. c. 11. sect. 6.

A man who is attainted or convicted of felony cannot make a testament of his lands or goods, for they are forfeited to the King; but if a man be only indicted, and dies before the attainted, his will is good for his lands and goods both of his own and his wife's, to the extent he is indicted, and will not ascend upon his arraignment, but stands mute, &c. in this case his lands are not forfeited, and therefore he may make a will of them. Swink. part 11. sect. 13. 11. B.

If a man kill himself, his will as to his goods and chattels is void, but as to his lands is good. Plowd. 161. Hal. v. Petit. A man
A man likewise, who is outlawed in a personal action, cannot make a will of his goods and chattels, so long as the outlawry continues in force, but of lands he may make a will. Swinb. part 11. s. 21.

But note, that however the wills of traitors, aliens, felons, and outlawed persons are void as to the King or Lord that has right to the lands or goods by forfeiture or otherwise, yet their wills are good against the testator himself, and all others but such persons only, Wood, vol. 791. Sib. Adm. part 4. sec. Testament.

And note also, By the civil law the wills of divers others, as excommunicate persons, heretics, usurers, ince cushions, felons, sodomites, libellers, and the like, are void, as to all the heir or devisees of such persons, at least as to their lands, are good by the statute that enable men to devise their lands. Id. ibid.

In short, all persons whatsoever, male or female, old or young, lay or spiritual, at any time before their death, whilst they are able to speak to distinctly, or write so plainly, that another may understand them, and receive that they understand themselves, may make wills of their lands, goods and chattels, and that altho' they have sworn to the contrary; and none are restrained of this liberty, but such as are before named. Id. ibid.

2. What are the requital to constitute a good will.

To constitute a good will it is necessary,

1. That the testator be a person legally capable of making a will.

2. The second thing required to the making of a good testament, is, that there be a person to take, and one that is competent for all gifts by devise, or otherwise, that are good, there must be a donee in ess, and not fife only, and one that shall have capacity to take the thing given, when it is to felf, or the gift shall be void. Sib. Adm. part 4. s. 13. sec. Testa.

And hence it is, that where the devisee of lands or goods, or an executor of a will, doth die before the devilor, or him that makes the will, the devise and will is void, and that neither the heir or executor shall have the thing devised. Id. ibid. Plowd. 345. Brett v. Rigden.

A devisee to the wife for life, and after to the children unpreferred, is good. 1 And. 60. Anmer v. Luddington.

But a devise by a man to his heir and his voife, is void. 2 And. 11. Carvyn v. Ayrste.

One devised his leaves of lands to B, his elefont, except the fum of 140 l. to be paid out for portions for his daughters, and made B his executor; and held a good devise to them after this manner, and that the daughters might fee for it in the ecclesiastical court, or court of equity. Sib. Adm. part 4. s. 13. sec. Testa.

If one devise to the fone in tail, and if he die without fife, to the next of his name; the daughter after married cannot have it, for he is not of his name. Cro. Eliz. 532. Ben v. Smith.

One fied of a manor and lands, devisefh the fame to his fon, and after, by another part of his will, deviseft part of the fame to another of his fons; these devisefs are good, and they shall be jointants. 3 Lev. 11.

3. That the testator, at the time of making his will, have animum testandi i.e. a mind or serious intention to make such a will.

For the testator's mind, not the words of the testator that give life to the will: Since if a man rashly, unadvisedly, incidently, jeftingly or boastingly, and not seriously, writes or says, that such a one shall be his executor, or have all his goods, or that he will give to such a one a such a thing; this is no will, nor to be regarded. And the mind of the testator herein is to be discovered by circumstances, what the testator himself, or others, either visibly or by speech, or self seriously to make his will, or requires witnesses to bear witness of it, shall be deemed in earnest; but if it be by way of discourse only, or somewhat he will do hereafter, or the like, it shall be taken for nothing. Sib. Adm. part 11. s. 3.

That the mind of the testator in making his will be free, and not moved by fear, fraud, or flattery.

For when the testator is moved to make his testament by fear, or circumvented by fraud, or overcome by some immoderate flattery, the fame is void, or at least voidable by exception: and therefore, if a man, by occasion of some present fear or violence, or threatening of future evil, does at the same time, or afterwards by the same motive, make a will, it is void, not only as to him that puts him in fear, but as to all others. Altho' the testator may move his will with an oath; but if the cause of fear be some vain matter, or, being weighty, is removed, and the testator afterwards, when the fear is past, confirms the testament, in this case, perhaps, the will may be good. And if a man, by occasion of some fraud or deceit, be moved to make a will, if the deceit be such as may move the mind of a man or woman, and if the end be evil also, the will is void, or voidable at the least; but if the deceit be light and small, or if it be to a good, as where a man is about to give all his estate to some lewd person, from his wife and children, and they persuade the testator that the lewd fellow is dead, or the like, and thereby procure him to give his estate to them, this is a good will. And one may, by honest intercessions, and modest persuasions, procure another, to make himself or a stranger executor to him, or the like, and this will not hurt the will; also a man may use fair and flattering speeches to move the testator to make his will, and to give the estate of his children to some friendly or some friend or other, and if it be in case where the flatterer flirt threats him, or puts him in fear, or to his flatterer joins fraud and deceit; or where the testator is a person of weak judgment, or under the government of the flatterer, or in danger from him; as when the physician shall persuade his patient under his hand to make his will, and give his estate to himself; or the wife attending on her husband in his sickness shall neglect him, and in the mean time flatter him to give her all: or where the persuader is importunate, and will have no denial: or where there is another testament made before; for in all these cases, the will will be in danger to be avoided. If I be much privy to another man's mind, and he tells me often in his health how he intends to settle his estate, and he being sick, if of my own head, draw a will according to his mind, before declared to me, and bring it to him, and ask him whether this be his will or not; and he considers of it, and then delivers it back to me, and says, yes; this is my will: if I have not a mind so far off, as to be persuaded, or if such a friend, or some friends of a sick man, of his own heads shall make a will, and bring it to a man in extremity of sickness, and read it to him, and ask him, whether this shall be his will, and he says, yes; or if a man be in great extremity, and his friends protect him much, and so write words from him; especially if they think this be not sufficient for them, or for some friends or theirs; in these cases the wills are very fugacious. Id. ibid. part 11. s. 25 and part 7. sect. 2, 3, 4.

5. That the will be made in the form prescribed by law.

3. Of wills to pass lands and tenements.

By the Common law, no lands or tenements (except by particular custom) were devisable by any will or testament, neither could they be transferred from one to another, but by solemn livery of seisin, matter of record or sufficient writing. Because it was prefixed, that the interest of the half tenant, and the extrinsic interest, they would not do in his health; that it proceeded from the diltemper of his mind by the anguish of his disease, or by finer persuasion to which in his sickness he was more subject. 1 Inf. 111. b. 1. Roll. Abr. 608.

The true reason seems to be from the nature of the feudal tenure, and the rule relation that was established between landlord and his tenant. For the duration of after length of time were made to the tenant and his heirs, or the heirs males or females of his body, under certain duties and services, expressly referred, or which the law created; and tho' the word heirs, &c. be words of limitation, and appropriated to measure out the length or continuance of the estate: yet they were always understood That the same shall be written, and thereupon the name is written accordingly in the life-time of the testator;

and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it makes no difference.
Wills 35. A will must be written, and if read or read to him afterwards, it
makes no difference.
and Roll. Salk. Yes Baron yet

5. Of re-publishing a will; and what shall amount to a re-publication, and where a re-publication shall make a devise good.

If a man devises certain lands, and after aliens the land to a stranger, and re-purchases; and after he has his devise, that the said devise shall be his will. This is a new publication, and the land shall pass by the devise. 2 Vern. 330. Hall v. Dunch.

So if a man saying his will was in a box in his study, amounting to a new publication. 2 Vern. 209. Cotton v. Cotton.

If a man sealed of lands, devises all the lands to I. S., and afterwards purchases the manor of D., and afterwards writes his will that D. shall be his executor: yet this is not a new publication, to make the land pass. 2 Roll. 415.

But if after the purchase of the manor of D. he delivers the first will as his will, and says, that it shall be his will, without putting any words thereto: yet this is a new publication to make the lands newly purchased pass. Id., ibid. 344. 377.

So if the devise of lands in D. devises to another, by his will, in writing, all his lands in D. and after purchases other lands in D., and after, one I. S., comes to him, and requests him to give him the buying of the lands last purchased: And he answers him, that he will not, but that his intent was, that those lands should go to the executor (the devise being made executor by the will) as his other lands should: And after his devise causes a codicil to be writ, in which there is a devise of several personal things, as corn and implements of household, and annexes it to his first will: And after dies without other publication; yet this shall be a sufficient publication to make the lands newly purchased pass by the will, for there need no other words in the will than these before; and his intent appears, that it should be his will, by the annexing the codicil. 1 Roll. 618.

But if a man has issue two daughters A. and B., and he devises lands to A. and to the heirs of her body; and A. is married; and afterwards dies, and A. marries, and dies in the life-time of the testator, leaving issue; and after the testator annexes a codicil to his will, and thereby disposes of some part of his personal estate; yet this will not amount to a republication of the will, nor give any title to the issue of A. the testator had declared in his will, that B. had married against his consent, and that what he had given her, was in full of her portion, and in bar of any further part of his real estate. 1 Abr. Ep. Cof. 407. 2 Vern. 722. Hutton v. Simpon.

It has been doubted whether one if devises a lease to his daughter, and afterwards renews the lease, and afterwards adds his codicil to his will, without taking any notice of the lease, whether the renewal of the lease is a revocation, and whether the adding a codicil to his will is a re-publication. 2 Vern. 209.

It has been said, however, that if a codicil be executed after making a will and purchasing lands, it will amount to a republication, and thus pass the land purchased after making the will, and it was so determined by all the Judges in the case of Ackerly and Vernon; which see infra, sed 2. Unless it appears, he had his real estate under consideration. 5 Bac. Abr. 516. MSS. R.P. Gilfyn v. Rogers, in Chanc. Trin. 23 Geo. 2.

A. having given a legacy inter alia to his son Josiph; Josiph had afterwards had another Josiph, and then by a codicil to his will, confirming his will, he took notice, that since the last, he had pleased God to give him another son, and gave him a smaller legacy. Determined, that this was a re-publication of his will, and amounted to a substituting Josiph in the place of the child;
It was determined upon the opinion of all the judges, that if a will be made, and afterwards another will without cancelling the former; and then by an act subsequent to both, the first will be confirmed, the limitations in that will so confirmed, will take place: And also that if there be an order made by the court of chancery, the order appealed from, which was a disaffirmation of the plaintiff's bill in the court of Exchequer in Ireland, was confirmed in favour of lord Anglsey, by the house of lords. 5 Bac. Abr. 517. MS. rep. Phipps v. Anglesea in Dom. prov. June 1751. See the printed copy.

6. What shall be a sufficient proof of a will; and in what cases deponents, legatees and creditors may be admitted to prove a will.

A written will, where it is written with the testator's own hand, proves irrefutable, and therefore needs not the help of witneffes to prove it; and for this cause, if a man's will be found written fair and perfect, with his own hand, after his death, although it be not subscribed with his name, sealed with his seal, or have any witneffes to it, if it be known or can be proved to be his hand, it is sufficient. A will, however, is before the will should have been done; yet the grandifon shall not have the lands, for lands cannot pass by will in writing; and his fon Robert cannot import his grandifon Robert, especially when, by the fame will, he has made a diffifition between fon and grandifon. The judgment to the contrary, given by three Judges, in the case of the ot-her manor of Seventon Piers, is faid by the reporter to have been reversed in B. R. (as he heard) tho' it was argued, that the words of the will were proper enough to pass the lands to the grandifon; for that the addition of grant, only imported a diffition between father and fon while living; but that the father being dead, the lands, and the goods, which were not his own, as if, after his own death, might properly be defribed by the name of fon. 1 Lev. 243. Stroud v. Berger. 1 Pent. 344. 2 Jones 135. Raym. 408.

J. S. By a will dated 17 Jan. 1711, devised to M. his wife 1000 l. per annum for her life, to issue out of his real estate, his capital mortgage at 8l. per cent., to his father of 200 l. per annum for her life; and 1000 l. to L her daughter, for her portion; and after other legacies, he devises the residue of his real and personal estate to A. B. C. D. and their heirs, executors, and administrators, on fult to retain the residue of his perfonal estate in lands of inheritance, and that his truftees should band their, and paid off his real and personal estate to the uses of his will, during his wife's life; and after her decease, if he should die without issue, to the intent that his freehold and leafhold estate, and the lands to be purchased should be fent to the use of the defendant C. for ninety-nine years, then to his and other sons in tail male.

L. S. Purchased several fee-farm rents, affart rents, and other lands and tenements, and then by a codicil, 20 February 1720, being two days before his death, he recites that he made a will, dated 17th Jan. 1711, and then says, 'I hereby ratify and confirm the said will, except in the alterations herein mentioned. The portion to my niece L. shall be made up 6000 l. and what I have given to my fifer and niece, shall be accepted by them in fatisfaction of all they may claim out of my real and personal estate, and on condition they release all, C, to his executors and truftees in my will named; and thus having provided more than 800 l. to my father, all the lands by me purchased since my will, to my truftees and executors in my will named, to the fame ufe, and subject to the fame trusts to which I have mentioned to devife the manor of H. and the bulk of my estate; and I revoke that part of my will, whereby I appoint A. B. and C. three of my truftees, in my will, and before K. and N. to be two of my truftees, and devide my fale estate to them accordingly,' Lord Mansfield, 20th Nov. 1723. decreed, that the will was confirmed by the codicil; that L. S. signing and publishing his codicil in the presence of three witneffes was a re-publication of his will, which he had proved. The testator, having made the said will and codicil, his fee-farm rents, affart rents, and lands, contracted to be purchased, and all his real and personal estate (except the copthold purchased before his will) did well pass. On appeal to the lords, the decree was affirmed. Conroy's rep. 383. Ardery v. Frenell.

VOL. II. NO. 136.
bear affection, as kindred, tenants, servants, and the like. A legatee is reputed a competent witness to prove any other part of the will but his own legacy, or to prove any thing against himself touching his own legacy, but not inchoate; and therefore, where there are two witnesses of a will, wherein either of them have somewhat bequeathed unto himself, this will cannot be sufficiently proved for those legates, but for the rest of the will it may be sufficiently proved. Suinb. part 4. sect. 24. But see Pace.

Where the testator by his will devised lands, and gave to the wife of John Hailes an annuity of 20l. a year to her sole and separate use; and to J. Hailes and his wife each of them a legacy of 10l. and charged his whole real and personal estate with the payment of all his legacies and annuity. J. Hailes was one of the subscribing witnesses to this will, and purporting to the tenant in fee within the lands, tendered and refused; and the question now was on a special verdict, whether this will was good and well attested within the stature of frauds and perjuries? The court were of opinion, that the will was not properly attested, as Hailes was interested, and therefore not a competent witness to prove it. 2 B.R. 152. 3. Lord Limer. Where the testator, by his will, gave in evidence for the plaintiff, the testator's heir at law. 3 B. & Ad. 510. MSS. Reg. Auyt v. Downie, Mich. 1746. B. R.

Witnesses have been examined to prove the testator's intent. 2 Ld. Raym. 1726. Criege & al. v. Gibson & al.

A probate of a will cannot be controverted at Common law. Ld. Raym. 262. Sir Richard Rathe's cafe.

' A recital of a will in a copyhold admission is evidence against any but the heir. 1. 733.

If the probate or registry of a will is evidence to prove a pedigree, 1 Ld. Raym. 365. 2 Ld. Raym. 404. Hite Cl. 1. the register's book is good evidence to prove a will concerning lands. 1 Ed. Raym. 731. 3. St. Leger v. Adams.

One of the subscribing witnesses to the attestation of a will, having an annuity devoted to his wife, was held not to be a credible witness within the statute. 2 Br. 152, 153. Hildyard v. de Lewis & Lewis v. Downie.

Parol evidence is not admitted to contradict the words of a will. 1 Ed. 1261. Linfield v. Stoneham, and Cof Temp. Talbot, Brown v. Sielbe, 240.

A proof of a will cannot be contradicted by a man by confession of his own witnesses. 1 Ld. Raym. 730. Pyle v. Hoare.

Executive may be sued for a legacy where he proves the will, tho' he does not live in that diocese. Id. 847. Edgeworth v. Snailbridge.

But devises, legates, and creditors, are now made competent witnesses to wills, for the act of the 25 Geo. 3. c. 29, which makes devises of any estate in fee or heritable interests, to certain debts and obligations, relating to the attestation of wills and codicils, concerning real estates, in that part of Great Britain called England, and in his Majesty's colonies and plantations in America, it is enacted, That any person shall attest the execution of any will or codicil, which shall be made after the 1st of June 1753, to whom any such devise, legacy, estate, interest, gift or appointment of, or affecting any real or personal estate, other than except charges on lands, tenements, or hereditaments, for payment of any debt or debts, shall be thereby given or made, such devise, &c. or appointment, shall, so far only as concerned such person attending the execution of such will or codicil, or any person claiming under him, be utterly null and void; and such person shall be admitted as a witness to the execution of such will or codicil, within the intent of the said 29 Car. 2. notwithstanding such devise, &c. But such person shall not be admitted as a witness to the execution of any will or codicil made or to be made, any lands, tenements, or hereditaments are or shall be charged with debts; and any creditor whose debt is so charged, hath attested, or shall attest, the execution of such will or codicil, such creditor shall be admitted as a witness to the execution of such will or codicil, within the intent of the said 29th. That if any person hath attested the execution of any will already made, or shall attest the execution of any will, or for the avoiding of doubts upon the said acts of assembly, and laws of the said colonies, as the same ought to have in the construction of, or for the avoiding doubts, upon the said act in England. Provided always, that as to the causes arising in any of the said colonies, no such devise, legacy, or bequest aforesaid, shall be made null and void by virtue of this act, unless the will or codicil whereby by such devise, legacy, or bequest aforesaid shall be, shall be made after March 1, 1753.

A special verdict upon a will of land, dated the 14th of May 1750; and a codicil of the same date, made by Walter Chetwynd late of Grendon, Esq.;

[...]

[...]
then much agitated, "Whether a benefit given to a subscribing witness by the will, either under a general or a particular description, should annul his attestation, as at the time of his subscribings; and make the will wholly and abolutely void, for want of form, as much as if he had never attested at all? This is, though quite a refolv-able question, not to be disinterested, and competent to be examined in support of the will.

This general point is the basis of the objection to these subscribing witnesses. Unless the defendant can support it, he has no ground to stand upon: But though he should succeed in the general position, the application to this case, from time to time, will be made from the particular circumstances, and the kind of benefit objected.

The question does not depend upon the construction of any words of the statute. The statute is silent as to the capacity of the witnesses: it declares no incapacity; it requires no qualification.

The epithet "creditable" has a clear precise meaning.
It is not a term of art appropriated only to legal notions;
but has a signification universally received. It is never used as synonymous to competent. When applied to attestation; it presupposes the evidence given.

After the competence of a witness is decided, the conclusion as to his credibility is: And not before. Persons undoubtedly credible cannot be witnesses, under particular circumstances: Persons manifestly incredible may,
and often are witnesses.

In acts of parliament which direct convictions upon the oaths of witnesses, the epithet "creditable" is asked for; but by no means intended to signify "competent": That is implied in the term "witness." But it is intended, (from abundant caution,) to declare, that though competent witnesses swear positively, their credibility is to be weighed: And if the magistrate thinks the evidence not credible, he ought not to convict.

In law, it is very unnecessary to add the epitheter, here, to subscribing witnesses. And yet, to make the essential felonility of the will depend upon the credibility of the subscribing witnesses, is so absurd; that their credibility has always been held to make no part of the necessary form.

If they all swear that the testator did not execute; if they had, at the time, the worst characters, and had committed the most infamous actions; yet their attestation answers the necessary form: because the testator meant to comply with the law, and might not know them to be bad men.

The third rule or caution in making wills, given at the statute of Butler and Baker's case, 3 Ca. 36 b. is:

"At the time of the will, call credible witnesses to subscribe their names to it." Lord Coke certainly meant "persons of credit and character."

From hence, and from the usage in penal acts directing convictions, I am persuaded that the epithet was inferred here, as a word of course, and misapplied. Had the operation or effect of the word, in this particular case, been attended to, it never could have been inferred because, in the natural and obvious sense, the meaning must be rejected, from the conseqences it would have;
And in any other, it has no meaning at all; for, suppose it to signify "competent," competence is implied in the term "witnesses."

This whole clause, which introduces a positive solen-imity, to be observed, not by the learned only, but by the unlearned; at a time when they are supposed to be without legal advice; in a matter which greatly interests evevy proprietor, the lands where direction should be placed;
the meanest capacity; is so loose, that there is not a single branch of the solemnity defined or described with sufficient certainty to convey the same idea to the greatest capacities.

There have been litigations, and contradicory opinions, upon this very point, at all times, though at or after the refolv, by the. When they are to see the whether they ought to know that he signifi-

as his will? Whether he ought to publish it as his will?

A very little precision, and a very few words, might have prevented all these questions.

In a clause not the most accurate, I can safely believe that the usual epitom "credibal" slipped in, as of course, without attention to the importance of using it on this occasion.

It has been said "That this act of 29 Car. 2. cap. 3. drawn by Lord Chief Justice Hale," but this is scarcely possible, since it was not passed till after his death:
and it was brought in, in the common way; and not under this reference to the foreign judges.

But what fener foe is put upon this word "credible," the statute leaves the question just as it was: For it does not declare who are, or are not credible; or, (if it is supposed to mean competent,) who are competent, or who are incompetent.

Their competence could not be referred to any law then established: Because there was, there could be, some applicable throughout to this new case. The necessity of subscribing witnesses to any instrument, never had existed before, in this country. There never could have arised, in the law of England, a question, "concerning the competence of a witness, at the time of his testifying, whether he was competent at the time of his examination."

The time of his examination could not possibly be the question upon which the validity of the will was to depend. The witnesses might not live to be examined; their incompetence to be examined, might arise long after their wills had been made.

"What objection therefore to the subscribing witnesses, should be sufficient to avoid a will, as informal?" was left to be judged of as toats shoidd arise; by general principles, by analogy to the law of witnesses in other instances, and by arguments drawn from the nature and fin-ness of the thing, with regard to justice, convenience, and the intent of the statute.

When solemn determinations, acquiesced under, had settled precise cafes, and became a rule of property; they ought, for the sake of certainty, to be observed, as if they had originally made a part of the next of the statute.

I will therefore consider the general question, in two views: first, supposing there had been no judicial determination relating to the capacity of subscribing witnesses since the statute; secondly, upon the foot of the judicial determinations that have been since the statute. And thirdly, in the last place, I will consider the particular cafe now in judgment, under all its own circumstances.
I will suppose, (in the last view,) that I can observe that the power of deviating ought to be favoured. It is a natural consequence of property, and the right a man has over his estate. It was a right of the law of the land, before the conquest, and down to about the time of Henry the second. It ceased, consequentially only, by the inroduction of feudal tenures; because, originally, every species of alienation was contrary to that system. So soon as the power of alienation inter vives was indulged, testaments followed, indirectly, as declarations of ues.
The statute of uses accidentally checked this form of deviating.
Therefore the statute of wills was made. The 29 Car.
2. cap. 3. (to which I have referred to the present question,) did not mean to reframe testamental dispositions of land:
The reasons to encourage that power were increased.
The policy of tenures, from whence arose the impediment to wills, was abolished; but had left many confequences remaining, which made testamental dispositions of land more reasonable than they were among the Greeks and Romans, or here before the conquest. The eldest son only is heir, ab intestate. Among collaterals, not all the next of kin, but one often is heir; to the exclusion of many in the same, and many in a nearer degree. Simple contract creditors had no right to be paid their debts.
Most indebted in land could not be traced. Much land was in trust: Where the widow had no right to dower.
In personal estates, the succession ab intestate is subject to deaths, and governed by natural family equity. In real estates, the succession is governed by political confidences of a positive system; Which make the testamentary power often necessary, to enable a man to do justice to his family and his creditors.

The legislature meant only to guard against fraud, by a solemn attestation; which they thought would soon be universally known, and might very easily be compiled with. In theory, this attestation might seem a strong guard, but practice has proved it in practice, but I have swayed many more false wills have been overturned for want of the form, than fraudulent have been prevented by introducing it. I have had a good deal of experience at the delegates; and hardly recollect a case of a forged or fraudulent will, where it has not been solemnly attested.

There should be for the protection of civil rights who are the dead, and some now living, make the same observations.

Suppose the subtering witnessesses honest; how little need they know; they do not know the contents; they need not be together; they need not see the testator sign; (if he acknowledges his hand, it is sufficient;) they need not swear; (if he delivers it as a deed it is sufficient.) For these and many more reasons, it is clear that judges should lean against objections to the formal.

They have always done so, in every construction upon the words of the statute: a fortiori ought they to do so, in raising a confessional system, not prescribed in words. An objection to do so, if that evidence would not, spread a snare, in which many honest wills must unavoidably be intangled; and be no presumptive against a fraud.

At the time this act was made, the law rejected no witness to prove a will; unless, at the time of his examination, his testimony tended to support his own title, and was not suitable to hold it over an interest under it.

In the ecclesiastical court, the probate is conclusive to every body as to every part. If a legatee come to prove it, he intitled himself to his legacy. But if the legacy be contingent, and at the testator's death could not take effect; if he had the fame or a greater interest, though those who may be for a fraud in a will; A relafe, payment, or tender, made him a witness.

In the courts of Common law, where the witness had a charge upon land devized to another, he was jull in the cafe of a personal legatee. If he had as great an interest the other way; if his interest at the testator's death could never take effect; if there was a relafe, (of which several authorities were cited;) and I will add, as by necessary consequence, if there was payment or tender; he was a witness.

Nice objections, of a remote interest, which could not be paid or relased, though they held in other cafes, were not allowed to disqualify a witnes in the cafe of a will: As they are no evidence of the validity of a will; and are a violation of a statute the poor of the parish ever. "Vide 2 Sid. 109. M. 1658. Townsend v. Raw."

Before the statute, no man could, in a court of justice, intitle himself by his own examination, to a devise. So, after the statute, no man should intitle himself, in a court of justice, to a devise, by virtue of his own subscription; which at the time of subscribing, he could not have proved by his examination.

The disability of a witness from interest, is very different from a positive incapacity. If a deed must be acknowledged before a judge or notary public; every other person may be considered a disqualified witness as to it. But objections of interest, are deductions from natural reason, and proceed upon a presumption of too great a bias in the mind of the witness, and the publick utility of rejecting partial testimony.

Premptions stand no longer than till the contrary is proved. The preemption of a bias may be taken off, by shewing the witness has as great, or a greater interest the other way; or that he has given it up. The preemption of publick utility, may be answered, by shewing that it would be very inconvenient, under the particular circumstances, not to receive such testimony. Therefore, great necessity, the course of bungling, and other reasons of expediency, numberless exceptions are allowed to the general rule. The preemption of bias arises as the time of subscribing. But it may be answered,—If part is deviled to a subscribing Witness, the presumption is answered, by shewing he was heir at law; or that the devise is void; or that he has renounced it.

Is there the reason to say that a witness who does not know the contents of a will during the testator's life, and at his death takes no benefit, was biased at the time he subscribed, or can be biased at the time of his examination? During the life of the testator, devices are more preposterous, and there is a greater bias; but still it is a presumption of bias from the partiality, is answered by the fact, when it becomes an interest. His swearing when he is totally disinterested, is conclusive, that the possibility is not to be presumed the corrupt cause of his subscribing.

For the sake of three persons, it is wise and just, to allow a bias from things that are purged; otherwise, many settlements by will must be overthrown to the prejudice of families. It is natural and usual to give legacies to servants, and tokens to friends.—Persons under these descriptions are most likely to be witnesses. Ought such trists to overturn unavoidably the whole deliberate dispositions of the greatest agents? which may be attended often with this family diftrusts, that a man may have given his money to one part of his family, and his land to another: In which case, the will would be good as to the money; and void, as to the land.

If the legislature had said it, that would have been a positive rule. But it is considered for my confirmation, and to guard against fraud. It is not a ground for a legal security, in the case of legates: Because, they may, in another shape, attest the devise which charges the land with their legacies.

It is settled, "That where the land is once charged, (and it is always an auxiliary hand;) with the payment of legacies, by a solemn devise, the legacies may be given, altered, or revoked by a subsequent will unattested." The fraudulent legatee might attest the charge, and get his legacy in a codicil unattested. Let a will be ever so fair, a flip in form is fatal: which is a certain milchfield. But, it is a very great fraud; though it is allowed to be formal, it may be set aside upon evidence and circumstances.

Neither reason, nor policy requires the objection to be carried farther than I have laid it down: agreeable to the law before the statute, and the universal maxim, "Teftis in privatae causa non est adhibendus." But if judicial determinations, acquiesced under, and become a rule of property, since the statute, have extended the incapacity further, they must be adhered to: Which brings me

Secondly, to consider the judicial determinations since the statute.

All determinations agree exactly with these principles. In many instances, the preemption of bias from a legacy, at the time of subscribing, has been allowed to be taken off by a relafe. Authorities in print have been cited, to shew "this was considered as a settled point:" And I verily believe it was so, from the authority of the oldest and most eminent practitioners in H. Finchamer Hall; and therefore I give credit to the didum of Peake in Finer, (See Finer’s Abr. tit. Evidences, page 14. N° 53.) "That it had been solemnly agreed by the judges, that where a person had a legacy given, and did relase it, he was a good witness to prove the validity of the same."

I know that before the case of Myly v. Deynag, a will of a very great ease was liable to the objection; and the heir at law would have contested it: But as it was certain the witneses would be paid, or relase, no opinion that he took, encouraged him to think it worth his while.

Mr. Puzackerly and Sir Thomas Bostle have told me, they took it to be settled; and indeed the number of wills where the objection lay and never was taken, dismiffed it.

There is not a single determination which carries the incapacity further than the rule I have laid down: viz. "That a person who, not for the sake of himself, to a devise, by virtue of his own subscription, which at the time of subscribing he could not have proved by his examination," 9 N. 77 That
That is the case of Hilliard and Jenning. That is the resolution and judgment of the case of Amy v. Dingley. Where the defendant was devisee, subject to an annuity of 20 l. a year to Eliz. the wife of John Hales, for her life, for her separate use: And there did not appear to be any personal estate. Her interest was a charge, in the nature of a legacy, to be paid by the defendant, out of the estate devised to him; and before the value was a truf, and the defendant was her trustee. Upon the validity of the devise to the defendant, her annuity depended. If he succeeded, her title followed of course; for he must take the land, as the testator gave it, subject to the charge and trust: And upon the devise to the defendant being found good, a court of equity must of course, have decreed the trust. So that the was the es glad que traft of the party to the cause; and either way, the judgment would immediately affect her interest.

In matter of evidence, husband and wife are considered as one; and cannot be witneses, the one for the other. The husband cannot be witnesse for his wife, in a question touching her separate estate.

There was no release. There could be no payment or tender, without the interposition of a court of justice; because the value depended upon uncertain fattimation: But no attempt had been there made towards paying, or tendering, whatever was the interest in the annuity. This brought it precifely to the case of Hilliard v. Jenning, because the court of justice, was to support a devise to himself, by virtue of his own subscription; for the cause is the fame, as if the wife had been the witnesse, or the husband the devisee of the annuity.

It is true, that Lord Ch. J. Lee, in delivering his opinion, (which was April 22 1746, Pof. 19 Gen. 2.) argued as if the objection of benefit from the will to the witnesse, at the time of subscribing, could not be an-answered or taken off by any subsequent fact; which he grounded upon the authority of the Law, that no testamentary estate can be transferred by a court of equity, but by decree. This is said "Conditionem testamentum tune infinfore dehenum, cum signari, non mortis tamen." But the sense of this passage was not enough condered.

"Conditionem testamentum" here means the positive capacity of the witnesse, their rank, or quality, as free men, citizens, and senators; there never was a time, in the Roman law, when interest under the will was any objection to subscribing witnesse. To explain this a little farther: The essence of the Roman testament was the appointment of an heir, to reperience the testator. Before the 12 tables, the testamentary heir might be made two ways; in principatu, as Plutarch describes at the siege of Corioli; or in the form of a legislative act, in testamenti colatis.

The 12 tables gave an absolute power to every man, to make the law of his own suffecution; but prescribed no form. As a testament was an alienation of the testator's property and family after his death, the form of manumission per leges et Libram, used in other transfers of property of family, was followed in this: The heir was surpofed to buy, and the testator to sell his succession, and for, and as reparation, to their families. The execution was transferred with all the symbols of a sale, in the preference of the officer who held the balance and of five freemen, citizens of Rome, 14 years of age at least, solemnly required to bear witness.

These ceremonies and symbols were invented before instruments in writing. And this imaginary sale per leges et Libram, was used in alienations, adoptions, and almost every species of change of dominion, or property strictly so called, ("Proprium est quid quis liber mercatur et eiree," and in many other contrats.)

Subsequent laws and usages, especially after testaments came to be in writing, took away the ceremony of the fable, added two witneses more, and preferibed forms of attestation; but left the condition of the wit-esse, the fame; they must be freemen, Roman citigen, adult and liberales. Yet by an equitable construction, general reputation was sufficient: As where the witnesse, whom every body considered as a freeman, really was a slave.

This was the conditio testamenti, and must exist at the time of subscribing; as much as where there is a cufion to surrender into the hands of two copyholds out of country, without a copyhold and its documen-

Though in other cases, the objection of interest, to a witnesse was allowed; it did not incapacitate witnesse to a will.

While the testament per leges et Libram continued, neither the testator, nor heir, or any of the families of either, could be witnesse; because they were supplied the parties to the contract.

When the symbolical fable ceased, and testaments were fubstituted, the the heir himself was a sufficient subscribing witnes. Afterwards, the will was opened, and he knew the contents, he was a suffec-"supporting witnesse: As appears from Cicero for Milvus, speaking of Cyrus (fei. 48.) "Una fui i testamentum fem obligavi cum Clodio; testamentum autem palam faerat, & ilium haereditem & me scripsit."

"Juffinian. Lib. 2. tit. 10. fei. 10. recite, the heir therefore having been allowed to be a witnesse; but forbids it, (to prevent there is being interested, but) "ad

In 1746, Juffinian: The Duke was compiled before the Institutes; but published a month before, in the seventh year of Juffinian.

The proposition "That any kind of interest, at the time of subscribing, could not afterwards be taken off;" and the application of this passage in support of it, was much agitated in Welfington Hall and the whole king-

A gentleman at the bar, purfuing the proposition through all its consequences, hit upon this point.—

"That a charge upon land for payment of debts, would defeat the will, if a firmwriting witnes," was a creditor at the time of subscribing. As soon as it occurred, it was mentioned it had been many such devises: but the question, "Whether the witnesse was a creditor," never had been asked at law; nor by interrogatories in chancery, framed to eflablish or impeach a will.

If the general rule was right, the deduction seemed very plausible. He put this point in issue, in chancery; and examined to it, in behalf of the heir, in several cases. Lord Herfor's will was one of the firft: Tobi was another.

A cafe soon happen which brought the general proposition founng by Lord Ch. J. Lee, under judicial examination. This was the Feb 1746, the cafc of little barry died; having made a will, 15th May 1746, of his whole effate real and personal, charged with debts and legacies; the three subscribing witnesse, as being in his service at his death, had legacies; one, 30 l. a year for life; the other two, peculiar legacies. All three reserved the 12 February 1746.

He had made a former will, on the 20th of December 1744, attested by three disinterested persons; under which, the three subscribing witnesse to the last will would have had the fame legacies.

A bill was brought in chancery, to have the latter will altogether overruled, because the latter will was made and flaking the whole matter. Notwithstanding the will of 1744, which the testator had revoked, (as he thought, effectually,) and might probably have cancelled it, it was a benefit benefit to the witnesses, at the time of subscribing, to have a zealcy under the said will.

Last will and testament, the 5th of Nov. 1748.
And I was of counsel in it.
I had taken the liberty to ask Mr. Justice Dennison,
"Whether the judgment of the court, in the case of Asby v. Dowsing went upon the general proposition." He told me it did not; but upon the particular circumstances.
to him he was not of opinion that an objection of benefit, at the time of subscribing, might not be taken off, by being disinterested, at or after the death.
I mentioned this to the Lord Chancellor, who had got from Lord Ch. J. Lee, a copy of the opinion he delivered afterwards, viz: But, for this, no authority is cited. In the case of Hillard v. Jenning, a devise and devisee was decided to William Hillard. And I am satisfied that Lord Ch. J. Holt took the determination, "That the will might be only void, under the devise to the witnesses. Because Carthew, [p. 514.] who was counsel in the case, and has reported it the most correctly, hints an expression of that kind, viz.
That it was void under the devise of the land to the plaintiff;" and Lord Raymound, in the case of Baugh v.
Holloway, (1 P. Williams 557, 558) says expressly,
"That Lord Ch. J. Holt so determined.
The validity of the will, as to the personal estate, was not before the court, and never could come before the court because that question belonged to another juridication. The case in judgment was of a devise to the witnesses only. Lord Ch. J. Holt might, very properly, throw out something to guard against inferences from their present determination to the case of a devise to a third person.
I looked into the Register book, for that case of Baugh and Holloway; and find the state of it to be this.— Richard Baugh died leaving Eliza, his wife, and two sons, named John and George; having first made his will, dated 11th June 1707, whereby he devolved certain pre-misies to his eldest son George, his heirs and assigns, children or other persons, as was due on bond to Launcelot Baugh, the tesorier's younger brother. And the said tesorier also devolved certain other lands to the said George, with a proviso, that on the said George's attaining 21 and having 1000l. paid him, then all the said premisses should return to his eldest son John. And in case both his said sons should die under 21 unmarried, then the said tesorier devolved the said first mentioned premises to his wife Eliza, her heirs and assigns, charged with the payment of the said 200l. to the said
Launcelot Baugh, and also with the payment of 150l. to the said Launcelot Baugh's children, and devolved the whole payment to his brother Edward Baugh his heirs and assigns. But the tesorier's said sons died without issue, under age: And Elizabeth Baugh possessed and enjoyed the said premisses under the said will, and afterwards died, 20th October 1715, having first made her will,
and devolved the said first mentioned premisses to Catherine Rawlin and Elizabeth Baugh's children, and devolved the payment of her debts, and also subject to the said charge made by her husband's will. Catherine Rawlin entered, and enjoyed the said premisses, and died; having made her will dated 26 May 1716, and devolved the said premisses to Ann Oxen-don and Elizabeth Holloway as trustees in common.
It is of the opinion of the court of Chancery, that the payment of the debts and legacies appointed to be paid thereout by the said Richard Baugh, and also of the debts, &c. of the said Elizabeth unfatished by the said Catherine Rawlin. The said Ann Ox-don and Elizabeth Holloway claimed the said premisses, and as trustees, and also as coheirs at law of the said Eliza.
Baugh and Catherine Rawlin. Launcelot Baugh filed his bill, and claimed as uncle and heir at law of John Baugh the surviving son of his brother Richard Baugh; thereby impeaching his said brother's will.
The order is staled right in 1 P. Will. 558: And on searching the Register book, it could not be found to have come on again. Therefore it is reasonable to think the heir must have been advised to drop it.
Devises of lands differ extremely from wills. They are no appointment of an heir; they create no representation; the devisee does not stand in the place of the defor, as to simple contract debts; and till the statute 3 & 4 W. & M. the devisee was not liable to specially debts, (because he was considered as an allience, and not as the heir); they are conveyances or dispositions mortis causa; and that is the reason why a man cannot devise lands which he shall afterwards acquire.
One devise may be void, (as in the case of this very will;) and the devisee of another good. There is no probate of the whole instrument: Every several devisee must make out his title, in a distinct cause, and de novo, against every new party.
Under legal principles, there is great weight in the dif-tribution said to have been made by Lord Ch. J. Holt; and the authors referred to by Swinburne are strong,
upon the reason and fitness of the thing.
The danger of fraud, from the imagination "That four witnesses might divide the estate amongst them, (viz.
by contriving to attest each for the other,) as to the land devolved to those others; though none of them could be a good witnesses as to the devise to himself;) seems very chimerical. That very contrivance would overturn the will; if it would not, they might as well execute their scheme, by four devises, in four paragraphs, severally attested.
Thirdly,—In the third and last place, I proposed to conside the present case under its own circumstances.
These wills are in the nature of legates; not feveral devises. The presumption of "Interest at the time of subscription" is taken off, at the death, by the principal funds being more than sufficient; It is taken off, before the trial, by the debts being paid.
But the benefit at the time of subscribing was nothing.
It does not appear the principal funds then were deficient, the legacy is a bare possibillity, upon a contingency which contingency never happened.
But further, I think a charge "to pay debts" ought not to incapacitate subscribing witnesses; altho' they wanted and claimed the benefit of it. Every honest man should make that charge in his will: he who omits it, is said to find in his grave.
Fraud cannot be premised, from inferring a clause which would be iniquitous not to put in.
No man would resort to wicked and fraudulent practices, to get his debt charged upon land by the will of his debtor: if he suspected the debtor's circumstances, he would not stay till his death, or trust a revocable fe-curitie.
The presumption of fraud in this case would be a against justice and truth; and the publick inconvenience so great, that hardly a will could stand.
This charge ought to be in every will. The persons attendant upon a dying tesorier, and therefore most commonly renewable, are generally in some degree creditors of the deceased, such as servants, apprentices, &c.
and the disallowing such persons to be witnesses cannot answer any ends of publick utility.
Upon the whole we are of opinion that this will is Nov. 25, 1757. Windam v. Chetwood.
Ejectment for lands in Cambridgehire on the demise of Christopher Asgby, D. D., and Mary his wife. And upon a trial at bar the jury found this special verdict.

That James Thompson, Esq; being feized in fee of the premises in question, and of found mind, signed, sealed and published a paper writing, purporting to be his last will, and was of the service of Parliament which is found in bars works: by this he declares, that he devolves to the defendant the lands in question for life, remainder to his first and every other son and son in tail male, remainder to his daughters as tenants in common, with a reversion in fee in the right heirs of the defiver: Then he charges all his real and personal estate with particular annuities, and joins thereto, as well as claims an annuity of 20l. per Annum to Elizabeth the wife of John Hales for her life, and to her separate use; and he also gives a legacy of 10l. each to John Hales and his wife for mourning.

To this will there are three persons who subscribe their names as witnesses, whereas John Hales is one; and that in their presence, and of no body else, he signed, sealed and published the paper writing as and for his last will; and they three attested the same in his presence, and are all three living. They find the identity of John Hales the legatee and subscriber, and that Elizabeth his wife is still living. To this the defiver died the 28th of August, 1742, was proved, and sealed as aforesaid, and that Miss Asgby (one of the leflefs) is his aunt and heir at law. They find that before and at the time of the trial the defendant made a tender to John Hales of 20l. for his and his wife’s legacies, which he refused to accept, and that those legacies are not discharged. Then they find the entry and demise by the leflefs, &c. fed et unam, &c.

This case was tried three times argued at the bar, and this term the Chief Justice delivered the resolution of the court.

The question upon this special verdict is, Whether in the light Hales and according to the will, he is to be considered as a credible witness within the intent of the statute of frauds? And we are all of opinion he is not.

The right to devise in this case is not a Common law right, it being inconsistent with the notion of a feudal tenure, Wright’s Tenures 174. But it depends upon powers given by statutes, which must all be considered together with the true and substantial rule. The particulars of which are, that it must be in writing, signed, and an attestation of three credible witnesses in the presence of the defiver. These were checks introduced to prevent men from being imposed upon; and certainly meant, that the witnesses (who are to be such as are credibly) should not be such as claim a benefit by the will. Though a will may be read, on proof of all the circumstances by one witness; yet that is upon a supposition, there are two others, who could be allowed to give the same testimony.

Carth. 35. Shaw. 18. 3 Mad. 262. Comb. 174.

The tender would be equal to the payment of the two money legacies, (as it is not) yet the annuity charged upon the estate devised would still suffice; and though it is charged both upon the real and personal estate, and the personal (which is not found to be sufficient) would be the first fund, yet it is for Hales’s advantage to enlarge the fund by taking in the real estate; and we must at law consider the husband as benefited by the annuity, though given to her separate use; for it is his money the moment it is paid into her hands, or if not, it eals him in point of maintenance.

It was objected, that nothing velter till the death of the defiver, and the moment he was possessed of the estate he had no interest. But the answer is, that he was then under the temptation to commit a fraud, and that is what the parliament intended to guard against.

Another way by which it was attempted to be supported, is that it may be void as to the annuity, but good as to the devise to the defendant; which is grounded upon an expression in Carew’s report of the case of Hilliard v. Jennings 514, that the will was void good the devise of lands to the plaintiff. But whoever reads that will from the record will see, that there were no other lands devised, and therefore it is equal to saying it was void as to any devising of lands; and it was proper to confine the invalidity of it to lands, because as to personal estate it was certainly a good will.

Consider what a door this would open to fraud: A man has four estates, and is betot by four, who fraudulently devise, and therefore thereby it is as fair as devising to any of them. And if one is allowed to be a witness for the other three, they thereby establish it for the whole. In 1 St. Rom. 730. it is held, that there must be an ability as to the whole will, and not as to a particular legacy. In the case of a will confuting of several fequests of paper, as 3 Mdd. 260. there cannot be in one fleet, cannot be set up to prove every other fleet.

It was agreed, this man could not be examined; how then is he that credible witness that the statute requires? The true time for his credibility is, the time of his attestation; otherwise a subsequeft infantry, which the tefter knows nothing of, would void his will.

And as to what is said in Swan, 296, it relates only to wills of personal estates, and cannot affect the construction of the statute.

The Digbt, lib. 28. tit. 1. l. 22. De testibus, signatures, et signis, is express: Conditionem testamenti non impune canantur, vel armis tempore, et de libri, &c. De libri, 6. tit. 23. l. 1.

We therefore hold this not to be a good atteftation of a will of lands, and there the title of Mrs. Anthony the leflefs of the plaintiff as heir at law is not defeated by what is set up as a will: And consequently the plaintiff must have judgment.

The following is another report of the said case of Asgby and Dowling, from a N.S.

Lee Chief Justice. This funds for the opinion of the court on the following case.

In an ejectment, in which the plaintiff declares upo the demise of Dr. Asgby and his wife, of lands lying in the county of Cambridge, at a trial at bar in this court, a special verdict was found to the effect following. That James Thompson of Trumpington in that county Esq being feized in fee, by a paper writing, purporting to be his last will and testament, dated the 18th of February 1742, gave all his goods and estate, &c. to the defendant James.

For his life, the remainder to his and every other son in tail, the remainder to his own right heirs; he likewise bequeathed to the same person all his personal estate, and then follow these words. ‘‘ Nevertheless it is my will and testament: I give and bequeath to Johnny and Mary, the party benefited in one fleet, and the estate, as well as personal, with theunities and legacies herein after mentioned.” And amongst others is an annuity or yearly rent-charge to Elizabeth the wife of John Hales, for her own separate use, exclusive of her husband, not to be subject to his debt, and her receipt to be a sufficient discharge.

And afterwards he gives to the said John Hales and his wife, for mourning, ten pounds a-piece. The jury further find, that the said James Thompson signed, sealed and published the said paper writing, as and for his last will and testament in the presence of three persons only, one of whom was the said John Hales, mentioned in the said paper writing, and handwriting of the said Elizabeth. That the said James Thompson died the 28th of May 1743. That the said John Hales and Elizabeth his wife are both alive, and that the defendant Derby, before as well as at the trial, tender’d to the said Hales the two legacies of 10l. and 10l. which he refused to accept, and they find that the last is subject to be voided or discharged.

That Mary Asgby one of the leflefs of the plaintiff is the aunt, and heir at law to the said James Thompson. And whether upon the whole, the defendant is guilty, the jury pray the advice of the court.

From this verdict it appears, that the title to the lands mentioned in the declaration, depends upon this question.
And in is yet but appiclid is would good a w.is legacy, as being for opinion dal attefded the for infamous an the niuft the law evidence perfons was the will, of was not releved, his was left by the will, and the evidenice by the testamentary power over lands, and that power was laided under certain refrictions by the 29 Car. 2. And these statutes are now to be taken together, as containing all the parliamentary rules concerning the manner of disproving of lands by will. The necessary requirements are, that the will be in writing, signed by the party devising, or some person authorized by him, and attested and subscribed by three credible witnesses, in the presence of the testator. In the case of Lee and Libs, 1 Shawe 88, and Cattell 35, there were two witnesses to the will, and two to the codicil, by which the will was not altered, but yet it was not held to be valid as to the lands. I mention this case, because my Lord C. J. Hill there lays, that the three witnesses are to prove all the things required by the statute, and this I apprehend is an answer to an objection that was drawn from the common practice of calling only one witness to prove the will, who proves at the same time the hands of all the three.

This is done where it is not further contested; but the heir at law has a right to examine the other witnesses; for the law is, that he is not to be disillusioned but by the oaths of three credible witnesses at least, which might mean legal, and also judicial, as that might be taken for an oath. But it is here laid that this cannot always be had; for suppose a man, some exceptions major, attests a will, and afterwards he is convicted of perjury, and becomes infamous; yet this will may be proved. No authority is cited for this, but supposing it to be so, the devisees comply with the statute, and the will is valid. But the law is, evidence at could be had, and the perjury at all was then all unexceptionable. If by the intervention of subsequent accidents, the nature of the evidence or condition of the witnesses is altered, we must receive the bill that can be procured. As where an old age makes one inconsiderable, it is laid that his bills by himself or his friends might not be used, to prove the hands of the other witnesses. 2 Term. 700.

But here Holis was under an inducement and bias at the time of attestation, as being then interested; in like manner, if one of the witnesses will not swear to the execution, or discharge his will, he shall nevertheless be admitted to prove the hands of the other witnesses. 2 Term. 700.

W I L

whether this will of James Thynne was duly executed, pursuant to the flat, 23 Car. 2.

There are three persons who have subscribed as witnesses to the executing of this will; but one of the three has a legacy left him by the will, and there is before a legacy, and also legacies, and therefore the one of the three has will subjoined his lands to the payment of all his legacies and annuities. I t, therefore, objected, that Holis is not such a credible witness, as that statute requires. It has been answered to this, that though the personal estate must in the full place be applied towards payment of his legacies, and therefore he is not interested in the will, yet in the second place, next that this annuity being to the separate wife of the will, cannot be considered as any interest in the husband.

But if these answers had been sufficient, Holis ought to have been admitted as a witness upon the trial; but we are not then, nor with the other two, yet that he would then be admitted to increase the funis, which is a necessity for his own legacy; And fasti perfomint done, &c.

The annuity to the wife, tho' for her separate use, is for the benefit and advantage of the husband, and not withstanding it is not in any actual possession of his to whose use it will be, yet it may rate him of what it is necessary for him to provide for a proper maintenance and support of his wife.

Neither can the tender and refusal of the legacies make any difference in the case, as it does not at all affect the annuities.

The question therefore is, whether Holis is, notwithstanding this objection, to be considered as a credible witness within the flat, 29 Car. 2. And we are all of opinion that he is not.

Legals were not devisable by the ancient common law except by custom. At this time was founded upon the feudal law. Helgie gave the parliamentary power over lands, and that power was laid under certain restrictions by the 29 Car. 2. And these statutes are now to be taken together, as containing all the parliamentary rules concerning the manner of disproving of lands by will. The necessary requirements are, that the will be in writing, signed by the party devising, or some person authorized by him, and attested and subscribed by three credible witnesses, in the presence of the testator. In the case of Lee and Libs, 1 Shawe 88, and Cattell 35, there were two witnesses to the will, and two to the codicil, by which the will was not altered, but yet it was held to be valid as to the lands. I mention this case, because my Lord C. J. Hill there lays, that the three witnesses are to prove all the things required by the statute, and this I apprehend is an answer to an objection that was drawn from the common practice of calling only one witness to prove the will, who proves at the same time the hands of all the three.

This is done where it is not further contested; but the heir at law has a right to examine the other witnesses; for the law is, that he is not to be disillusioned but by the oaths of three credible witnesses at least, which might mean legal, and also judicial, as that might be taken for an oath. But it is here laid that this cannot always be had; for suppose a man, some exceptions major, attests a will, and afterwards he is convicted of perjury, and becomes infamous; yet this will may be proved. No authority is cited for this, but supposing it to be so, the devisees comply with the statute, and the will is valid. But the law is, evidence at could be had, and the perjury at all was then all unexceptionable. If by the intervention of subsequent accidents, the nature of the evidence or condition of the witnesses is altered, we must receive the bill that can be procured. As where an old age makes one inconsiderable, it is laid that his bills by himself or his friends might not be used, to prove the hands of the other witnesses. 2 Term. 700.

But here Holis was under an inducement and bias at the time of attestation, as being then interested; in like manner, if one of the witnesses will not swear to the execution, or discharge his will, he shall nevertheless be admitted to prove the hands of the other witnesses. 2 Term. 700.
Add all to this the case of Hilliard and Jennings, as reported by Lord Raymond 505, and by my Ld. Ch. B. Cymus 90, and Cafes in the King's Bench in the time of K. William 277, and it is visible that all the reasons upon which the court determined in that case, are applicable to the present.

The argument to which the court agreed was, that a person who could not be a witness was certainly not a credible witness, and that the intention of the act was to prevent frauds as well as perjuries; which intent would be evaded, if a party inter红色, who might probably be induced to use fraud, were to be allowed to be a witness; and if persons, who would not make the execution something more formal than it was before: That the statute being deprived of the word credible, the other word witnesses was to be expounded by Common Law analogy. From whence this rule is taken; that as at Common Law no man was allowed to be a witness to prove an interest for himself; so the statute shall banish the objection by his own subscription take an interest, which he could not prove at that time by his own examination: That the case of Hilliard and Jennings goes no further.

The rule thus framed, his Lordship is pleased to conclude not only that a release or payment will re-establish the witness, if his incompetency really stands in the way; but that further this a witness who is disqualifie may be competent enough to prove the will for every person except himself.

In opposition to this reasoning I propose to maintain first, that this credibility, (which I shall prove to be competency) is a necessary and substantial qualification of the character of a witness, as it is required by the statute: Secondly, that if a witness is incompetent at that time, he cannot purge himself afterwards either by release or payment, as to set up the will. Thirdly, that he cannot be a witness in that case to establish any part of the will; but that the whole is void for ever.—As my brothers differ with one another in their reasoning, I beg leave to take either of those questions as far as the witnesses are competent by the rule of law, I might, if I thought it fitle, leave all the other points undecided, as not absolutely necessary to the decision of this case; and I should have been glad for several reasons to have done it, if other reasons more weighty with me had not determined me the other way. One is, that as the whole argument is connected by a chain, those points to which I am bound to speak could not be so clearly illustrated, nor would they, as I apprehend, be expressed with half the force, if the others are omitted; for they all throw light upon each other, and the point is sufficient material introductions to the latter. Another reason is, that the matter at issue is one which may yet come before another court, and likewise as no case of the like kind, in my opinion, are cured by the late act; but that future suits, as well as those that are passed under such like attestations, must call up the same question, when they happen, I think myself bound in duty to declare my different from the left opinion of Lord Mansfield, and do my best endeavours to restore Lord Chief Justice Lee's, which has been so comfortably shaken, I may say overturned; because the left opinion, if it is acquiesced under, almost always governs, and becomes the leading case. So that if I should now decline this argument, this opinion would not be injured, Lord Mansfield's doctrine, which I am clearly satisfied is erroneous. These reasons do not prevail upon his Lordship to declare himself against Lord Chief Justice Lee, in a case where, according to his own opinion, he might have avoided the question, and yet have pronounced the same judgment; but he thought it more material to declare so, in order to avoid what he thought wrong, than to give further strength to that error by avoiding the contest. I have hitherto treated the argument I am answering, and I am obliged to treat it throughout as Lord Mansfield's argument, and not the argument of the court; because his lordship has told us it is his opinion, under all circumstances, and in the discharge of his duties.

For the opinion of the court, he only tells us in general, they held the will duly executed according to the statute; but he has not informed us upon what grounds that resolution was framed; so that I am not able able to say whether the puine judges agree with his lordship in all his three grounds, or if not in all, in which of these three; nor do I think it right now to enquire, because the practice of explaining a public resolution in private by parol might be attended with some bad consequences. It is, however, for this, that I am afraid I shall be very tedious; if I should, it must be imputed to the high respect I bear to that great person with whom I differ, as it would be an unpardonable negligence to pass over or disregard even a single word, that he has thought material. I am very sensible that I am destroying an honest wish upon a criminal objection; for in the interest here, which I must treat as a serious incapacity, is too flight even to dispose the witness's credit, if he could be sworn; and yet I must adjudge him upon this objection to be a person to defile of all credit, that he is not fit even to be examined. But as it is not my business to differ with me have enabled me to give this advice, of the proper means of disposing of the suit. Before I proceed, I define it may be understood, that I do by no means deny the authority of the judgment in Chitty and Wyndham; for that case was determined not only upon the general principles, which I am forced in this argument to deny, but upon its own general principles. I also wish to introduce a definition, which can be applied to the case of a mere legatee witness. The first general question then, or rather enquiry, being this, who are these witness, which are described in the act by the word credible. I answer in one word they are competent witnesses, and no other. When it is further as- said, at what time must it be ended, when this qualification, I say that he must be clothed with it at the time of attestation. This then is the proposition that I intend to maintain, That the witness's credibility (which I shall prove to be competency) is a necessary and substantial qualification at the time of attesting. To prove this, it will be incumbent on me to prove, that the legislature set up these witnesses as a guard to protect the testator from fraud in that critical minute when he was about to execute his will, which I will do from the spirit as well as the words of the act, and shall then confirm my construction by the authority of Hilliard and Jennings, which is a case in point upon this question. In the first place, I mean to show that this question, I define may be attended to, because it should be carefully kept in view throughout the whole argument, and it is this: That there is a great difference between the method of proving a fact in a court of justice, and the attestation of that fact at the time it happens; these two things I suppose have been confounded, whereas it ought always to be remembered, that the great enquiry upon this question is, how the will ought to be attested, and not how it ought to be proved. The new thing introduced by this act is the attestation; the method of proving this attestation, stands as it did upon the old Common law principles. I would object against it, if I had sufficient opinion, what all the three have attested; and though those witnesses must be a subscriber, yet that is owing to the general Common law rule, that when a witness has subscribed an instrument, he must be always produced, because it is the legal evidence. We have in common experience; for after the fifth witnesses have been examined, the will is always read, and in the case of Hilliard and Jennings you will find that the objection was not to the want of due proof in court, but whether the device was a credible witness within the meaning of the statute. This I am afraid has not always been attended to, but some persons have been led to think that the law wished all the witnesses had directed the will be proved by three credible witnesses, forgetting the difference between the subscription, and the proof of that subscription. I proceed now to show that the witness's must be credible at the time of attestation within the true intent and meaning of the act. This clause has introduced a new ceremony to be observed in the publication of wills. This act of publication is to be done before three credible witnesses; this I call the sufficiency, because the other act is to be done by the parties, when this is done by the testator, and has been seen and heard by the witnesses. Then, the testator is to sign, and the witnesses are to subscribe in the presence of the testator. This is the form; but the difference is apparent, for signing and subscribing in the presence of the testator is only the mode of recording the act, by committing it to writing at that time; and though the formal as well as the substantial part are equally essential to the perfection of the will, the form may be made more liberal with the law, than they can be with the honesty. Now the question be asked, whether the quality of credibility is requisite in the witnesses at the time of attestation, I answer, nothing can be more clear upon the words, if credibility means anything. For what is the clause but a description of those who must attend the execution, among which the possession of credible witnesses is made necessary. It is admitted, that if any other description had been added to the witnesses, that must have belonged to them at the time; as three Englishmen or three full aged persons had been required; these adjoints would have increased the bar upon the execution. If so, I see not by what rule of construction one of these must not be disdained from another. Nay if the word credible be expounded, and the word witnesses, as it is admitted, does ex vi termini include competent, full competency must be essential to the wills at the time of execution; fo, as an interested witness cannot be the witnesses which the law intends to be a guard of the execution. But this, it may be said, is cavilling upon words, and an artifice to evade the true question which turns upon the spirit or intention of the law. For if the solemnity was not really intended to protect the testator from fraud, but only to add a little more form to will-making, the one hundredth is no more important than a word. But that is the natural question, and the law can only be satisfied, if it are made credible at the trial. Now although this construction will be manifest violence upon the words, yet I will meet the argument fairly, and maintain my opinion upon the very spirit and intention of the act. I say then that the legislature ordained and meant to ordain the three witnesses to be a guard to the testator against fraud at the time of executing the will, and that the witnesses are called in not only to attest but to protect. This is the true flate of the question between us. The word credible, say the other side, signifies nothing to a third person, and I can introduce no act of writing or will to do with this point, that the question is not a question of construction upon any words of it. I must on the contrary maintain it to be a question of construction. To say the truth, the point must either way turn upon the construction of the statute. If the statute determines the question, it is simply a question of construction, and if it is to be laid aside, you must still continue the statute to get rid of it. But to proceed. Before the statute of frauds any scrap of writing, though it was neither signed, sealed, nor written by the testator, might have been established by the testator's name or the name of any person was a legatee, if he released he was a good wit- nes. This did in fact happen in a very remarkable case, that of Sir Francis Wrefley's will; this case is reported in Sid. 345. and in 2 Keb. 138, Stephen's lefepe of Gerard against Lord Manchefer 18 Car. 2. One Benham of Gray's Inn wrote a will for Sir Francis Wrefley, which will was in loofe fleets dicated, as Benham said, by Sir Francis who had neither signed, nor sealed the same, though the writing itself purported both; but Sir Francis, who in- tended to write the will over again himself, said, that in the mean time that should be his wish. Benham was the only person who had the will at the time, the testator thereupon pretended he had an imperfect copy, a legatee and an annuitant under the same will. Objection was taken to Benham's testimony as a legatee, whereupon they threw a reale, and proved that he had received the money, and yet says Keb. the court con- ceived this a sufficient will, and the jury found it so, and verdict for the defendant lesepe of his baifard against the true heir at law, leisir of the plaintiff. "This determination was clearly legal at that time; yet the reporter thought, as every other person that reads it must, that it was a case of great hardship to disfranchise the heir by a will so made and fo attested, and fo confirmed, after the long usage of a common law. The two great and alarming considerations upon this case, were, that such an unfinished paper should be deemed a will, and that one person so interred, should be the only witnesses. All the world must see, as soon as this case was determined, that testamentary frauds would be as much as ever before, and probably more, the object of the lawyers, and the delinquents, and the degenerating men, if such wills and such witnesses were not to prevail any longer. — Whether this case was in truth the occasion of the will clause in the statute of frauds, as some have thought, I don't know; but when you reflect that this case happened in the 18 Car. 2, and the law made but eleven years after, all you'll gained by the length of time, is that the mischief this noble law, which deserves to be called a Code rather than a single act of parliament, and that when it is found by the provision of this new law, that for the future the will is to be a perfect instrument signed by the testator, and that three credible witnesses at least are to be introduced to be present at the signing of the will, there are the two grievances in Sir Francis Wayler's case, and going no further, the provision is so remarkably adapted, to meet with the case, that I cannot be brought to believe it was either neglected or forgotten. However that may be, I am at least sure, that this was a most material case to throw the necessary light upon the point. The will was a will signed and sealed by the testator, and the witnesses were the following words. "All devises and bequests of any lands, tenements or hereditaments, &c. shall be in writing, and signed by the party so devising the same, or some other person in his presence, and by his express directions, and shall be attested and subscribed in the presence of the said devisee by three or more credible witnesses, or else the same shall be void and of none effect." Now that the statute had a main view to the quality of the witnesses will appear from this consideration, viz. that a will is the only instrument in this act required to be attested by subscribing witnesses at the time of the execution. It was enough for leaves and all other conveyances for mortgage agreements, for declarations and assignments of truths to be in writing: these were all transactions in health, and protected by valuable considerations and antecedent treaties; so that the power of a court of equity was sufficiently meet with to effect every fraud that could be practised in these cases after the contract was reduced into execution and fruition. If there was any material object of the arbitrary capricious pleasure of the testator executed suddenly in the last sickness, almost in articulo mortis. If the man is sure his will will be established, cruelty, iniquity, unnatural preference or exclusions are no objection to such a will. Stat pro ratione voluntatis. Was the testator to sign his will with one made it is the only question that can be asked, and consequently the time of the execution is the critical minute that requires guard and protection. Here you see the reason why witnesses are called in so emphatically. What fraud are they to prevent? even the fraud so commonly practised upon dying men, whose hands have not, could not, have been strong enough to write a name or make a mark, though the capacity of disposing is dead. What is the condition of such an object, in the power of a few, who are suffered to attend him, wheedled or teated into a submission for the sake of a little ease, to put to the labourious task of collecting the full fettle of all his affairs, and to watch the jilt merits and dementias of those that belong to him by remembering all and forgetting none. Such an act to be done at such a time is so pregnant with sufutation, that a formal declaration of the testator's found and disposing mind and memory, though he is weak in body, is grown to be a common introductory clause to almost every will. So much effect and importance was attached to the testator in this important moment from impostion? Who shall protect the heir at law, and give the world satisfactory evidence that the testator was false? The statute lays three credible witnesses. What is their employment? I say to inspect and judge of the testator's fancy, before before they attest. If he is not capable, the witnesses ought to renounce and refuse his attestation: he is infamous if he does not; in all other cases the witnesses is positive; here he is active, and is in truth one of the principal parties to the contract, and the testator is en- trusted to their care. Sanity is the great fact the whole is to speak to, when he comes to prove his attestation: And that is the true reason, why a will can never be proved as an exhibit in open court in chancellor, though a deed may; for there must be liberty to cross-examine to the utmost degree, for this is the occasion when the greater part of the witnesses are at hand to be examined, and when they become the invariable practice of that court never to es- flablish a will unless all the witnesses are examined, because the heir has a right to the proof of sanity from every one of the witnesses that the act has placed about his ancestor. This practice which is coeval with the act is a strong argu- ment, why the law was so rigorously strict in this case, and why there is now the necessity of being in the witnesses to prevent false dispositions, as the will now is, and which the law makes it therefore not barely to attest, but to try, judge and determine, whether the testator is compe- tent to sign and publish; and yet this duty of the witnesses, this solemn trial of the testator's fancy has been called a mat- ter of form and of no use to prevent frauds. I am of a very contrary opinion. That many fraudulent wills have been made since the statute, and are formally exe- cuted, I have no doubt; and I am afraid these frauds will continue to the end of time; for what law can totally extinguish wickedness, and reform mankind? But if a law is to be lighted, because it does not entirely eradicate the mischief, much more powerful to prevent this is to make it impossible to escape censure; and many bad wills have been made, but who can tell me how many have been prevented? I have no doubt (for this affront cannot be proved) but that a thousand efforts have been faved by this excellent provision. It is called a guard in theory only, whereas almost every delivery practised, that is suffused to dye infante is preferred by this law, and gives testimony of its utility. But if you once treat this part of the solemn- nity as a form, and call the devives and legates into the sick man's chamber, the whole ceremony will then I ad- mit become a mere form; nay it will be worse, it will be a farce to the testator, and instead of being a preventa- tion, it will be a protection of fraud. I will clofe this reasoning with the words of the court in Lea and Libb, as reported in Carth. 37. "It is true, the intent of the statute was to prevent fraud, but though no sufputation of fraud appears in this case, yet the statute has preferred a certain method which every one ought to observe, in the construction of the statute of frauds, the consequence is undeniable, that the incompetency can never be purged, and that the whole will is void for ever. This consequence is so plain, that the argument on the other side, in order to call off the attention from this idea of fraud, hath laboured to disprove and engrave the whole clause. Whereas now it is urged, that the word credible (which I consider as the key of the clause) deferves no notice, but ought to be expunged, being, as it is contended, either improper or at least nugatory; nor does the argument stop there, but proceeds to pronounce the whole clause to be futile and void. "For this will (every line whereof according to Lord North's opinion was worth a subsidy) turns out to be careless and ill- penal, nothing more than a fruitless and ineffectual solemnity.—But to proceed. First, The word credible, it is said, either means too much and is misapplied, or else it is included in the word subject, and means nothing. That the epithet credible has a precise meaning universally allowed, and is never used as synonymous to compe- tent; that when it is applied to testimony, it presupposes evidence to have been given; and that after the compe- tency of the witnesses is allowed, the objection to his cre- dibility is founded, and therefore that it is allowed to add a quality to the witnesses at the time of attestation which can never belong to him till his testimony is examined in court. As the argument here turns altogether upon the meaning of this word, I wish the argument had given us that precise meaning, which, it seems, is universally allowed; that it is not done by any definition it was thought thought to plain and obvious that there was no occasion for it, and therefore instead of telling you what the word does mean, the argument only affers what it does not mean, i.e. it is never used as synonymous to competent.
W I L

In answer to which I beg leave to say, that it may ever in common speech be so used, and further in the act of parliament it must have that meaning, and no other sense, otherwise the greatest absurdity would arise from the case of Hilary and Jennings, wherein the court of King’s Bench not only declared the two words credible and competent to mean the same thing; but refiled their main argument, upon that very meaning of the word credible. But of this more hereafter; in the mean time I shall only write one sentence that is worth observing as I understand it, and I hope to shew that the act has used it properly, and that it is not misapplied. —

I understand the word credible to mean worthy of credit; when applied to the person of a witnesse, it bespeaks him to be a person of capacity to deferce credit; I say of capacity to deferce credit; I go no further, because no man can be false of obtaining credit, let him be ever so credible; and therefore I suspect that the word credible has been used improperly in the last passage for credit, which means a great deal more.

Now a witnesse is credible in two senses. 1st. When there is nothing against him, or denied to him in the abstract without referring to the testimony of any particular fact. 2dly, He is credible or not, in another sense, when the matter of his testimony in a particular case comes to be disfufed and tried. A man therefore may be credible in the first sense, tho’ not credible in the second, and yet the word properly used in both. When you apply this epithet to legal witnesse, that law where it is applied must determine the meaning. Now if I ask this general question, who are credible witnesse by the law of England, i.e. persons worthy to obtain credit? if the question is not absurd, I can give but one answer, that all such persons are entitled to give testimony in the courts of Justice: Who are credible? Those who are not so permitted.

The very admittance of the person to be examined proves him in the estimation of law to be worthy of credit while he stands unimpeached, by calling him competent.

But when a witnesse’s testimony is under trial, and I am asked whether such a deponent is a credible witnesse to those facts, I must take in a thousand circumstances in order to judge fairly of his credibility good or bad.

In this case I admit that you presuppose the evidence given, because his credibility then depends not only upon his personal character, but likewise upon the evidence given with respect to him in those circumstances. This general character of credibility in the abstract is so inseparable to the person of a disinterested witnesse, that nothing but an infamous judgment can ever deprive him of it; he is disbelieved in one case, he is notwithstanding a credible witnesse in the next; he fails there, yet in a third he may obtain credit.

Let his conduct or general character be what they may, he is a credible witnesse to every fact where he has no interest.

When I say that all indifferent witnesse are credible, I do not mean to say equally credible; for credibility may have its degrees; his personal character may make him more or less credible, but it is sufficient for my purpose if the word is intituled to any degree of credibility.

Now where a man’s testimony is impeached, this general character of credibility is no longer considered otherwise than as a circumstance, and the enquiry is changed into a scrutiny of his credibility to that particular case, and that this man not guilty of the character of witnesse, and fortunes are equally liable to the same enquiry, it is by no means a consequence that the best man should turn out the most credible witnesse; every day’s experience proves the contrary, and a bad man is not only allowed to be a good witnesse, but sometimes his character as witnesse, and that place is it proper to observe that the good character of the man has been confounded with the credibility of the witnesse; which are two different things; for the stature was never to sim.

Vol. II. No. 137.

W I L

able as to require the attestation of honest men, a matter important either to be known or tried, but called only for indifferent testimony, as well as witnesses, as the plain and plainly triable. To say the truth, every man living is honest enough to tell the truth for a third perfon, if he has no motive to do otherwise; nor is it strange that a bad man in some cases should be a credible witnesse, and a good man be incredible; for credit is not in the power of the witnesse, but is lodged in the third person, and is a matter of the nicest and most delicate discussion. The flighted circumstances may turn the balance; probability in the tale, collateral confirmations, or impeachment by other evidence, contrary declarations, tamperings, the character of the party or the modest demeanor of the witnesse, hesitation, conflict, partial accusations, difference, compared with the contrary behaviour, these and many other considerations conpire to work up or destroy belief; and therefore the general character of the man is of no great moment in weighing the credibility of his testimony; I call to appeal to experience, whether general character is ever called in to impeach a perfon’s evidence till some strong attack from another quarter is made on his credit; and therefore every man without exception, who is free from all interest in the fact, he comes to attell, is a credible witnesse i.e. he deserves credit in the strict sense of it, unless some other objection besides character, is add to the list. Thus much being premised, give me leave to apply this reasoning to the act before us. — Who are those credible witnesse who are called upon to attest the new fact? the answer is plain, those who are intituled to the general character of credibility; they who are free from infamy and disinterested; they can neither get nor lose by the will; it is in this sense, and in this only can the word possibly be understood; and therefore it is so far from being true, that credible is never used as synonymous to competent, that on the contrary, wherefoever it is confidered in the abstract and applied to the idea of legal witnesse, it is not synonymous, but is worth observing here, that credibility is so inseparable to all men who have their fenes, that the epithet incredible is never applied in common language to the person, as it is to his testimony: you say a fact is incredible as well as credible; but you never say a witnesse is an incredible person; for there is not any man breathing, who is not capable tho’ perhaps not worthy to obtain credit, if you hear his testimony; and indeed the true reason why infamous and interested witnesse are rejected is, for fear they should be believed; and therefore such persons are properly called incompetent, and not incredible; which mode of expression is equally opposite as the former.

When the act then requires three credible witnesse (for it does not say three reputable persons) to subscribe, it requires three disinterested persons, who are not infamous, and no more.

All such are credible to that fact wherein they have no interest; this can be pronounced of theword men; and you can say no more of the best; for they are both credible as they stand upon the will, tho’ perhaps not in the same degree.

The acts, which direct convivialions to be made upon the oath of three witnesse mean competent, as I conceive; and if the witnesse have not been put to an oath to convict, if he is not contradicted; this cannot be denied; and I am sure the reason given why the informer cannot be a witnesse, is because he is not credible; which proves pretty clearly, that if he had no interest, he would be admitted.

And Lord Coke, when he advises the tellor to call in credible witnesse to attest his will, may mean to recommend the most credible, such as are reputable persons as well as competent witnesse; yet there is no ground to infer from that expreッション, that any competent witnesse in his opinion was totally non-credible. — But if this be the true meaning of the word, it is contradicted, for it is an idle nugatory word, as being included in the word witnesse. Admit it for a moment; must the clause be condemned or lose any of its weight because an epistle might have
It was said, that the poor here described, must be understood to be a class of poor not above the reception of relief, and that this charity may be applied by the trustees to the use of such persons exclusive of the poor of this parish.

The donors of this charity could not stipulate that the poor in this will, are those who labour under the extreme wretchedness of helpless poverty; for when it is considered that the day-labourer, who only lives from hand to mouth, is deemed by the testator to be a person above the want of this charity, which is confined to the impotent only; it would have been thought that the labourer with a family, &c. could not be excluded.

In the poor in this will are denoted by the same description as the parochial poor are by the 43 of Eliz. And if this be so, this charity cannot, by the terms of it, be distributed to a set of men who are excluded by the will; it will be a breach of trust to do it; and if it be found that the charity is awarded to such men, it will have to be applied to a superior order of poor, I desire a cafe to be produced where that court ever made such a decree.

If a legacy has been given to poor housekeepers, and poor not receiving alms, or to poor in general, there might perhaps be some ground for that disposition; but I can never believe that court could make such a decree in this case; the benefic of that court being to expend wills, and not make them. And whereas it is said, that these legacies when they reduce the rate, come to be in their operation legacies to the rich and not to the poor; I answer, that it is impossible to be otherwise, and that this is always supposed, that if a man living from whence the pauper is supplied, if he has wherewithal to subsist, without the charity, he must be discharged, because the relief in such a case is not necessary: And the necessity of the object is the rule by which the relief is to be proportioned; and it must be more or less according to the pauper's condition and circumstances.

If a labourer, who gets seven shillings a week by his industry, is incumbered with a large impotent family, the parish adds so much to his weekly gains, and no more than will be just enough to keep the family alive; if he falls sick, the allowance is increased; if his children dye or become useless, the charity ceases. If a man receiving seven shillings a year, his flipend will be less than his neighbours who has but twenty shillings a year, and he again will be less confined than a man who has nothing. This is the true reason why the rate is directed to be paid weekly, or otherwise, because the rate of the poor is always fluctuating. An estate or legacy is given to the testator; and if the estate is to be vested in the testator, it is certain that no one after the death of the testator can have any title in the estate, unless by a will, or through the executor. The estate is vested in the testator, and he has full power to dispose of it. The estate vests in the testator. The estate vests in the testator. This is a very abstract point which is not much referred to in the case. The trustees are sufficiently provided for, but the parishes are not. The poor have a right to expect relief. The poor have a right to expect relief. This right is not confined to the poor who have nothing to expect relief, but to all who have a right to expect relief. The right to expect relief is not confined to the poor who have nothing to expect relief, but to all who have a right to expect relief. It is a right which is enjoyed by the poor, and which is enjoyed by the poor. The poor have a right to expect relief. This right is not confined to the poor who have nothing to expect relief, but to all who have a right to expect relief. The right to expect relief is not confined to the poor who have nothing to expect relief, but to all who have a right to expect relief. It is a right which is enjoyed by the poor, and which is enjoyed by the poor. The poor have a right to expect relief. This right is not confined to the poor who have nothing to expect relief, but to all who have a right to expect relief. The right to expect relief is not confined to the poor who have nothing to expect relief, but to all who have a right to expect relief. It is a right which is enjoyed by the poor, and which is enjoyed by the poor.
remain so as long as the flat of 43 Eliz. stands unreal-paragraph 2

—As to the objection that the interest is too minute, and that a small interest as in Tawney's cafe, ought not to disqualify witnieses, I do conceive that however that point might have been litigated formerly; yet that now the situation is quite another, and the ruled law is not rejected, if he has any interest, he is to be small.—The point was disputed for above 20 years in the cafe of tol, a eumon claimed by the city of London upon importation, called by the name of water-baillage.—The question was, whether freemen might be witnieses.—Nothing can be made to press for this objection, I have interpreted; and yet after many opinions pros and cons, it was finally settled that they were not witnieses.—Any person who has a mind to trace the history of this question may find it in 2 Keb. 295. 3 Keb. 2 Leon. 231. King and City of London. 2 Shaw. 47. 2 Shaw. 146. 1 Holt. 351. Cafe of the City of London concerning water-baillage. This cafe (and it is the last I can find upon the subject) happened in 32 Car. 2. and is distinctly reported in two books; for one states, that three judges allowed the witnieses, and one disallowed; upon which the counsel for defendants tendered a bill of exceptions, but the plaintiff gave it up and called in the witnieses. Clarke, 2 of the double fays, that the freemen were denied to be witnieses, and that the plaintiff tendered the bill. I cannot reconcile the books, but both agree the witnieses were not examin-paragraph 5

ed, and the verdict went for defendant.—What became of the exceptions does not appear.—I should guess it was denied and settled feemingly, that freemen could not be witnieses, because it is said by two Chancellors in Verne.

Lord Keeper North in 1684, two years after this trial, Vern. 254. says, it was said in the cafe of the water-baille, that no freeman of London could be a witnefle, that it was not fit or proper to con-paragraph 6

tain. In 2 Vern. 318. 1684 Lord Somers fays, in a suit for money given to parifhioners, none of the inhabitants ought to be witnieses; for in a cafe where a party is concerned in inter-paragraph 7

est, though never fo small, the objection has always pre-paragraph 8 valled; and so resolved on great debate in the cafe of the City of London concerning water-baillage.—11 Edw. 255. Cafes in queen Anne's time, Brawen against the Corporation of London, upon issue joined upon prepetition for a toll, the defendants produced a witnefe, the plaintiff obj-paragraph 9

ected, that he was a freeman and interfeled, upon which the defendant produced a judgment in the Mayor's court, wherupon ex fite factis was awarded, and two miles re-paragraph 10

tumed. What with the judgment and judgment a new def.ment; therefore the proceedings being irregular, Holt would not admit the man to be an evidence, because the judgment in the Mayor's court may be avoided.—The flat. 1 Ann. cap. 10. is material for this purpose; for the act of parliament lets in the evidence of the inhabi-paragraph 11

tants of counties in all informations and indigments for not repairing highways and bridges; so again by another act the parifhioner is admitted for suit to recover money mispent by parifh officers. Which act all fays, that the rule to reject the witnefe for minute interefte could not be broken in upon by left authority than an act of parlia-paragraph 12 mont; and that this was not a matter of importance. Clarke, 2 of the book 1737, where it is said, that in cafe of an information at the relation of the town of Warwich, for certain char-paragraph 13

ties, an inhabitant receiving alms is no witnefe, for every inhabitant either pays or is under a poibility of paying to the church and poor, though he pays nothing at preteat. —If the rule be fair, it must pertain an objection, to all witnieses without objection, and there can be no difference between witnieses to a will and any other. I fay this, because I fee practice had prevailed to admit will witnieses where the legacy was small.—In the argument of the water-baillage cafe in Vern. 357. and Shaw. 46. it is faid, the question was discussed and defended; and that it had been usual, and in 1 Vern. 254. Lord North is made to fay, that where a man is a legatee, if it is an infcrutable legacy as 51. or 5 f. to a man of quality, he fhould be a witnefe to prove the will.—It is plain there had been fuch a practice, and I take it to be upon that ground, that the parifhioner allowed to be a witnefe in Tawney's cafe; but that practice ceased, I believe, upon the flature of frauds. But I take it most clearly, that this notion is now exploded, and therefore if it fhould be once admitted, that the parifhioners in Tawney's cafe had an interefte under the will, the cafe neither is nor can be right. But after all, I conceived that a legatee of a small fum may at this day be a witnefe.

True it is, that the interefte of the witnieses in some cafes is drawn fo fine, that it is scarce percepitable; and yet that glimmering, that feinilla shall be as powerful to exclude the witnefe, as the moft fubfiantial profit; and I fay, if the cafe be good law where the court fed aside the witnefe, because he had this himself bound in honour to pay the cofls of the fuit. The true ground whereof is this, which is fit to be attended to in evry part of this branch of the argument, that as no poitive law is able to define the quantity of interefte that can be laid upon the minds of men, it is better to leave the rule inflexible, than permit it to be bent by the defcretion of the judge.—The defcretion of a judge is the law of tyrants; it is always unknown; it is different in different men: it is caufal and depends upon conftitution, temper and paflion: In the frft it is ofte-paragraph 15

nously the voice of every fiece, folly and paflion to which human nature is liable.—I am done with this part of the cafe, and return again to the flature of frauds, and the next point; which is, whether a witnefe, not credible at the time, can become fo by matter ex poft factis, fo as to re-eftablifh the will.—If my con-paragraph 16

siderations concerning the will are to be accepted, the attestation is no factis voided by the very words of the flature.

The teftator has been betrayed; the fraud is committed; and you may as soon recall time as make that tranf-paragraph 17

action hooft, which was originally fraudulent; no pur-paragraph 18

gation can cleave the witnefe. I fay, if I have confrmed the act right, every fuch attestation is a conclusive mark of fraud upon the act; against which no evidence can be given; and though it has been faid, that a legacy is no preicient interefte, and that the legatee does not know the contents of the will; I anfwer, that if it fhould be once held, that this act may be eftablifhed by the legatee's releafe, every legatee who intends a fraud will always fore the future be cure of the contents before he attests. But still it is urged, that if you pay or releafe the legatee, he is a good witnefe; his bias is gone; the will fhall be eftablifked. It is hard to fay whether this doctrine is more pregnant with mischief or absurdity.—It furnifhes the will-makers with bribes to the witnieses out of the tefta-paragraph 19

tor's poft, and furnifhes the latter with a power to demand; for it is poiffible to give the witnefe a fecurity for his legacy than by making him a witnefe, because by this means his release being necessary, he gains a power over the whole will; Thus the law co-operates with the fraud in requiring the defive to pay the witnefe his hire before, under the penalty of fettling the will, the defive refues.—But the mischief will not stop here; the lega-paragraph 20

tee will naturally proportion his demand to the value of the effate bequeathed, and will frequently exact more than his legacy.—Nay will he think it worth while to hold himfelf out to the heir, and keep the will in fuff-paragraph 21

fice, if the legatee is not to be paid, and it his own advantage; and thus the teftator's land after his deceafe will be sold by the witnefe to the beft bidder.—To day the will is bad; for the legatee will not releafe; to morrow the legatee is fatisfied, and the will is good;—the heir at law recovers in one term, and is difinftructed in the next.

In this flate of uncertainty the will must remain till the legatee pleads to pronounce its fate. But fuppofe the witnefe fhould die before he has releafe;—may put the cafe, that he dies before the teftator; is the will good or bad? if good, he is a credible witnefe and needs no pur-paragraph 22

gation; if bad, he is not credible and incapable of purging. Again, let us fuppofe the witnefe convicted of fpme infamous crimse; can the crown reforge the will by a par-paragraph 23 don?—In that cafe, it depends upon a caufality, and the King dipoles of the effate. Among all these difficulties, one should have expected some rule fhould have been laid down to fix a certain period for the eftablifhing or annul-paragraph 24

ing of
of the will by telling us how long the witness's incompetency shall continue to vitiate the instrument; for it is impossible to conceive that it can remain in this state of fluctuation.

I have endeavoured to find out this point of time from the argument on the other side without success. It is said indeed, that the time of examination could not possibly be the criterion, on which the will was to depend, because the witnesses might not live to be examined, and their incompetency might arise long after the signing. I do most clearly conceive, that this cannot be the criterion, the only period remaining is the time of attestation, but the whole argument on the other side is brought to prove that that point of time cannot be the criterion; so that both these periods being excluded, it does behove the counsel for the defendants to point out some other; but the argument is silent and the will is left at last after so much pains to float upon that sea of fallacies I have been describing.

The common received usage with the opinion of eminent practitioners has been called in aid, and they have been named, Mr. Fawkeley and Sir Thomas Bevan.——

They are great names, and I have a high regard for their opinions; but the general allusion to the whole of their argument, and should never be felt.——I do not find that this practice, as it is called, ever went beyond the cafes of money legacies, which sprung up, as I guess, from the practice in the spiritual court, where a release to this day will make the wills good; but it is not pretended that this practice ever produced the same effect.——I am afraid you will prefer to relieve the witnesses where he was a real devise; so far from it, that Hilliard and Jennings passed always for law without a murmur; and it was not till after the true principle of the flat, of frauds came to be thoroughly diffused and settled in the case of Jofly and Denting, that those practices came to be allowed. Then indeed their eyes were opened, and they began to fear, that if the court of King's Bench was right, the practice and their opinions were erroneous; but as the principle was flubborn, and would not yield to any exceptions, the legislature very properly took it in hand, and we have with great wisdom cured the evil, without weakening the flat of frauds; which no court of justice was able to do.

But if these points fail, the defendant's counsel refer to another point, which will at once solace all difficulties; and this is, that the witnesses notwithstanding the objection may still remain a good witness to every other devise in his own right.

If this can be done, it will be a method of setting up the will by annulling the legacy; for a legacy that cannot be proved is the same as no legacy at all; it is a nullity; it does not exist: De non apparentibus, et non exspectatis, cadem est Live et Rotis.

This I do admit will solace all difficulties at once, and will render the legacy as safe, and disinterested a witness as if he had no legacy.——And if this had been law, it would have saved the legislature the trouble of a new act; for it is the very method which the parliament has now taken, who by making the devise void in this cafe have disabled the witnesses from being a devise; and this is the same principle virtually that attended every mischief. It remains then to be considered, whether the attestation of a legatee before the act made his legacy absolutely void; for I must insist upon it that he can never be a credible witness to any part upon any other ground than the original nullity of his own legacy. If the legacy is not void by this method, the whole principle of the flatt, and vitatate the whole will for ever, unless the fact be purged afterwards by release. Now that the gift or legacy is void, I do beg leave, with great deference to other opinions, to deny, in all those cases if I am not mistaken, the only reason why the witnesses is rejected, is, because the legacy is void.——Con fer ve to the fact which will before of the flat, if accepted by the legatee; not void in its creation; it was only held back from operating by defect of proof; and therefore the moment the proof was opened either by payment or release, or if the will could have been proved by other witnesses, tho' the devisee was one, the will came forth a valid instrument to all intents and purposes. Thus if the common law rule could be adapted to the construction of this flat. A will with a devise void by payment, allowing it to be good; and indeed this analogy did prevail so strongly, that it grew to be a common opinion, that where a legacy only was given to a witness, tho' charged upon the land, a release would do the business.——Again, that the legacy was not void by the act of state, nor performed by the death of the testator; the remainder, which does not confirm any former will liable to the objection till the legacy is either paid or tendered.

Whereas the fame act declares that in all such wills for the future the legacy shall be void.——It is from hence observable, that the legislature avoided giving any opinion upon this light-advised upon the flat of frauds; yet they declare in the strongest manner that the legacies so given to the witnesses were not void, and that it required a new law, to make them void for the future.——

Let me add to this, the common opinion of the bar, so much relied upon in the former part of the argument, that the legacy was so effectual to disable the witnesses that nothing less would have effectuated the will, for any body's benefit.——I wonder a little why so much pains is taken in this argument to establish the practice of releasing, if the legacy was a nullity and wanted no release; for if this law was, that method was not only nugatory but unjust, and the parliament would not think it fit to establish a scheme of so many void legacies, to be paid.——But if I have expounded the flat, right, where a devise is a witness, the whole will is fraudulent ab initio, and it cannot be otherwise, The publication is one entire transgression; the will is one disposition of the testator's estate to several persons; the bequests are settled and apportioned, by a comparison with each other; and if you make the will by the taking out particular bequests, you vary the testator's intention in the remainder, and his whole will is maimed.——In case of fraud (for the argument must always remember that there were the cafes which the act intended to prevent) the witnesses gets his legacy by the merit of attesting the other bequests (for the grand devisee will hardly ever be a wit- nes), and it is by the other part of the will that the heir is generally undone; so that the remainder of the will, which the legatee is to escheat, is ten times worse than that part which is to be annulled.——Let us now see how this point stands upon the case of Hilliard and Jennings fail to be an authority, and so proved in Baugh and Hol- lroyd.

This requires some examination. In Baugh and Hollroyd, where Sir Robert Reynold does say very confidently, if that reporter is not mistaken, that Lord Ch. J. Holt had declared his opinion in Hilliard and Jennings for, and there is an expression in Carlow's report of that cafe, which serves to some for to favour, the doctrine. I have in the former part of my argument examined that cafe, so fully, that it will be sufficient here to observe that this point was never resolved, nor argued, nor hinted at in Hilliard and Jennings; and it was impossible, that the point could arise upon that will which contained only one devise, and no alternate devise.——But if it was, it would have been a most extraordinary thing, if the court had spontaneously taken upon themselves to settle this important point, tending to no less consequence than a virtual repeal of the flat, of frauds; it would have been strange, I say, to have done this without a cae that can be so from proof; it was therefore no less collateral to the question before them, and neither touched by the counsel, nor argued by themselves: I do not wonder Sir Robert Reynold should argue as it is pretended, for his fee; the bar is apt to argue in that manner; nor do I wonder the court should in so faint a bufofhef end the point; no law being charged upon the land, by no means because the case never came before them, and that the heir at law gave up the point; why might it not end by compromise? I could make 20 anecdotes that should all account for the discontinuance of the cause more probably than that: But it is not worth while because because, if the heir at law had really given up the point, his concession would not weigh a hair in the argument. I have now gone thro' the argument, and will close with declaring that I will take no notice of any part of the law to which learning has been brought into this argument. Lord Ch. J. Lee did not ground his opinion upon that law; he did not argue from it, he did not rely upon its authority.—I am favoured with a very correct note of his opinion from my brother Adams, where, when he had fully argued the case without taking any other notice of the civil law, than to declare that Southamer's law upon legacies cannot be applied to land devices, and to observe in the same place that both laws concur in rejecting interested witnesses, he concluded in these words. Upon the whole, conditionem testatun cum figurant infinita deleant, and that as it is to be considered as intended to prevent any fraud being used at a time when testators are most of all liable to be imposed on, and as all people have it in their power to get disinterested witnesses, we think this ill is not well executed according to the statute; but is void as far as it concerns lands. This is enough to shew that Lord Ch. J. Lee never meant to introduce the learning of the civil law into the question. The rule is mentioned by way of ornament, not argument, because it happened to express his own Common law opinion in a matter where he conceived both laws concurred. —I am not wise enough to determine, which of the two laws is most perfect, the Roman or English. In my judgment (which is my own) that altho' almost every country in Europe have received that body of laws, yet they have been with a most stubborn constancy at all times disclaimed and rejected by England. For which reason, and not thro' any disrespect to the argument I have been endeavouring to answer, I choose to lay aside all that learning as not being relevant in Westminster Hall.

7. Of nuncupative wills.

By the st. 29 Car. 2. c. 2. f. 19. For the preventing fraudulent practices, it is enacted, 1. That no nuncupative will shall be good where the estate thereby bequested shall exceed the value of 50 pounds, that is not proved by the oaths of three witnesses, at the least, that were present at the making thereof, and bid by the testator to bear witness that such was his will, or to that effect. And by the st. 4 dig. c. 19. f. 14. it is declared, 1. That all such wills, witnessed, as are ought to be allowed to be good witnesses upon trial at law by the laws and customs of this realm, shall be deemed good witnesses to prove any nuncupative will, or any thing relating thereunto.

2. Nor unless such nuncupative will were made in the time of the last sickness of the deceased, and in the house of her or their habitation or dwelling, where or he she has been resident for ten days, or more, next before the making of such will, except where such perfon was furprised or taken sick, being from his own home, and died before he returned to the place of his or her dwelling.

Sec. 11. That six months passed after the speaking of the testamentary words, no testimony shall be received to prove any nuncupative will, except the said testimony, or the substance thereof, were committed to writing within six days after the making of the will within.

Sec. 21. 2. That no letters testamentary, or probate of any nuncupative will, shall pass the seal of any court, till fourteen days, at the least, after the decease of the testator be fully expired, nor shall any nuncupative will be at any time received to be proved, unless proceed from their own wills, or the next of kin to the deceased, so as to the end they maycontrol the same, if they please.

Sec. 22. 3. That no will in writing concerning any goods or chattels, or personal estate, shall be repealed; nor shall any clause, devise, or bequest therein, be altered or changed by any words, or will by word of mouth, only, except the fame be in the life of the testator committed to writing, and after the writing thereof read to the testator, and allowed by him, and proved to be so done by three witnesses at the leaft.

Sec. 23. Provided that any foledier in actual military service, or any person employed in building houses at sea, may dispole of his moveables, wages, and personal effects, as before the making of this act.

A. being ill, desired B. to make her will, who wrote down only names and initial letters to this effect, viz. to The Wife 200 l. to St. Cro. 200 l. to the Daughter 100 l. to the Son 50 l. more over several relatives in like manner, to above 400 l. which being more than her estate, B. made an alteration in the second column, by subfradbling part of the sums of the legateses, as set down in the second column, and then told A. the fene of the proposed devises: There were two perfons in the room that did not see the alteration, nor the alteration of A. and B., but only heard the testatrix at last pronounce, that all was well. B. went to a scrievener to have the devises drawn out at length and in form, and before she returned the testatrix died: The judge below pronounced for this will; but upon appeal to the delegates, it was reversed, and the writing was agreed, that if the will had been written in words at length, so as the caried a fene and meaning in themselves, it had been a good will; for that there was one witness that wrote it, and two that heard the testatrix pronounce, that it was her will; Which would have been intended to have been the will, and was signed by the testatrix, in regard it appeared on all hands, by several witneses, that the will was then seriously dispole herself to make her will, and for that was quoted the case of one Pepper, where a person dispole herself to make her will, and dictated it to a person who wrote it down; and another, not called in as witneses, lay behind the hanging, out of caret; and yet such will was allowed to be good, being proved by the two witnenses: But they distinguisd the case because the will was not subfultative, but was to take its fene from the interpretation of the witnenses; and there would be innuendo upon innuendo, which made purely a nuncupative will: And as such, not being attched by the number of witnenses appointed by the statute of frauds and perjuries, the will and legacies were void. 2 Att. Eq. Caf. 403.

Dr. Shalmer, by will in writing, gave 200 l. to the parish of St. Clement's Danes, and after, Prew the reader coming to pray with him, his wife put him in mind to give 250 l. more over to the churches building their church, at which, tho' Dr. Shalmer was at first diffuifed, yet, after, he said he would give it, and bid Prew take notice of it: And the next day he bid Prew remember of what he had to him the day before, and die that day. Within three or four days after, the doctor's wife put down a memorandum in writing of the said 250 l. and of her wife, and so did her maid. Prew died about a month after, and amongst his papers was found a memorandum of his own writing, dated three weeks after the doctor's death, of what the doctor said to him about the 200 l. and purporting that he had put it in writing the same day it was given. But the writing was authenticated to be made the same day it was spoken but did not appear, and the three memorandums did not expressly agree. A year and a half after, on application by the parish to the commissioner of charitable uses, and producing these memorandums and proof by Mrs. Shalmer and her maid, they declared the 200 l. but on the exceptions taken by the executors, the decree was discharged of this 200 l. and Lord Chancellor held it not good, because it was not proved by the oath of three witnesses; for tho' Mrs. Shalmer and her maid had made proof, yet Prew was dead; and the statute in that branch requires not only three to be present, but that the proof shall be by the oath of three witnesses. 3 Att. Eq. Caf. 404.

A daughter deposes 180 l. in the hands of her mother [the defendant], and afterwards makes her will in writing, and thereby devises several legacies, and makes her
WILL

But when a testament is perfect by the death of the party, it is effectually gives and transfers estates, and of alters of lands and tenements, executed by deeds in the life-time of the parties: For hereby feents of lands are prevented. And a man may make ested in fee-simple, or fee-tail, for life or years, of lands, tenements, rents, reversions or services, as effectually as by deed; and these estates also will be good without any livery or delivery of the estate, but so that rents and power to disfrain for them, may be reserved, conditions created and annexed to estates or things devised.
Shew.

And therefore they that take by devises of land, are faid to take in the nature of purchasers.

And the same reason [as much as] makes a feoffee to the use of himself in fee, and after devises the fame to his wife in fee, and dies, the fon is not remitted though the father dies feoffed, for the deviseant deferves the

It is to be observed, that where the words of a will have a plain fenfe, and no doubt is in any matter within or without the words, touching the matter of the devise, there the words of the will shall always be taken to be the intent of the deviseur, and his intent to be what the words say. 2 Am. 17. Leven v. Bidd.

That all the words of a will are to be carried to anwer the intent of the deviseur; but this is to be understood in cases where the intent of the party may be known by the words, though not expressed in the words of the will.

That if there are inconsistent and contradictory words in a will, some words must be rejected to make it fene.
Thus where a tefator gave the intereft of a fum of 6000l.
to Mary Conforfle, his daughter, for her life, and after her deceafe gave the money beantween Charles Conforfle her husband, and their children: And in another part of the will he faid, and in cafe there be no fuch child or children, I give it to Charles Conforfle and fuch children.

—Lord Chancellor rejected these latter words, as they were fubftrad and contradictory. 5 Bac. Abr. 525.

A. having a wife and children, made his will, and faid, left it should pleafe God that he should not return he gave and devised a real and personal effate, or to that effect. He returns, and has children and dies, without altering his will: The plaintiff being a legatee, and there be ning a direotion in the will, for the fale of the real eflate to pay his legacy; Lord Chancellor was of opinion, that the direction was merely contingent, and that the part of the will was to take effect but on the contingency of his return; and fo avoided determining the principal quifition, how far the alteration of the tefator's circumstances would be a prejudifive recoration as to the real and personal eflate, but as to the perfonality, deemed to religiously according to the rule v. Lord v. Lord, he faid, that the tefator's funds and perfonal matters made a material difference between that and the personal effate.

5 Bac. Abr. 525. Mor. Rep. Parsons v. Lenox, Hill, 22 Gen. 2. in Chan.

That a will muff have a fatisfory interpretation, and as near to the mind and intention of the tefator as may be,
and yet fo wtials as his intent may fland by the rules of law, and not be repugnant thereto; it being a rule or maxim of law, Quad ultima voluntas tefatoris perinnfienda est, fecundum quorum intendens: and that, sed legum fervanda fides, jubera voluntas quaedam firique jubera parere neciffa ejf. In deeds the rule of conftruction is, that the intention mutt be directed by the words, but in wills, the words mutt follow the intent of the devifor; and such a construction is to be made of them, as to make ufe of all the words, and not of part, and fo as they may ftand together, and have no contrariety in Such a fenfe fhall be made of a devise, that it may be for the profit of the deviseur, and not to his prejudice.

That general and doublous words in a will, shall not alter an express devise before, nor carry any thing contrary to the apparent intent. Id. 119d.
That the claus and sentences of a will shall be severally transposed to serve the meaning of it. And construction shall be made of the words to satisfy the intent, and they shall be put in such order as the intent may be farthest carried out.

That no fence may be framed upon the words of a will, wherein the testator's meaning cannot be found. Id. ibid.

That to give a thing to such a person to whom the law gives it, as if it had not been given; and so a devise of man's land to his heirs is void. Stype 148, 149.

That a construction of a will must be gathered out of the words of the will, and not by any averment. Stype. Abr. part 11. p. 11. Vo. Thy.

That though a parol averment shall not be admitted to explain a will, so as to expound it contrary to the import of the words; and wherein the words will bear it, a parol averment may be admitted. As, for instance, to ascertain a person, but in no case to alter the effet. 1 Feem. 292. Stute v. Berrier. 5 Rep. 68. Lord Cheynor's Cafe.

That one part of a will shall be expounded by another: As where a man leaves an estate to another and his heirs, and afterwards mentions to have given him an estate tail, heirs shall be taken to mean heirs of the body, and the devise shall take only an effet tail. 2 Feem. 267. Banyfield v. Popham.

This was a writ of error, brought up on a judgment given by the court of King's Bench in Ireland, for the plaintiff in ejectment.

The ejectment was brought for lands in the county of Tyrone: And upon the trial, a special verdict was found.

The special verdict first states a long pedigree of the family of the Meryons; and also several deeds, not necessary to be here taken notice of, (as no question at all arises upon them.)

Then it finds that Audley Meryon, Esq; and Henry his son, on the marriage of the said Henry with Mrs. Tichborne, executed deeds of lease and refeate dated the 21st and 22d of December 1711; and that, in pursuance thereof, a fine was levied, and a recovery suffered, whereby the manor of Artylemum in Tyrone, (of which the premises in question are part,) was settled, in strictlettement on the said Audley (the father) for life; then on the death of Henry (this son) for life; then on the death of Henry, and other sons of Henry, and the issue of that marriage (in common form,) with several terms, powers, and provisions; with the revocion in fee to the said Audley, the father, which marriage took effect: But there was no issue of any of them.

That Audley Meryon had issue, beside the said Henry (his eldest son,) three other sons, viz. Audley, James, and Theophilus; and four daughters, viz. Lucy, (who, in her father's lifetime, married with Westwurt Harman, Eleanor, (one of the lessors of the plaintiff,) and who afterwards married Christopher Irvine, who has been many years dead,) Anne, (one of the lessors of the plaintiff,) who married James Meryon, otherwise Richardfs, long since dead,) and Jane.

And the said Audley the elder, being feald as the law requires, of the said lands and tenements, on the 15th of June 1715, duly made and published his will and testament, whereby, after reciting "that he was desirous to make the best provision in his power, for the support of his children and the peace and settlement of his family," he devised as follows: Viz. And as to the worldly estate wherewith he hath pleased God to blest me, I give and bequeath the same, in manner following: To my said wife, Olivia, to her proper use and benefit, all my plate and household goods and furniture of what kind soever, and also my coach and horses and their harnesses, and three saddles, and one horse, and the mantles and other apparel unto her all the rest and residue of my peronale, of what kind soever. And I do hereby will and require my said executrix, as soon as the Vol. II. No 137.
Hugh Mervyn, son of Audley Mervyn, died in 1727; leaving the said Arthur Mervyn, one of the executors of the plaintiff, his eldest son and heir.

This cause was argued on the part of the plaintiff, viz. that the executors of the plaintiff, before making the leases in the declaration mentioned, entered and were sealed, and then made the several demises in the declaration, &c. &c.

But whether, upon the whole matter aforesaid, the defendant James Strong be guilty of the trespass, &c. the jury doth know nothing.

The court of King’s Bench in Ireland gave judgment for the plaintiff in ejectment.

The whole estate, which depended upon the title set up by the executors of the plaintiff, was of very great value. The cause had depended a great many years, and had been argued a great many times in Ireland.

The plaintiff had "that the revolution in fee of the lands comprised in the settlement of 1711, passed by the will," and that the uses were legal estates executed, subject to a charge for the payment of the tenant's debts (if any there were), and to a power in Olivia to fell for that purpose; and were good at law, tho' devised after an indefinite payment of the tenant's debts as should not be discharged by his personal estate.

This case was first argued in Michælmas term last, by Mr. Perrot for the plaintiff in error, and Mr. Witen for the defendant in error; but more fully a second time, on Tuesday last, the 25th of January 1760, by Mr. Kneeler for the plaintiff in error, and Mr. Morrison for the defendants in error; the court having refused repeated applications to put off the arguments till the next term.

It was argued very elaborately upon the question "whether the executors of the plaintiff in the ejectment had any legal estate," the counsel for the defendants in the ejectment insisting "that Olivia Mervyn, the legal fee, which defeided (they said) to Henry the eldest son and heir, and was by him conveyed to the father of the defendant in ejectment: Or if she did not, "that the devisee thereof after payment of debts generally, were executory and too remote."

This point concluded to a nonsuit at law only; and to turn the plaintiffs round to try another kind of remedy.

The final merits and question of right depended upon the construction of the will.

It was adjourned upon the last argument, (for want of time to go through with it,) to the Friday next following,

"and was argued by Mr. Knowler for the plaintiff in ejectment, beginning to make his reply: But Lord Mansfield said, they need not give him the trouble of a reply.

The question is two; viz. (1st) Whether the reversion be within the devise; and if it be (2dly) Whether it is a good devise to the executors of the plaintiff.

The plaintiffs argument is, that the particular devise to the plaintiffs, the second is immaterial. Upon the first we are quite clear, that the judgment is wrong: And therefore it is not necessary to give any opinion upon the other.

The points of law having been argued with a great deal of skill and learning; and much has been said upon the part of the defense, we will now mention: But as in the case stands, it is not necessary for us to enter into them; and I give no fort of opinion upon them: However, thus much I will mention, for the sake of those who heard the argument; viz. that this case is not like cases that had been cited; and particularly not like that of Bagshaw v. Sargood. That was not to the trustees and their heirs; "to the use of them and their heirs" (as Mr. Nersea cited) but to them and their heirs and assigns, "upon trust that they and the survivors and survivor of them should, out of the rents and profits, or by sale or mortgage, raise enough to pay all the tenant's debts, &c. and after those debts, &c. should be paid, then to the use of the said trustees for 99 years, then to the use of his nephew Thomas Bagshaw (as to one moiety) for life without impeachment of waste; remainders to trustees (by name) to enjoy contingent remainders; remainder to the heirs of the body of Thomas Bagshaw for life; then to trustees to enjoy contingent remainders;
And Benjamin Bagshaw died without issue: And Benjamin entered and fuppofted himself tenant in tail in poiiflion; and being fo in poiiflion, the fai'd Benjamin Bagshaw fuffered a common recovery; and then defived it to his wife.

A bill was brought by the wife (claiming under the recovery), to carry the trufts into execution; and for a conveyance in fee: and there was a decree at the Rull to carry them into execution accordingly.

The litigation was between the remainder man and the devisee of Benjamin: And the question was, "Whether Benjamin Bagshaw was tenant for life, or in tail," and the Master of the Rull took it to be an effate tail in Benjamin Bagshaw. The plaintiff claimed under the common recovery suffered by Benjamin: The defendants under the will of Benjamin Afton, the original devixor. Neither party doubted of its being a truft; the difpute was about the effate defived to Benjamin Bagshaw: Whether it was for life, or in tail.

But my Lord Chancellor flarted a doubt, "Whether the devife to Benjamin Bagshaw was a truft; or whether it was a ufe executed." And if it had come out to have been a ufe executed, then the authority in the cafe of Coufion v. Coufion, and the certificate given by this court in that cafe, &c. and the plaintiff had it in the way; and he would have had it fought it back to be confidered by this court.

But if it was a truft, then it fell under different confiderations.

There the trufts and their heirs and the survivor of them were directed to do three things: And what they were to do, was of fuch a nature, that they muft nec-essarily have a defidable effate in them, to anfwer the ends of the truft. But there were a defpective dilemma; which put an end to its being a qucftion. The plaintiff claimed under the common recovery. But the teftator's debts were not paid at the time of suffering it. It was urged on behalf of the plaintiff, "That Benjamin Bagshaw took by executrix defive after the debts should be paid; and that there was no danger of a perpetuity." But it was allowed that there was a legal effate in the trufts, till the debts were paid.

Now, if the legal effate had not taken effect in poi- feffion in Benjamin Bagshaw, then there was no good te-nant there; for it was not until then an equitable tenant to the principle would have done. Therefore they were obliged to maintain it to be a truft: For if they had infifted on the authority of Coufion v. Coufion, there the common recovery was a bad one.

So that that cafe of Bagshaw and Spencer was not aplicable to the prefent cafe now before us.

I thought it not improper to fay thus much, as to the cafe that have been cited: But I give no fort of opinion upon the prefent cafe as to this point. It might be worth confidering too, "Whether this be not a double conten- digency, viz. If there fhoult be debts, then, my wife to carry the effate defived to her, and in fee at the same time: If no debts, then, thofe in remainder to take." However, here it does not appear that there were any debts.

As to the nice points of law, and the form of the remedy.—It is not neceffary to give any opinion, if the plaintiff has no fundamental right to recover.

Now, as to the fundamental right of the plaintiff, the cafe is shortly this:—

His lordship then fuMMARILY flated the facts found by the special veridick, and particularly the settlement in December 171; the circumstances of the family; the will; and the general clause on which the qucftion arifes: And then recited the cafe in the following words:—

The qucftion is, "Whether by this sweepings refidu- ary clause, the teftator intended to devife the reversion of the effate fettled on the marriage of his eldelf fon Henry with Mary Titchburn, by the settlement of December 171;"—

The generality of the expression, "And also all other the lands, tenements and hereditaments in the faid countries of Tyver and Month or either of them, whereof I am fatisfied in fect simple, or of which any other perfon is fatisfied in trufe for me; together with their, and ever of their appurtenances," if unreftrained and unqualified by other words, would carry all the teftator's effate in poi- feffion, or in tail, to his wife.

But thofe general words may, by other words and ex- plications in the will, be reftrained to any or either of thefe: And if it is the fame thing, whether it be di- reftly expreffed, or clearly and plainly to be collected from the will.

Now here are plain explications in this will, which are fufficiently to fhew, that the teftator did not intend to devife the reversion of this fettled effate. One in- stance is, the clause "That if Henry and Audley fhoult both of them die without issue male in the life-time of James, then James fhoult not take any interefl or effate in the lands, in tenements therein before defived to him; but that the fame fhoult remain and go over to Theophilus." Every part of this clause is inconftient with any fuppofition, that he meant to devife the reversion of the lands in fettlement. And there is another clause which may make it more plain, viz. "That if either or any of his lands fhould by virtue of his will remain to his fon Henry, then that his executrix fhould have power and authority to charge and incumber the fame with any fum not exceeding the fum of 5000 l." So that he fup- poited every thing mentioned in, and defived by his will touching the reversion of the fettled effate after the death of Henry, never could devide to Henry, From whence it follows, that the teftator did not intend this reversion to be included in his will.

And there are powers given by this will, "Which ever of his fons fhould be defived of an effate or ufe for life in the faid lands, to defive out of the will, to a lawful wife, to fic tions, and to make lefser;" Which powers are, in their nature, applicable to poifeflion, and not to reversions, and are referved, by the expref words of the will, (viz. "in the faid lands,) to lands only, as what he meant to de- vine. And they could never take effect at all in Henry (who was one of the fons) for he never defived them, and did not want any authority to execute them.

If Henry had had no issue male by his firft wife Mary Titchburn; and had had issue male by a fepond wife; the fon by the fcond wife could never have taken any thing; tho' he would have been grandfon of the teftator and heir of the family; fo that the heir of the family would have been the fons which Henry had. And yet the reafon why Henry and his issue by this will poifioned to the younger brothers, appears plainly to be, "because they were much better provided for." And the teftator underwrought and fuppofted that the younger brothers, who were the lefs entitled, tho' all the fons fhe male of Henry should have the effate in their turns.

Suppose Henry and Audley the younger both dead with- out issue male; then James muft, upon the conftru- ction of the reversion's paffing by the will, forfeit ever ything; not only the lands fettled, but alfo the lands defived; and fo would not have a fatisfactory estate in the whole effate go over, and pass by him; for the reversion of the fettled lands being in fuch cafe fallen in, by the death of Henry without issue of his firft marriage, the whole fett- ed effate muft go over to Theophilus under fuch a conftru- ction of the will, and by the expref words of it, he could take interest in any of the reversion.

If the qucftion had arifes between the issue male of Henry, which he might have happened to have by a fec- ond wife; could it possibly be imaginf to have been intended by the teftator, that in fuch a cafe, Henry's sons by a fcond wife fhould be totally difinherited? And even this would be a ftrange fuppoftion, if the reversion of the fettled effate paffed by this devife.

If Audley had died without issue male, whilft there were fons or male defendants of Henry by a fcond marriage, in being; can it be imagined that the teftator ever intended that Henry's fons and his issue male fhould take the fettled effate without defidence of the older branch of the family? And yet he would have done so, after Henry's death.
WILL

death without issue of his first marriage, if the revocation of it pafled by the will.

Or if there had been no issue at all of either Henry or Audrey, he can be imagined that he intended to disinherit

It is plain that the testator did not intend to devife the revocation of the lands comprifed in the settlement made upon the marriage of Henry. Probably, he himfelf, or the perfon who drew his will, did not imagine that he had any intereft in the property over the ftetted lands. But if it is plain, as before, that he meant, and had then in contemplation, only the lands whereof he was feized in fcc in pofteflion.

He defcribed several lands nominatim; and others, as well as he then could: But as he could not be minute and particular in fuch defcription, it was thought proper to add an appendix.

The lands he meant to devife, were either in the county of Tyrone or of Meath; but, it being then uncertain to him, in which county they lay, he fays, "in them or in either of them." But, ftil, the whole defcription is local; and a locality is tied up to lands: The former part of the defcription specifies them particularly by name; and the general sweeping words are only definitive of lands; "All other the lands tenements and hereditaments in the faid counties &c." If it had been intended to have carried effates, the drawer of the will would have added, "And all his effates wheresoever or by any perfon in trust for him were feized in fee, in pofteflion, without or by revifion," that is, he would have thrown in a sweeping clause to carry effates in the lands, as well as the lands themfelves. An annuity is given to Olivia, payable out of the faid lands devifed; And there are powers given to whatever of his fans fhould be feized of an effate or life for life in the faid lands, to commit waifs, fettle jointures, and make leaflets, which powers (as I before obferved) are applicable to pofteflion only.

But these minute and critical obfervations ferve only to weaken the argument: Since there are, in this will, fufficient general words, which exprrefs and clearly fhew that the testator had no intention to include the revocation of the ftetted effate in his will, as much as if he had used particular words and exprifions to declare it directly and explicitly.

In the cafe of Ceryton v. Hefliet, the teftator omitted to add the words "if he fhall fo long live," to the effate which he left for 99 years. And yet the Lord Hardwicke confirmed it, that it muft mean not an abolute term of 99 years, but an effate for 99 years qualified by that reftriction, "if he fhould fo long live" because it fo appeared upon the face of the will confider'd in all its parts and taken all together.

Mr. Juftice Denman, having been abfent during the argument, declined giving any opinion; but seemed fatisfied with what Lord Mansfield had faid.

Mr. Juftice Faulter faid he had made fome obfervations upon the will; but Lord Mansfield had gone through it fo fully, that he needed only to declare his intire concurrence in the fame opinion.

Mr. Juftice Wilmot also entirely concurred; and wondered how any one could entertain any doubt about it, it being as clear, he faid, upon the whole tenor and compofition of the will, as the strongest exprrefs negative clause could have made it. Per Cur. Juftice reverfed.

A writ of error was brought in the houfe of Lords: And their Lordhips confined the counfel, to speak to the conftitution of the will, atift: After hearing that queftion argued, their Lordhips afked the opinion of the Judges; who were all unanimous, "That the revocation was not intended to pafs." And thereupon, their Lord-

WILLS, on the 7th of May 1756, unanimously affirmed the judgment of the reverfe.

As neither the court of King's Bench, nor the House of Lords, had at any time annexed the points of law, upon which the letters of the plaintiff "having or not having a good legal effate" depended, it would have been to no purpose to report the reafonings used at the bar, upon thofe points.

Note. In the court's having refufed to adjourn the arguments of this reverfe, the final judgment of the House of Lords was obtained fo soon: And a caufe which held a great many years in Ireland, went through the court of King's Bench and the House of Lords here, within the fame of about fix months.

This was a fpecial caufe which arose upon an effate brought upon gavel-kind lands in Kent, tried before Lord Mansfield at New prius.

The efefate was brought by the heir at law of one Martin Long, for an undivided fourth part of one meafure, &c. in the parifh of St. John Bapifhip, in the ifle of Thanet, in Kent.

Special caufe fiated for the opinion of the court.

Martin Long, being feized in fcc, &c. made his will, &c. and thereby devifed thus—"I give and devife one equal undivided fourth part, &c. unto my nephew Martin Read, and to the heirs of his body lawfully to be gotten, as well females as males, and to their heirs and afllgns for ever, to be divided equally, fhare and fharke a-like, as tenants in common, and not as joint-tenants. Alto I give and devife one equal undivided fourth part, &c. unto my niece Ann, now wife of William Carniff, and the heirs of her body lawfully gotten, or to be gotten, as well males as females, and to their heirs and afllgns for ever, to be divided equally and fharke and fharke alike, as tenants in common, and not as joint-tenants. Alto I give and devife one other equal undivided fourth part, &c. unto my niece Sarah, now wife of S. Hooper, and to the heirs males and females of her body lawfully gotten, or to be gotten, to be divided (as before,) and to their heirs and afllgns for ever.

There were likewife in the will, other defigns of other effates.

"If I die and devife unto my nephew J. Tickner, his heirs and afllgns for ever, all that, &c. &c."

"I give and devife my farm, &c. unto my fifter Catharina, wife of William Abat, and to her afllgns, for and during the term of her natural life; and from and after her deceafe, I give the fame to my nephew the hon William Abat, and the heirs of his body lawfully gotten for ever: and for want of fuch issue, I give and devife the fame to the right heirs of me, for ever."

"And as concerning my meafuges, &c. I give and devife the fame to Elizabeth Long, her heirs and afllgns for ever."

"Allo I give and bequeath to my niece Sarah, now wife of William Long, and to the heirs of her body, the sum of 450l. of like money to be divided between them equally."

The teftator lived two years after making this will: He died in May 1751.

At the time of making the faid will, the teftator's faid niece Ann Carniff, wife of Thomas Carniff, had two daughters.
daughters (by her said husband) then living; viz. Elizaabeth and Anne.

Anne Cornish, the testator’s niece, died after the time of making the will; but in the lifetime of the testator:
And two daughters, Elizabeth and Anne, survived both their said mother and also the testator Martin Long.

The question submitted to the court is "Whether by the death of Ann Cornish (the mother) in the lifetime of the testator, the devise, as to her own part, was void or lapsed: Or whether the said four fourth part devised as above, or any, or what part thereof, on the testator’s death, devolves to the lefser of the plaintiff, as heir at law to the testator.

Lord Mansfield—The words are—"To my niece A.
C. and to the heirs of her body lawfully begotten, or begotten, as well females as males, and to their heirs and assigns for ever; to be divided equally, share and share alike, as tenants in common, and not as joint-tenants.

The question is, "Whether it be contrary to the rules of law, to understand, in this case, heirs of the body of A. C. as a description of children: For that such was the intention of the testator, there can be little doubt in this point.

It is to be lamented, that questions of this kind have occasionally forfeit much litigation and expense. The best way to settle them is, to reduce the matter, if possible, to some certain rules.

It is clear, that where an estate is given to the ancestor, and his heirs, (whether general or special,) the term denotes the quantity of the estate which the ancestor takes;
viz. either fee-simple, or fee-tail.

It is clear too, that a person to take as a purchaser, may be deemed from every course of descent; as heir at law, heir in Beleng Engith, heir or heir male of t. e body.

By an ancient maxim of law, altho’ the estate be limites to the ancestor, expressly "for life, and after his death to his heirs, (general or special,) the heir shall take by descent, and the fee tail vest in the ancestor.

This maxim was originally introduced in favour of the Lord, to prevent his being deprived of the fruits of the te-nuary; and likewise for the sake of specialty-creditors.
The ancestor, had the limitation been construed a contingent remainder, might have destroyed it for his own benefit. If he did not destroy it, the Lord would have lost the fruits of the tenure; and the specialty-creditors, their debts. Therefore the law said, Be the interest, as it may, where an estate is given to the ancessor and his heirs, the fee tail vest in him.

The reason of this maxim has long ceased; because tenures are now abolished, and contingent remainders may be preferred from being defeated before they come in effect. Yet, having become a rule of property, it is adthored to in all cases literally within it, altho’ the reason has ceased. But where there are circumstances which take the case out of the letter of this rule, it is departed from, in favour of intention; because the reason of the rule has ceased.

In the case of King v. Mellling (1 Pet. 237.) A case was stated to this effect: "Richard Hall, where a man devised "to his eldest son for life, et non alter," and after his decease, to the fons of his body." It was held to be but an estate for life, by reason of the words "et non alter." Yet the "et non alter" was implied, if it had not been expressed; but it followed the clear intention of the testator; and the construction was made to as to effectute that intention.

And in a later case of Backhouse v. Wills (M. and H. 12 Ann,) where the devise was "to L. B. for his life only, without interference of waftes; and from and after his death, then to the issue male of his body lawfully to be begotten; and in case no issue male of the body of that issue male, the whole court were of opinion, that the device was, by that devise, made tenant for life, with remainder to the issue in tail. They held, that the words "for life only," clearly and expressly shewed the intention of the testator; and thereby took out the caus of the general rule, and turned the words, commonly used as words of limitation, into words of purchase.

Indeed such construction as this, cannot be made, but, in cases where it is agreeable to the clear intention of the testator, that this should be the construction. For tho the devise be "for life only," yet if the intention of the testator, for a deed, the whole male line of the body of the testator, were, by the necessary construction arising from the context, turned into words of purchase.

In the case of Algold v. Withers, (in Chau. on 4 July 1735,) where one Isaac Algold had by deed conveyed his freehold land to trustees and their heirs, and his lease-hold premises and their executors, upon trust that they should apply the rents and the benefits of redemption, to the plaintiff Hannah Withers for life; and after her death to the heirs of the body of the said Hannah Withers, and Isaac Algold (since deceased) and of Hannah Giff and Mary Algold, their heirs, executors and assigns, during the continuance of the estate in the premises; the question was, Whether Hannah Withers took for life, or in tail: And Lord T allot held "That the took an estate for life; and that the heirs took as purchasers.

In the case of Bagshaw v. Spencer, all the cases upon that subject were ranckled and thoroughly considered:
Lord Hardwicke held, "That heirs of the body, (after an estate for life to the father,) should be construed words of purchase.

To take off the authority of decisions in Chancery, it was contended at the bar, "That as to this point, there was a distinction between a trust and a legal estate; and that even in Chancery, there was a distinction upon this point; and that what they call a trust executed, and a trust executory.

It is true, these distinctions are to be met with, and have often been mentioned: But there don’t seem to be much solidity in either.

All trusts are executory: They are to be executed by a conveyance. And the parties have a right to apply to a court of equity, for such a conveyance.

In Bagshaw and Spencer, the trust was executed in the fense of the distinction, and as contrasted with a trust executory.

There seems to be as little ground, in respect of this point, for the other distinction between a trust and a legal estate.

A court of equity is as much bound by positive rules and general maximis concerning property (tho’ the reason of them may now have ceased,) as a court of law is.

Whatever is sufficient, upon a devise, to make an exception out of the rule, holds in the case of a legal estate, as well as in the case of a trust. If the intention of the testator be contrary to the rules of law, it can no more take place in a court of equity, than in a court of law:
if the intention be illegal, it is equally void in both.
A court of equity cannot support an intention in the testator, to be perpetuity, or to limit a fee upon a tail, or to make a chattel depend to heirs, or land to executors. On the other hand, if the intention be not contrary to law, a court of common law is as much bound to construe and effectuate the will according to that intention of the testator, as a court of equity can be.
Upon the very point now in question, the determinations have been agreeable to this reasoning. Therefore where the trust of a real estate was devised " to A. for life, and after his death to the heirs of his body,” Lord Hardwicke decreed a conveyance to A. in tail; although the estate devised to A. expressly " for life,” left room to doubt of any estate in tail. Afterwards, by the rule of law void, the heir of the body should take by default, and not as a purchase;” and he thought, the rule bound a trust, as well as a legal estate. Garth against Baldwin, in Chan. 18 July 1732.
Where there are circumstances which take a cause out of the rule, the exception holds upon a legal estate, as much as upon a trust.

The case of Lyle v. Gray was a legal estate, upon a deed; and the judgment was affirmed, (tho' by mislaid, it is fuld in Sir Thomas Jones to have been reversed.

Sir Joseph Jekyll's decree in Papillon and Voyce, was upon a legal estate; and Lord King, after considering, did not differ from him; but reversed the decree, expressly upon a new point, upon the discovery of articles in 1697.

Some of the other cases I have mentioned, were likewise upon legal estates.

It is true, Lord Hardwicke, in Bagshaw and Sponer, laid hold of this distinction, to avoid expressly over-ruling the certificate in Coulson and Coulson. But he certainly did not agree in opinion with that certificate. In speaking of it, when he delivered his judgment in Bagshaw and Sponer, he expressed himself thus—"If that case be law", and one of the last things he did in the court of Chancery, was, to lend a like cafe to that court for their opinion; and he told me "he did it, to have Coulson and Coulson reconsidered."

It appears therefore from all that I have been saying, that there is no such fixed and invulnerable rule as has been supposed, "That words of limitation shall never in any case be construed as words of purchase."

And the prefer cafe is the strongest that I can form any imagination of, to justify a construction, "That the heirs of the body of Anne Cornish shall here take as purchasers." The devise cannot take effect at all, but must be absolutely void, unless the heirs of her body take as purchasers.

It must be observed, that the lands devised by this will are gavel-kind; the testator had nephews and nieces, and great nephews and great nieces; and he provides for them, by 4 distinct clauses in his will according to the 4 distinct flocks.

It is agreed, that where words of limitation are grafted upon the word "heir" in the singular number, such heir shall take by purchase. This is settled in Arbor's cafe, (1 Co. Rep. 66.) and was admitted in the cafe of Dubber, on the demie of Trellevoe and Trellevoe, F. & Geo. 2. B. R. (tho' that cafe was distinguished from Arbor's cafe, as "of special fpecies") the words of limitation superadded to the words "heir" are "of heir male." The distinction is, that where it appears to be the intention of the testator, that there should be a fuccesion in tail, it would totally defeat that intention, if all were to velt in the fift fen. But where it does not appear that the testator intended a fuccesion in tail, there indeed the using the word "heir" in the singular number, may be a circumstance of great weight.

Now the term "heirs," (in the plural,) in the cafe of gavel-kind lands, answers to the term "heir" (in the singular) in the common cafe of lands which are not gavel-kind; for the word "heir" (in the singular) would not serve for gavel-kind lands; but must be "heirs" (in the plural).

Therefore all the arguments and reafonings that are applicable to the word "heir" (in the singular,) in the common cafe of lands not being gavel-kind, hold with equal ftrength and propriety, when applied to the plural termination "heirs," when the lands are gavel-kind.

And it is manifest that the testator does not here mean, that this one fourth should go in a coufe of defcent in gavel-kind; for he gives it to the heirs of her body, as well females as males; and mentions females, not only expressly and particularly, but even prior to males. Therefore he cannot take them otherwise than as purchasers. It would be a void devise, if the words were to be construed as words of limitation. For he breaks the gavel-kind defcent, by giving it to females as well as males. It cannot defend to females as well as males, by the rules of gavel-kind. And yet he seems to lay the fame ftreets upon the word "females." He adds likewise, and to their heirs and assigns for ever, to be divided equally share and share alike," may he go further—"As ten- nants in common, and not as joint tenants."

But this could not be, if they were to take in the coufe of ge- vel-kind defcent; for in such cafe, they must take as co- possessors.

The defendant's defpofition of one of the prepoitions of his effate threws his intention as to the reft: I mean the devise of the one fourth to the widow of his deceased nephew Edward Read, and to the heirs of his body, Ge, which can receive no other conftitution, but that those heirs of the body must take as purchasers. For tho' this nephew and his wife fays the very fame words in this devise as in the reft: But he could not mean that his nephew's widow should take an effate-tail in that whole one fourth, or a joint-fee with her children in any part of it. Therefore the neceffary conftruction of that de- vice is a strong argument of his intention and meaning as to the reft.

As to Anne Cornish's taking a fea jointly with her two dyughters, in thirds, as tenants in common; there can be no ground for such a conftruction. For it is clearly the defendant's intention, that the heirs of Anne Cornish's body should not take till after her death: And as the devise to her has no words of limitation added to it, it is of no importance to her life, and what the words would have taken, if she had Survived the desfaor, would have been an effate for life.

Upon the whole, as no man can doubt of this deff- toar's intention; and as this is the only method of ef- fequiting it; and as there is no rule of law that pre- vents heirs taking as purchasers, where the intenfion of the testator requires that they should do fo; I am of opinion that judgment ought to be given for the defend- ant.

Mr. Justice Dennis concurred with his Lordship in opinion, "That courts of law (as well as courts of equity) will always construe wills agreeable to the intenfion of the testator, if that intention be not contrary to law, and inconsistent with the rules of law." And he showed, that the intention of the testator, in the present cafe, must have been, "That the heirs of the body of his nifece Anne Cornish should take as purchasers;" making the like observations as his Lordship had done, upon the lands being gavel-kind, and their being devifed to heirs female as well as male.

And he held, that it is not disagreeable to, or incon- sistent with the rules of law, that "heirs of the body" should, in some cafes, be construed as dejignata prinse:

A (position, not to be difpated, at this time, after so many concurring revolutions.) And this cafe now before the court is one of the cafes where they muft be con- strued. Therefore the heirs of the body of A. C. must here take by purchase; they can take no other way.

And there is no foundation for supposing that Anne Cornish, if she had survived her uncle, could have taken any effect jointly with her daughters, as tenants in common.

Mr. Justice Payler was abfent.

Mr. Justice Wilson premifed, that the court were obliged to the gentlemen who had argued this cafe at the bar, for declining to go into that long ftring of cafes usually cited upon this subjéct. For the principle that muft govern all cafes of this kind, is the intenfion of the testator, provided it be not inconsistent with the rules of law. And all cafes which depend upon the intenfion of the testator (which is the pole-star for the direction of devises) are bef determined upon comparing all the parts of the devise itself, without looking into a multitude of other cafes: For each fands pretty much upon its own circumstances; and one is no rule for another, or very feldomer.

Here the testator intended, beyond all doubt, that the children of his nephews and nieces should take the in- heritance in fee-fimplc, both males and females, per Capita, as tenants in common. And this is a legal in- tenfion.

But this intention cannot take ef- fe by giving an effate in tail or in fee to the fift faker: for the intenfion of the testator muft be fubfervient to the law; and not the law to the intenfion of the testator. Now a fellar, be his intention what it will, cannot make an estate fe deed to males and females all together, nor gavel-kind lands to descend to them as tenants in common. The teffator's intention cannot, therefore, take place by giving Anne Cornell an estate-tail.

What is to be done? Why (as my Lord Cake says) you are to mould the barbarous words and expressions of the teffator, so as to effeetuate his intention;
if you can do fo, without going contrary to the rules of law: But you cannot do this, contrary to the rules of law.

The question therefore, in the prefent cafe, comes to this; "Whether it be absolutely necefsary, that the words heirs, or heirs male, or heirs of the body, muft be, in all cafes, and under all circumstances, words of limitation."

Now it is certain, that in fome cafes and under fome circumstances, they may be confidered words of purfuits; either upon a will, or upon a deed. The cafe of Light
v. Gray was upon a deed. And there is a cafe in Palmer.

359. Walker v. Snows, which was likewise upon a deed:
Edward Egerton conveyed lands by fine, to the use of himself for life, remainder to his first fon and the heirs male; and thereunto he added, subject to his fix fon-fams; remainder to the right heir male of the faid Edward Egerton to be befotted after the faid fixth fon, and of his heirs male. This was holden a contingent estate, and not an estate-tail in Edward Egerton; becaufe it was limited to particular perffons. They are not to be confidered words of limitation, either upon a will or upon a deed, where the manifest intention of the teffator or of the parties declared is to be, or clearly appears to be,
"that they shall not be fo conftrued."

Now it is plain, in the prefent cafe, that the teffator did not mean to ufe the words "heirs of the body," as words of limitation: It is as clear as if he had expreely faid, "I do not intend my heirs during that time."

And as to Anne Cornell's taking an equal share in fee-simple, in common with her daughters.—That conftruction can never hold: For it is most certain, that the teffator did not intend the division into equal fhares to be made till after Anne Cornell's death.

This fume conftruction is further confirmed by the clafe which devifes one fourth to his niefe in law Grace Red, the widow of his deceffed nephew, and to the heirs of her body, in the fame fame of exprffion. For it can never be imagined, that it was his intention to give her, (who was only the widow of his nephew,) an equal share of the fee-simple and inheritance with his natural relations. Per Cur. Unanimous judgment for the defendant.

The following is Lord Hardwicke's argument in the famous cafe of Bagshaw and Spencer, fo mentioned in the two preceding cafes.

Catherine Bagshaw by bill of Revivor, —— Plaintiff;
William Spencer, Cavendish Neville, Esq.
William Higftong, Thomas Charlesworth, Rachel Fizlerbert, John Spencer, and Benjamin and William Spencer, infant fons of William Spencer, ————

Benjamin Afton by will dated the 7th of Sept. 1725, devised all his manors and lands to Edward Downton, Edward Downes the fon, William Spencer, Baptifh Pratt and Robert Charlesworth, their heirs and affigns; in truth, that they and their heirs fhould, in the first place, levy and raife by, with and out of the faid preceffies by the rents, ifuues and profits, or by fale or by mortgage thereof, or fo much thereof as fhould be necffary for the payment of his just debts and funeral expences, and pay the fame and interefl to the time of payment. And after payment the fon, then he gave and devifed the faid pre-cifles, to Edward Downton, Edward Downes the fon and Robert Charlesworth, and the survivors of them and the executors and administrators of fuch survivor for the term of 500 years, without impecfament of wafe; on truftr
And then he gives and bequeaths all his goods, chattels and personal estate to be and come in aid of his real estate, and to be by his executors applied, in the first place towards paying his debts, funeral expenses, and legal consequences.

After the death of the testator, Thomas Bagshaw the devisee of the money in question died without issue in January 1730. And thereupon Benjamin Bagshaw, the second devisee, brought his bill against the trustees to have a performance of the trusts of the will; that the personal estate, as far as it was vested in the executors in consideration of the real estate; and that such part of the real estate may be set apart and sold, as would be sufficient to pay the residue of the debts.

This cause being at issue, a decree was made at the Rolls 21 November 1732, that the proper accounts should be taken of the estate of the said testator's real estate, as together with the rents and profits received, should be necessary to pay his debts and legacies, and the arrears of the annuity, as well as the whole of the said trust estate, in case the devisee should find the same was for the advantage of the parties interested therein, should be paid, and the debts, legacies and arrears of the said annuity be paid out of the money arising by such sale: And in case no more of the said trust estate should be sold, than would raise the same, then a commissin of partition was directed to issue to divide the remainder of the said trust estate into moieties. But in case the whole trust estate should be sold, then the first moiety remaining after the trust performed should be revertible in the purchase of lands. And the court reserved the consideration how the remainder of the trust estate, in case only part thereof should be sold, or in case the whole should be sold, how the lands to be purchased with such overplus surplus money should be limited till after the commissin should be executed and returned, or until such new purchase should be made as aforesaid.

In Michell's term 1732 (the same term with this decree) Benjamin Bagshaw suffered a common recovery of his moiety of the estate.

May 26th 1737, the matter made his report upon the account and certified, that it was for the benefit of the parties interested, that all the testator's trust estate, subject to the said annuity, should be sold for satisfying the several incumbrances mentioned. This report was confirmed by the court.

5th Jan. 1737, Benjamin Bagshaw made his will and devised this moiety to his wife Catherine Bagshaw in fee, and made her executrix.

27th June 1743, Benjamin Bagshaw died. Catherine Bagshaw, his devisee and executrix, brought a supplemental bill in nature of a bill of revivor, to have the former decree carried into execution, and to have the benefit of that moiety of the trust estate which Benjamin Bagshaw was intitled unto.

The cause was heard at the Rolls on this supplemental bill, when the court made this decree. His honour declared, that Benjamin Bagshaw took an estate-tail by the will of Benjamin Abson, and decreed, that the estate in question, or such part thereof as should be necessary, be sold according to the former decree; and that such part of the surplus of the purchase-money be paid, and applied according to the will of the testator Benjamin Bagshaw.

From this decree the defendants John Spencer, Benjamin Spencer and William Spencer have appealed.

The merits of the cause depend on the will of Benjamin Abson, the first testator. Now it is to be observed that has increased subsequent can materially vary that but the right of the parties must be taken as it stood at his death.

Therefore first, Nothing that has been done by the first decree, and the master's report directing the estate to be sold, as most convenient and beneficial for the parties, must be reversed without some discretion. But although it may happen, that a surplus of the money may come to be laid out in a new purchase of lands, the constitution must be exactly the same, and these new purchased lands be settled to the very same uses, if the real estate of the devised lands unfid had been now to be settled.

Secondly, Neither can the recovery and the will of Benjamin Bagshaw the devisee make any alteration; for though the first decree and devise were to carry this moiety to the plaintiff in the supplemental bill, that will make a settlement to the particular uses directed by the will of Benjamin Abson the first testator, unrevealingly and indeed impollible, as things now stand; yet the rights of the parties must be taken to be the same, and the determination of the estate must be the same as to all legal and equitable consequences, as if Benjamin Bagshaw had been living, and now prayed of the court a conveyance of this moiety to himself, according to the uses directed and required by the true construction of Benjamin Abson's will.

These things being premised reduce the cause to two general questions, arising on Benjamin Abson's will.

First, Whether the estate devised to Benjamin Bagshaw in this moiety is a legal estate, that is an use executed by the statute of uses, or a mere trust in equity?

Secondly, Supposing it to be a mere trust in equity, whether it was an estate-tail, or an estate for his life only, with compounding on the devisee's remainder over all the issue of his body respectively.

As to the first question, I am of opinion, That it is a trust in equity, 15. The ftrst devise is to the five trustees and their heirs. This carries the whole fee in law.

Part of their trust is to fill the whole, or a sufficient part thereof, with the payment of debts and funeral expenses. This would have carried a fee by construction, if the word heirs had been omitted out of the devise; because the trust is to continue for ever, and to fell and convey a fee. This was the opinion of the whole court of B. R. in the case of Shaw and Wright, and not disputed upon the whole error in the house of Lords.

If they may fill the inheritance in the whole or any part of the lands, not by force of a power, but by virtue of their estate, they must at law have the fee in the whole; otherwise, as it must from the nature of the thing be uncertain what they may have occasion for to sell, if his recovery and devise should prevail.

On these grounds this case differs from Cordiall's case in C. C. 315, cited in Manning's case, 8 Co. 96. a. Pembury and Barnfield, 2 Vern. 79. Randy and Buxey, Freer. in Chanc. 162. and Carter and Barnadiston in 1 P. Wills. 505. for in all these cases neither the word heirs, or any other words of limitation, were inserted; nor was there any estate.

These therefore were merely chattel interests in the nature of a tenancy by elegance, to hold till the debts were paid.

The only case which made me doubt, was the case of Lord Bay and Seal and Lady Cath. Jones etc. decreed by Lord King, 16th Nov. 1728, and affirmed in the house of Lords in March 1729, to this point.

This is a great authority, and has a strong appearance of being applicable to this case; but on a strict examination, that case differs in a most material part, and upon taking all the clauses of that will together, it amounts only to a devise to the trustees and their heirs during the life of Cecil Parries, and then it was only an estate pour auatre vie, on which a proper legal remainder might properly be limited, and so it was held.

The consequence of this is, that in the present case, the word fee being at law devied to the trustees, no remainder of a legal estate could be limited upon it; and Benjamin Bagshaw could not take a legal estate in remainder in this moiety.

Secondly, But if this cannot be good by way of remainder, it has been argued that it may be so by way of executory devise.

Though a fee cannot be mounted on an absolute fee, so we may on a determinable one. Could Benjamin Bagshaw then take a legal estate in this moiety by way of executory devise?

It is plain he could not; or if he might, he did not; and the plaintiff his devisee cannot claim it from him: For Fist, It seems to be too remote, being after the testator's debts inadEquately should be paid, which may in point of time exceed the compas of a life or lives in being.

Secondly, The recovery suffered by him was before the debts were paid, and consequently before the contingency happened, whilst the freehold and the fee-simple determinate were for an estate in remainder to the trustees; and consequently he could not make a good tenant to the privity to support his recovery to bar the subsequent remainder.

From whence it appears, supposing this was a good executory devise at law to Benjamin Bagshaw, it would prevent the devise from falling by his recovery and will, and intirely de the plaintiff's title.

For whatever makes the recovery void, equally defeats the plaintiff's title, let the construction of the limitations to the heirs of the body of Benjamin Bagshaw be the one way or the other; and the revestion in fee would at law remain unbarred, and veft in the defendant John Spencer who is now heir at law to the testator Benjamin Afton.

This makes it necessary for the plaintiff to admit, that all the devises subsequent to the first limitation to the trustees and their heirs are void in equity: And this brings us to the second and main question, viz. 2dly, Whether the devise to Benjamin Bagshaw in this moiety of the trust-effe is an equitable estate-tail, or an equitable eftate for his life only, with contingent remainderers to the issue of his body fecundly.

2dly, The construction of the words heirs of the body of Benjamin Bagshaw lawfully begotten or to be begotten, as they stand in the will: If they are to be taken as words of limitation, then he was tenant in tail, and his recovery is void.

In order to determine this question, which is the principal, three things must be considered.

1st, What appears to have been the true intention of the testator in this devise?

2dly, Whether that intention is consistent with, and can take effect according to, the general rules of law and equity?

3dly, Whether there is any particular settled rule or determination of this court, which will stand in the way and prevent the testator's intention from taking effect? And under this last head, I propose to consider the difficulty made between trufts executed and trufts executory, and the objection so much urged from hence in favour of the plaintiff.

The first question is, what appears to have been the true intention of the testator in this devise?

This I take to be extremely clear; nobody who reads this will have any doubt on that score, and although one moment, whether he actually intended to make a free settlement of his estate among all his nephews, the sons of his two sisters.

For this purpose (among others) he first vevs the whole fice of the entire estate in trustees; and after having directed the particular trusts, he divided it into moiety, giving one moiety to his nephew, descended from his fister Mrs. Bagshaw, who was dead; and the other moiety to his nephews, descended from his fister Mrs. Spencer, who was then living, for whom he carves out an estate, for her life in that share.

To every one of these nephews, who were in being, and proper to be made tenants for life, he expressly devises for and during the term of his natural life in the very same words in which he has penis'd this devise to his fister Mrs. Spencer, concerning whom there is no doubt but he intended to make her tenant for life, and no more: To every one of these devises he has added these words without imposition, or any other condition: And this would not to be alone sufficient to prevent the operation of law, arising from subsequent words; yet it is one mark of his meaning to give such eftate as would have been punishable for waite, unless thus exempted from it.

Then he devoes to four of his trustees to preferve contingent remainderers in these words: And from and after the determination of that estate, I give and devote the same to the four trustees and their heirs for and during the life of the said Benjamin Bagshaw, to the intent and purpose to preserve the contingent ufe and remainder hereafter limited; but nevertheless to permit and suffer the said Benjamin Bagshaw to re- cease, or in any manner to dispose thereof for and during the term of his natural life.

This has been made the Cards of the cause on the side of the defendant; and it speaks plainly several things.

1st, That the testator intended to give to his several nephews, particularly to Benjamin Bagshaw, whole recovery; now in question, such an estate only as might be forfeited.

2dly, That the estate given to the trustees is after the determination of Benjamin Bagshaw's estate for life; that estate could be determined but two ways, namely, by the expiration of the life, or by forfeiture. The former way he could not mean; because the remainder to the trustees and their heirs is given only during the life of Benjamin Bagshaw, and consequently would carry in it a contradiction in terms. Therefore he must mean the latter, viz. a determination by forfeiture; and from thence it follows, that his intention was to give Benjamin Bagshaw an estate for life, which might be lost.

3dly, The next thing plainly implied in this clause is, that there were contingent ufs or remainderers to be preferred.

Now throughout the devises of the moiety in question, in every one of which this clause is found, there were no contingent estates or remainderers, unless the heir of first descent, among the heirs of the several nephews the name of Bagshaw are allowed to be such. The question then upon point of intention comes to this: Whether these circumstances are not as strong to indicate an intention to reftrain these devises to be for life only, as if the testator had intended to make the word moiety, or any aliene with negative words, which in the case of King and Mil/ington (1 Vent. 235) were admitted by my Lord Hale, and in the case of Backhouse and Wells, Hill, 10 Ann. B. R. (Eq. Ac. 184.) were adjudged by the whole court to give an estate for life, not abridged in the subsequent limitation.

And I am of opinion that they are; for if the testator has thereby declared, that his meaning was to give them such an estate for life as would have been subject to waite, if he had not expressly exempt it, and as might, according to the rules of law, be forfeited, and as was to be followed by contingent remainderers, and not by limitations to the last remainderer for life, it amounts to the same thing as if he had in express words declared his meaning to be, to give no more than an estate for life to Benjamin Bagshaw, and contingent remainderers to those persons who would be heirs of his body.—The counsel for the plaintiff contend, that it was under great difficulty to find any plausible argument to shew a shadow of intention in favour of their construction; and the only thing they relied upon was, That the testator laid shewn in his will that he understood the difference between words of limitation and words of purchase proper to create a contingent remainder; and therefore in devising the other moiety to the heirs of his fister Mrs. Spencer, after he had given to all her sons in being, he devised it to her after-born sons by these words: Every other son on the body of the said Christiana Spencer lawfully begotten or to be begotten, and the heirs of the body of every such son, as they shall be, and their issue, and the issue of their issue, and so on, in succession.

That by this it appears, he knew the words heirs of the body would create an estate-tail. But I think this difference in the penning affords an observation of a contrary import, and strengthens the evidence of intention on the other side. He thaw, that as to sons already born, the testator has given the testator's will, though it has been made with words that might not be to be alone sufficient to prevent the operation of law, arising from subsequent words; yet it is one mark of his meaning to give such estate as would have been punishable for waite, unless thus exempted from it.

Then he devises to four of his trustees to preserve contingent remainderers in these words: And from and during their lives, and the words, without impeachment of of waifs; and has interposed no clause to preferre contingent remainders between the devise to those after-born foons, and the limitations to the heirs of their bodies; than which nothing can possibly be stronger to demonstrate, that in the one cafe, it was meant to give a more cefate for life, and to use the words heirs of the body as words of purchase,defcriptive of their sons and daughters, and in the other clause to give an cefate of inheritance, and to use the words heirs of the body as words of limitation, because the law will not suffer him to make a mortgage after a contingency, and to carry on contingent uses farther.

2dly, The next question is, admitting this to have been the testator's intention, whether that intention is confluent with, and can take effect according to, the general rule of law or equity. And it is contended for the plaintiff that the words there given to the plaintiff place their great strength. For they say that the law will not suffer a man even by a will to make devises and create limitations contrary to its own rules; that if he attempt to do fo, the law will supercede his intention, and reduce his gift to fuch an execution as will allow, that the law has established a clear rule ever since the resolution of Shelley's case, 1 Ca. 104; that wherever by any gift or conveyance the ancestor takes an estate of freehold, and by the same gift or conveyance an estate is limited either mediately or immediately to the heirs of his body, these words are words of limitation, and only convey an estate to the child, with all the incidents of an estate of inheritance, fo as to give him the inheritance.

To go by fteps. I admit the general principle, that the law will not suffer a man to make devises and create limitations contrary to its own rules; and if he intends to do it, will supercede his intention; but I apprehend it is misapplied in the present cafe. The true application of this principle is to the nature and operation of the estate intended to be created by such devises and limitations, and not to the construction of the words.

I will not fay that this principle has never been applied to the construction of some particular technical words, to which the law has fixed a certain, appropriated, invariable fens; but even that this is its own interpretation, unfailing and without proper definition. The true meaning of the principle is what I have laid down: Therefore the law will not suffer a man to create a perpetuity by a will any more than by a deed; nor to put the freehold of lands in abeyance, fo as that there shall be no perfon to perform the services due thereunto; which is an absolute fee-simple, not to make a charter deductible to heirs generally. Consider what is the reason of this: It is because this would be to change the law, and by the acts of private perons to vary the rule of property, which that has infifted. This therefore arises for want of powcr to give the estate of perpetual inheritance in a principle which is a fee-simple, not to make a charter deductible to heirs generally. But in the cafe in question, there is no want of powcr; for there can be no doubt but the testator might devise his lands for fuch estates for life, and with fuch contingent remainders as are contended for by the defendants. The only objection is, that he has used improper words, which the law will not allow to have this operation, notwithstanding the intention remained. But is not this very hard, and repugnant to the first and fundamental rules of law in expounding wills? These rules are, that the intention of the testator shall govern the construction of the words; that the testator is presumed to be moft cofcient, and therefore, if his intention appears plain to be lawful, although he has barbarous or unfit words in his will, the law will confine thofe barbarous or unfit words into words proper and fufficient in law, according to that intention which appears in his will. This is laid down in Barofon's cafe, 3 Ca. 20, and Mot. Manning's cafe, 3 Ca. 95, and has been adhered to ever fince.

Next, what is the objection here? Is it any more than that the testator has used words unfit and improper to create contingent remainders; but does not the fundamental rule of construction fay, that if the intention appears, the law will expound and mould thofe unfit and improper words in fuch a fens as will ferve his intention? which cannot be done here without conftruing heirs of the body as words of purchase, descriptive of the sons and daughters of the first taker and their issue.

However it is still urged, that the law has affixed to peculiar and peculiar parts of the body, that they can be nothing but words of limitation, and operate to enlarge the estate of the first taker, according to Brett and Ridgen's cafe in Plowden, and Shelley's cafe, and cannot be words of purchase. This is the ground. Try it and fee whether it will hold. It is far from holding; for there are no words of limitation, nor are the heirs of the body as well as issue held to be words of purchase. Archer's cafe, 1 Ca. 66. b. The words indeed there were next heir male in the fingular number; yet that was not the reafon of the determination, but because words of limitation were added after them; but these words added do not give them the definitiveness of the testator's intent in using the firit words.

Clarkes and Day, Moar 594. The testator devised his lands to John his daughter for life; and if the marriage after my death, and have issue of her body begotten, I will that her heir after my daughter's death have the lands, and to the heirs of their bodies begotten, remainder over to another. It was adjudged, that the daughter had not an estate- tail, but only for her life. So in the cafes cited by Lord Hale in King and Mellong, and the cafe of James and Richardson, 1 Vent. 334. and Poller, 457. and 2 Vent. 311, by the name of Darby and Dur- fant, 111. where the defendant claimed that the heirs of the body as well as issue were held to be words of purchase. The cafe of the Arches, 1 Ca. 66. b. I choose only to refer to these well known cafes. But upon this point, a stronger authority than all these is the cafe of Lijfe and Gray, in Sir Thomas Jones 114. Poller, 592. and Sir Thomas Raymond 315,—In execution a special verdict was found, that John Lijfe by indenture covenanted to fand fified of lands to the use of himself for life, remainder to his fons Edward for life, remainder to the firft fon of Edward in tail, with like remains to his second, third, and fourth fons, and fe severally and refeptively to each of the heirs male of the body of Edward, and the heirs males of their bodies, remainder to the heirs of the body of William Lijfe; and that the right of indemnity for the recovery, under which the defendant claimed, and William Lijfe was lefior of the plaintiff. The question was, whether Edward had an estate-tail executed in him before the birth of any fon? But it was adjudged he had only an estate for life; for it was an estate for life limited to him, and an estate-tail to his four fons, because limited to the heirs male of their bodies; and it was intended that each of the fons should take in the fame manner; fo that the words to each of the heirs male of the body of Edward, intended each other of the fons, and the rather because there is a limitation over to the heirs male of their bodies, which was the condition of the right of indemnity for the recovery. And judgment was given for the plaintiff. It is faid in Sir T. Jones's reports, that judgment was given for the defendant; but that is either a mistake in the reporter, or a misprint, for the fame cafe is reported in 2 Lev. 223; and there it is faid to have been held, that Edward took only an estate for life, and the words signifies remod in- de: fo that Edward has but an estate for life from the manifefit intent of the conveyance, which ought if po- fible to be supported, and judgment was given for the plaintiff. Sir T. Jones fays, this judgment was revered in the Exchequer chamber; but that appears also to be a mistake, for the report is only the cafe of Long and Blem- mont, 2 Vent. 65. and 2 Rot. 141, B. R. and there it ap- pears this judgment was affirmed.

This was adjudged even upon a limitation in a deed, where the fame latitude of construction is by no means to be allowed as upon a will; and therefore it is the strongest authority that the law has here, viz. a special plea pinned down to the words, the body to be able at will of limitation, but they may be taken as words of pur- chase.

To this it hath been faid, that in Life and Gray there were several words; the 18th, 20th, and 30th, and 4th fons mentioned in the fifth place, and afterwards fo separately and respectively to each of their heirs male of the body of Edward the fons, and the heirs male of their bodies; that It must be admitted that this resolution is a clear author-ty, that upon the will in question the inheriting a limitation to trustees to prefer another con-the same was not sufficient to change the sense of the words heads of the body into words of purchase, and to make the issue take by way of remainder even tho' there were no other contingent remainders in that will. No body can have a greater right for the judges who made that certificate, than I have; but it differs from the present case. If, there was in that will no clause without impeachment of words; but perhaps that may be thought not to deferve much weight.
2dly, It was a devise of a legal estate, and not a device to the heirs of the body, but the words must be taken as they stand, and the judges were right to understand them according to their legal operations. No conveyance was to be made; nor any subsequent act to be done: They might think they could not take into their consideration, the trust of the estate limited to the trustees to support the contingent remainders; but only the legal estate so limited, and how that separately taken would operate. But in the case now in judgment all the limitations relative to the present question are a trust; the constitution and direction whereof is the prospective subject of the jurisdiclion of this court; which the court may, and is expressly directed by the the titor. This was determined by his honour the Marter of the Rolls, and in that I agree with him. The consequence arising from hence is, that a great latitude is forced in the construction of the words in order to comply with the intention, since they are to be modelled and reduced into a conveyance by the the court.
3dly, The last observation I shall make upon this case is, that the opinion of the Judges furnishes a new light in the present cause, which did not appear at the time of the last decree made by the Master of the Rolls; for the Judges say, that the interposing the remainders in the case, and their heirs bound between the estate to Robert Coulfon for life and the limitation to the heirs of his body, prevents the estate for life being united with and merged in the inheritance, and that he took a different estate for life with reminders to himself in tail. I define this may be remembered for the fake of the use I shall make of it by and by; for I think it affords a decisive argument, that in directing the conveyance, the court must depart from the words of this will. But upon the constrution of the limitation, the great difference between the two cases is, that in Coulfon and Coulfon, the devise was (as I observed) of a mere estate for life, and in the present case the estate is of a trust in equity. The answer relied upon to this distinction has been, that limitations of trusts, and limitations of legal estates are governed by the same rules; and the construction must be the same in both; that otherwise one rule of property would prevail at law, and another be allowed in Chancery, which ought not to be admitted:
And for this my Lord Nottingham's conclusions in the Duke of Norfol's case in 2 Cha. Cases were cited.
All these conclusions I shall allow and adhere to in a found fence, and I agree that one rule of property is not to prevail at law, and another to be set up in Chancery. But I can leave that to the learned counsel in the other side. If he no where says the construction of the words must in both cases be exactly the same, or a coeft of equity, when it is bound to direct a conveyance, cannot exceed them more liberally to comply with the intention of the party. His words are:—The limitation of the trust of a term, and the limitation of the estate of a term, all depend on the same reason & and afterwards " It is agreed all along, that the measures of the limitation of the trust of a term, and the measures of the limitation of the estate of a term are all one, and uniform here and in other cases: And there is no difference in Chancery and at law, between the terms of the one, and the rules of the other, what is good in one case is good in another."

What is my Lord Nottingham's reasoning here applied to?

The
The meanings of the limitation; that the limitation cannot be carried further in the one case, than the law will permit in the other; and this appears clearly to be his meaning, by the words immediately following his argument. As to the other case before the court is agreed, that is, the limitation of the remainder of the term for years, in that case, after an estate in tail in the term, is void. To this his argument, That otherwise it would be to set up one rule of property at law, and another in Chancery, is properly applied; and the meaning of the limitation, where to which they may be carried do essentially concern the rules of property, and how near we may approach to a perpetuity, which was the great correlate in the phrase of Norfolk’s case. But the more or less liberal construction of the words, to comply with the intent, does not concern or affect those rules, if the court will think proper to follow that course. John, lord chancellor, delivered from the technical use of the words; and in conformity thereto did direct the conveyance within the rules of law allowed to such limitations. My lord Nottingham’s doctrine is complied with, and the mischief which he condemnns, is avoided. Upon this reasoning many revolutions of this court have been founded, which were cited at the bar. I shall begin with the case of Papillon and Vokes, because it establishes a distinction between a legal estate and a trust in the same case, and upon the same will.

Samuel Papillon deviled 10,000 l. to the trustees, to be laid out in lands, and to be settled upon his son John Papillon, for the time being, in the event of his marriage, and from and after the determination of that estate to trustees and their heirs during the life of John Papillon, to prefer the contingent remainders, remainder to the heirs of the body of John with remainders over, with power to John to make a jointure. And by the same will, the testator deviled the manor of Great Bentley in Essex, and certain lands in possession to John for his life, without impeachment of waft, and from and after the determination of that estate to trustees and their heirs during the life of John, to prefer contingent remainders, and from and after his decease to the heirs of the body of John, with remainders over. Upon this will it was adjudged by the Master of the Rolls, That as to the devise of the manor of Great Bentley and lands in possession, an estate for life only failed to John Papillon, with the remainders to the heirs of the body of John by purchase, and that the deeds and writings relating to the lands should not be delivered to John Papillon, but left in the hands of trustees, to be delivered into court for the benefit of the remainder and of all parties interested. And that as to the money, to be laid out in lands, and settled to the same uses, the court most evidently had a power over that, and therefore it should be so settled as to make John tenant for life, and that his sons should take in tail male successively, as purchase, without impeachment of waft, to the intent of the devise.

Afterward the cause coming upon an appeal before the Lord Chancellor King, his lordship revered so much of the decree as related to the deeds and writings of the manor of Great Bentley, and the lands deviled in possession, and ordered them to be delivered to the plaintiff John Papillon, but reversed the decree as to the remainder of the trust, by which the court would be at liberty to which related to the money to be laid out in the purchase of lands.

Upon this precedent several things are to be observed, of weight in the present case. First, That both the Judges, who heard and determined that cause, concurred and were clear in opinion, that the testator’s intention was plain, to give an estate for life only to John Papillon, with contingent remainders of the inheritance to his sons and daughters, and this founded principally on the clause appointing trustees to prefer contingent remainders; that as to the trust estate, to be purchased and settled, this court was willing to leave in the technical force of the words heirs of the body, and to direct the settlement to be made accordingly.

Secondly, That Sir Jos. Jeffil, who took much time to consider of the cause, and made his decree in great deliberation, was of the same opinion as to the legal estate deviled in the manor of Great Bentley, and held that the same intention governs in both.

As to this point indeed, my Lord King upon the appeal differed from his brother, but by the same opinion, that as to the legal estate deviled in the manor of Great Bentley, it was at law an estate in tail by force of the words heirs of the body.

But it must be observed, that it was not at all necessary for my Lord King to give an opinion on this point, and could not have been decided by the court, but because the plaintiff’s father’s marriage articles, whereupon the supplemental bill was brought after the first decree, were admitted and read in the cause, and by them he was clearly intitled in equity to an estate in tail in Great Bentley, so that it was not in the testator’s power to devile, and his will did not operate.

However, I admit he declared that opinion; but upon this part of the case there is something remarkable, which I perfectly remember, and appears by notes which I then took in court on the back of my bill. The cause was heard on the appeal and supplemental bill on a Saturday, the regular day for appeals. Then his Lordship declared the opinion I have mentioned, and said he would not then pronounce his decree, but consider till Monday. On Monday he said he looked into the cause of Esle and Gray, and that it was indeed a very strong case. And he seemed to be clear in his opinion, as he went on to the supplemental bill, that he was not in the judgment of the court, than he was the day before; but as the supplemental bill had brought a new title to the plaintiff in the cause, he did not stay to give it any further consideration, but affirmed the decree as to the settlement of the trust estate; and as to the deeds and writings concerning the title of Great Bentley, he revoked that part of the decree直升机 his Rolls, and ordered them to be delivered to the plaintiff; But it is very observable he took care to express in his decree, that his direction is founded on the supplemental bill, and fo it appears by the register’s book.

This looks as if he had a mind to avoid any decision of this point upon the will, and the record of the decree makes it no decision.

However since the case of Caflion and Caflion I will urge the case of Papillon and Vokes no further than as an authority (and so far it is a great one) that upon a trust estate created by a will, a devise so penned ought to receive this construction, and the court to direct a conveyance accordingly. And in this the court was clearly warranted by former precedents.

The Countess of Shapely (int. al.) deviled her real and personal estate to Sir Charles Cotterell and others, and their heirs for payment of debts and legacy, and after to their heirs or assigns, and to the use of the said Sir Charles and others, for the benefit of her son Henry, and the heirs of the body, by a second wife, and in default of such issue to her son Francis and the heirs of his body, with remainders over; taking special care in such settlement, that it never shall be in the power of either of my sons Francis or Henry to deck the intail of either of the said mainents given them as afofor said, during their or either of their life or lives. And Whether Francis and Henry were intitled to have an estate in tail conveyed to them, or only an estate for life, was the question; the defendant the Lord Suffolk having pur chased from Henry and his younger brother who was the plaintiff’s father. Upon the hearing of the cause, my Lord Cotterell declared, that the sons must be made only tenants for life, and should not have an estate in tail conveyed to them, but their estate for life should be without impeachment of waft, because here an estate is not executed but only executory, and therefore the intent and meaning of the settatrix is to be purposed; She has declared, that the sons shall have in their own right, with the power to bar their children; which they would have if an estate in tail was to be conveyed to them; but had the by her will deviled to sons an estate in tail, the law must have taken place, and they barred their issue, notwithstanding any subsequent clause or declaration in the will, that they should not have power to claim the intail.
Upon this case I will only make this observation agreeably to my Lord Coventer's opinion, that if in this will the devise had been of a legal estate in lands, with such a clause accompanying it: "Taking special care in such settlement, &c. the fons must have been tenants in tail, and that clause have had no operation; and yet upon a trust in equity, it governed the whole, as a demonstration of the testator's intention, and turned them into freeholds; it may be thought that the testator saw why the devise in the will now in question to trustees to preserve contingent remainder must not have the same operation.

Another great authority to this purpose, is, the case of Sir J. Hobart and the Earl of Stamford, decreed 16th by my Lord Coventer, 19th December, 1709, and affirmed in the House of Lords. He briefly states the matter of the flatting this case particularly, because I have seldom found it correctly stated, or the determination explained in its proper force.

Mr. Serjeant Mayo: by his will devised his estate to trustees and their heirs, to the use of them and their heirs, upon several trusts, viz. That the trustees (after the death of his wife) should convey part thereof to the use of, and in trust for Sir Hen. Hobart and Eliza, his wife (the testator's grand-daughter) for their lives, and the life of the survivor; the remainder to the first fon of the said Eliza for 99 years, if he shall so long live, remainder to the heirs male of the body of such first son; to all and every the sons of Eliza, for 99 years (if they respectively so long live); the remainder to the heirs male of every of them, to take not jointly but successively; the fons to take the term of 99 years, with immediate remainder to his said heirs male; remainder to his said grand-daughter (afterwards Countess of Stamford) for her life, with remainder to all and every her fons for such term of 99 years, with remainder to the heirs male of the body of every such fcn.

He further wished, that the other part of his estate should by advice of counsel be conveyed to, or to the use of, Mary Mayo: life, without impeachment of waft; and, after, remainder to all and every her fons for 99 years, (if such fons or fons shall so long live) with several remainder to the heirs male of the body of every such fcn; they and all the heirs male of their bodies to take successively; each fcn to take the said term, with remainder thereto of the body of such fcn; and after the determination of the said estates and failure of such heirs male of their respective bodies, the remainder thereof to his said grand-daughter, Lady Hobart and her fons, with the like terms and remainder; the remainder of all the estate to trustees and their heirs, during the lives of said Eliza Mayo, the wife of said Hobart, and after the said Eliza Mayo's death, the heirs male of the body of such first fcn was void in law; for the estate limited to such first fcn was for 99 years only, and not a freehold, and consequently could not, within the doctrine of Shelley's case, unite with the limitation to the heirs male of his body; and by way of contingent remainder. It could not be good, because there was no estate of freehold to support it. From hence it followed necessarily, if those words had been inserted in a conveyance, the freehold and inheritance must at law have vested in the coheirs of Sir John Mayo; and yet the court made good the whole by inferring an estate to trustees to preserve contingent remainder.

3dly, Taking the limitation as it stand in the will, and reducing the words, or even the strict legal operation of those words, from the words of limitation, the heir male of the body of such first fcn was void in law; for the estate limited to such first fcn was for 99 years only, and not a freehold, and consequently could not, within the doctrine of Shelley's case, unite with the limitation to the heirs male of his body; and by way of contingent remainder. It could not be good, because there was no estate of freehold to support it. From hence it followed necessarily, if those words had been inserted in a conveyance, the freehold and inheritance must at law have vested in the coheirs of Sir John Mayo; and yet the court made good the whole by inferring an estate to trustees to preserve contingent remainder.

4thly, The private act of parliament did not direct any limitation to trustees, to preserve contingent remainders after the estate to the Earl of Stamford for 99 years, if he shou'd so long live, and yetthat was also directed. 4thly, Mr. Serjeant Mayo: had an express charge to convey his estate to trustees, which he ought to have supported contingent remainders after the devies for life to Sir J. Hobart, Lady Hobart and the Countess of Stamford; and therefore it might have been argued, and undoubtedly was so, that where the testator intended such an estate to preserve contingent remainders, he had infurged it, and consequently where he had omitted it, he did not intend it. should be done: Further, the will concluded with negative words, and to no other use or purpose whatsoever.

This is a much more plausible objection, than what is drawn in the present case, from the different penning of the devise of the other moiety to the after-born sons of Mrs. Spencer, and yet it did not prevail against the testator's governing intention to make a strict settlement. These cases were precedent to that of Papillion and Fryer, but where the authority has been followed by others subsequent.

As to the question of Sir John Abbot and his wife, as to his will of November 1734, before Sir Jef. Jefly, and R. Jef. Abbot by his will he gave 12,000l., in money, and 6000l. in S.S. annuities to trustees, in trust as soon as conveniently might be after his death, to sell the same and lay out the money in a purchase of lands of inheritance to be conveyed to his executors, in trust, and after his death to the issue of his body lawfully begotten, and for want of such issue, to his nephew Henry Abbot in fee. Sir Jef. Abbot brought his bill for a performance of this trust, at the hearing of the cause one question was, what estate the plaintiff ought to take in the lands to be purchased, whether for life only or in tail; for it was infurmed on his part, that if it had been a devise of the lands to the wife, she would have been clearly tenant in tail, and the trust ought to receive the same confiscation. But the court held, he ought to be made tenant for life only of the lands to be purchased, and decreed, that they should be conveyed to the plaintiff for life, with remainder to trustees to prefer and execute contingent remainders, with remainders to his issue in tail general, with remainder to his daughters in tail, as tenants in common, and not as joint tenants, with crofs remainders between them, remainder in fee to the defendant H. Abbot.

This decree has stood without being appealed from, but here I must take notice, that the words of limitation are "by his body and not heirs of his body," as in the premises. But it has been establisht ever since the case of King and Melling, that in a will the words "by his body" are as strict proper words of limitation, as "heirs of the body," and equally give an effet-tail in lands legally devised, and so undoubtedly would have been the case of Abbot and Abbot, if it had been a devise of the lands; What changed that confiscation in the case of Bocheche and Wills was the word only, which importation a negative.

The next case I shall mention is that of Withers and Allgool, decreed by Lord Talbot, 4 July 1735. I shall take it from the Register's book, and it was this: Jef. Allgool, being seized of certain lands in fee simple and held to the use for years in houfe, by deed dated 10th February 1714, conveyed the same to trustees, to hold such part of the premises as was freedhold to the use of the trustees and heir, and such part as was leasehold to the trustees, their executors and administrators, upon trust, that they should apply the rents of the premises and the benefit of redemption thereof to the plaintiffs Hannah Wither for life, and after her death to the heirs of the body of the plaintiff Hannah Withers, and of Jef. Allgool, since deceased, and of Hannah Gough and Mary Allgool and to their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, during the continuance of the interest in the premises.

After the tetter's death, Hannah Withers jointly with her husband, brought her bill for a redemption of certain mortgages which were upon the premises devised, and for a performance of the trusts of the will. At the hearing of the cause, one question was, what estate the plaintiff Hannah took in her husband's part of the time of her surviving her husband for life or in tail, and upon argument my Lord Talbot was of opinion that the title only an estate for life, and has declared it in his decree in these words: "That the plaintiff Hannah Withers is intitled to the equity of redemption of the freehold and halfhold premises comprised in the devise of the said Hufband for life or in tail, and for keeping down the interest during her life, out of the rents and profits.

You must know that in this case the words are heirs of the body, and yet were held to be words of purchase. I am sensible, that it has been endeavoured to be distingushed by saying, that the heirs of the body of Hannah Wither were joined in the devise with other persons who clearly must take by purchase by way of remainder, and that it was upon the interest of the husband, that they should all take in the same manner by purchase. But what does that amount to? only that a plain indication of the testator's intention to change those words of limitation of estate into words of purchase, which is all that is contended for in the case now in judgment. For this argument is not conclusive, nor does it affect the duty necessity to make them words of purchase; since, if it had been a grant of a legal estate, Hannah Wither must have taken one fourth part of the inheritance as tenant in tail, and the other three-fourths have gone after her decease to the grantees in remainder. In a report which I have seen of this case, my Lord Talbot did expressly, that the rule of law is not to construe as to control the intent of the party where plain.

The last authority which I shall cite under this head, is that of my Lord and Lady Glencrery and Befville, which was decreed by Lord Talbot in Hill, 1733. Sir Thomas Perball by will devised this estate to trustees, upon trust, for his grandson, and his grand-daughter Arabella Perball should marry or die, to receive the rents and profits, and to pay her 100l. per annum, for maintenance, and as to the residue, to pay his debts and legacies, and after payment thereof, then in trust for his said grand-daughter, and upon further trust, if that the married a protestant of the church of England, and should be of the age of twenty-one years, or if under that age, and such marriage should be with the consent of her aunt, then to convey the estate with all convenient speed after such marriage, to the use of the said Arabella for life, without impeachment of wafe, voluntary wafe in houses excepted; remainder after her death to her husband for life; remainder to the issue of her body, with remainder over; and upon further trust, if the said Arabella died unmarried, then to the use of the said Arabella for life, remainder to the fon of his other grand-daughter Frances Ireland, and the heirs of his body, with several remainders over; and upon further trust, if Arabella should marry not according to the directions of his will, or not according to the directions of the trustees, as to one moiety thereof, to the use of Arabella for life, remainder to the fon of his other grand-daughter Ireland in like manner. The testator died, and Arabella now Lady Glencrery attained her full age. Upon a treaty of marriage with Lord Glencrery, she obtained a conveyance from one of the trustees to herself for life, remainder to her intended husband for life; then to the heirs of her body; but the defendants Befville, the law trustees for her, was also a remainder, relates, refused to convey. However the having by this conveyance a legal estate-tail in one moiety, and an equitable estate in the other, suffered a recovery to the use of herself in fee, and in 1730 married my Lord Glencrery, who made a considerable settlement upon her. As to her own estate, she covenanted to settle it upon her husband for life, trust, with the right to tail and every other fon of that marriage in tail male, and upon failure of such issue to the survivor of the husband and wife in fee. The bill was brought to have a conveyance of one moiety of the trust estate from Mr. Befville to the Uses declared in the marriage articles; and the principal question of the hearing was the title of the other trustee by virtue of this will Lady Glencrery was entitled to be tenant in tail or for life only. The cause came on first before my Lord King, who took time to advise, and to have the opinion of the Judges; afterward it came on before my Lord Talbot, who after long argument and deliberation.
Lute consideration held, that she was intituled only to an estate for life with remainder to her husband for life, with remainder to trustees to preserve contingent ufe, with remainder to her children and every other foiks in tail, with remainder to her daughter and her interest, subject to the condition of: Thomas Pelfall's will, to rebut the fuppofed intention of making Lady Glenorchy only tenant for life in a cafe the married according to the direcions of this will, which he办 has. As the other parties to the play, that he had directed the moft of the estate to be conveyed to her for life, with remainder to trustees to preserve contingenf remaniders, with remainder to her own and every other fon, being a protestant in tail, whereas in the cafe it was barely intituled to her for life, then to her husband for life, and then to the ufe of her body general.

From hence it appeared, that the maker of this will knew the difference between a general limitation in tail, and a fiftet limitation, and knew aho how and in what place properly to infert trustees to prevefe contingent remaniders, when he inteded it. This furnished a much stronger objection than that which is drawn in the prefit cafe from the limitation of the other moiety to the afterborn fons of Mrs. Spencer, and yet it did not prevail to support the legital construction of the words against the manifest general intention of the teftator.

3dly, This cafe naturally leads me to the third and last question, Whether there is any particular fetteld rule or determination of this court, which will stand in the way and prevent the teftator's intention from taking effect.

And under this head I told you, I proceeded to consider the diftinction between truffts execuf and trufis executory.

For the plaintiff, it has been objected, that two particular fettled rules fland in the way. 1st, That after in decreeing an execution of marriage articles, entered into for valuable considerations, the court in order to render the contract of the parties effeclual, will make fuch a construction as is contended for by the defendants: Yet upon a will, under which all the parties claim voluntarily, the words devifing a trufl estate must be taken as they are, and the court is not at liberty to depart from them.

2dly, That even in the cafe of wills there is a differ ence established between trufts executed and trufis executory. That for instance, Where the devisee is to the use of A, and B, and C, and his heirs or issue of his body, that is a trufis executed, and the court cannot vary the words; but where the devise is to A, and his heirs, upon trufl to convey the estate to B, and the heirs or ifiue of his body, that is a trufis executory: and the court has a greater latitude to mould and frame it fo as to infwer his intention.

The leading authority to support the fift objection is, that of Bale and Coleman decreed by Lord Capel 26th July 1708, and afterw ard by a rehearing by Lord Har-
If it had refled here, this decree had been a clear authority for the defendants in this case; but Bale and Culeman was rebated before Lord Harcourt in April 1711, when the main opinion, and ordered, that my Lord Couper’s decree, so far as it directed a conveyance of the last fourth part to the frift and every other son of Christopher Bale, should be reversed, and instead thereof, it should be conveyed after the death of Christopher Bale, to the use of the heirs male of the body of the said Chris-opher Bale; and that the same was confirmed to the use of Counfell, Bogan, Digger and their heirs as tenants in common.

In this decree my Lord Harcourt has caused his reasons to be very minutely entered, and from them the plaintiff’s counsel have argued more than from the judgment itself.

The declarations are these: His Lordship declared, that this case, arising upon the words of a will, was much different from the cases decreed in this court upon mar-rriage articles; that such articles are always intended to be carried into a further and more perfect execution; that the parties to such articles are to be considered as purchasers; and in a court of equity ought to have their contract executed according to the intent and the nature and consequent to what they were intended to perform and to give, whereof the issue male of the marriage are particularly regarded and generally taken as purchasers.

That when by the careles penning of marriage articles, the contract is expressed in consideration of an tended marriage and portion, and to settle the husband’s eftate to the use of the wife or children of her body, and her heirs male, or the like, that general limitation has been restrained in this court (when an execution of the marriage articles and agreement has been decreed) to an eftate to the husband for life, with a remainder to his frift and other sons in tall male; for that it could not reasonably be supposed a valuable consideration was agreed to be given to have an eftate so fettled, that the husband should destroy or bar the settlement as soon as he should makes it: But that no one cafe had been cited where the like decree had been made upon the words of a will, under which the devises claim voluntarily; that in this cafe the question arose upon the words in the codicil; and that all wills ought to be construed according to the intent of the testator; so as much intent appears with certainty, and be consistent with the rules of law; but such intent could not otherwise be considered in a court of equity than in the courts of law; and that the same words of limitation in in a will, ought to receive the same construction in a court of equity as they have at law; that the same words in in a will, would have been considered for Lord Harcourt to be so construed in this court, when they fall under a truftr, and are to be carried into a further execution, as in this present cafe by the words in the codicil, according to the known rules of construction of law: The testator has given the plaintiff an eftate-tail in the defendant Elizabeth Bale’s share after her decease, and subject to her power of leaving, given by the testator, and in that in this cafe it could not be inferred with any certainty from the power of leaving, that no eftate-tail was intended; in regard such power of leaving is more beneficial than that given to tenant in tail by ftr. 32 H. 8. And it being admitted, that the deeds and legacies stand, therefore the same words ought to be construed as if they have been and then in construction of law, it will be an eftate-tailed exec.

Consider these reasons, and how far they are applicable to the present case. The frift part of this declaration, relating to the distinction between the construction of marrige articles and wills, I refer to my Lord Harcourt's collection; but has nothing to do with the present cafe; and it is remarkable, that the case there put, is, of articles limiting the eftate to the husband and wife and the heirs male of their bodies; which in this case would be decreed to be executed in strict settlement, and then it follows, that this date has been construed that the like decree had been made upon the words of a will.

This is very true: There never was such a decree, nor ever will be, where there is no more in a will than is there flated; for in the cafe put there is no intrefion of truftees to prefer contingent remainder, nor any thing elfe to indicate an intenfion different from the legal force of the words.

The next clause in the declaration seems to be applied to the case of a will relative to eftates, and the words about which there is no question but they must receive the same construdion in courts of equity as in courts of law.
The next words relate directly to devises of truftrs, and I own they go a great way; “That the same words in a will, which at law would create a legal intall, ought to be so construed by this court, when they fall under a truftr, and are to be carried into a further execution as in the present cafe, so as to make an equitable intall.” Now here I must observe, that this propofition includes all truftrs, as well what have been called truftrs executory as truftrs executed.
For the words are, which are to be carried into a further execution.

I fear his Lordship, for whose abilities I have great deference, had not in that cafe been fully informed of the precedents; for almost every one of the authorities of this cafe which I have cited under my second head, are direct contradictions to this propofition, and having already flared them, I now only refer you to them.

At the conclusion of the general argument in this decclaration, there is a very remarkable clause, “And it being admitted, that the debts and legacies are paid; therefore the fame construction ought to be made, as if no truftr had been.” His Lordship has thought fit to call in this reafon in aid of his opinion; but I own I cannot perceive any reason for it, and that the reasoning was very various and operated at all in the expofition of the will; but if it could be, it diftinguiishes that cafe from the cafe now in judgment; for here the eftate is not fold, nor the truftr performed.

I may be thought to fland in need of some excufe for dwelling so long upon this cafe; but it has been so much emposed and relied upon, that I thought it necessary, and I cannot help adding one circumstance within my private knowledge.

After this noble Lord was out of his office, I have heard him more than once express himself very strongly and very wisely against declaring general reasoning in decrees of this court, which possibly may affect other cafes, not then in judgment, and which consequently could not have been fully considered nor foreseen. I could have whifhed that his Lordship had not departed from that cautious rule in this infance.

But to add force to this precedent, it was laid at the bar, that the cause was reheard again before my Lord Couper, when he came to the great fel a fecond time, and that my Lord Couper, having been reheard by Lord Harcourt’s orders, and the latter decree made for the reafon of his own. But that was a mistake; for it never was reheard again by Lord Couper, and indeed second hearings are contrary to the general rule of the court; and therefore if Lord Couper ever did throw out any thing like giving way to Lord Harcourt’s reafonings in that cafe, it must be only obftr upon the occasional mention of it in some other cafe; and after all, my Lord Harcourt’s reheaf of Lord Couper’s decree does not fland in need of that deetial of general reasons to support it: It may be maintained upon the foot of particular diftinctions from other precedents, and this alone is not sufficient to sustain the cafe.
2dly, I come now to the fcond objection arising under this head, which is founded on the difference said to have been effablifhed between truftrs executory and truftr executed: “That the court has a greater latitude of construdion to anfwer the intent in the one than in the other.”

Nobody can be more averse than I am Quita nuerus, to shafe things fettled; but I cannot find that this disfinition has been eflablifhed by any direft reafon upon the point, though mention has been made of it argu-endo, and reafons have sometimes been drawn from it collaterally, to strengthen decisions in cafes where a conversion alleged is rejected by the court.

If one was to examine this diſtinſion to the bottom, it might perhaps found a little strange in the ears of law-ers, that such a diſtinſion should be solemnly eſtablifhed.
All truftrs are in the notion of law executory, and to be executed in this court by pulpits, as the old books would have it.
W. I. L. W. I. L.

speak. At Common law every use was a trust; Then comes the flat. 27 H. 8. and executed the legal eale to the use, and conjounded them together. That statute makes:—therefore the words of the statute is this:—

"If the word be to be construed as a trust, then the words of the statute are therefore a trust."

And therefore in order to bring it into the jurisdiction of the Chancery, it must be executed, that is, the legal eale must want to be ex*cluded to the trust, and a conveyance to be decreed.

Therefore one effential part of the trust is, that the trust is in the conveyance, at some time or other: Sometimes it is to be done sooner, sometimes later: And this, whether the testator has directed it or not; and so much every testator is presumed to know. One may therefore reasonably doubt how it can make any substantial difference, whether the testator has words? Do not convey directed a conveyance, or do not the words of the law, take notice that the testator could not intend his eale should always remain in trusts; but that one principal confidence repos'd in them is to convey.

I have said, one may reasonably doubt of this; and I chose not to carry it further at present out of deference to those great men who have laid any weight on this diftrinction. The case wherein the most strong reasoning is produced on this subject, is that of Lord Glynchob and Byfell. What my Lord Talbot said in his argument in this case relative to this point, has been flated to me to be this:

"There is another question, viz. How far in cases of trusts executory, as this is, that the testator's intent is to prevail over the strict and legal signification of the words? I repeat, I think in cases of trusts executed or intended to be executed, the construction of the courts of law and equity ought to be the same: for there the testator does not suppose any other conveyance will be made; but in executory trusts he leaves somewhat to be done: The trusts are to be executed in a more careful and accurate manner. The case of Leonard and the Earl of Suffolk, had it been by act executed, would have been an effe-tate. But the voice of the party who took the executory trust, the court decreed according to the intent, as it was found expressed in the will, must now govern our construction; and though all parties claiming under this will are volunteers, yet are intituled to the aid of this court to direct their trustees. I have already said what I should incline to, if this was an immediate device; but as it is executory, and that such contrivance may be made, as that the intestate may take without any of the inconveniences, which were the foundation of the resolution in King and Mililde's case, and that the testator's intent is plain that the intestate should take, the conveyance, by being in common form, viz. "To the Lady Glynchob for life, remainder to her husband for life, remainder to the first and every other son, with a remainder to the daughers, will be the testator's intent." Nobody can possibly have a greater deference for my Lord Taltor's opinion than I have; but I think his decree in that case foe right, that it did not want the aid of the dillention there made. Consider then how far it amounts to a positive opinion, even to conclude himself.

The first words indeed as flated are these: " I think in cases of trusts executed or immediate devises, the contruction of courts of law and equity ought to be the same; for there the testator does not supposo any other conveyance will be made." But I think I have proved, that the testator is in most cases presumed to know that some time or other a further conveyance must be made.

Immediately after his Lordship mentions the case of Leonard and Earl of Suffolk, and says, had then by act been a deed, and that the restraint had been void. If by act executed is meant a deed in the testate's life-time, which is the proper sense of the words, it is certainly right; for all such restraints of alienation are void at the Common law. But if it be meant of a devise to trustees upon an immediate trust, which was an executory trust, then it is certain, I have no doubt of it; and whether, if such a clause of restraint had been inferred in a devise of a trust executed, (as it is called) the court, when it had decreed a conveyance, would not have been bound to decree it in first settlement, as my Lord Cooper did in that case. He adds further, and though all parties claiming under the will were not parties to it, yet they are intituled to the aid of this court to direct their trustees. But can this differ the case of what has been called an executory trust from an immediate devise in trust: In both cases the parties are equally intituled to the aid of this court to direct their trustees in making a conveyance. But toward the end it appears, that his Lordship had not formed any fixt opinion to bind himself upon this point; for he says, "I have already said what I should incline to, if this was an immediate devise." This fles it was only the prefr inclination of his thoughts, without having absolutely determined his judgment upon that particular point. And indeed he appears, he afterwards relaxed from this; for in the case of Wither and Allen, which was tried near two years afterwards on the 4th July 1755, and has been already flated, his Lordship made the like contruction upon a trust in a deed, wherein there was no diftrinction of a conveyance, nor any thing to diffinguish it from what has been called a trust executed. In the case of Papillon and Vesey, my Lord King, who was very favourable to the first rules of law, neither founded himself upon, nor made any such diffinction; for according to Mr. Williams's Rep. Vol. 2. p. 478, which agrees with my memory, he says the diversity is, where the will passes a legal estate, and where it is an executory, and the party must come to this court in order to have the benefit of the will: That in the latter case the intention shall take place, and not the rules of law. You observe here that he explains what he means by the word executory (i. e.) where the party must come to this court to have the benefits of the will, and that the case of all trusts, which must be executed by judgment.

I have now gone through the general reasoning of the cafe. But there is one thing still behind which is particular to this case, and I really think decisive as to the determination which ought to be made.

I find, that the words of the first clause in that entirely agreed with his honour the Maller of the Rolls, that nothing which has happened since the death of Benjamin Afiron, can vary the construction of this will, or the consequential rights of the parties; but the determination of the court must be the same as to all legal and equitable consequences, as if Benjamin Baghau, the devisee, had been living, and now came to this court for a decree. This being an allowed and undoubted principle, I now consider what must have been done, in case Benjamin Baghau had at this time been plaintiff, and praying of the court a conveyance of the moiety of the estate upon the foot of the will.

If that had been the case, the court must have decreed the furplus money arising by fale to be laid out in the purchase of land, and one moiety of those lands to be conveyed to the use of Benjamin Baghau, with remainders out of the rest.

Then the question would have arisen directly, whether the remainder to trustees to preferve contingent remainders, which stands in the will, should have been inferred in the conveyance or left out. If it ought to have been inferred, then the next limitation of the use must have been to the first and every other son of Benjamin Baghau, and with remainders to his daughters as tenants in common; the court could not have directed a conveyance to use to be made to Benjamin Baghau for life, with remainder to trustees to preferve contingent remainders during his life, and after his decea-to the heirs of his body in the very words of the will. But if the words of the will were, as it was held, to be contradictory: It would be to inflect a clause in a deed to preferve contingent remainders in that deed, when there were no contingent remainders to be preferved. This was expressly agreed by my Lord King in the case of Papillon and Vesey. His words were, as I took them from his judgment, "If the words of the will were, as you say, the words of the will, it would be a very blundering one, and the court will not decree that contrary to the intention of the testator." If in this conveyance it ought

ought to have been left out, then the limitations of the conveyance must have been framed to the use of Benjamin Bagshaw for life, without impeachment of wafle, and after his decease to the heirs of his body, with the other remainders over. According to these words an immediate estate-tail in possession would have been vested in Benjamin Bagshaw. In his words, the real estate to be held by the trustee must have been formed; for I can think of no third method. Now, take it which of those ways you please, the court must have departed from the first words of the will, and then the question comes to this: Whether the court ought to have departed from the words of the will, to comply with the intention of the testator, to put forth the propounded fraud and defeat it? And my opinion is, that if in any case, I am obliged to depart from the first words of the will, I am bound to do it so as to support and comply with the testator's intent, rather than to contradict and defeat it. And I hold with my Lord Hale, in the case of Pybus and Mistford, 1 Pet. 378, if we gain by any means serve the intent of the parties, we ought to do it, as good expositors: for, as my Lord Hobart says, Judges in construction (even of deeds), no harm if they are estatis in serving the intention of the parties, without violating any law. To this, it has been objected in argument at the bar, that the deposing of the estate tail in the will yet will you must adhere to that which would be the legal operation of the words of limitation of a trust, when it should be reduced into a common law conveyance. I deny this general proposition, and think I have disproved it both by reason and authority. But for argument sake admitting the proposition, the court could not have done it in the present case, by leaving out the remainder to trustees to prefer contingent ufe, without conveying to Benjamin Bagshaw a different legal estate, from that which the words of the will would have carried, if it had been a legal devise of the lands. In Coufijn and Coufijn the testator's words were simply in the will. But all the Judges of B. R. held, that by reason of the remainder to trustees to prefer contingent ufe, interposing between the devise to Robert Coufijn for life, and the subsequent limitation to the heirs of his body, Robert took an estate for life, not merged by the devise to the heirs of his body, but by that devise an estate-tail in remainder vested in the said Robert Coufijn. The consequence of this opinion is, that if the court, in framing the conveyance, in the case supped of Benjamin Bagshaw, being before the court, had left out the remainder to the trustees and their heirs; during the life of Benjamin Bagshaw, to prefer to the devise to the heirs of his body, in pursing the later method, they certainly must have done, they would have given Benjamin Bagshaw not only a different equitable estate, but also a different legal estate, from what the words, as they stand in the will, would have given him. To explain this: By the legal operation of the words of the will, he would have had an estate for life, in possession, not united with the inheritance; with remainder to trustees and their heirs during his life, with a remainder to himself in tail. But by such a conveyance by deed as is contended for, on the plaintiff's part, he would have had no particular estate for life, but an immediate estate-tail in possession.

From hence it clearly appears, that if in the present case the court had directed the conveyance to the use of Benjamin Bagshaw for life, and after his decease, to the heirs of his body, they would not only have departed from the very words of the will, but also from the legal estate, and effects of those words; and consequently have contradicted the testator's intention, according to the construction of a court of law as well as of a court of equity.

But this I cannot think myself warranted to do: and for these reasons, I think the judgment.

To render to much of the last decree made at the Rolls as declares, that Benjamin Bagshaw took an estate-tail by the will of Benjamin Ayton, and as directs, that one moiety of the clear surplus of the particular money be paid and applied according to the will of Benjamin Bagshaw: And indeed thereof, as all the particular limitations in Mr. Ayton's will are, by the events which have happened, spent and determined, I must declare, that one moiety of the clear surplus of the money, thereby being by the trust-elect in question, be paid by the defendant John Spencer, to the heirs at law of the testator Benjamin Ayton.

9. Of revoking a will, and where a will shall be free a fide for fraud.

By fl. 29 Car. 2, cap. 3, it is enacted, "that no devise in writing of lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or any chufe thereof shall be revokable, otherwise than by some other will or codicil in writing, or other writing, declaring the same, or by burning, cancelling, tearing or obliterating the same, by the testator himself, or in his presence, and by his directions and consent, but shall continue, &c. unless altered by some other will or codicil in writing, or other writing of the devisor, signed in the presence of three or more credible witnesses, declaring the same: And by the same act, no will in writing, concerning any estate formerly sealed, but not produced, nor any clause or bequest therein altered by writing, shall be a word of mouth only, except the same be, in the life of the testator, committed to writing, and read to, and allowed by him, and proved to be done by three witnesses."

But where a man, by will in writing, devised the residu of his personal estate to his wife, and after, the dying of the same, or because of any deviation from the words of the will, by a personal deviser of the residu of the estate of the testator; and the devise was not altered by writing, or oral declaration of the deviseor, the residu of the estate shall remain in the testator's wife, as the residue of the estate of the testator. And the words of the will, if the will is to vest in the deviseor's wife, and afterwards to vest in the deviseor's children, as the residu of the estate of the testator; and the devise was not altered by writing, or oral declaration of the deviseor, the residu of the estate shall remain in the deviseor's wife, as the residu of the estate of the testator.

But where a man, by will in writing, devised the residu of his personal estate to his wife, and after, the dying of the same, or because of any deviation from the words of the will, by a personal deviser of the residu of the estate of the testator; and the devise was not altered by writing, or oral declaration of the deviseor, the residu of the estate shall remain in the testator's wife, as the residu of the estate of the testator.

Lord Hardwicke, Lord Chancellor: The general principle is, that at the time of the devise the devisor must have a disposing capacity, and an estate in the land devise; and the estate must remain in the same plight and condition until his death: For the legal alteration by an act of his, makes it a different estate, and flew a different estate, and through the court, revid the devise. Thus if one fessed in fee devises, then infeoffs another to the use of himself in fee, tho' it is the old use that remains, yet it is a revocation, tho' it is his own feoffment. So of a bargain and sale without incorporation. So if a man in his lifetime tenant in fee, devises, and then apprehending himself to be only tenant in tail, fuders a recovery, with intent to confirm his will, it is a revocation. As to mortages, they are exceptions out of the rule. At law a mortgage for years, and in equity a mortgage in fee, are revocations pro tanto only; and the reason is, that a mortgage is only a security; and that it does not serve to vary from the estate, yet it is an actual revocation, by a chattel interef only, and goes to the executory, and it gives no dower. In the case wherein these leading principles were established, after the testator had devisd all the manors, lands, tenements, and hettiments, he by a deed conveyed an advowson which he was feized of at the time of making his will: to and to the use of trustees and their heirs; in trust to prevent the church when void to a particular person, if qualified, on the terms prescribed therein: And if such a person should be incapable, then to prevent such clergy as he should nominate; and in default of nomination by him, as the trustees should think fit. The person intended was pre- ferenced; and on a bill brought by the heirs at law of the testator, to have a legal conveyance of the residue of the advowson, the question was, Whether this deed, being only only a trust for a particular purpose, as it was alleged, was a total or partial revocation? And determined by Lord Chancellor, after arguing as above, that it was a total revocation; it being a grant of the legal interest; and the trust was a real and beneficial interest given by it to the truффees, that of nominating themselves in the will to be trustees, that the court, in the absence of any other winding-up provisions, should appoint them. By Lord Chancellor King, that this renewal of the lease was a revocation of the will, as to this particular. 3 Port. Will. Rep. 166, 170. Marwood v. Turner.

So where a trustee devised by his will, a leasehold estate unfor that College, Oxford, and after the making of this will, before his death, renewed the lease, by surrendering the old one, and taking a new lease. Determined by Lord Chancellor, that this was a revocation of his will. And that the trustee, after the renewal, looking among all his papers, had found, this is my will, that was held by no right of prescription, but by the perpetual covenants of the leasehold estate, that orders his will to be wrote over again, without any variation whatsoever from the first, save only in the name of that trustee. And when it was so wrote over, he executes it in the presence of three witnesses, and the three witnesses subscribed their names, that the perpetual covenant may be there inserted. This was the duplicate, by tearing off the fest, and then dies. And the question was, Whether this second will, not being good, as a will to pass lands, should yet be a revocation of the first, and if it should not, whether the cancelling the other should be a revocation thereof within the manner of frauds and perjuries. And it was decreed, that neither the making of the second, nor the cancelling the first, was a revocation thereof; that in the second there was an express clause, that he did thereby revoke all former and other wills; wherein my Lord Chancellor took his distinction, that the second was not intended to be a revocation of the first, so as to destroy his intention of dying intestate, or without any will; but it was intended as an effectual will to pass the lands to the persons, and in the manner thereby devised: And therefore it was not good as a will to pass lands, but it was no revocation of the first, but as it was supposed to be void, and void as for that purpose, he could not be devised by it, and for the duplicate, that was given him by the first. But if a man by his will devise lands to A, and after makes a second will, and thereby deviess the lands to B, if this second will not be good, as a will to pass lands to B, it shall be no revocation of the first will, as it is plain, A was to lose only what B was to gain; and B is therefore not entitled to the lands, he shall have nothing that was given him by the first. But if a man executes a second will, which appears to have no other intention than to revoke the first, and to die intestate, tho' this second be not in all circumstances duly executed as a will whereby to pass lands, yet it will operate as a revocation of the first: And as to the cancellng or tearing of the will by something that is not revocation of it in this case, because that was not a self-subsisting independent act, but done to accompany, or in a way of affirmation of the second: It was done from an opinion, that the second had effectually revoked the first, and therefore he tears the first as no use. If the first was not effectually revoked by the second; And tho' the act of tearing the first will, will not destroy it neither. For tho' a man may, by the statute of frauds, as effectually destroy his will, by tearing or cancelling it, as by making a second; yet if he does make a second, and intends that as revocation, it may be incontestable. If, it be effectual, in one case, as in the principal case, the tearing and cancelling being only in consequence of his opinion, that he made a good second will, it shall not destroy the first; but it ought to be set up again in equity. 1 Abr. Eq. Cab. 409.
being both but one will, and therefore must land or fall together. 2 Jew. 747, 472. Onyer v. Tyer.

A man makes his will in writing, and thereby devises all his real and personal estate to his wife, her heirs and executors, in trust to pay his debts and legacies; and then devises several legacies to his children and other persons, and concludes, "in witness whereof I have, to this my present will and last will and testament, set my hand and seal, and to a duplicate thereof, to be left in the hands of such a one, set my seal to every sheet thereof, and to the last of the said sheets my hand and seal, in the presence of three witnesses, who all subscribed their names in due form of law." Afterwards the testator being minded to alter this will, sets his hand and seal to a new will, and makes some alterations in his will, and sends a copy of the same to a scrivener, and gave directions to prepare a draught of instructions for another will, which the scrivener does accordingly, which the testator reads over and approved of very well, and then sets his hand to it; and being at a tavern, thinking he had now made a new will, he pulls out of his pocket the first will and tears off the feals from the first eight sheets, which the scrivener feeing, asked him what he was doing; why says he, I am cancelling my first will. Pray says the scrivener hold your hand, the other will is not perfect; it will not pass your real estate for want of being executed pursuant to statute. And so that book is the more forlorn for that, says he, and immediately defisted from tearing off any more of the seals; and in some short time dies without having done any thing further to perfect the second will, or cancel the first. After his death, on application to the Spiritual court by the wife, who was made executrix of his last will, they thought they had good cause, as to the perfonal estate, and admitted her to prove it: And on a bill brought by the legateses against the wife, and other trustees, to have a specific performance of the trust in the first will, and that the estate might be fold, pursuant to the directions of that will; it was infifted upon, that the first will was revoked either by making of a new will, or by a certain clause in the second will; but Lord Chancellor held, that the subsequent will could be no revocation as to the real estate, not being executed according to the statute of frauds and perjuries; And that as to the tearing off the seals from the first eight sheets, that not being done animo cancellandi, was no revocation; and that the seal remaining whole to the last sheet was sufficient, and in strictness it was not necessary that all the seals should be sealed. But because the Spiritual court had sentenced the second a good will of the personal estate, his Lordship held it a good will for the whole personal estate, and that such legates of personalities in the first will, as are executiff in the second, must lose their legacies, and have them set aside by the court, while such legacies will chargeable on the real estate, if the same legacies were devised to them by the second will, that they should still continue chargeable on the real estate; provided such legacies were not increased or enlarged by the second will; For though the first will was not sufficient in itself to charge the real estate, yet since the real estate remained well devised by the first will, they should be still secured by that real estate; for they were not devised out of land like a rent, but only secured by land, which before was well devised; but for new abhufe personal legacies devised by the last will, they should be chargeable only upon the real estate, and should have the first paid out of the personal estate before the other legacies, in the first will, charged upon the real estate, because they had several funds, out of which they were to be paid; the personal legacies in the last will out of the personal estate, which was well devised by that will, and not for particular legacies to be given by H. P., his son, to his heirs and assigns for ever, his lands, &c. The 2d of January following, he orders one O. to make an alteration in his will, and inter-lines these words: "I give unto my wife A. P. and her assigns, my lands in W., for her life; and after her decease to my son H. and his heirs." The will is read to the testator, and he approves of it with the interlinearion: He puts his seal upon the wax in the presence of three of the same witnesses, but does not write his name de novis, neither do the witnesses subfcribe theirs de novo. The question was, whether that and this alteration for her life? The doubt was chiefly upon the 29 Car. 2, whether this alteration was not a revocation within the statute. Every bequest is to continue in force until the same be burnt, &c. by the testator or his direction, in his presence, or unless the same be altered by some other will or writing of the testator, signed in the presence of three or four witnesses, declaring the same. If the will be signed, it may be in any part; and Per Parker and Eyre, The putting a seal is a good signing; for, Per Parker Chief Justice, The intention of the parties signing it, and the witnesses attesting, is only that the witnesses may know it again. This will is fully penned, and is not to be expounded away. Per Poins, Here is no danger of fraud or perjury; here is a new devise, and not an alteration. Per Eyre, Every thing is right, save the new subfcribing by the witnesses: The cafe of Lor and Libb, in Strower 68, 69, is right; nobody can say this new devise is not the prior devise, as Per Parker and Eyre and Parker, There must be more than a bare revocation. It must be signed in the presence of three wit-neffes. The altering a will must be underfood of a revoking, 1. i.e. an alteration by revocation. The latter implies the whole will, the former of any part, otherwise, Will as Parker and Eyre. On the former will is that if the testator revokes the whole or part, it shall be by will or writing, signed in the presence of witnesses, but they are not obliged to subfcribe. Per Eyre, If H. P. had been here found heir at law, then A. the leffer of the plaintiff, might have been helped; for if this be an alteration, so as it is not to have the lands till after A's death, he will have an estate by operation of law, Vin. Abr. tit. Devise. (R. 4.) Ca. 3. p. 143. Townford v. Pearce.

If A. devises lands to B. and his heirs, and afterwards mortgages the same lands to J. S. for years, or in fee, though a mortgage in fee be a total revocation at law, yet in equity it shall be a revocation pro tonto only. 1 Cm. 329. 332. 97. 144. 182. 1 Salt. 158. S. P.

So if a man seified in fee devises it to J. S. in fee or for life, and afterwards makes a lease to J. D. for years, this, even at law, shall not be a revocation, but during the years; for his intent does not appear further than during the term for years. 1 Roll Abr. 616. Montague v. Jefferin.

So if a husband poiffessed of a term for forty years, devives it to his wife, and after leaves the land to another for twenty years, and dies; this lease is not a revocation of the whole estate; but only during the twenty years, and the wife shall have the residue by the devise. Id. ibid. Wilcox's cafe.

But if A. devises lands to B. and his heirs, and twelve years after leaves the same lands to B. for sixty years, to commence after his death, and delivers the deed to a stranger, to the use of B. who does not deliver it to B. till after A's death, this is a revocation of the whole estate, for both estates are not covenanted by the devise to B. at the same time; and it was plainly the intention of the devise, that B. should have the lefs estate only. And it was so adjudged, though objected, that it was the intention of A. that B. should have his liberty to take by the devise or devise, B. not having agreed to the lease in the lifetime of A. This is the life of property, gift for certain years.

But if the lease made to the devisee had been to begin either in present or future, in the life of the devisee, it had not been a revocation, for inasmuch as the lease might have determined in his life, it was consistent with his will. Cro Jac. 49. Coke v. Ballant.

So with a devise in fee for a younger son for a certain meffage for ninety-nine years, if three lives lived to long, yielding and paying to his sifter the plaintiff 20l. per Ann. until twelve years old, and thence 40l. per Ann. for 1 for life: And afterwards the said A. for 300l. first de died the said feuage to J. S. for ninety-nine years, if three lives lived so long, yielding and paying 50l. per Ach. to A. the testator, his heirs and assigns; and though it was held at the Rali to be a revocation, yet on an appeal to my Lord Keeper, he decreed it to be no revocation, and that the daughter should be paid her annuity:

and he then made a will, which, though it had not any amount to a revocation by implication, it must be a necessary implication: And the act must be wholly inconvenient with the devise. 2 Vern. 495. Lamb v. Parker.
2 Freemon. 284. S. C.
and financed lands to trustees to pay his debts, and then to pay his wife 200l. per Ann. for her life; and the testator living several years after, his debts increased from 2000l. to 10,000l., for 8000l. whereas his said trusts were bound, and afterwards A. the testator, by deed and fine, conveys his lands to his said trustees, to fell to pay his debts, and leave 200l. per Ann. to his wife, and the wife the joined with him in the fine and conveyance, yet this shall be no revocation of the wife's 200l. per Ann.
and the have 200l. per Ann. out of the surplus money after the debts are paid. 2 Vern. 424. Freemon v.
Jones. 2 Freemon. 117. S. C.
for which the Earl of Lincoln had mortg-gaged the manor of S. to the defendant Wynn and his heirs for 12000l. and afterwards, by his will, in default of issue male of his own body, devised it to Sir Francis Clinton (who was to succeed him in the honour for his life, with remainder to his first and other sons in tail male, with reversion of the freeholds, and the household goods and household goods at his chief house at S. should remain there as heir-looms to the next heir male, who should be Earl of Lincoln, and made Sir Francis Clinton executor:
Afterwards the earl (who was very whimsical) took a fancy to one Mrs. Calvert, daughter to the Lord Baltimore; and the testator, to marry her, though it was not proved in the cause, never was any intention of such marriage in her, or any of her relations, nor any treaty about it; and in this fancy he makes a lease and release of those premises to the defendant Daventry and Towynland and their heirs, in consideration of the said intended marriage, as it was expounded to them himself and heirs till the said intended marriage took effect:
Then as to part, in trust for Mrs. Calvert and her heirs, in lieu of dower, and as to the rent in trust that the trustees should fell it, to disincom that part limited to Mrs. Calvert, and the surplus money to his executors, and for the uses set forth in his will. There was no legal proofs to wards the marriage, and some time after the death, without any alteration of his will, and the honour descended to Sir Francis Clinton, (who had but a very small effay, if any) who died from after; and the plaintiff, his eldest son and heir, an infant of about seven years old, brought his bill to have the redemption of the mortgage, and a conveyance of the estate: And the defendants A. B. and C. who were cousins and coheirs of Earl Edward, brought a croft bill, that they might redeem and have the estate conveyed to them. And the only question was, whether the lease and release were a revocation, as there is in case of a legal estate: It is plain, as to his intention, that he did not intend such revocation or alteration of his will, unless or until that marriage should take effect; for by the release it is limited, that till that marriage it should continue to him and his heirs, which is just as it was before; and that marriage having never taken effect, the eftate continues just as it was.
And therefore it is not on the evidence of any conveyance or any express revocation of his will; and the court of Chancery is so far from following the first rules of legal revocations, that it often relieves against them. And therefore if a man devises Blackacre to J. S. and his heirs, and afterwards mortgages it to J. D. and his heirs, this,
for the same or any part of the devise, the court should not be more on the estate, than it shall be none farther than to let in the mortgagee; and to this purpose were cited several cases. And therefore since the court of equity must interpose for one side or the other, it was concluded it ought to interpose for the present Earl, and that he ought to have the redemption of the eftate, as devised by the will of Earl Edward. For the defendants it was said, that such a lease and release would have been a revocation of a devise of a legal eftate,
and that equitable eftates are governed by the same rules that legal estates are; and there is no fraud or circum-cumstance that will alter equitable circumstances, to make the court vary from that rule. E. S. And in this diligence of the heir, who is always favoured in all courts.
And as to the cases put, where mortgages
have been held to be no revocation in equity, it was said,
the reason of that is, because mortgages are not considered as revocations of the devise; but only charges upon it: And my Lord Keeper was of this opinion, and decreed the plaintiff's bill to be dismissed, and the coheirs to have the redemption of the mortgage. 1 Ab. Eq. Ca. 417.
2 Vern. 202. refolved it was a revocation: And upon an appeal fo held in Den. Procr. by a majority of two Lords.
So where Sir John Hough had by will in writing, dated the 12th of February 1708, devised several pecuniary and specie legacies, and then gave all the rest of his real and personal estate, after all his debts and legacies paid, to John Pollen, on condition he took the name of Hufband and him, and the heirs male of his body, with divis

Vol. II. No. 139. revocation, as there is in case of a legal estate: It is plain, as to his intention, that he did not intend such revocation
or alteration of his will, unless or until that marriage should take effect; for by the release it is limited, that till that marriage it should continue to him and his heirs, which is just as it was before; and that marriage having never taken effect, the eftate continues just as it was.
And therefore it is not on the evidence of any conveyance
or any express revocation of his will; and the court of Chancery is so far from following the first rules of legal revocations, that it often relieves against them. And therefore if a man devises Blackacre to J. S. and his heirs, and afterwards mortgages it to J. D. and his heirs, this,
for the same or any part of the devise, the court should not be more on the estate, than it shall be none farther than to let in the mortgagee; and to this purpose were cited several cases. And therefore since the court of equity must interpose for one side or the other, it was concluded it ought to interpose for the present Earl, and that he ought to have the redemption of the eftate, as devised by the will of Earl Edward. For the defendants it was said, that such a lease and release would have been a revocation of a devise of a legal eftate,
and that equitable eftates are governed by the same rules
that legal estates are; and there is no fraud or circum-cumstance that will alter equitable circumstances, to make the court vary from that rule. E. S. And in this diligence of the heir, who is always favoured in all courts.
And as to the cases put, where mortgages
have been held to be no revocation in equity, it was said,
the reason of that is, because mortgages are not considered as revocations of the devise; but only charges upon it: And my Lord Keeper was of this opinion, and decreed the plaintiff's bill to be dismissed, and the coheirs to have the redemption of the mortgage. 1 Ab. Eq. Ca. 417.
2 Vern. 202. refolved it was a revocation: And upon an appeal fo held in Den. Procr. by a majority of two Lords.
So where Sir John Hough had by will in writing, dated
the 12th of February 1708, devised several pecuniary
and specie legacies, and then gave all the rest of his real
and personal estate, after all his debts and legacies paid, to John Pollen, on condition he took the name of Hufband and him, and the heirs male of his body, with divis

Vol. II. No. 139.
W I L

with consent of her trustees, then for her and her heirs, or for such person as the said appoint, &c. But in the case the said marry without consent of her trustees, and forfeit her estate, then to her other sisters equally among them.

In 1766, the plaintiff Clarke married A., with the consent of J. S. and he settles upon the marriage (his wife joining with him, who had these lands in jointure) part of these lands devolved to her by his will, after the death of her mother, and also 7 l. per annum in fee farm rent, which was doubtful if it pailed by the will or executrix. Note, J. S. in a letter to Clarke upon the treaty of marriage, declares what he will give him with his daughter in present, and that she will be a better fortune at his death. Quere, if this devolve to A., in fee, upon condition of marrying with the consent of trustees, be dispensed with or perfect?

And C. Ch. was of opinion, that by the marriage with the consent of the father, the condition is dispensed with, and the devise becomes absolute.

Revocation, &c.

A. made his will and thereof his brother executor, and devised unto his executor all his estate real and personal, and four years afterwards he marries, and then by a codicil makes his wife his executrix. And the question was, whether the brother should have the personal estate: And it was urged, that he should; for he does not take it as executor only, but by express words wills, to him a part of the estate.

And C. shall have the whole. A revocation, with a new gift, shall have the same effect as if it had been expressly given; and whether it be by codicil or obligation, it is the same, 5 Batt. tit. Devises, 95. MSS. Rep. Humphries v. Taylor, in Chanc. Hil. 25 Geo. 2.

An alteration of circumstances has been considered as an implied revocation. Thus, I. S. being a bachelor, made his will; and devised a legacy of 500 l. to his brother, and other legateses to other persons, and devised his real estate to Elia. Chie, and his heirs; and afterwards intermarries with the same Elia. Chie, and died, leaving her privitye enfeft with a fon, without making any alteration in his will: And the main question in the case was, whether the alteration in the testator's circumstances did, of itself, without addition, amount to a revocation. Thos. who argued for its being a revocation, relied on the case of one Afris, in which it was resolved by the Judges, that where a man unmarri'd made a will and devised away his estate, and afterwards married and had a child, and died with a subsequent alteration of his will, that the alteration of circumstances was, in itself, a revocation of the will. And a case was cited out of Ciceria, where there being his fon dead, devised his estate to another; yet the fon returning, it was held he should have it, because it was to be suspected he would not have deferved him without reason. On the other side it was argued, that this alteration of circumstances was, in itself, a revocation of the will. And a case was cited out of Cicera, where there being his fon dead, devised his estate to another; yet the son returning, it was held he should have it, because it was to be suspected he would not have deserved him without reason. On the other side it was argued, that this alteration of circumstances was, in itself, a revocation of the will. And a case was cited out of Cicera, where there being his son dead, devised his estate to another; yet the son returning, it was held he should have it, because it was suspected he would not have deserved him without reason. On the other side it was argued, that this alteration of circumstances was, in itself, a revocation of the will.

Lord Keeper was clear of opinion, that alteration of circumstances might be a revocation of a will of lands as well as of a personal estate; and that notwithstanding the fraud of trusts and perjuries, which does not extend to an implied revocation. But no such alteration appears here, for no injustice is done any person; and there are provided for whom the testator was bound to provide for, and so established the will. 1 Ala. Eq. Ca. 434. Brown v. Thompson.

The marriage and the having of children has been deemed a material alteration of a will, yet it is not a positive revocation; for if it appears by any expression, or other means, to be the intent of the devitor, that his will should continue in force, the marriage will be no revocation of it. 1 Id. Rep. 441. Legg v. Legg.

A subsequent devise to a person incapable of taking, is a revocation of a precedent devise to a person capable. This was approved by the counsel on both sides as good law. Thus, in a devise of lands to A., if afterwars the devitor devies the same lands to B., who was a papist, both devises are void; for though the law is void as a will, yet it is good as a revocation. 10 Mod. 233. Roper v. Radcliffe. 1 Ala. Eq. tit. Devises, (R. 3.) p. 141.

A devise was made of a term carved out of an inheritance for ninety nine years, before the statute of 36 & 37. W. & M. cap. 14. of fraudulent devises, in trust to pay 14 l. per annum to a grand-daughter for life; and after her death to the devisee. This devise was vested for five hundred years (which is a revocation in law for this purpose), but the devisee has an equity to redeem the mortgage, the mortgagee sues over the mortgage to the plaintiff, who was a creditor by bond to the testator, and the revender in fee descended to the testator's heir at law. Per Cur., the mortgage is a revocation pro parte of the devise of the annuity, and the suit must keep down the interest, or pay a third part of the redemption; but being a devisee the mortgagee may redeem the mortgage, without paying the bond. 1 Ala. Eq. tit. Devises, (Y.) Ca. 2. Saunders v. Hawkins.

A. devises and appoints an executor for payment of debts, and recites that a particular schedule of them was annexed to the will, remainder over. Afterwards he mortgages part of the said lands, and pays most of the schedule debts with the money. And it was decreed, that this mortgage is not a revocation, neither in all, nor part, and that the will ought to extend to all the debts that should be due after the testator's death. The substitute to the schedule debts only; and that the mortgage was made in good faith, security, and not an appointment how it should be made. But this decree was reversed, tho' without prejudice to the heir at law. 1 Ala. Eq. tit. Devises. (R. 6.) Ca. 25. p. 147. Barnardithen v. Garter.

If A.'s will does not survive, and A. afterward mortgage to the same devisees, it is a revocation in toto, being inconsequent with the devise; tho' it was agreed, if the mortgage had been to a stranger, it had been a revocation quoad the mortgage only. Decreed per Lord Macclesfield, Prese. in Chanc. 514. Hucksfey v. Bayley.

I. S. by his will gives his daughter 500 l. for her portion, and afterwards marries her to A. and gives her 500 l. for her portion in marriage, and lived four years after without revoking his will. Afterward the husband is a bankrupt, and the assignees brought a bill against the father's executor for the 500 l., or at least to recover 200 l. to make up the portion, taint amount to the 500 l. legacy, Lord Ch. Parker, with great clearness held, that giving a daughter a portion by will, and afterward a portion in marriage, is by the law of all other nations as well as Great Britain, a revocation of the portion given by the will; and dismissed the bill with costs. 1 P. Will. Rep. 681. Macclesfield v. Hucksfey.

I. S. and his wife had three daughters A. E. and M. by will devis'd 1000 l. to A. 800 l. to E. and 500 l. to M. After this will was made, plaintiff curtowed A. and upon a treaty of marriage, testatrix gave a note for 500 l. payable within six months after the marriage to plaintiff, in augmentation of daughter's portion, left to her by her father; and the next day the marriage was had and up on the same day the testament was taken ill, and died six days after, without altering or making a new will; but she did declare, that she did intend that her daughter A. should have but 500 l. from her, and that now she had given her this 500 l. she must alter her will; and for an attorney to do it; but when he came, she was light handed, and died soon after. And it was laid by the executor of her testament, that the devises were not sufficient to pay the plaintiff 500 l. upon the note, and the 1000 l. legacy, and likewise the legacy to the other two daughters. And two points were made; first, if this 500 l. note shall be taken in part of satisfaction of the 1000 l. legacy. Secondly, if parol evidence shall be admitted to alter the testament, and satisfacti
W I L
And per Lord Chief Justice Parker, circumstances of testament and her family may be given in evidence to expedite the will, but no parol declarations to explain the words of the will, or to control it; that in this case there is no doubt upon the words of the will; but the question is, if the testament has not advanced part of the legacy in her life time upon the marriage of her daughter t? and the evi dence is only as to the satisfaction; and thereupon his Lordship admitted the evidence to be read; and directed the master to fee if there were sufficient to pay all the legacies; and upon report, the court determined as to the quantum due to the plaintiff. Tin. Att. (Y. 2.) Ca. 10.
I. S. devised to M. his wife, six houses in bar of dower, and, subject to his legacies, he devised (the rest of) his real and personal estate to his two daughters, and their heirs, in remainder; and in the event of the marriage of A. his deceased daughter with B. I. S. by marriage articles, covenants to settle one moiety of his real estate to the use of himself for life, remainder to the use of the said B. and A. his intended wife, for their lives, remainder to the younger children of the marriage in tail general, remainder to the said B. in fee; and as to the moiety of such personal estate, he devised to one moiety of such personal estate as he should leave at his death, subject only to his debts, and such legacies as should amount to 5000 l. in trust for B. and his said in tended wife for their lives, and afterward to be paid to their children. Lord Ch. King held, that tho’ this was but a covenant, and therefore in law no revocation of the will by which the testator had dispossessed of his real estate, yet that the same being for a valuable considera tion, was in equity tantamount to a conveyance, and confec tionately in equity a revocation of the will, as to the moiety of the six houses devised to the testator’s wife, so that he could dispose of them at his pleasure equally and to an account of the rents, &c. thereof, from I. S.’s death; but as to the six houses devised to the testator’s wife, it being his intent that the should have them, the court held, that he should have a satisfaction out of the remaining moiety, and that the wife should not offer by the marriage articles, there being enough out of the other moiety to supply and satisfy the devise of the six houses to her. Therefore as to the other moiety of the real estate, it was decreed, that the testator’s widow was to have for her life six houses, part thereof, and the re due of such moiety, subject to the wife’s estate for life, in remainder to the said B. in fee; and to the other five daugh
I. S. on his marriage with P.’s daughter, settled 500 l. per annum on her; he afterward surrendered some copy copyhold estates to the use of his will which he made, and gave the copyhold to his wife. After his wife of his wife’s father, became intituled to 1500 l. in right of his wife; then I. S. levied a fine, and made a new fettle ment, and increased her jointure 300 l. per annum, but never altered his will. And per Lord Chancellor, The fettlement is a revocation of the will, for such lands as are comprised in it; but the copyhold is not, and therefore by the will. Select Cases Chanc. 48. Lannoy v. Lannoy.
I. S. in 1699 leaves to A. 8784 l. in trust to be by her invested in lands, and to settle the same according to I. S.’s will. A. purchases lands to the value of 2300 l. and devises that to C. (he was heir at law to B.) and her heirs, and gives several lega cies, which could not be paid if the devise were not to be taken as part of satisfaction; and for that reason it was decreed, by Lord Chan. King. Select Cases in Chanc. 83.
A. and B. were tenants in common of lands in fee. A. by will dated the 25 Jan. 1719, devises her moiety of the said lands unto trustees and their heirs, upon trust to fell the fame for the purposes therein mentioned; and afterwards A. and B. made partition by deed, dated 10 May 1722, and a fine was levied, and the uses were declared to be to the moiety in fee in the same manner, and as to the other moiety in favority to B. in fee. In 1724 A. died without revoking or altering her said will, leaving I. S. her only son. Lord Chancellor declared, that the will was well proved, but referred it to the Judges of B. R. whether the deed of 16 May 1722, and the fine levied purporting thereto, was not a revocation of the will. And Raymond Ch. J. Page, Probyn, and Lee Juxttices, certified their opinion to be, that the will was not revoked by this deed and fine, and that A.’s share of the land contained in this deed and fine, doth pass by the will. 4. Will. Rep. tert. Devix. (R. 6.) Ca. 30. p. 148. Luther v. Kirkby.
By marriage articles it was agreed, that the wife’s lands, whereof she was seised in tail, should be conveyed to the husband in fee; they married, the husband made his will and devised these lands; then the husband and wife took a life and marriage fee in remainder of these lands, to such uses, and for such estates, as they might from time to time appoint, in default of such appointment, to the use of the hus band and his heirs. She died without appointing. Per Harwicke Chanc. This amounts to a revocation of the will. And in this case the following rules were laid down. 5. Bos. Att. 538. A&S. Rep. Purfons v. Freeman, M. 25 Gen. 421.
If a man feised in fee devises, and then makes a conveyance by fee, foemifion, or recovery, and takes back a new estate, it is certainly a revocation; and so if he takes back the old ufe unaltered, from a preemption that he could not have made such a conveyance, without an intention to alter his will: But if after making his will he had made a lease, or charged it with a sum of money, &c. it would only have been a revocation pro stanta. The rules are the same in the devile of a real, and of a personal estate, with regard to charges made after wards: But if a man, having an equitable estate in fee, devised it, and the same was taken back to be an estate in fee; it is no revocation. The equitable estate will not pass by will, but the heir at law by decent of the legal estate, may become a trustee for the devisee, who may call for a conveyance of the estate. If a man con tracts by articles for the purchase of lands, and before a conveyance devises the lands and dies; the deviell shall have the lands, and call for a conveyance from the vend or. If a man, seised of a legal estate, makes his will, and then conveys the legal estate to another in true for himself, it is a revocation. If in this case the husband had only taken the legal estate by the recovery to execu
t it, in true for himself, the equitable estate is a revocation; but new uses are appointed, and tho’ the wife died without making any appointment, that will not alter the cafe, for here he took the fee by the recovery differently qualified, subject to different conditions, dif ferently conveyed. But if two parties make partition, leave a fine, and declare the ufe, that will not be a re vocation, because it is effectuate the partition.
A. being feised in fee, settled his estate by lease and release in 1712, to the ufees thereafter specified, with li berty nevertheless at his will and pleasure to dispose of, the said estate, or any part thereof, for any estate or ufeates which he shall choose to appoint, to hold in fee, and to revoke all and every the ufees thereby limited, and then declares the ufees to himself for life, with sev eral remainders, a remainder over to D. in (fee) tail. The said deed contains the following powers: First, a power for A. by any deed or writing, signed, sealed, and delivered, in the preference of two or more witnesses, to demize, lease, limit, or appoint, the said premisses to any person whatever, for any term or terms whatever, and for so much yearly rent as he should think fit. And that it shall and may be lawful to and for the said A, at any time during the said limited time, to grant, sell, or demit the said premisses, or any part thereof; or by any deed or writing under his hand and seal, or by his lawful will, &c. in writing, sealed, signed, delivered and published, in the presence of three or more witnesses, to revoke, repeal, and make void, all and every and all and every of the said written or signed deeds, tracts, and limitations before raised, and to declare or-limit the same, or any such new uscs as should seem meet to them, and then and from thenceforward the estates before limited, and so revoked, to cease, &c. and that the said A may dispose of the said premisses, and every part thereof, to such other person and use as he shall think fit, and thing, &c. to the contrary notwithstanding. The first part of this proviso, viz. to grant, sell, or demit, appears interferred by interlusion. In 1715 A by lease and release, reciting that he was indebted as specified in a schedule annexed, conveyed his estate to B W and S. and their heirs, in utmost good faith and perfect confidence, for ever, with all and every and every for ever, and so far as by his will, &c. in writing, signed and sealed, and delivered and published, to the use, the enjoyment of, and benefit of the said B, W, and S. or their assigns, and to all and every and every of their personal and real estates, rights, and every part thereof, and all and every and every of all and every the said premisses, and every part thereof, and all and every and every of all and every the said written deeds, tracts, and limitations before raised, and to declare or-limit the said estate, as would be firm, to the uses, or to the person and uses as he shall think fit, and thing, &c. &c.

Though a covenant or articles do not at law revoke a will, yet if entered into for a valuable consideration, amounting in equity to a conveyance, they must consequently be an equitable revocation of a will, or of any writing in nature thereof. A woman's marriage is alone a revocation of her will. 2 P. Will. Rep. 624. Cutter v. Loy. Lord Danesfield, at the bar of Mad. 823.

Tenant in tail, remainder to himself in fee, devests his land to A, and then suffers a recovery to the use of himself in fee, and dies without issue male; this is a revocation of the will. 3 P. Will. Rep. 163. Marriott v. Turner.

A, the 23rd of June 1729 made his will, and executed two duplicates thereof before three witnesses, and made B. and C. (fince deceased) executors; and one of the duplicates was delivered to B. A died the 2d of Oct. 1730, and about three weeks before his death he made several alterations and obliterations with his own hand, in the duplicate remaining in his own custody, and for a new devise of his real estate, and a new residuary legacy, and a new executor, entirely striking out the names of the first devises, residuary legatee and executors, and altered several of the former legacies, and inserted or interlined new legacies; and soon after wrote another will with his own hand, agreeable to the devise in the duplicate, but still not altogether, to the will or duplicate so altered, with conclusion in these words, "In witnese whereof, I the said testator have to each flecht sit my hand, and to the top, where the flechts are fixed together, my hand and seal, and to the last thereof my hand and seal, and to a duplicate be the same revised and altered of 1730." But there was no signing, or fixing together. Tefator soon after began to write another will, word for word with the last, so far as it goes, but went no farther than deviating his lands. Tefator lived six days after, and was in good health, and might have finished and executed both or either of the latter wills if he had thought fit. Tefator never sent or called upon B, for the duplicate of the first will in his hands, though B, lived in town. After the death of the tefator, all the telfamentary papers or schedules were found lying all in lovo and separate papers upon a table in his clofer, not signed or executed; and the duplicate of the first will was found on the table, altered and obliterated; (pet supra) with his name and seal thereto whole and uncanceled. Sentence was given in the prerogative court, for the duplicate of the first will in B's hands, and confirmed upon appeal to the delegates, viz. Lord Raymond Ch. Justice, and Probyn J. Dr. Tindale and Dr. Bramfams, (who were all the delegates present) after four days' examination of the papers and schedule, and upon a commision of review (granted by Lord Chancellor King, upon the petition of Hyde the executor named in the new will) was again affirmed by the opinion of all the delegates (except Dr. Pinfold) viz. of the Judges Reynolds Ch. B Page J. and Cornus B. and two Doctors of the Crown, chiefly on this rea- son, as the reporter says he heard, that the tefator did not intend an interfacy, and by the alterations and oblitera- tions, in his own duplicate of his first will, he appeared only to defign a new will, which as he never perfected, the first ought to stand; and the tefator not calling for the onerous before his death, all in good health, and the presumption of his intent not absolutely to destroy his first will, till he had perfected another, which he never did. Vid. Atb. tit. Devise, (R. 2.) Ca. 17. p. 140. Hyde v. Marjan.

"J. S. devised all his real and personal estate to trustees A & B. and C. their heirs and assigns, and the administration in trust to pay 151. of Annu. to the plaintiffs (his two fiflers) for their lives, and after several legacies, the for- plus in trust for the difthening minions at Reading, &c. and gave 300l. to each trustees, and 201. per Annu. to each, while they took care in executing the trust. Afterward the executors of full and final account to the will, the tefator conveyed all his real estate unto and to the use of the said A. B. and C. and their heirs, with a proviso to be void on payment of 101. And by another deed of the same date, the tefator gave all his personal estate to the said A. B. and C. proviso to be also void on payment.
payment of 10s. But J. S. kept both the deeds in his own custody, and soon after died; And the aid A. B. and C. obtained administration of the estates as trustees. The trustees for some years paid the 15l. per Annu. a-piece to each of the tennonor's filters; but afterward refused to continue the payment thereof, and also refused to pay any of the differing minifters; but kept the rents, &c. to their own use. The two filters (the heirs at law) and the other creditors are at law, claiming to receive the rents and incumbrances, infifting that the deed of conveyance of the real estate, and the deed of gift of the perfonal estate had revoked the will, and that there was a refting trust for them, as heirs at law; or at least that they (the filters) were intitled to their 15l. per Annu. annuities. Defen- dant A. B. and C. have refused to pay any of their annuities by bringing their bill, there being a clause in the will, that if they (the filters) disputed the will, then they should forfeit their annuities. Lord Chandler Teflat decreed, that the annuities should be paid to the two filters, with the arrears and growing payments thereof; but the surplus was agreed to go to the differing minifters. 5 Bac. Ab. 541. MS. Rep. Mich. 1734. Lacy & Us et al. v. Spillett et al.

Sir John Wobrych by will, in Augufl 1722, devised his estate to trustees for the term of 200 years, for payment of all his debts. In December following he devised the same to other trustees for 300 years, in trust to pay some particular debts and to make a good and sufficient settlement of his will, and to have and enjoy all incumbrances that affected the estate. In June 1723 he died; and the question was, If the deed in December was a total revolution of the 200 years term? And at the Rolls both terms being held to be confentient, the plaintiff then brought a bill of review; and Teflat Lord Chan- dler was of opinion, that the deed in December was intended only as a collateral security, for payment of the debts therein mentioned, and such others as were a charge on the estate; and that Sir John did not depart from his former intentions of paying all his debts, but only to give preference to those comprised in the 300 years term, who by having a deed of settlement were in a higher rank than those comprised in the 200 years term; therefore he declared, that so much of the 200 years term should be void as would satisfy the purposes of the deed; and afterward the 200 years term should commence. 5 Bac. Ab. 541. MS. Rep. Mich. 9 Geo. 2. Full v. Atten. &c.

A will setting aside lands for a purpose, and giving the residue to the heir, is not a will setting aside for fraud, J. S. Lord Commin- on took a difference between a will and a deed gained upon a weak man, and upon a misrepresentatiou or fraud; for if a will be gained from such false misrepresentation, this is not a sufficient reason to fet it aside in equity; as was determined in the Duke of Newgulf's will, between Lord Thomas and Lord Clavre, and in the cafe of Beduil and Co. as adjudged. A will setting aside for fraud is unsettable by any cause, until it be carbonized by new deed, therefore it is to be gained from such a person, and without any valuable consideration, the same ought to be set aside in equity. 2 P. Will. Rep. 270. James v. Greene.

A will likewise concerning land may be good at law, as being well executed, and yet be set aside in equity for fraud: As where A. by will had devised his lands to M. his mother in fee. A bill was brought to be relieved against a will obtained by fraud and imposition, upon this case. The plaintiff's son had made a will in January 1716, and there- by devised all his real and personal estate to the plaintiff's father, but falling ill soon after, at a great distance from his father, of a consumption, of which he died, his father not having perused the will, before a short time before his death, whereby he devised all his real and personal estate to the defendant (being a kinsman) upon trufr to pay his debts and legacies; and pays nothing of the refeftum; but there was a general clause of revoking all former wills, &c. There were several witnesses to tell, both before and contrary to each other, a suggestion to induce the tennonor to make this new will, sufficient to fatisfy the court that it was unfairly obtained, but the will was regularly signed, sealed, and published, according to the statute of 29 Car. 2. and fo a good will at law. Lord Chan. Cowper, having taken time to consider of it, decreed that it was good for the perfonal estates, having just allouances, &c. and to convey the real estate to the plaintiff, subject to the payment of tennonor's debts, as a trufr to the plaintiff. Fin. Ab. tit. Devifes, (Z. 2.) Ca. 11. p. 167. Brandon v. Keridge, &c.

A bill was likewise brought to fet aside a will of a perfonal estate, and to day the probate, upon a fuggenion of its being obtained by fraud; and the defendant demur- red to the jurifdiction of Chanccry; whereupon an in- junction was moved for, infifting that the defenror con- fided the fraud, and that fraud was cognizable in equity as well as in the Spiritual court; but the injunction was denied. 2 P. Will. Rep. 282. John v. Stephen.

Where a bill is brought to prove a will of lands, the fanity of the tennonor must be proved; but it is otherwise in cafe of a deed of trufr to fall for payment of debts. 2 P. Will. Rep. 93. Harris v. Ingledew.

N. B. A will having relation only to the tennonor's death, and not to the making, for till his death he is master of his own will, and therefore the will of a papift in Ireland, was held to be avoided by a fubfquent statute made in that kingdom, which enacted, that the lands of papifts there shall not be devisable, but defend in gavel- kind. Fin. Ab. tit. Devifes, (H. 6.) Ca. 7. p. 275. Bark v. Morgan.

It being proved, that wills (of perfonal estates only) though gained by fraud, if proved in the Spiritual court, are not to be controverted in equity. Thus where A. made his will, and thereby gave the plaintiff the greatest part of his perfonal estate, to the value of 5000l. as was proved in the cafe, but one B. his maid servant had in his ficknefs, prevailed on him (as an advantage to make her content) that she might have the derryry had a week before his death, when he lay in his fick bed, at five of the clock at night, though it was really proved by two minifters, that the will was, a year before, actually married to the defen- dant M. and was then his wife, and that M. procured the licence for the marriage of A. to B. and will be gained for the bill. The court held that the surmiffion appeared there was as grofs practice as could be, in gaining the will, the tennonor being non compus, both at the time of making this will, and also at the time of his fuppofed marriage; and that B. suppreffed the first will: Yet that will be set up, being proved in the prceorative court, and the matter in question being purely relating to the perfonal estate, the Lord Chancellor was of opinion, that whilst that probate flood, this matter was not examinable in Chanccry; and though the fraud was fully proved, and was opened to him, he would not hear any proofs read, but dismissed the bill. 2 Vern. 8. and 9. Archer v. Moft.

So it is proved that A. had a will concerning a perfonal estate, wherein one of the legacies was forged; it was decreed, that the executor had no remedy in equity; but ought to have proved the will, with a fpecial refcrvation as to that legacy. 1 P. Williams, 388. Plume v. Beale.

But though wills (of perfonal estates only) gained by fraud, if proved in the Spiritual court, are not to be controverted in equity, yet if the party claiming under such will comes for any aid in equity he shall not have it. 2 Vern. 76. Nelfon v. Oldfield.

It has been determined likewise, that the courts of equity can hold plea concerning a legacy, and likewise concerning the devise of the refeftum, which is but a lega- cy: And they may in notorious cafes decrees a legatee, who has obtained a legacy by fraud, to be a trufer for another: As if the drawer of the will should inherit his own
The will of H. Lord C. whereby his real estates were limited in tail male to several of his next relations (successively) in degree of connubialty, in order to obviate any objections therein concerning the said real estate, and to prevent the said male heirs of the same, issuing and passing their property and estates into the hands of persons who shall alienate the said male heirs of the same, and thereby and hereafter, by any writing or writing attested by two or more credible witnesses, think fit to give or appoint. I devise, &c. (a devise of 1000l. a-piece to the said Earl of R. and R. T. two of the executors): And my will and devise is, that my said executors be, and shall stand intuited as to the sum of 500l. of, &c. and the interest thereof, after the rate of 5l. per Cent. per Ann. from the time of my decease, for the separate use and benefit of my niece the Lady E. B. so as the same both principal and interest may be at her disposal (notwithstanding her coverture) and not in the power or disposal of any husband the hath or may have, and so as by any writing or receipt under her hand, attested by two or more credible witnesses, she may at her discreation and dispose of the intertest and proceed of the said 500l. and of the principal likewise; and so as my said trustees shall and may be, from time to time, by such writing or receipt, fully discharged and in solace (several other such legacies to nieces in the same words); I devise to my nephew the Duke of L. and to my other nephew the Duke of W. the sum of 5000l. of, &c. to be paid to him in fix calendar months next after my decease; and my further will and devise is, that my said executors do and shall stand intuited as to the further sum of 5000l. of like lawful money, and the intertest thereof, after the rate of 4l. per Cent. per Ann. from the time of my decease, for the separate use and benefit of the said C. D. Duchesses of G. so as the same, both principal and interest, may be at her disposal (notwithstanding her coverture) &c. (verbatim as the 5000l. to the nieces before); I direct and devise my acting executor or executors, within three calendar months next after my death, to cause to be paid to such of the poor of the several parishes after mentioned, as will stand in need of the same, the sum of 0l. 6d. and all other sums of money following: (that is to say) of St. M. in the fields 100l. of St. J. Wilmisler 100l. of L. 30l. of G. in T. 20l. of A. in Wilts 50l. and of M. in Oxfordshire 50l. I give to my servants after named, (that is to say) to T. D. to M. E. 100l. to T. F. 100l. to D. G. 100l. to T. J. 50l. to Mrs. J. 50l. and to all such others as shall be my domfick servants at my said house or in near St. J. P. within the liberty of Wilmisler at the time of my decease, I give to each of them one year's wages, and likewise one year's board wages, if any allowed them, over and above the wages that shall be due to them at my death; and to each of my domfick servants in any of my manifon-houses, that have been in my service for the space of a year before the date of this will, and shall continue therein, Likewise one year's board wages, if any allowed them, over and above the wages that shall be due to them at my death; which legacies to all my said domfick servants I would have paid within three calendar months next after my death; and if any of my said servants do not continue with me, and shall not use and become my servants, I give to each of them all my diamond and ruby rings; all the rest and residue of my personal estates whatever in G. B. or in J. not otherwise by me disposed of, I devise to my said nephew the Earl of B. to his own use; and if he shall happen to die before me, then I devise the said rest and residue of my said personal estates to my said nephew the Duke of Q. to his own use; and I do hereby authorize my said executors and trustees, or any two of them, or such of them as will act, or the survivors or survivor of them, from time to time, to sell and dispose of, all or any part or parts of my personal estate; and the monies arising from the same shall be paid over, from time to time to such persons as may, by my said executors and trustees, or any of them as will act, or the survivors or survivor of them, shall judge best; and to the intent that my said executors or trustees, or the survivors or survivor of them, may not be discouraged from undertaking the trust, I will that they, or any two or one of them, or the survivors or survivor of them, shall at any time, from time to time, appoint such agents or attorneys to them with such faculties as they shall think fittting; and that none of my said trustees shall be answerable for the receipts and attendings of the other of them; and that none of them shall be answerable for the mischariges of any person or persons used or employed by them, or any of them, in the execution of the trust, or in the performance of the aforementioned, or for any person or persons, with whom there shall be any monies lodged or left by reason of the aforesaid trusts, or any of them; and I direct that my said executors and trustees shall be, from time to time, allowed all their expenses, costs and charges whatsoever. In witness whereof I have this day unto a will and testament, contained in five prelfs or skins of parchment fixed together at the top, and sealed with my own hand, with the top of the last leaf thereof, or fkin, have fet my hand and feal, and to every other part of the fkin thereof have fet my hand, declaring this to be my laff will and testament, the day and year first written above.

Signed, sealed, publifhed and declared by the above-named Tho. H. Lord C. as for his laff will and testament, in the prefcence of us, who at his request and in his prefence have subscribed our names as witneffes therunto, as we have likewise done the fame to a duplicate of the above-written will execute A widow's will, whereby the devifes to her one manor, lands, &c. and cophold and leafhold eftates, in trufi to pay 2000l. to her married daughter, and under feveral other very feyslru and limits; drawn by an eminent counfell. From 3 Will. Coun. 397.

Impeifions. I give and bequeath all my manors, lands, tenements and hefitidements whatsoever, both leafhold and inheritance, unto my loving son S. H. his heirs, ex-cutors and administrators, according to my ferveral and refpective eftates and interefs therein, (excepting my maintained of land, and all my lands, tenements and he-reditements wherewith I live in the world, and the devife to the said S. H. is upon these truits following, viz. That out of the rents, issues and profits of the said premifles devifed unto him, or by fale thereof, he the said
S. H. his heirs, executors or administrators, fhall and do, and out of the rents, issues and profits of the said premifles fo devifed unto him, or by fale thereof, pay the full fum of 2000l. of, or unto my fon-in-law W. D. Efj; at the end of fix months after he the said
W. D. fhall be to me dyed into hands, and if the said W. D. fhall be within the fpace of fix months after his age of 21 years fettle upon his wife my daughter E. fhall a jouinure de 300l. per Ann., as fhall be limited fo as the profits thereof shall be at her own feperatof dispoifal and ordering, during the coverture, without her husband's control) and in fix years after his deceafe, I will and defire that the fum of 2000l., 2000l., and the remaining fum of 2000l., and all interefl and the fame to be two two or more credible witnesses, shall (notwithstanding the coverture) limit or appoint; and for want of such limitation or appointment, then in trust for such child or children of the said deceased and the children of his issue thereof, and their heirs and assigns: Provided it is that if there be more than one child, and if the said W. D. shall make a settlement as afoforeaid, then the eldest son shall have no part or share of the said W. estate; and for want of such limitation or appointment by the said E. (if the said leave no child or children at her death) then it shall be to my own and my heirs or assigns, and whereas part of my estate in A. afoeforeaid is copyhold, now I do hereby declare that the gift and devise hereby made by me unto my said son S. H. his heirs, executors and administrators, of all my mansions, meafues, lands, tenements and hereditaments whatsoever, both leasehold and inheritance (excepting as is before excepted) to his own and his heirs, and whereby that, if my said son S. H. or his heirs, shall not, within the space of 12 months next after my decease, surrender in due form of law all the copyhold estate in A. afoforeaid, of which I shall die seised, into the hands of the lord or lords of the manor or manors of whom the same copyhold estate is held, unto the use of the said R. H. and R. G. and their heirs, to be subject to the trusts herein before declared of and concerning my said W. estate; or if my said son S. H. his heirs or assigns, shall make default in payment of the above mentioned sum of 200 l. and interest according to the trusts before mentioned; then and in either of the said cases, the said gift and devise hereby made by me unto my said son S. H. his heirs and assigns, shall be void; and then I give and devise the same premises so devted unto him as afooreaid, unto the said R. W. and R. G. their heirs, executors and administrators, according to my respective estates and interests therein, upon the same trusts as herein before declared of and concerning the same. Item, I will and desire, that the executor hereafter named shall permit and suffer my said daughter E. D. to have the possession only, and not the property of my best bed, and the furniture in my best room, and of all my linen, and of my diamond ring during her coverture; and if the said E. shall outlive her said husband W. D. then I give and bequeath all the same goods and things unto her, but if the husband to die before her, then I give and bequeath the same goods and things unto and amongst such child and children as the said E. shall leave behind her at her death; and if the children leave no child at her death; then I give and bequeath the same goods and things unto the executor hereafter named; and as to all the reft and residue of my personal estate (excepting what shall have been before excepted) I give the same unto my said loving son S. H. subject to the payment of my debts and legacies, and to the payment of the before mentioned sum of 200 l. and interest; and I do hereby constitute and appoint my said loving son S. H. sole executor of this my last will, &c.

A devise to erect a charity school. From 3 Wood's Conv. 829.

Also I give and devise all that, &c. to (the trustees) to have and to hold all the last mentioned—to the said (trustees) and to their heirs and assigns, forever. Next, I will and desire to be erected a charity school, subject to the several provisos, directions and appointments herein after mentioned, limited, expressed and declared of and concerning the same premises; and I do hereby subject and make chargeable all and singular the same hereditaments and premises, to and for the several uses, intents and purposes herein after mentioned, to wit, the education and maintenance of the poor and indigent children of this parish, and their assigns in the several ways hereinafter expressed, to wit, for the benefit of the poor and indigent children of this parish, for the support of the schoolmasters and teachers assigned thereunto, and for paying the charges and deductions whatsoever, to the said schoolmasters and their assigns therein after named for the time being for ever, by two equal half-yearly payments, to wit, at Michaelmas and Christmas yearly; the first of which payments to be made on such the said two feasts as shall next happen after my death, for the teaching and instructing 20 of the poorest girls of W. at refaid, for the time being, as follows: viz. 10 of the said 20 shall be instructed in some proper convenient place there, as my said charity trustees, or the major part of them shall appoint: And my further will is, and I do hereby appoint and direct, that if my now servant the said W. R. be living at the time of my death, then the said W. R. or such other person as shall be appointed for the same purpose hereby directed shall, at my death, hereby appoint, from thenceforth to be the school-mistresses to instruct the said girls during her life; and after her death, if the said W. D. her fitter be then living, then I hereby appoint her the said W. D. or such person as the shall appoint, from thenceforth to be the succeeding school-mistresses for the said girls, during her life; and immediately after the death of the survivors of them the said M. R. R. D. and M. B. in the cafe the said E. B. fitter of the said M. B. be then living, then I hereby appoint the said E. B. or such person as the shall appoint, from thenceforth to be the succeeding school-mistresses for the said girls, during her life; and I do hereby further direct, that from and immediately after the decease of the survivors of them the said M. R. R. D. and M. B. that every succeeding school-mistresses for the said school, shall be nominated and appointed by such person as the shall appoint, or person who should be nominated and appointed for the purpose of this my will be intituled to and have the property of my said now dwelling-house in W. afooreaid; and my desire is, (if by him, her or them so thought fit) that the wife of the then succeeding vicar there for the time being, shall be the future school-mistress in cafe the will of me be accepted of the same; and my will is, that the same person, and every succeeding vicar of W. shall on the first Sunday in every month catechize the said children with others, in W. church afooreaid; and that on refual or neglect thereof, every wife of such vicar shall lose the beneft of being school-mistresses to the said school: And my further will is, that the said 20 poor girls, with others, shall be taught to sing psalms by some proper person qualified for that purpose, who shall be always appointed by the vicar there for the time being; and that they the said charity trustees, or the major part of them, shall, out of the rents of the same premises pay to such person the annual sum of 20 l. for his doing; and also the yearly sums of 20 l. for the upwards of the rent of the same premises; the same two yearly sums of 20 l. and 20 l. to be paid at the said two feasts by two equal half-yearly payments, clear of all deductions, and in such manner as afooreaid: And my further will is, that every school-mistresses of the said school, together with all the said girls, shall constantly go to the said church of W. twice on every Sunday, and there attend divine service both morning and evening: and also on every festival and other days usually kept at the said church, as likewise on every Thursday lecture preached at W. church; (ticketless and all other inevitable accidents only and always excepted) and further, that the said 20 poor girls shall have equal and equal portions of all which shall be chosen by the said trustees, or the major part of them, immediately after my death, and be then fixed in the said school; and if that or any at any time after, there shall be wanting in W. afooreaid, the full number of the said 20 girls so intituled to have the benefit of this my charity (intending differenls children as well as church people) shall have equal portions of all which shall be then fixed in the said school, and as often as the same shall happen, it will be, that they the said trustees, or the major part of them, shall chufe and make up such number of girls out of some other parishes or parishes next adjoining to W. afooreaid; and further, that no such girls shall be admitted to the said school for the time being, as have been married or have issue born of their bodies, and shall continue after the age of 14 years; and I do hereby direct that the said charity trustees, or the major part of them, shall four times in every year, viz. on Christmas-day, Lady-day, Michaelmas-day, and Christmas-day, or any other
A devise of tithes to a truste, for the augmentation of the living of the Vicar or Curate of S.

Item, I give, devise and bequeath unto my loving friend M. A. of &c. Eqy, and to his heirs and assigns for ever, all that my part, share and portion of tithes, of what nature, kind or quality soever, issuing and payable to me out of three several farms, situate and being in the parish of &c. And all other my tithes in the hundred of D. aforefaid; upon this special trust and confidence nevertheless, that he the said M. A. and his heirs, shall and do, from time to time, and at all times hereafter, permit and suffer the vicar or curate of the parish of S. for the time being, and his successors for ever, vicars or curates of the said parish of S. to receive and take the said tithes, part, share or portion of tithes to his and their own proper use, benefit and to the end and purpose of the better livelihood, provision and maintenance of the said vicar or curate, and his successors, vicars and curates of the said parish of S. for ever.

A devise or gift to W. College Oxon, for the education of one poor scholar for ever.

Item, I give, devise and bequeath unto the said M. A. and to his heirs and assigns for ever, all that my meffuage or tenement, farm, lands and hereditaments, situate, &c. upon this special trust and confidence nevertheless, that he the said M. A. and his heirs, shall from time to time, and at all times hereafter, permit and suffer the warden and fellows of W. college in the university of Oxford for the time being, and their successors for ever, to receive and take the rents, issues and profits thereof, which I direct and appoint shall, from time to time, and at all times hereafter, be paid and allowed for and towards the maintenance and education of a poor scholar of the said college, for and during, and until such scholar shall be bachelor of arts, or elected fellow of the house; and then to another poor scholar to be elected and chosen, which scholar shall from time to time be nominated, elected and chosen by the warden and five further fellows of the said college.
For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain ten windows or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 10d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain eleven windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 11s. 2d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain twelve windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 11s. 4d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain thirteen windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 11s. 6d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain fourteen, fifteen, sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, or nineteen windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 11s. 8d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain twenty windows, or lights, the yearly sum of 12s. 2d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain twenty-three windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 6d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain twenty-four windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 10d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain twenty-five windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 12d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain twenty-six windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 14d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain twenty-seven windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 16d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain twenty-eight windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 18d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain twenty-nine windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 20d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain thirty windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 22d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain thirty-one windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 24d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain thirty-two windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 26d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain thirty-three windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 28d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain thirty-four windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 30d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain thirty-five windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 32d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain thirty-six windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 34d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain thirty-seven windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 36d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain thirty-eight windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 38d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain thirty-nine windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 12s. 40d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain forty windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 13s. 3d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain forty-one windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 13s. 5d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain forty-two windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 13s. 7d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain forty-three windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 13s. 9d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain forty-four windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 13s. 11d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain forty-five windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 13s. 13d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain forty-six windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 13s. 15d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain forty-seven windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 13s. 17d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain forty-eight windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 13s. 19d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain forty-nine windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 13s. 21d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain fifty windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 13s. 23d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain fifty-one windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 13s. 25d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain fifty-two windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 13s. 27d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain fifty-three windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 13s. 29d. for each window, or light, in such house.

For every window, or light, in every dwelling-house as aforesaid, which shall contain fifty-four windows, or lights, and no more, the yearly sum of 13s. 31d. for each window, or light, in such house.
Made perpetual by 9 Anc. c. 21. and 3 Geo. I. c. 9, and part of the South Sea fund.

Retailers to sell wine only in newer Measures, 4 W. & M. c. 34, s. 19. 2 W. & M. & M. &. 6. c. 14. f. 3.

Penalty of adulterating wine. 1 W. & M. & M. c. 34, s. 15.

Wines of Hungary may be imported from Hamburg as Rhenish wine. 1 Ann. f. 1, c. 1, s. 12. f. 112.

Contents of the gallon of wine. 5 Ann. c. 37. s. 17. Importation of French wine permitted. 9 Ann. c. 8.

The allowance on damaged wine regulated. 6 Geo. I. c. 11. s. 5.

The times for exporting wines enlarged. 6 Geo. I. c. 12. s. 5.

Not to diminish the duties of prisage and butchery, 6 Geo. I. c. 1. 1.

No allowance for freight of wine, unless shipped in casks from its place of growth, 8 Geo. I. c. 18. f. 19.

Allowance for wine franded, 8 Geo. I. c. 18. f. 20.

27 Geo. II. c. 18. f. 5.

Damaged wines may be sold for distilling, or making vinegar, 12 Geo. II. c. 1. c. 18. f. 20.

The duties on wine less altered, 1 Geo. II. c. 17.

Allowance not to be imported in bottle or small casks, 1 Geo. II. c. 17.

Saving of the privileges of the universities, 10 Geo. II. c. 1. f. 2. 30 G. c. 19. f. 9.

Wine not to be sold without licence at the universities, 17 Geo. II. c. 40. s. 1.

An additional duty of tonnage on wine, 18 Geo. II. c. 9.

Wine imported into the outports not to be brought within 20 miles of the Royal Exchange, without paying the London duty, 26 Geo. II. c. 12.

The commission for granting licences to retail wine by virtue of 12 Geo. II. c. 2, to casks, and the duties, together with new duties, to be levied by the commissioners of the thamp office, 27 Geo. II. c. 10.

The act not to be prejudicial to the wine company, 30 Geo. II. c. 19.

The penalty of retailing abated, 32 Geo. II. c. 19.

No discount on wine licences, 32 Geo. II. c. 19. f. 12.

An additional duty of 8l. per ton on all French wines imported, 3 Geo. III. c. 12.

And on all other wines imported, 4l. per ton. Ibid.

Witting-in-a-penny, is that season comprehended between the 11th day of November, and the 23rd April, which time by the act made 20 Car. 2, c. 3, is excepted from the liberty of communing in the Forest of Dean. Comitatus, 1737.

Wit, Penalty on importing foreign card wire or iron wire for making of wool cards, 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 3, excepted from the liberty of communing in the Forest of Dean. Comitatus, 1737.

Wit, Penalty on importing foreign card wire or iron wire for making of wool cards, 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 3, excepted from the liberty of communing in the Forest of Dean. Comitatus, 1737.

Wit, Penalty on importing foreign card wire or iron wire for making of wool cards, 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 3, excepted from the liberty of communing in the Forest of Dean. Comitatus, 1737.

Wit, Penalty on importing foreign card wire or iron wire for making of wool cards, 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 3, excepted from the liberty of communing in the Forest of Dean. Comitatus, 1737.

Wit, Penalty on importing foreign card wire or iron wire for making of wool cards, 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 3, excepted from the liberty of communing in the Forest of Dean. Comitatus, 1737.

Wit, Penalty on importing foreign card wire or iron wire for making of wool cards, 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 3, excepted from the liberty of communing in the Forest of Dean. Comitatus, 1737.

Wit, Penalty on importing foreign card wire or iron wire for making of wool cards, 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 3, excepted from the liberty of communing in the Forest of Dean. Comitatus, 1737.

Wit, Penalty on importing foreign card wire or iron wire for making of wool cards, 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 3, excepted from the liberty of communing in the Forest of Dean. Comitatus, 1737.

Wit, Penalty on importing foreign card wire or iron wire for making of wool cards, 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 3, excepted from the liberty of communing in the Forest of Dean. Comitatus, 1737.

Wit, Penalty on importing foreign card wire or iron wire for making of wool cards, 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 3, excepted from the liberty of communing in the Forest of Dean. Comitatus, 1737.

Wit, Penalty on importing foreign card wire or iron wire for making of wool cards, 13 & 14 Car. 2, c. 3, excepted from the liberty of communing in the Forest of Dean. Comitatus, 1737.
WON

WOO

Wife of a party admitted to prove her husband's death. Stran. 566.
Wife witnesses against husband, on indictment for assault upon her. Stran. 633.
The wife of one defendant cannot be a witness for the other on an indictment against two. Stran. 1095.
Creditor of bankrupt no witness to prove him a gamester. Stran. 507.
A creditor allowed to prove debtor not intitled to his discharge on the Mint act. Stran. 650.
Sheriffs' bailiff no witnesses to prove attempt to arrest. Stran. 650.
 LORDS of commonalty not disallowed as witnesses to eftablish a right in a lord of another manor. Stran. 658.
An informer intitled to part of the penalty is no witnesses. Stran. 316.
In a trial for beating his servant, the servant not admitted a witnesses. Stran. 414.
A servant witness in an action by master for beating him. Stran. 595, 1054.
An apprentice witness for master in action per quod tertium amici. Stran. 544.
In an action against the master for the negligence of his servant, the servant having a release from the defendant is competent. Stran. 1083.
A tailor who claims wages, no witnesses concerning the los of the ship. Stran. 414.
Original deponent taken as a servant, to prove the pay- ment another. Stran. 871.
Goldsmith's servant who overpays money is a witness in action for it again. Stran. 647.
He that apprehends himself interested, tho' not strictly so, is no witnesses. Stran. 129.
The party who excepts to a witness may call him afterwards. Stran. 480.
A witnesses admitted where remotely intrested. Stran. 575.
A. Rops bonds at the South Sea house, and gives bond to indemnify he is no witnesses to prove the property, in an action against the company's servant. Stran. 575.
Where there are two qualifications to an election of an office, he who has but one only may be a witnesses. Stran. 583.
Where one defendant is fined, he is a witnesses for another. Stran. 1032.
The tenant in possession cannot be a witnesses in ejectment. Stran. 632.
A corporator who has acted under the right claimed, may be a witnesses to prove the usage. Stran. 1069. See Evidence.
Wold. (Sax.) Signifies a down, or open champaign ground, void of wood; as Stew in the Wolds, Coethoven in Gloucestershire, &c.
Wolfshead, or Wolfshead, (Sax.) Caput Lupinum, was the condition of such as were outlawed in the time of the Saxons; who if they could not be taken alive to be brought to justice, might be slain, and their heads brought to the King; for they were no more accounted of than a wolf's head, a beast so hurtful to man. Leg. Edw. Conf. Bract. lib. 3.
Women, Laws relating to. A woman is capable of being a fecton, and of voting at an election for one. 2 Strange 1114. A ballard is within the statute of P. & M. against taking away young women. Ibid. 1161.
The chancellor to vacate obligations, statutes or recognizances obtained from women by fraud and imposition. 31 H. 6. c. 9.
Shall have lively of their lands at fourteen. 39 H. 6. c. 8.
The penalties of taking away women children from their guardians, or marrying them. 4 & 5 P. & M. c. 8.
The penalty of a woman child confenting to a ravishment. 4 & 5 P. & M. c. 8. 6. For other matters, see Baron and Feuds, Bigamy, Marriage, Rape, Felony.
Wing, a Saxon word for field. Sylm.

ELiEoo. Stat. 35 Hen. 8. c. 17. see. 1. enables, that there shall be 12 flandails in an acre of wood under 24 years felling.
Sed. 8. Underwoods felled at 14 years growth, or under, shall during 4 years next after the 20th of April after their felling, be preferred from deftruction of cattle, on pain that the owner thereof shall forfeit for every rood of land unfenced, for every month 31. 4d. and under- woods above 14 years growth, and under 24, being so felled, shall during 6 years next after the 20th of April after such felling be preferred as standford, upon the like pain.
Sed. 9. None shall convert into pasture or tillage any such woodland or coppice, containing two acres or above, which now be wood or underwood, and put or suffer to grow any tree of wood or underwood, and being two furlongs distant from the house of the owner thereof, or from the house whereunto such wood doth appertain, on pain to forfeit 40s. for every acre so converted.
Sed. 10. Half of the forfeitures to be for the king, the other half to him that will for the same by bill, plaint, action of debt or information, in any of the King's courts of record, in which no prosecution, wager of war, or effign shall be allowed.
Stat. 13 Eliz. e. 25. adds two years more than the four years limited by 35 H. 8. c. 17. for preferring the setting from deftruction of cattle.
In cases tryed upon the Stat. 35 H. 8. for not fencing of coppices; First exception was, that it is not alleged that the defendant had lawful interest in them, as the words of the statute are. 2dly. Because it is shown that certain coppices were cut, but flown what coppices they were. 3dly. Because it is recited that he shall forfeit for every rood 3 1/4 d. where it should be for every rood of land. But it were said the parliament roll is rood of land; and so was the last impression; but for the two first exceptions the party was discharg'd. Cra. Eliz. 117. pl. 21. Melb. 30 & 31 Eliz. in B. R. Edwards v. Wyld.
Information upon this statute for grumbling up wood in Buckinghamhur, Contra farman Statutis; after a verdict for the plaintiff it was moved in arrest of judgment, 1st. That it is not mentioned in the information, that the wood was growing at the time of the act made; for the words of the statute ran, and it ought to be fet forth, as upon the 5 Eliz. concerning apprentices which has been already decided. To which if a servant, the point that the proviso in the statute is general, and not tied up to wood growing at the time of the act; and Contra farman Statutis supplies it, if the law were so, in Dyer 312. The court conceived the exception fatal, and that it could not be supplied by the words Contra farman Statutis, for they do but make the conclusion upon the statute before fet forth, and are themselves no part of the case, but dischose the result of the premises, and will not of themselves make a case without sufficient pre- mises, which ought to fet forth the law, as it is upon the statute. Et adjourned. But afterwards judgment was strestred upon this exception. Hard. 105. pl. 1. Trin. 1655. Marvy v. Ulin.
Exception to an information upon this statute was, because by the statute of 21 Jac. 1. the information ought to be brought and tried in the proper county. But it was answered that this is a mistake; for that law takes place only in such cases where justices of peace, or of alde, have power by law to hear and determine; but by this act of parliament, upon which the present information is grounded, they have no power at all; for the prosecution is tied up to courts of record, and thus that law has always been confirmed. Hard. 105. pl. 1. 1655. Marvy v. Ulin.
On felling woods where others have common, one quarter to be included, 35 H. 8. c. 17. 7.
After two years owners may cut colts and calves into inclosed woods, 35 H. 8. c. 17. 7. 2d.
Penalties of exporting wood without licence, 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 5.
Timber trees shall not be coaled for iron works, 1 El. c. 15.
Oks.
Oaks to be felled in barking time, 5 El. c. 3.
Woods to be inclosed two years latter, and further directions about putting in cattie, 13 El. c. 25. f. 18.
Wood growing within 22 miles of London, &c. not to be carried for iron works, 23 El. c. 5. 27 El. c. 19.
Penalties of stealing wood or defoying young trees, 15 Car. 2. c. 2.

For the preservation of timber in the forest of Down, 20 Car. 2. c. 3.
Penalties of malicious cutting down trees, 1 Gez. 1. c. 48. 6 Gez. 1. c. 16.
Damage to be made good by parish, 1 Gez. 1. c. 48.
Wood, underwood and coppices, how taxable, 30 G. 2. c. 20.
Collector, &c. impowered to cut down and fell wood growing on woodland affoide, where no diffirets is to be had, 4 G. 3. c. 2. f. 35. See Timber, Trees.
Woodmote, Some quantity of oats or other grain, paid by customary tenants to the lord, for liberty to pick up dead and broken wood. Cravell, edit. 1727.
Woodmote (Woodmote) Seems to be the gathering or cutting of wood within the forest, or money paid for the same to the forestier; and the immunity from this by the King's grant is by Crampen called woodgeld. fol. 157. Co. on Litt. fol. 233, says, it signifies to be free from payment of money, for taking wood in any forest. Cravell, edit. 1727.
Woodmen, Are those in the forest that have charge especially to look to the King's wood. Cramp. fur. fol. 146.

Woodmote, Is the old name of that court of the forest, which is now, by the statute of Charte de Forest, called the Court of attachments, and by that statute is held every forty days, but was wont to be held at the will of the chief officers of the forest, without any certain time. See Monand's Forest Law, cap. 22. fol. 207.
Wooducken-court, Is a court held twice in the year in the hearing of the King's justices for determining all matters of wood and agriment thereto, and perhaps was anciently the fame with woodmote-court. Cravell, edit. 1727.
Woodward, (woodward) Is an officer of the forest, whose function you may understand by his oath fet down in Cramp. fur. fol. 201. Woodwards may not walk with bow and shafts, but with foreft bile. Monand, part 1. pag. 160.
Woodstock, Wool and yarn may be sold in Woodstock on market and fair days, 18 Eliz. c. 21. See Market-rough.

Wool, Maleoute of wool releas'd, 25 Ed. 1. c. 7.
Nothing shall be taken in the name of maleoute of a quarter of wool, St. de tallon. non conced. 34 Ed. 1. f. 4. c. 3.
Exportation of wool prohibited, 11 Ed. 3. c. 1. By Englishmen, felony, 27 Ed. 3. f. 2. c. 3. c. 7. c. 12. 31 Ed. 3. f. 1. c. 9. 38 Ed. 3. f. 4. c. 6.
Cultron on wool limited, 14 Ed. 3. f. 5.
The price of wool shall be, 18 Ed. 3. f. 2. c. 3.
The feller not bound to warrant the packing, unless by deed, 28 Ed. 3. c. 13.
The packing not to be warranted, 13 R. 2. f. 1. c. 9.
Weight of wool, 13 Ed. 3. f. 1. c. 2.
What refuse may be made of wool, 31 Ed. 3. f. 1. c. 9. 13 R. 2. f. 1. c. 9.
Subsidy shall not be paid for the package, 34 Ed. 3. c. 19.
Licence to denizens to export wool, 34 Ed. 3. c. 21.
Nothing shall be demanded but the ancient cultron, and no subsidy shall be left on wool without affection of parliament, 36 Ed. 3. c. 5.
The forfeiture of lands and goods on denizens exporting wool discharged, 46 Ed. 3.
Regrating of wool prohibited, 14 R. 2. c. 4. 22 H. 8. c. 1. 37 H. 8. c. 15. 5 & 6 Ed. b. c. 7.
None shall buy woolen yarn but to make cloth, 3 H. 6. c. 5. c. 1.

Vol. II. N° 140.
Wool laid near the shrde in Ireland, forfeited, 5 G. 1.

Length of warping bars and trums, 13 G. 1. c. 23.

Tenters to be measured and inspected, 13 G. 1. c. 23.

Sixteen ounces to the pound of wool, 13 G. 1. c. 23.

Ships to cruise round Great Britain and Ireland, to prevent the unlawful exportation of woollen manufactures, 5 G. 2. c. 21.

The duties on Irish woollen yarn imported, taken off, 12 G. 2. c. 21.

Wool to be carried only in British or Irish ships, 12 G. 2. c. 21. f. 6.

Ships how to be qualified for loading wool, 12 G. 2. c. 21. f. 7.

Exporting wool, &c., contrary to the regulations, forfeiture of the ship, 12 G. 2. c. 21.

Wool from Ireland may be imported into Lancashire, 25 G. 2. c. 14.

Wool from Ireland may be imported into Yarmouth, 27 G. 2. c. 16.

Wool, &c., may be imported from Ireland into Exeter, 26 G. 2. c. 8.

Permission to export wool, &c., from any part of Ireland to any part of England, 26 G. 2. c. 11.

Woollen-combers and Weavers, See Dyapery, Wool.

Woollen-dyers, mentioned in stat. 2 & 3 P. & M. cap. 13. Are such as buy wool abroad in the country of the sheep owners, and carry it on horseback to the clothiers, or to market-towns to sell again, Coxeil, ed. 1727.

Woolfriarden. See Wolfshead.

Wool-key. Its ground, wharf and key, in the parish of All-faiths, Barking, in London, vested in trustees for his Majesty, his heirs and successors, &c., 8 G. 1. c. 31.

Woollen Manufactures. Combination of weavers, wool-driers, &c., prohibited, 12 G. 1. c. 34. 29 G. 2. c. 33.

-Extended to combers of friezy wool, frame-work-knitters and flocking-makers, 12 G. 1. c. 34. f. 8. and to other manufactures, by 22 G. 2. c. 27. f. 2.

Regulations for the payment of wages, 13 G. 1. c. 25. f. 9. 29 G. 2. c. 33. 30 G. 2. c. 12.

Punishment of gatherers, 13 G. 1. c. 23. f. 8.

Having in cassey cloth wool drawn from the rack, or wool left to dry, first offence treble value, third trans- portation, 15 G. 2. c. 27.

Wool-dyke, mentioned in stat. 31 H. 3. Stat. 5. is, That city or town where wool was sold. See Staple. See Woolchens. See Churches.

Wool-winders. Are such as wind up every fleece of wool, that is to be pack'd and fold by weight, into a kind of bundle, after it is cleanned in such manner as it ought to be by the flute, and to avoid such deceit as the owners would want to use by thrashing in lacks of refuse straw, and other doths, to gain weight. They are sworn to perform that office truly between the owner and the merchant. See the stat. 8 H. 6. c. 22. 23 Hen. 8. c. 17. and 18 Eliz. c. 25.

Worister, The workhouse there established, 3 G. 2. c. 23. 4 G. 2. c. 23. Corporation established for relief of poor, 2 Ann. c. 8. Hop-market for the benefit of the poor, 4 G. 2. c. 25.

Worists, Single worists may be exported to any place, without paying the duties of Calais, 17 R. 2. c. 2.

Worists, Single worists may be exported to any place, without paying the duties of Calais, 17 R. 2. c. 2.

Powers given to the wardens of the worsted weavers in Norwich and Norfolk, 20 B. 5. c. 10. 23 H. 6. c. 3.

7 Ed. 4. c. 11. 11 H. 7. c. 11. 19 H. 7. c. 17. 15 & 16 H. 8. c. 3. 21 H. 8. c. 21. 25 H. 8. c. 16. 1 Ed. 6. c. 6.

Makers may take apprentices, 15 & 15 H. 8. c. 3.

For avoiding deceits in worists, 5 H. 8. c. 4.

Exportation of Norfolk wool and yarn fit for worsteds, prohibited, 6 H. 8. c. 12. 23 H. 8. c. 16.

They who dry worsted shall not Example them, 25 H. 8. c. 16.

For the making of stuffs and fullaunts of Naples, in Norwich, 18 2 P. & M. c. 14.

Muff ferve apprenticeship, and how many apprentices may be taken, 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 14. 5. 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 5. 15. 18.

For regulating the making of stuffs in Norwich and Norfolk, 13 & 14 Car. 2. & 5. See Dyapery, Wool, Matt.

Wools, which may be taken or interpreted by law in a general or common cause, ought not to receive a strained or unnatural construction. And ambiguous words are to be construed so as to make them stand with law and equity; and not to be wrested to do wrong. A Latin word in pleading, which signified divers things, was well used to express that thing intended to be expressed by it: Uncertain words in a declaration, are made good and certain by a plea in bar, where notice is taken of the meaning of them, and words which are in themselves uncertain, may be made certain by subsquent or following words. The different placing of the same words may caufe them to have a different fenfe and construction: A word which is written short or abbreviated, is not good without a dach to disphight it: And fcrific words are void and idle; though they shall not hurt where it is good without them. Nor shall words in deeds that are needless, impeach a clause certain and perfect without such words, 2 Litt. 711, 712, 713, 714. Hob. 313. See 16 Vin. Abr. p. 199.

Words of a justice not spoke to him, not indiscivable. Stran. 1157.

Words of a magistrate where actionable. Stran. 617.

He is a rogue of a justice of peace, actionable. Stran. 1658.

Thief of every thing actionable. Stran. 142.

You are a rogue, and compounded, &c., of a tradefman, actionable. Stran. 752.

You did flur up my fitter and murder her, actionable, Stran. 1130.

Of an attorney, he is a rogue, &c., he is no attorney, actionable. Stran. 1138.

Cheating rogue, not actionable, Stran. 696.

He has received forty days wages for work that might have been done in ten days, and is a rogue for his pains, of a carpenter, not actionable. Stran. 797.

You cheated f. S. and flood bawd to your daughter; &c., not actionable. Stran. 1169.

Nothing to do to pay A. had the pox. Stran. 1189.

Rogue not actionable. Stran. 304.

Where words are not actionable of themselves, in an action of confedential damages the plaintiff may give evidence of particular damages. Stran. 666.

Where words are of themselves actionable, small special damages will not carry full costs. Stran. 936.

What is spiritual defamation. Stran. 946.

Words tantamount to where are within the custom of London. Stran. 471, 545.

Strumpet tantamount to whore in London. Stran. 555.

The truth of words cannot be given in evidence on a guilty plea. Stran. 1200.

See Action, Biflers, Slanker, Slaubam Magna-

Worshouse. The most confiderable workhouse in the City of London, is that in Bishopgate street; wherein some hundreds of idle persons are constantly employed in bearing hearing hemp, &c. and a great many poor children maintained and educated. Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2. And in the city of Bristol a great workhouse is erected, for the better employing and maintaining the poor, governed by a corporation, &c. 7 & 8 IV. 3. So in the counties of Wiltshire, Gloucester and Canterbury, by the Statutes 3. 13 & 14 Car. 2. for parochial workhouses, see 30 Geo. 3. 167. 5 Rep. 107. b. S. P. in Sir H. Constable's case. And this statute being but declaratory of the Common law, these three instances are but put for examples; for besides these two kinds of beasts, all other beasts, fowis, b. rds, hawks, and other living things are understood, whereby the owner, fify, or property of the goods may be known to be forfeited, under the statute, as forbe, aggripa fuerat mercius, & aliis suis. 2. 2. Inf. 167. 168. Altho' this statute speaks only of a wreck, yet it extends to Jetjum, Jetjum, and Ligan. 2 Inf. 167. The case whereof originally wreck was given to the crown, was taken by a court of law of her. Common law; &f. That the property of all goods whatsoever must be in some person. 2dly, That such goods as no subject can claim any property in, do belong to the King by his prerogative, as treasure-trove, fry's, wreck, of the seas, and others; because of ancient time, when the art of navigation was not so perfected, nor trade of merchandize grown to such perfection as now it is, it was a matter of great difficulty to be proved in whom the property of goods wrecked at sea was. Others have yielded another reason, that the King, by old custom of the realm, as lord of the narrow sea, is bound to scour the sea of such goods, and petty robbers of the sea; and so it is read of this noble King Edgar, that he would twice in the year scour the sea of such pirates, &c. and because that could not be done without great charge, the law gave unto him fuch goods, as he be wrecked upon the sea, towards the charge. 2 Inf. 167. If a ship be ready to perish, and all the men therein, for safeguard of their lives, leave the ship; and after the forsaken ship perishes, if any of the men be saved, and come to land, the goods are not lost. 2 Inf. 167. If a ship on the sea is pursu'd with enemies, and the men for safeguard of their lives forsake the ship, and the enemy seizes it, and the ship is taken, and the property and tackle, and turn her into sea; by the weather she is cast on land, where her men arrived; it was resolved by all the judges of England, that the ship was no wreck, nor lost. 2 Inf. 167. cites 5 R. 2. Pijlah's case. But the goods shall be saved. Yet if the goods be lost, the thiefs may fell such goods within the zone left they should perish, and nothing be made of them; and therefore for necessity (which is excepted out of law) the sale in that case is good within the year. 2 Inf. 168. So that if any fays for tho' goods. Where goods are not lost, and the ship is not taken by the King, who was the owner ought to make proof of the property within the year; and if the ship be taking, and otherwise he shall not re-have them; per Nottingam. Br. Wreck. 2. cites 35 H. 6. 27. Yet if the owner dies within the year, his executors or administrators may make proof, for that this act is but a declaration of the Common law. 2 Inf. 168. Within a year and a day. This year and day shall be accounted from the seisure made as wreck, for that is the thing whereof the owner may take the belt notice. 2 Inf. 168. 5 Rep. 107. b. S. P. in Sir H. Constable's case; for tho' the property is in law vested in the lord before the seisure, yet all the goods are under the law, and if the person into his actual possessions it is not notorious who the person is that claims the wreck, not to whom the owner must resort to make his claim, and to hew his proofs. But if the King's goods be wrecked and cast upon ground where aSubject has wreck of the sea, who sells the goods, the Kings may make his proof at any time when he will, and it is not confined to a year and a day, as the subject is. 2 Inf. 168. S. P. for Nullum Tempus occurrit Regi. Br. Wreck. 2. cites 35 H. 6. 27. Now if the goods or merchandise be cast upon the land be not seised, as is aforesaid, but taken away by certain wrong-doers not known, the party may have a common law remedy. Oyer and Terminer, &c. such of them that did the treftups, and to bear and determine the same, and to make reftitution to the party, 2 Inf. 168. S. P. and a writ to the sheriff to return the trespasses and legal losses. F. N. B. 112. (C) 5 Rep. 107. b. 168. a. In Sir H. Constable's case. If the wreck belongs to the Eadjudged

The party may have such a commission, for no proof is allowable by law but the verdict of 12 men; and if the wreck belong to another than the King, then if the owner do not ratify him who claims them as wreck by his mark or cекет, or the book of custome, or the testifimony of honest men, then the owner may have such commission, or he may bring his action at Common law, and prove it by verdict of a jury; and if the commission be awarded, or the action be commenced within the year and day, that the verdict be given in the next year, it is satisfaét.

And if not, they shall remain] That is, it shall not be tried in the admiralty court, but before the King's justices at the Common law, because the wreck is over call upon the land. 2 Inst. 158.

To another than to the king] Wreck may belong to the subdiet either by grant from the King, or preemption. 2 Inst. 158.

Of ancient time wreck of the sea and other casualties, as treasure-trove in the land, strayes and the like, were prima inventaria quasi totius papalis, sed postea ad Regnum transferunt, qui ne modo totius papalis, sed Republicae exitum causam et cum adfeftavit. But in the sea, the finder shall have it at this day. 2 Inst. 158.

And he that otherwise doth, &c. Which is to understand, that the King's justices, when whome the party is attainted, shall set the fine; Et nun Domini Rex per se in Camera fuerat, nec alter erat esse, nisi per judicetum Rex &c. But of the discovery of the sea, the Custom is it shall have at this day. 2 Inst. 158.

In an information for landing goods without paying or agreeing for the custom, the defendant pleaded that the goods were wrecked, and call upon the land of C. who had wreck of the sea appurtenant to his manor adjoining to the sea, and that C. feigned them and told them to the defense to be found. "Does or if the justification be good?" Mich. 224. pl. 365. Mich. 28 & 29 Esqr, in the Escofher, Saunders's case. At Common law all wreck was wholly the King's, so that they could not then be chargeable with custom, and by Stat. W. 1. c. 4, where wreck belongs to another than the King, he shall have it in like manner, that is, as the King has his. Vaugh. 164. Shepherd v. Gosfield.

The words of the Stat. of 12 Car. 2. c. 4. of tunnage and poundage granted to the King, are of all mercantize, &c. to be imported, &c. into the kingdom of England, &c. by way of merchandise of such a value, &c. per Vaugh. Ch. J. in delivering the opinion of the court, by whose words wreck imported, and not imported as merchandise, is not subject to the other man, but to be charged as it is in the judgment accordingly. Vaugh. 160, 161, 170. Hlil. 23 & 24. Car. 2. C. B. Shepherd v. Gosfield &c. All. Melly 276. (5th edit.) lib. 2. c. 5. f. 9. says, that the like in all cases in circumstances, Hill. 6 W. 3. C. B. between Power and Sir William Portman, the judges, and more particularly Truby Ch. J. seemed to be of opinion that goods wrecked or flutum should pay custom. Ed. Rainy. Rep. 388. Mich. 10 W. 3. Ann. says, that mention being made that this point had been argued three or four times in C. in the case of Sir William Courtney v. Bowcr, he said that he would not have suffered merchandise to be considered if it had been therefore to the test formant tantum, and that always since the case of Shepherd v. Gosfield, Vaugh. 159. it had never been a doubt, but that wreck should not pay custom. Ed. Rainy. Rep. 501. S. C. of Courtney v. Bowcr having been adjudged in C. by 3 f. that no customs ought to be paid contra to the opinion of Truby C. J. a writ of error, who on the same point had in like manner been before informed without other reason given by the court than the authority of that case in Vaugh.

Goods cast into the sea to bewhurn a ship in a storm, and never intended for merchandise, are wreck when cast on the shore without any shipwreck. Per Powel J. 168. Hill. 32 & 33 Car. 2. C. B. in case of Shepherd v. Gosfield &c. All. Derrclerosis goods, viz. defected by the owners, and cast into the sea, which happens upon various occasions, as coming from infellet towns and places, and for many other respects, will be wreck, if cast on shore afterwards, tho' never purposed for merchandise; but goods cast over board to lighten a ship are not, by Bradden, nor from him by Richard, abdeemed derelict goods; which is a question not thrw. examined. &c. Lact. ca. en mensa, at nulli effe Dominus, aliud est, pr. Bratt. By Vanglau Ch. I. Vaugh. 168. in case of Shepher v. Gosfield &c. All.

In Trouer for an anchor, &c. a special verdict found that the plaintiff was possessed of this anchor, &c. and that the goods were cast over the seas to the sea, and that the custom of the manor is, that if any ship or boat sailing or floating on the sea flake upon the foil of the said manor so that it perishes, &c. it is not wreck, yet the berth anchor and cable belong to the lord, and that the ship to which this anchor, &c. belonged struck upon the foil of the manor, &c. and divers to be pericul, but that the men in it were faved, and that the defendant felled the anchor and cable to the use of the lord; adjudged that this custom is void, [it being] without any consideration. The reporter says, Not, no custom of salvage is found. 3 Lev. 83. Hlil. 34 Car. 2. C. B. Greve v. Barkham. But the custom was sworn upon a like custom, the defendant set forth, that the lords of the manor have used, in case of wreck of any ship cast upon the manor there inter flaxum & reviviscens maris, to take care of the sick and wounded, and of burial of the dead, and to preserve the goods cast there, for the use of the proprietors, and in consideration thereof to have the berth anchor and cable by the use of the ship to cast there, and that ship being wrecked and cast upon the manor, the defendant as servant to the lord took the anchor and cable in the declaration mentioned; tho' it was objected, that this is no more than common charity obliges the lord to do, yet Powel and Roolby, the only justices then in court, were of opinion that such custom is not unreasonable, it being for encouraging and safety of navigation; sed adjurat. But afterwards it was adjudged for the defendant. 3 Lev. 307. Trin. 3 W. & M. in C. B. Single v. Bithwaud. Wreck may be claimed by preemption, and may belong to the lord high admiralty by preemption, for it is an ancient office, time whereof, &c. per Hlil Ch. J. and said be made no doubt but wreck belonged to the admiral about the counterfeit ports, and such places where he was most conversant in ancient time. 12 Med. 260. Hill. 11 W. 3. in the case of Piggen and Brantonw. If a man, either by grant or preemption, has right to a wreck, and has it by a necessary consequence he has a right to a way over the fame land to take it. And the very possession of the wreck is in him that has such right, before any fuisse. Originally all wrecks were in the crown, and the King has a right to a way over any man's ground for his wreck, and the fame privilege goes to the grantor thereof; per Car. 6 Med. 304. Phys. 3 Ann. B. R. Ann. It seems that the taking of wreck before fuisse can not be felony, because no one has property of the goods at the time of the taking. Hawk. Pl. C. 93. c. 33. f. 24. fays it seems agreed.

Wreck to be valued and delivered to the towns, 4 Ed. 3 W. 172.

The King's prerogative in wreck, whales and ftures, Præs. Reg. 17 Ed. 2. f. 11. c. 11. Directions for preserving hips in diffrets, 12 An. f. 2. 18. 26 Geo. 2. c. 19. f. 6. Silage to be paid, 12 Ann. f. 2. 18. f. 2. Making of hips into ships without felony, whose, 12 An. f. 18. 18. f. 5. Penalty of fraud or neglect in officers of customs, 12 An. f. 2. 18. 19. f. 7. Stealing goods of small value or trumpery, 26 Geo. 2. c. 19. f. 2. Reward for saving any veile or goods, 26 Geo. 2. c. 19. f. 11. Officers of the customs may raise the salvage by sale of the veile or cargo, 26 Geo. 2. c. 19. f. 7. Projections by the clerk of the peace, 26 Geo. 2. c. 19. f. 8. 2 Commissariors

The 12 An. not to affect the jurisdiction of the five ports, 4 Geo. 1. c. 12. f. 2. 26 Geo. 2. c. 10. f. 10.

Affidavit any person in the saliva of any vehicle trans- formed which makes the demandant lie to his father, and the father heir to the grandfather, and the grand- father heir to the great grandfather, who was domiciled in, where the father never held estate, such writ is good; for after this act, it is no longer the act done by the writ, but the diversity between the two cases is, inasmuch as in the one case the writ appears to want form, and in the other case the writ may be as it purports, and the diversity which does not appear shall be difclofed by exception of the good of the party, and in the one case the writ shall stand, and in the other not; note the diversity.

The words are from the 58th, 11 H. 6. 20.

A writ of protection was brought into court under the great seal, to stay an outlawry in Asumfam, quasi ifps (the defendant) in guerris myfiras in Pedaneria dexterus ensit, &c.; but exception was taken to the writ, because it had not the words (Loquela coram Justiciarius myfiras itinerarium) according to the Register. Sed non allocutur; for les has discontinued a long time; and it is not to be intended de itinere et circiter forsitas.

The writ in a writ of right altered, St. Wilm. 1. 3 Ed. 1. c. 40.

The statutes of npi prius do not extend to greater aizes, St. Ebor. 12 Ed. 2. f. 1. c. 4.

The writ of entry in the psf given, St. Marle. 52 H. 3. c. 39.

Entry in the psf is not to be maintained where the writs mentioning the degrees lie, St. Wilm. 1. 3 Ed. 1. c. 40.

The day of signing wits to be enterel, 5 W. & M. c. 21. f. 4.

Wits to be indorsed with the attorney's name, 2 Geo. 2. c. 23. f. 72.

Special wits to be issed in small falts, 5 Geo. 2. c. 27. f. 72. See 22 Vin. Altr. cit. Wits.

Writ of Assistance. Illetes out of the Exequ负, to authorize any person to take a confable, or other public officer to seize goods or merchandise prohibited and uncomplied, &c. Stat. 14 Car. 2. c. 1. There is also a writ of this name issuing out of the Chancery to give a possession.

Writs of Deliery. In what cases grantable, 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 11. f. 30.

Writ of Entry. See Entry.

Writ of Inquity of Damages. Is a judicial writ, that is to say to the writor a judgment by default, in allowing the causes, defenses, trefts, trover, &c., commanding him to summons a jury to inquire what damages the plaintiff hath sustained aoejavus pra- minssum, and when this is returned with the inquisition, the rule for judgment is given upon it; and if nothing be said to the contrary, judgment is thereupon entered.

2 Lill. Abr. 714. This writ lies on a nihil dicit, non fum Informatum, or a demurrer; but not upon a verdict; and it is executed before the sheriff, or his deputy, at the time of which both parties have one liberty of being heard before the sheriff, by their counsel or attorneys, and evidence may be given on both sides: It is the duty of the jury diligently to inquire what damages have been sustained by the plaintiff, and this cannot be without evidence given them; and if where an Inhabitation Asumfam is brought for 100 l. for goods sold, and the defendant lets this go by default; if the plaintiff at the executing the writ of inquiry, gives no evidence to the jury, he would be delivered to the defendant: In this case, the jury must find some damages, because the defendant hath confessed the action, and admitted that there is damages; but there not being any proved, they ought to find only a penny, or some such small matter. 2 Lill. Abr. 721, 722. If a writ in 721 be executed, without giving due notice thereof to the defendant, it shall be quashed. 2 Litt. 721. In action of covenant, judgment was given for the plaintiff.
YAR

plaintiff in the Common pleas by default, and a writ of inquiry of damages executed, and final judgment for the plaintiff. And on a writ of error brought in B. R. amongst other exceptions, one was, that no day was given on the writ of inquiry, and therefore it might be a discontinuance; but the court resolved, that they never give a day in C. B. on this writ, nor is it necessary, because nothing is done but to ascertain the damages. 1 Ed. Raym. 368. A writ of inquiry was ordered to be executed before the Lord Chief Justice, the action being laid for very large damages, and such writ hath been felt aforesaid where the jury gave too little damages, and a new writ of inquiry ordered by rule of court, on payment of costs, &c. Mod. Cas. in L. and E. 213. 240. A judgment shall not be set aside, after a writ of inquiry executed. 3 Salt. See Damages.

Court of Rebellion. See Commission of Rebellion.

Writ of tallies. (Scriptor. talliarum) is an officer in the Exchequer, being clerk to the auditor of the receipt, who writes upon the tallies, the whole letters of the toller bills. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Writing. (Scriptum) A simple writing or declaration, not in the manner of a deed made to a certain person, &c. shall be good in law. Hid. 312.

Wrong, (In jus.) Is in French aptly called tort, because wrong is wrestled or crooked, being contrary to that which is right and fair. Co. on Lit. 2. cap. 1. See Dott.

Wronglands. Seem to be ill grown trees that will never prove timber, such as wrong the ground they grow in. Rinch. 169.

X.

YEA

PARED, Is used for Sunnite: Xante de leis &a quae mortuis vocere deret. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Yard, Is a well known measure, three feet in length; by which cloth, linen, &c. are measured: It was ordained by King Hen. 1. from the length of his own arm. Baker’s Chron.
This chapter of Magna Charta doth express that which doth belong to the King, viz. the year and the day; and omits the wafe as not belonging to him; and this is notably expressed by our ancient books with an uniform commonform, as in the fol. 37, 36, 157, 153, and Britton, fol. 5, 14, and Fleta, lib. 1, cap. 23, and Mirror, e. 5. f. 2. The Mirror, speaking of this chapter, faith, Le point des terres aux felons tener per un on, & a feu de foy, car per le feu le Roy ne doit avoir que le gait de droits, ou il en foudoie de fine par fers le def. i' étipm d'unautan le Reuoy ancien. Up to which it appears, that the King originally was to have no benefit in this case upon the attaint of felony, where the free land was held of a subject, but only in desecration of the crime, Ut poena ad passus, metus ad annos jusminism; to profitte the houses, to excurtis the gardens, to make the meadow, and to lay up the meadowie of the felon; for saving whereof, and for seas publics, the Lords, of whom the lands were held, were conferred to yield the lands to the King for a year and a day; and therefore not only the wafe was justly omitted out of this chapter of Magna Charta, but thereby it is enabled, that after the year and day the Land shall be rendered to the Fief in force by which such parcel was occupied by the fief. But the Chapter 37. Serjeant Hawkins says it seems agreed, that by the Common law, upon an attaint of felony, the King had a right utterly to wafe the lands held of any but himself, whereof the peron attaint was felled of an effet of inheritance, either in his own or in his wife's right. The King might lawfully cut down the wood, and use the land for this right, and also a right to hold such lands for a year and a day. But it is held by others, that the right to hold over the lands for a year and a day was given to the King in lieu of the wafe, and it seems implied in Magna Charta, cap. 22, whereby saying, that the King shall not hold over the lands of those convicted of felony but for one year and a day, and making no mention of the wafe, it seems plainly to intimate, that at the time of the making that Statute the King was thought to have no right other but to the year and day, 2. Haw. Pl. C.
419. cap. 49. f. 8. ibid. in marg. says it seems admitted, & Ed. 3. Fine-Trans. 489. Preeption 50. That the King was intitled to the wafe as well as to the year and day since that statute.

Where and the treatise of Prerogativa Regis, made in 17 Ed. 2. f. 2ys. Et pigyuant dominus Rex basaruntur annum, diem, & vofum, tune reddatur tenementum illius capitali Dominus fealdi illius, nisi prima facias fiem per anna, die & ves, & si fessio principis, & tenementum notum fuit; and this appears in the said old books, that the officers, and minor s did demand both for the wafe and for year and day, that came in lieu thereof, therefore this treatise named both, not that both were due, but that a reasonable fee might be paid for all that which the King might lawfully claim. But if this of 17 Ed. 2. be against this branch of Magna Charta, then is it repealed by the 48 of 43 Ed.
cap. 1. 2 Infi. 37. 2 Haw. Pl. C. 449. cap. 49. f. 8.
ays, that the statute de prerogativa Regis, made in 17
Ed. 2. having declared the King's right to the year and day, and also to the wafe, it seems to have been the more general and universal, and therefore, that he hath a right to both. Indeed if this statute had been against the express purviv of Magna Charta, it would have been clearly repealed by those many subjunctive statutes, which repeal all statutes contrary to Magna Charta; but being not contrary to the express words of it, but only to what is argumenetastically drawn from it, it cannot be well argued that it is Whereby it also appears how necessary the reading ancient authors is for understanding of ancient statutes. And out of these old books you may observe, that when any thing is given to the King in lieu, or satisfaction of any ancient right of his crown, when once he is in possession of the land, it is customary for the King to tell his officers and ministers will many times demand the old alfo, which may turn to great prejudice, if it be not duly and distinctly prevented. 2 Infi. 37.

If there be Lord, mefne, and tenant, and the mefne is attainted of felony, the Lord paramount shall have the menality, preffently; for this prerogative belonging to the King, extends only to the land, which might be wafted, in lieu whereof the year and day was granted, 2 Infi. 37.

And this is to be understood when a tenant in fee is attainted; for when tenant in tail, or tenant for life is attainted, there the King shall have the profits of the lands during the life of tenant in tail, or of the tenant for life. 2 Infi. 37.

That this may be here comitt, in a large fene, is taken for attinient: For the nature and true fene of both these words, see the first part of the Institutius; and likewise for this word felony there. 2 Infi. 37.

Of felony) Must be understood of all manner of felones punished by death, and not of petit larceny, which notwithstanding is felony. 2 Infi. 38.

If Lord and tenant are, and the tenant is attainted of felony, and the King has annuall, diem & vosum, yet if the Lord enters without due process, and the writ used to the exchequer, the land shall be refeid, and he shall
pl. 3, & 4, 46. & 47. & 49. & 50. & 51. & 52.

The statute de prorogativa Regis, cap. 15, wills, that if a felon has land, tune Rex statlam iliam habet, & habeat inde annum & vosum & terra demerit, & tune reddatur capitale dominu, &c. Quare, if this word (stat-lam) shall be otherwise intended but after office found,

Tenant by copy of court-rol by the verge in ancient demesne committed felony, and was attainted of it, and annuum, diem & vosum was awarded for the King; and the reason seems to be, inasmuch as frankenants in ancient demesne have no other evidence but copies of court-rols; for otherwise it seems to be a mere coppholder out of ancient demesne for other frank tenant. Br. Tenant per copias. &c. pl. 22, cites 3 Ed. 3.

A man was outlawed of felony, and aliened his land to
f. N. by which fite facias ifued against him, who came and would have traversed the felony; and the court doubted if he may traverse it, by reason that he is a franger to the record; but per pign. by 7 Ed. 4. c. 2. he cannot traverse it in case of felony being a franger to the record; contra in case of traihs; by which it was prayed for the King, that year, day, and wafe be adjudged for the King immediately, and fo it was immediately from that day till a year and a day next after, good note. Quare, it seems that the King may take the year and the day at what time he pleases; it seems he cannot. Br. Coron. pl. 295.
cites 49. f. 2.

The King shall have the first year and day and wafe down of the land of him who is attainted of felony, which comes after the attainer, and whatsoever takes the profits this year shall have the profits to the King; per Frinbert. But it seems that this is to be understood of office found, or that the inequit which attains him finds also what lands he had at the time of the felony committed, or after. And in the case above of 49. f. 2. the outraw of felony was 8 Ed. 3. and writ ifued to the King; and the copy of course of the record, he hath a right to both. But if, upon the office found, he who receives the profits the first year after the felony shall not be charged; it seems he shall per Fisch above; Quare the experience thereof in B. R. Br. Coron.
pl. 207. cites F. N. pl. 144.

Peman, or Pomam, or Paman, A derivative of the pome, is the same as the Thife Com. in his Brit.
fig. 105. placeh next in order to gentlemen, calling them ingenios, whose opinion the statute affirms, anno 6 Rich. 2. cap. 4. and 20 Rich. 2. cap. 2.
Sir Thomas Smib
Sheriff of Yorkshire to appoint seven tables for taking the poll at the election of Knights of the Shire, 12 Ann. c. 20. f. 6.

For incoining common grounds in the West Riding of Yorkshire.

For endowing poor vicarages, 12 Ann. b. 1. c. 4.

Regulation of the butter market, 3 Geo. c. 1. c. 27.

Penalty of throwing dirt, &c. in the river, 13 Geo. c. 32. See Diaper, Pewterers, Registry of Deeds.

York Buildings Company. The underwriters for raising water in York Buildings, impelled to fear annuities, 7 Geo. 1. b. 1. c. 20. fol. 57. took annuities not to be prejudiced by 7 Geo. 1. for sale of forfeited estates in Scotland, &c. 13 Geo. c. 13. fol. 9. See Abnagnum, (From the French Abnagum, that is, the winter feason). Was formerly used for the winter feeding, or for raising of corn. Cowell, edit. 1727. See Hiberniam.

York. In the North parts of England, the country people call the Feast of the Nativity of our Lord, usually termed Christmas, Yale, and the sports used at Christmass, here called Christmass Games, they fight Tailgames. Yale is the proper Scotch word for Christmass. See the act 1 Geo. c. 8. for repealing an act intituled, An act for repealing part of an act passed in the parliament of Scotland, intituled, An act for discharging the Yale vacant. See Scotland (Courts).

Yorkshire, (as we use at the end of indexes and other instruments, Yeomen, the day and year first above written) is derived from the Saxen, yeoman, a free-born man, which may dispended of his own free-land in yearly revenue to the sum of thirty shillings sterling. Versegam in his Riputation of decayed Intelligence, cap. 10. writes, That yeomen among the ancient Teutones, and gemen among the modern, signifies as much as common, and the letter g being turned into y, is written yemen, which therefore signifies a sammer. Yeman also signifies an officer in the King's house, in the middle place between the servant and the groom, as yeoman of the chamber, yeoman of the scullery, 33 H. 8. cap. 12. yeoman of the crown, 3 B. 4. 5. The word youngmen is used for yeomen, in the statute 33 H. 8. cap. 32. Cowell, edit. 1727.

York, is an ancient corruption of bima, Winter, ib. id.

Yeomen, or Proven, (as we use at the end of indexes and other instruments, Yeomen, the day and year first above written) is derived from the Saxen, cerium, i.e. dare, and is the same with given. See Dictum de Kentworth concludes with—Yeomen, and proclaimed in the castle of Kentworth the day before the calends of Nov. anno 1256. Cowell, edit. 1727. Yeoman is derived by Milchou from the Greek word yeoman, which signifies to hurt, probably, because, before the invention of guns, our ancestors made bows with this wood, with which they hurt their enemies, and therefore they took care to plant the trees in the churchyards, where they might be often seen and preferred by the people. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Yielding and Paying. (Redeemers & Federation) Is a corruption from the Saxen, gildan, and gildon, feueres, precisors. And in Domesday, gildan is frequently used for seueres, redd wildfires; the Saxen gildan being often turned into i.d. id.

Yingman. Leg. H. 1. cap. 15. Danagillum. quod aliquando gignantem datum, i.e. 12 de unagyoque hodie per annum; si ad terminum non reddatur, voita emendetur. Spoonel thinks this may be mistaken for Ingimissen, or as we say now Englishman, though he finds it written yingman both in Sir Robert Cotton's Codex and his own. Cowell, edit. 1727.

York, and Yorkshire. The remedy for St. Leonard's hospital for the thorns of corn due to them of every plough-land in Yorkshire, Cumberland, Westmorland, and Lancashire, 2 H. 6. c. 2.

Patents of exemption from offices in the city of York repealed, 39 Geo. 2. c. 3.

For making coverlets in York, 34 Geo. 35 H. 8. c. 10.

Churches in York united, 1 Ed. 6. c. 9.

The inhabitants of St. Helen's in Standgate in York, to rebuild their church, and the crown to present, 1 M. Suff. 2. c. 15.

Exchange of York house for other lands between the King and the Archbishop, 21 Jac. 1. c. 30.

The summoning of jurymen in Yorkshire regulated, 7 Edw. 3. cap. 32. f. 7. 1 Ann. b. 2. c. 13. f. 3. 2 Edw. 4. Ann. c. 18. f. 3. 34. 10 Ann. c. 14. f. 5. 6. 3 Geo. 2. c. 25.

Title:

Zabulum, (Latin, Sabulum) Grofs sand or gravel.

Zabulon, Diabolus: It is mentioned in several of our historians, viz. Gildas in excidio Britanniae, Edgar in Leg. Monarchorum Hiberniann., c. 4.

Zatta, Incendium: It is probable from hence we derive the English word, zeal. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Zatophy, Satin: It is mentioned in the Manofh, 3 Tom. par. 117.

Zelotes, (Zeelote) Is for the most part taken in poenam fenjum, and so we term one that is a Separatist or Schismatist from the church of England, a Zealot, or a Fanatick; which are well known terms of separation. Cowell, edit. 1727.

Zetta, A dining-room, hall, or parlour. Id. ib.
